FLOODS RAISE HAVOC IN NEW ENGLAND

Heavy Rains of Last Week Do Much Damage. Vermont is Struck Hardest and is in Bad Shape.

This time New England was deluged with water and hardly any portion escaped without more or less damage, and certain sections were very hard hit, loss of life and property being appalling in some instances. Vermont and western Massachusetts seemed to have been most prominently in the "wet territory," although New Hampshire was very far from being normal, for in some localities there was great damage to roads and bridges from excessive washouts caused by overflowing of rivers and streams. Rain came in such quantities and lasted so long that there was no other place for the water but to flood the lower places. Roads washed terribly and very many were closed until repairs were made. Railroads were in so much danger that trains were cancelled as a precautionary measure and in many cases washouts affected roadways and bridges.

In Antrim the damage was by washouts and roads were closed to travel for a short time. The road at Lawrence's mill on the flat near the Corn corner, so called, was under water. Beyond this point toward Stoddard on the Keese road there was too much water for safe traveling. From South Stoddard all travel to Antrim came over the Forest road so called through Hancock village. It will take hundreds of dollars to repair these roads.

On the flat near the Antrim railroad station, flat on Remington road, and the flat on Cork plain, beside other places, the water was high and gave one the impression of good sized lakes. Glad enough was everybody when the rain stopped and the clouds dispersed, even if the thermometer did drop a few degrees. In this particular section not much damage is done beyond the road beds.

TRIBUTE TO AN ANTRIM BUSINESS MAN

Life of Oscar W. Brownell Made Its Impression on the People of the Town in Which He Lived

It was reported in these columns last week that the subject of this sketch had completed his earthly career and had passed on from this life to a higher one, and the place that had known him for so many years would know him no more.

Oscar W. Brownell had a successful business career in Antrim. As a young man in his thirties he came to town from Elkins, this state, and entered the employ of the late John G. Abbott as an assistant in the undertaking business, and later after Mr. Abbott died and the business management changed somewhat, Mr. Brownell became manager and general superintendent of the J. G. Abbott Estate manufacturers of cribs, cradles, and bassinets, and continued in this business without interruption till a very few years ago when poor health made it necessary for him to retire from active participation in the business affairs of the company, but his services were continued as a business adviser.

Very few men having the conduct of business with any considerable number of help in his employ had the faculty of so peacefully getting on with his workmen as did Mr. Brownell. He was a man who was unusually active and always on the job; his workmen knew his desires and wishes and seemed always happy and desirous of granting them. Maintaining such a harmonious feeling in his establishment was the main reason why he was able to accomplish so much in the way of production, and was thereby able to make a success of the business he was conducting.

Deceased was respected by all who knew him, whether in his employ or living near him as a neighbor; and as a business associate all approved of his good judgement. It was with regret that our people learned of his failing health and were deprived of his usual activity in affairs. He was not a holder of public office, although his advice on matters of importance to the town was often sought.

He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and had membership with Waverley Lodge of Odd Fellows and Hand in Hand Rebekah Lodge, and was highly respected in both orders.

Mr. Brownell is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Carrie Woodward, of Malden, Mass., and one son, J. Leon Brownell, of Antrim, who have the sympathy of all in their affliction.

The funeral services were held from his late home in Clinton Village on Saturday afternoon last and were largely attended. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful and testified to the esteem in which deceased was held. Rev. R. H. Tibbals spoke words of comfort to the bereaved. Interment was in the family lot in Maplewood cemetery.

FORMER ANTRIM MAN WRITES AGAIN

This Time He Talks Entertainingly to the Young People and Relates Incidents That Have Pleased Him

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 24, 1927

Dear Boys and Girls:

This afternoon when I went down town I saw a fish hanging out in front of a store which weighed 105 lbs. At once I thought that you might want to hear this fish story which is a true one. A man said that if he caught another big Jew Fish in the ocean only a short distance from land, where he has been fishing, he would give it to the children in the orphanage here, and now they will have plenty of good fish for all.

Last week we saw some Pelicans which are not so plentiful here as in Florida, but they are sometimes seen on the beach. I remember watching them fish from the dock at St. Petersburg, Fla., and I thought it was a funny sight.

If you will take the trouble to look in some book showing bird pictures, you will see that they have enormous bills, and when they go after fish they open their bills wide and dive down into the water scooping up a few gallons of water and the fish which they want after. Then they sit down and press their bills against their necks expelling the water from the pouch in their throats. After that you can see them gulp and work hard to swallow the fish which has remained in their crop or trap as it might be called.

This summer we went to see the big trees in Sequoia National Park and it was worth all the trouble to get there. While I was resting on Sunday afternoon in the sun I noticed that a good sized squirrel was carrying a round cracker up one of the big trees and that he went up just the same way every time until he finally went out of sight into a great cavity in the trunk of the tree where I suppose that he has his home. He kept up the work for some hours, and when I went to see where he found the crackers I was surprised to see him go through the ventilator in the hood of an automobile belonging to one of the tourists and then climb over to the back seat where they had a bag of crackers for lunch.

The squirrel had torn open a bag of grapes which he did not care for, but when he found a sweet

Palestine Jews Expect Messiah

Look for Coming of Superman Who Will Put End to Next World War.

New York—A new Messiah who will become king of the Jewish nation and whose appearance will put to an end the next world war is predicted by the orthodox Jews of Palestine.

They declare that he will be a superman and that his kingdom will be a great center from which will radiate peace and brotherhood extending throughout the entire world.

The revelation of the Messiah will be preceded by the rebuilding of the temple, they say, adding that this will cause the enmity of many nations, especially those of the Moslem world. The last world war will focus itself in Palestine, and at the critical moment when all appears lost the Messiah, coming from heaven, will gain a decisive victory, according to the predictions. It is said he will immediately be proclaimed king, the first king of the Jewish nation in 20 centuries.

Of the 150,000 Jews in Palestine, most of whom have returned there from the four corners of the earth since the war, at least 50,000 are expecting developments to rapidly transpire until at an unexpected moment the Messiah will be revealed. "The Jews are praying every day for the coming of the Messiah," declared the president of the town council of Peta.

HEIRS OF AN INSANE WOMAN CLAIM TWELVE MILLION FUND

Viscount Bangor One of Claimants to Fortune Administered by Crown Since 1798.

London.—Viscount Bangor, the well known Irish peer and large landowner, is one of the claimants to a fortune of more than $12,000,000 in a suit against the British government which will form one of the most romantic cases of the chancery court here for many years.

The claim goes back to 1798. In that year, there died in London one Maria l'Epine, a certified lunatic. She left a fortune of about $400,000. At compound interest (this sum is now estimated to be worth about $12,500,000) the original estate was administered before Maria's death, by the lord chancellor, as the legal guardian of all persons of unsound mind. Afterward, the crown asserted that Maria was an illegitimate child and Tikva, the largest Jewish agricultural colony in Palestine.

"The Jews believe that some time a Messiah will come who will bring good not only to the Jews but to the whole world," remarked D. Smithson, who was decorated for distinguished service in Palestine during the war. "This idea is spreading throughout the country," he continued.

"The movement to Palestine, the settling on the land and the building up of the Jewish national home is the forerunner of the Messiah," declared Ephraim Sacks, formerly of Chicago, now president of the town council of the beautiful orange-producing colony, Rehovoth.

The ideal of the restoration of the temple just prior to the coming of the Messiah is soon to be realized, they hope. Ever since the destruction of their last temple, in 70 A. D., by the Roman Emperor Titus, the Jews have gathered daily at the famous "wailing wall" in Jerusalem praying for the rebuilding of the temple. The invasion of the Moslems in the seventh century resulted in the erection of the Mosque of Omar, the third most sacred shrine of performance of the sacred rites of the ruined temple. "The Mosque of Omar will be torn down soon and a wonderful temple like Solomon's shall be built there," happily exclaimed a rabbi as he was looking out over the temple area from a window of his synagogue.

Rumors are widespread that the specified parts of the temple have already been prepared in various countries, ready to be transported to Palestine and assembled at a moment's notice.

A group of Jerusalem Jews has actually sent a petition to the League of Nations asking for a portion of the old temple site to be awarded to the Jewish nation. The tabling of this petition by the league has not daunted their hopes for a restored temple. So sincerely are they expecting it that a class of prospective priests are being taught the performance of the sacred rites of the temple sacrifices.

The restoration of the temple will create intense animosity among the surrounding nations, they fear. "The nations of the world will fight against Jerusalem in the near future," declared one of the largest manufacturers in Jerusalem. "The leaders of the Jews sense the situation but they are afraid to express their opinions publicly," he remarked.

The circumstances making possible a war in Palestine will be the withdrawal of the British administration, it is believed. The secretary of a synagogue in Jerusalem said to me: "The Jews have been waiting 2,000 years for England's help, but the English won't always remain here. A certain rabbi making a prophecy 700 years ago foretold that the English would come into Palestine in 1919, but he also stated that they would

Claims Cancer Is on the Increase

Asheville, N. C.—One out of every ten human being succumbs to cancer, Dr. William P. Healy of New York declared in an address at the annual convention of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists and Abdominal Surgeons here. He added that the disease was on the increase and asserted that one out of five women, between the ages of forty-five to sixty-five years also dies from the disease.

leave Palestine before the expiration of a quarter of a century. This is yet to be fulfilled. Then, he says, that there will be a big war here. The last world war will focus itself in Palestine. The kings of the earth shall fight against the Jews in Palestine but the Messiah will come and cause the enemy to be utterly defeated. "The Messiah will be recognized as the great world leader, the law of the Lord shall flow out of Zion, and nations will learn of war no more," the rabbi firmly maintain.

Forage Land in U. S. Is Almost Depleted

Washington.—Depletion of forage resources in this country has reached such a stage that definite and earnest effort is urged to solve the problems of forage production on ranges and to develop satisfactory utilization practices for this type of land. Attention is called to this situation by W. R. Chapline, inspector of grazing in charge of range research of the United States forestry service. "As early as 1890," Chapline says, "range grazing lands were stocked to their capacity, while some were already overstocked. Continued overstocking over enormous areas reduced the carrying capacity both by cutting down the quantity of forage produced and by increasing erosion of the productive surface soil. "Continuous research is essential to meet fully the needs of the range live stock industry. Open herding and the bedding-out system in handling sheep, and the deferred and rotation system of grazing, have resulted in increased carrying capacity and a chance for improvement of depleted range."

It is estimated that 20,000,000 sheep, goats and swine and 13,000,000 cattle, horse and mules of the eleven western states obtain 70 per cent of their feed from range land. The value of the live stock is approximately $800,000,000.

Man Buys Entire Village in California for $7,500

Eureka, Calif.—C. W. Morgan set a new price for California towns when he took over the village of Oak Bar in Siskiyou county, for $7,500. The town consists of a general merchandise store, a dance hall, a post office, a gasoline station and a few houses and cabins. Morgan owned the town once before.

ria. There was no other issue of the marriage, and the claimants assert that Maria's aunt was her next of kin. All the living heirs of that aunt, who include Lord Bangor, have united in the petition, which was originally filed by Miss Amy Mason of London.

The point at issue, supporting the claim to be sustained, is whether the statute of limitations will operate in such a case. So far as is known at present, there has never been a previous decision on this point of law. There are no descendants of Lord Howe, to whom the money was granted, and thus, if the petition is successful, the treasury will be responsible for the payment of the claim.

Younger Indians Turn From Faith of Fathers

Sixty or seventy years ago the Fox Indians of Iowa began the acquisition of the English alphabet from missionaries. They learned a method of writing their own language by means of the English alphabet, separating their words into syllables. Since there is only a rough conformity between the characters as employed by the Fox Indians and the actual sounds, it is necessary to restore the phonetics of any Fox text so that the symbols may correctly represent them. Dr. Truman Michelson, of the Smithsonian Institution's Bureau of American Ethnology, has been foremost in this work of collection and restoration.

Doctor Michelson, whose work has made him the foremost authority on the Fox Indians, describes their rituals as consisting mainly of eating, dancing and prayer. As is natural with a primitive people, their prayers invite material benefits such as long life, freedom from disease, that the chief's village should be strong enough to resist its enemies, and that no foe should even be permitted to gossip against the village.

According to Doctor Michelson, the younger generation now turn these once serious ceremonies into occasions for amusement. Up to some 15 years ago the tribe was so conservative as to resist education, but it has since grown progressive and all the young Indians are anxious to go to school. The tribe are good farmers and compete with the whites in the state agricultural fairs.

Very Concrete

"Oh, you Easterners can boast of your fine buildings and their splendid workmanship," said the Angeleno, "but out my way we are so careful what we put in a building that we even inspect every grain of sand." "Maybe so," retorted the Bostonian, "but here in the East our buildings go up so quick we have to use quicksand to mix with our cement before it solidifies. Otherwise the cement would be all up in the forms before the sand got in it."—Los Angeles Times.

Heart of Polynesia

Native Tahitian Girl.

Tahiti lies far from the feverish activities of modern industrial life. It is more than 1,000 miles below the equator, in longitude about 150 degrees west; 3,000 miles from Australia, 3,000 miles from San Francisco, 4,500 miles from the Panama canal, 6,000 miles from Asia. By old trade routes—via the Suez canal and Australia—it is nearly as far from New York as all these distances combined, but the Panama canal reduces this to 6,500 nautical miles, thus effecting a saving of 10,000 miles.

Ever since its discovery by Wallis in 1767, the Otaheite of early exploration days—or King George the Third's Island, as this navigator called it—has been famed as an isolated jewel remarkable in contour, rich in verdure, blessed with a pleasant, healthful climate, and inhabited by friendly people of handsome physique.

Tahiti is an extraordinary work of creation—a jagged, fertile clasper from volcanic pits, perhaps, or a verdant fragment of a sunken continent. It is indeed a steeped gem of wondrous green within a teeming coral ring.

This captivating heart of Polynesia presents abundant evidence that in its adornment nature was in a liberal mood. Here the eye is delighted by leafy luxuriance stretching from palm-fringed beach to loftiest mountain crest; by the brilliant colors of land and sea; by the high physical standards of the natives, both men and women.

Here the ear is soothed by the wash of an inner sea; by the flow of gentle streams or of boisterous mountain torrents. Here the tired or distressed mind is composed and renewed by lasting quietude, and by the knowledge that madly competitive centers are far away.

Overshadowing all are the mountains. In every colossal pile there is distinctiveness. Here a mighty slab rises high above a valley; there a peak with a triangle summit shoots thousands of feet upward; beyond lofty columns hundreds of feet in thickness stand in solitary grandeur; another turn and a shaft cuts the sky with an edge like an enormous knife—an edge to which tree, shrub, fern and vine cling tepidly.

As its indulgent climate might well suggest, Tahiti is an amiable country. Along all its shores one sees smiling, care-free faces, bright, liquid eyes expressing contentment and inviting confidence, and generous hands outstretched in welcome. Everywhere one hears musical voices carrying notes of kindness and sympathy; daily the visitor is gladdened by the gracious "Haere mai!" or the social "Iorana!"

Tahiti is not an abode of savages. It still has primitive life, but of barbarism it has none. There life and property are safe; compulsory education quickens the mind of the youthful; and the church, the vernacular religious press, and contact with the Caucasian broaden, in a limited way, the intellect of the adult.

It is most impressive to gain one's first view of Tahiti at dawn. To the right and left strangely shaped mountains cleave the sky, and in their dense wooded depths fit fantastic outlines of crag, peak, and precipice. On a coral-strewn shore tall palms flap a lazy welcome. In the distance rise the green spires of La Diademe. Between them and the jutting Reef, Papeete, drowsy capital and metropolis of Tahiti and its far-flung dependencies, gently rises and falls in a mirroring sea.

As the ship anchors inside the reef, the sun is ready to surmount its lofty obstruction. Shafts of gold shoot over the island. Suddenly sunbeams bathe mountains summit and valley floor. The great Ra of the Polynesian is now well advanced on his daily march across the sky. In the luxuriant foliage, vapor shadows fantastically flit about. In the burst of light one sees more clearly the strange features of rocky height, the palm-sheltered shores, and the secluded town beneath leafy sunshades.

Straight ahead is the long, high ridge of Aoral, culminating 7,000 feet above the tides. Standing at the head of the historic Fautaua valley, it overlooks La Diademe and lesser heights and guards a difficult entrance to the innermost recesses of the island.

The Great Mountain Crown. To its right rises a great crown of nature's fashioning—La Diademe of the French, the Maliau of the Tahitians. The loftiest of its jutting spurs, which fancy has sculptured into kindly insignia, towers 4,000 feet above the sea and seems to be covered to its tip with vegetation. Between Aoral and the lengthy ridges to the right is a mighty gap. Through this the Fautaua river cuts its way, spilling itself, six miles from the sea, in a cascade more than 600 feet high.

In the foreground, mirrored in a deep and clear harbor that swarms with marine life of great variety and diversified color, runs a fringe of algaroba trees. Back of them are sequestered avenues of "fanboyant," tamarind, mango, and breadfruit. From these rise an occasional red tile roof, church spires, white flag-staffs, and tall coconut palms.

Sloping gradually from the town, evergreen hills, scarred here and there by barren red and gray clay, extend miles inland, where they overlook the Fautaua and Puanarua valleys. They are broken into almost innumerable canyons and gullies all over their surface.

As the steamer draws near the shore many small craft—the picturesque outrigger, canoe, the broad-benched fruit boat, and the noisy gasoline schooner—lie at anchor or move about the lake-like harbor.

At the copra-scented dock hundreds of Tahitians and scattered pairs and groups of Americans and Europeans are on hand to meet the boats from Africa. It is a variegated throng. There are as many colors and shades of complexion as there are of dress, and some of the feminine possessors are beautifully proportioned and move with queenly grace. Their dark hair, crowned in some cases with a wreath of the tiare, the flower of love and friendship, hangs low on their backs. Their brilliant dark eyes sparkle with good will and merry resolution.

Everyone in Papeete rises early except the tourist. The capital believes in making the most of the cool hours of the dawn. The market opens at 5:30, the shops remove their shutters 30 minutes later, and the laborer begins work at the same hour.

Only the Carts Move Rapidly. All this activity, however, is quiet bustle. The only noise is the rattle of lantern-lit carts driven furiously by native Jews. These men of the whip love speed, and they insist on getting it, even though the horse they drive looks like a cadaver.

At 11 o'clock, and in some cases an hour sooner, Papeete pauses to take a siesta of an hour or two. During this period all places of business are closed, barring Chinese shops, which keep open uninterruptedly until bedtime.

The most animated moment of the town's daily life begins shortly after its 5,000 inhabitants awaken. The site of this activity is the market square, Sunday is the chief market day of the week. At that time neatly dressed men and women from many parts of Tahiti assemble at the market half an hour before the opening bell clangs its signal.

On the previous day and night, boatloads of fela (plantains) and oranges are laid outside the market building in preparation for the morning rush, and in the Sabbath dawn strings of fish and wagons filled with soil products are hurried to the victualers' stands.

The scene is enlivening; the crowd is friendly and gay. There meet comrades and relatives who have long been separated; there white and brown elbow each other in neighborly fashion.

Within 30 minutes after the first customer is served the fish benches are stripped, and the butchers, bakers and vegetable men, have parted with more than half their stock. In an hour, the market is almost deserted.

Novelty Sports Woolens Are Chic for School Clothes

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

A STUDY of the new modes reveals the prominence of novelty woolens in the realm of sports and utilitarian apparel. Which fact contributes directly to the attractiveness of clothes for the schoolgirl.

What with the gay flannels and woolen crepes, patterned tweeds, ombre striped reps, tricolor knit ef-around the hips. The accompaniment of a simple cardigan coat and skirt of woolen which is neutral in tone accents the color glory of the blouse. Very clever sports ensembles face the tuxedo revers of the full-length coat with the same vivid knitted medium as that employed for the blouse. When one visualizes the knitted fects and the like the classroom is destined to stage a scene of animated color and design this season.

A smart note for fall is the two-piece flannel frock, combining solid color with patterned. The costume in the picture is the latest offering of a leading Parisian couturier. The material is beige kasha, the skirt a wrap-around of plain color and the blouse of plaid design with high neck and long sleeves. An ideal costume this for the college girl.

The most intriguing item of chic in the new sports and school clothes is undoubtedly the blouse. Originality is interpreted in its every phase. For its development every cunning medium is employed from flannel and velveteen to jersey and myriads of knitted effects. Color schemes for the new blouse are at once startling and fascinating.

The latest flight of imagination is the blouse of tricolor stripe. That is, the knitted jumper shows horizontal stripes full eight inches deep, beginning with a light shade for the top, grading to darker for the central portion, finishing with the deepest tone stripes in hues of yellow, red, green and navy, the effectiveness of the color scheme is most assuring.

Tweed printed velveteens are also among the newer fabrics which are in evidence for the creation of the separate blouse.

Children Need Spinach as Often as Possible

Children need spinach as often as possible and they should have a pint of milk or more a day. Spinach soup, which combines these two valuable foods in an excellent way contributes to both needs. Directions for making it are given by the United States Department of Agriculture.

1 quart milk 2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter 1 cup ground or 1 teaspoon milk raw spinach

Add to the spinach mix the flour and butter until well blended and add to the milk with the spinach. Stir until thickened and the spinach is cooked.

An Attractive Vegetable Plate for Lunch, Supper

A Tasty Combination Lunch.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many combinations are good in vegetable plates. Particularly appetizing is this lunch or supper of baked potato, cauliflower, fresh or canned peas, and fried canned pineapple. If cauliflower is not available, cabbage may be used.

The foods must be timed so as to be ready together. The baked potato will require about 45 minutes to cook, the cauliflower and fresh peas about 20, and the pineapple about 30 minutes, according to how many pieces are to be prepared. Cook the pineapple slowly in butter, after it has been drained and floured, until it is a delicate brown, and keep it hot while the other foods are being arranged on the plates.

Avoid having too hot an oven for the baked potato. A very hot oven produces a hard dark crust. When the potatoes feel mealy and tender to the very center, take them out of the oven immediately and work them between the fingers, then slice a fork into one side and make an opening to let out the steam. Press the potato flesh upward and put a piece of butter on it. Sprinkle with paprika and serve at once.

"I'll have to go over in a corner of the pen by myself and speak to myself if I'm to be sure of having an attentive, quiet audience."

SERVE CUSTARD SAUCE WITH CANNED PEACHES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Serve custard sauce occasionally with such canned fruit as peaches, plums, apricots, or pears, or with some of the fresh fruits in season. Custards, moreover, add to the supply of iron and vitamins the children get, and they should be encouraged to eat them.

To make a soft custard, use a double boiler, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Heat a quart of milk with half a cupful of sugar and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt in the double boiler. Beat five or six egg yolks lightly and pour slowly into them some of the heated milk. Pour back into the pan and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once and place the pan in a bowl of cold water, stirring until cool. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla. Chill the custard and serve with canned peaches or other fruit.

this liquid mixture gradually into the dry ingredients. Add the melted fat. If the corn is very moist even after the liquid has been drained from it, more flour may be added. Dried corn, which has been soaked and cooked until tender, may also be used.

Fry the corn fritters in deep fat or, if preferred, in a skillet in shallow fat. In either case, drop the mixture by spoonfuls into the fat and fry rather slowly, for these fritters need time to cook through to the center before the outside becomes too brown. Drain the fritters on absorbent paper and serve hot.

RECIPES FOR THANKSGIVING

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"A kindly deed is a little seed. That grows all unseen; And lo, when none do look thereon, Anew it springs green."

Soon the festive day which our forefathers set apart for thanksgiving will be here. Let us prepare for the occasion by preserving the traditions of those who gave their lives that we might enjoy the pursuit of happiness.

As turkey is the time-honored fowl for this day, we must look to its preparation and stuffing for that is an important part of making it palatable and enjoyable.

A properly seasoned bird is best stuffed the day before roasting to let the seasoning penetrate and flavor the meat.

When the juice which follows the fork when thrust into the breast shows a pinkish tint and the joints may be separated easily, it is ready to serve.

Bread-Crumb Stuffing.—Take two quarts of bread crumbs, rather stale, for the stuffing of a ten-pound turkey. Take two-thirds of a cupful of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful each of sweet marjoram and summer savory crumbled to a powder, and one-half teaspoonful of white pepper. A tablespoonful of minced onion may be added if liked. Add the butter and seasonings to the crumbs, adding enough milk or water to lightly moisten the stuffing. Fill the bird, sew up and truss for roasting. Place in the roasting pan breast-side down for the first roasting; it will keep the best juices from wasting in the roasting. Turn and baste often.

Chestnut Pudding.—Blanch a pint of chestnuts, have them and cook until tender in a cupful of milk, letting them simmer until soft. Press through a sieve, add one-fourth pint of sugar, a little salt, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and a grating of nutmeg. Beat the yolks and whites of three eggs separately, add the yolks to the chestnut pulp, stir well, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites; put into a pudding dish and bake fifteen minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Chestnut Salad.—Blanch chestnuts by putting them into a hot pan, slitting each, then when they pop open remove the shell and skins. Cook until tender in a little broth, then slice or cut into small pieces and serve on lettuce with a good dressing.

Boiled Chestnuts as Vegetable.—Remove the shells and blanch the nuts in boiling water, boiling for a few minutes, then drop them into cold wa-

"Flummery" Dessert Is Easy to Prepare

A "flummery" is an old-fashioned dessert that is easy to make in the season of highly flavored small fruits such as blackberries and black raspberries. Many people dislike the seeds in stewed or canned berries. Flummery has all the fruit flavor without the seeds. The bureau of home economics gives these directions for making it:

Blackberry Flummery.
2 cupfuls blackberry juice from canned or cooked fresh blackberries
1/2 cupful sugar (if juice is unsweetened)
3 tablespoonfuls farina or 4 tablespoonfuls cornstarch
1/4 teaspoonful salt
2 teaspoonfuls lemon juice

Heat the blackberry juice. Mix the sugar and the farina or cornstarch and the salt, and add to the blackberry juice. Cook in a double boiler for 15 to 20 minutes, or until the mixture thickens and the raw starchy taste disappears. Remove from the fire, add the lemon juice, and beat well. Serve cold with top milk or plain whipped cream. Raspberry flummery is made in the same way.

Worn and run-down heels not only look bad but are likely to cause aches and pains in one's legs and back.

Marking ink on white cottons or linens may be removed with Javelle water followed by water containing a few drops of ammonia.

cook them until tender enough to be pierced with a fork—about forty minutes. Drain and put over hot water to keep warm. Prepare the sauce, either a rich white sauce or Hollandaise.

French Chestnut Soup.—Peel, blanch and cook a quart of large chestnuts in slightly salted water for twenty minutes. Add one teaspoonful of salt and sugar, the rind of a lemon and a quart of water. Cook further until the chestnuts are done. Rub through a sieve and add two quarts of chicken or veal stock, a teaspoonful of minced parsley, a tablespoonful each of flour and butter well blended. Serve with a dash of orange juice.

A little cooked ham put through the meat grinder added to an omelet makes a change and a very substantial dish.

Hints for the Housewife

Use old felt hats to resole bedroom slippers.

Chocolate is delicious sweetened with honey.

To make cherry cocktail, use red or white cherries, stone, drain and sprinkle with shredded coconut.

Add a handful of salt to the last water on wash day and the clothes will not stick to the line in frosty weather.

If a jar of chocolate or fruit syrup is kept in the icebox, cool milk drinks can be made in a jiffy.

Worn and run-down heels not only look bad but are likely to cause aches and pains in one's legs and back.

INTERESTING STORY OF THE DINNER SET

The set of Dishes of our parents was 112 or 130 pieces, seldom was any other assortment offered or purchased, no others were available.

The result was a lot of dishes in the cupboard never used, never taken from the cupboard save at house cleaning time. THEN CAME THE STOCK PATTERNS, from which the housewife made her own selection, sometimes 50, sometimes 80 pieces and all between, then from time to time additions were made and breakage made good.

SELECTION FROM STOCK PATTERNS HAS GREATLY REDUCED THE COST OF DISHES

Today the housewife selects just the dishes she needs for the family and its immediate prospective guests; she does not clutter her cupboard, nor deplete her purse, with a lot of useless pieces.

A VERY POPULAR ASSORTMENT TODAY IS 32 PIECES

That provides the necessary pieces for six people and makes the purchase price a very modest sum indeed. $7.98 and up in our store will provide a set in imported handsomely decorated guaranteed ware and gives a CHOICE OF POPULAR NEW PATTERNS, carrying a wide range of color scheme and shapes and all available for addition when you desire. If you break the handle off a cup, and what housewife does not, you buy the cup without paying for the saucer.

It is a Good Time to Look into the Dinner Set Matter. You Will Be Surprised to See what a Small Sum of Money Will Do In Our Stock. The Holidays Are Just Ahead. It is Time to Act.

If you cannot call we can parcel post samples of plates and list of pieces and prices, you can select in your own home, always more satisfactory, however, to see the shapes and sizes in the store.

Words and Music by a Native of Antrim.

In the last edition of The Reporter was given an account of the Antrim party held in Boston, and in the report was mentioned the fact that Alfred Tenney Balch, a native of Antrim, sang a solo which words were composed by him. We have received a copy of this song for insertion in The Reporter, and gladly give it place herewith:

Memories of Antrim

By Alfred T. Balch
17 Martland Ave., Brockton

Of times in my mem'ry I wander,
Wander back to the days of yore,
Yes, my mem'ry goes back to those bygone days.

Good old days that can be no more.
Our friends may come and friends
may go,

As the years swiftly pass us by,
But none can compare, with the friends back there,
And mem'ry will keep them nigh.

Chorus

Antrim, in memory, no other hearer,
Your Sons and Daughters praise
Your virtues, finer, dearer,
Grand rugged granite hills;
Lakes and streams abound,
Hail! Hail! our memory thrills,
As we walk o'er hallowed ground.
As we walk o'er hallowed ground.

II

We're gathered here tonight friends of Antrim,
To renew those old days once more.
Let your mem'ry go back to those
bygone days,
Turn the clock back to days of yore.
Your heart will thrill, as mem'ry turns

The pages of yesteryear,
Old friends, old faces, old sweethearts,
In the home-town we hold so dear.

Entertainment at Town Hall

The entertainment at town hall last Friday evening under the auspices of the Baptist ladies circle, was largely attended and highly spoken of by all. The leading attraction was Miss Lella M. Church, of Rockville, Conn., who gave a one-act play, "Just Peggy," and costume readings; she was in her usual good form, her selections were pleasing and manner of delivery very attractive. She wrote Antrim's pageant and our people were pleased to again have the opportunity of seeing and hearing her. The musical selections were by a trio composed of Mrs. Vera Butterfield, Miss Elizabeth Tandy and Frank J. Boyd. This combination of vocalists is always welcomed by an Antrim audience and our people never tire of listening to them. They were unusually good at this time and rendered their pleasing selections in a splendid manner; their encores were generous and the audience very appreciative. The efforts of Mrs. Elizabeth Felker as accompanist were also enjoyed and well received.

The Antrim Woman's Club

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held in the town hall on October 25. The speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Flora A. Spaulding, of Manchester, gave a most interesting and instructive talk on "The Grand Canyon and Points Farther West." The speaker has visited this western and north western country, and illustrated her talk with beautiful views. Mrs. Ethel Nichols rendered a pleasing piano solo.

Our next regular meeting will be November 22, when Mrs. Lawton Chase, of Peterboro, will speak on Educational Week Program.

"Buy a Tree for a Dollar and Save Franconia Notch!"

This is the slogan being used in connection with the purchase of Franconia Notch, in an effort to save this handsome spot of scenic beauty, in the only White Mountains in the world, from despoliation of timber interests. The Manchester Union in cooperation with the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, is carrying forward a campaign to help save this particular Notch and the Old Man of the Mountains; this can only be accomplished by the public purchase of the Notch and its environments, and the owners have agreed to sell. The plan is fully explained in the Union and the proposition is a worthy one; we predict it will "come across" with flying colors. Everybody will have an opportunity to purchase as many trees as he may desire—not to remove or in any way deface them—although he may name them if he so wishes. The patriotic urge in connection with this proposition will have sufficient force in it to accomplish the desired result.

Echoes of the Masque Dance

The Masque Dance at the Grange hall was a decided success. At an early hour the masqueraders began to gather and at nine o'clock the hall was filled with a motley crowd which made a striking picture against the orange, black and silver decorations. Scarcely every nationality and in every walk of life was represented. Among those deserving special mention were "Satan," represented by Mr. French of Milford, and his partner, "The Butterfly." There were several clowns, but two in particular drew considerable attention by their funny antics. The gypsy maid was bewitching, the Spanish lady was most charming, the staid Puritan maid, the Italian peasant girl, the cowboy, sailor, convicts, and even the baseball player was in evidence.

At ten o'clock the prizes were awarded the following for the best costumes: First prize, lady's costume—Japanese lady—Jean Savage. Second—Turkish lady—Alice Cuddihy.

First prize, gentleman's costume.—Indian chief—Mildred Whitney.

Second—Hobo—Mr. Goodwin.

Those acting as judges were: Fred Temple, Hillsboro; Mrs. John Day, Antrim; James A. Savage, Melrose.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I lost weight again and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 120 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is enough for happiness.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste, it's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the best on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

White Man Was Aid to Cherokees

Trader Befriended Homeless Redskins, Acting as Unofficial Agent.

Washington.—The checkered career of the Cherokee Indians and their unusual relations during the middle decades of the last century with a white trader, Col. William H. Thomas, whose long friendship for them is characterized as one of the most remarkable stories of Indian history, are described in a statement issued by the United States board of Indian commissioners.

The Cherokee tribe, one of the largest living in the early days east of the Mississippi river, was first encountered by DeSoto in his expedition of 1540, says the statement. "The home country of the Indians of that day covered a large mountainous area extending from southwestern Virginia down into northern Georgia and Alabama. As the whites spread out their settlements along the Atlantic seaboard, they began to come in contact with the Cherokees in their mountain valleys.

"Because of its desire to resist the aggressions of the white settlers, the tribe became embroiled in a series of disastrous wars which began soon after the year 1700. These bloody conflicts culminated in 1855 in the much-disputed treaty of New Echota, the head village of the tribe located in southeastern Tennessee. The treaty, negotiated by a minority, provided for the removal of the whole Indian nation, around 16,000 individuals, west of the Mississippi.

"After strenuous but fruitless opposition on the part of the majority of the tribe and their many white friends, including such men as Daniel Webster and Henry Clay, the government ordered Gen. Winfield Scott to take the Indians westward in 1838. "The Cherokees residing in western North Carolina on account of their greater inaccessibility had had less contact with the whites than the major portion of the tribe, and for that and other reasons were one of the most conservative elements among their people. When General Scott's troops tried to gather in this portion of the tribe living in the country of the Great Smoky mountains they encountered difficulties, many of the Indians fleeing and secreting themselves in mountain caves and other hiding places.

"Realizing the difficulty of capturing this elusive band, the general finally decided to permit its members to stay if several of their number, who shot and killed a few of his troops, were delivered up. This was done and Indians have resided in these mountain caves ever since. The band of original refugees was added to at different times by stragglers who managed to slip back from the West.

"Col. William H. Thomas, a white trader among the North Carolina Indians whose long friendship for them is one of the most remarkable stories of Indian history, began his efforts to help the refugees as soon as the last caravans of the main branch of the tribe had moved on the western journey.

"In 1842 he finally prevailed upon the government authorities at Washington to pay to the eastern Indians their share of moneys due them for being dispossessed of lands and improvements as guaranteed in the treaty of New Echota, to those who were to move West.

"By the act of June 20, 1848, congress directed that the names of those Indians remaining in the East be associated and $53,333 placed in the treasury to the credit of each Indian enrolled. Interest to be paid at 6 per cent from the date of the ratification of the New Echota treaty, May 23, 1850.

"Interest on this fund was turned over to Thomas, who purchased lands for the Indians from time to time up to 1861 in order to provide them with permanent homes. Contiguous areas lying along the Oconee, Luffy river and Socco creek, together with smaller detached tracts, were bought.

"The main area of land later became known as the Qualla boundary, taking its name from that of Thomas' principal trading store and agency at Qualla Town, near the mouth of Socco creek, not far distant from the present boarding school. As the state of North Carolina prohibited Indians from owning land until as late as 1866, it was necessary for Thomas to hold title in his own name for all lands purchased with the Indian moneys.

"In 1849 it was reported that there were 1,046 Indians in the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. Thomas made a census in 1841 and enumerated 1,220 persons. Following the passage of the act of 1848, a government agent named Mullay made a roll of the Indians and found only 1,517, but when it became known that payments were to be made the addition of other claimants ran the roll up to 2,153.

"Rolls were made by Siler in 1851 and Chapman in 1852, these varying but slightly from the Mullay roll.

The Thomas Legion.

"Thomas was made a colonel of a Confederate regiment in the Civil war and four infantry companies of Cherokees were enlisted, around 400 men, constituting nearly all the able-bodied men of military age in the tribe. This regiment, known as the Thomas Legion, guarded the mountain passes on the North Carolina-Tennessee boundary. At the end of the conflict, Colonel Thomas found all of his resources had been swept away and soon thereafter his personal misfortunes brought on insanity.

"The tangled affairs of the Thomas estate put the Indians in a serious plight. Technically, the colonel was the owner of the Indian lands, and all of his property passed into the

Says Women Resemble Ape More Than Man

London.—Woman resembles the ape more than does man, at least so it seems to Dr. Arthur Thomson, eminent British anatomist, professor in that science at Oxford university since 1883.

In making his assertion before the Royal Academy Doctor Thomson said the basis for his statement "was that woman's legs are usually shorter, and her arms longer, than man's."

It is only conceit which makes mankind believe it is not descended from the ape, he continued. Although generations have brought great changes in anatomy, the similarities are too great to be ignored. Furthermore, he contended, a baby, until it can walk, "resembles the ape in nearly every respect."

hands of his creditors. Sheriff's deeds were given for the lands, and in order to recover them, congress authorized suit to be brought to regain all the property that had been purchased with Indian funds which had been advanced by the government.

"An award was made in 1874 returning the lands to the tribe and a final decree was rendered in 1883 confirming the title. It was necessary for congress to make some appropriation to bring about a complete settlement.

"The first census authorized by congress following the Civil war was made by Colonel Swetland in 1848. The Indians listed numbering 2,385. In 1870 the tribe met and organized a government, electing a chief, minor officers and a representative council.

"The government established an agency in 1882 and authorized the agent, J. G. Hester, to make a census of the Cherokees living east of the Mississippi. The population total was found to be 2,356. The Indians residing in North Carolina numbering 1,181. Then in 1889, in order to acquire a more definite legal status so as to protect their lands from the encroachment of the whites, the Indians were incorporated by the North Carolina legislature as the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

"Under this corporation the Indians elected a chief and assistant chief to serve for terms of four years, and a council of 15 members serving for two years. The superintendent of the agency acted as ex-officio secretary of the council."

Many Miles of New Roads in Washington

Olympia, Wash.—Seven months' driving at 200 miles a day are required to tour every highway in the state of Washington this fall, as the result of completion of much new roadway mileage during the last year. Frequently tourists announce they will be in the Northwest state but a few days and want to see all they can in that time. The total mileage is now in excess of 45,000 and many new long stretches of highway are being surveyed, particularly one from Spokane to Seattle, 430 miles in length.

LONELY ISLAND OF ROMANCE TO GET ITS FIRST RADIO SET

Monastery of Life on Desolate Tristan da Cunha to Be Broken by New World Contact.

London.—Interest on both sides of the Atlantic has recently been aroused by the solitude of King George and Queen Mary of England for the welfare and comfort of the least-known and loneliest island colony in the world.

Romance blows with the wind from every solitary island; and the romance of Tristan da Cunha is its grandeur of isolation, the struggle for existence of the few inhabitants of its rock-bound shores and the experiences of a sailor who left as a heritage to the island the belief that somewhere amid the rocks is to be found a wealth of pirate treasure. The island is distant from its nearest neighbor, St. Helena, by 1,200 miles, and is far from the path of ships, rarely indeed receiving a visit from the great and busy world.

In 1814, during the war with Great Britain, an English garrison occupied this strategic island. There they found three Americans, one of whom, Jonathan Lambert of Salem, "is reputed to have sailed the seas as a buccaneer." As a pirate he ran arms and public hangings. The story goes that he came to Tristan in order to hoard in a secret place the booty of many a rich prize, plundered on the Spanish Main.

Thus the place is invested with the magic spell of a Treasure Island, and to this day, the islanders believe that within its bounds is to be found a rich hoard of doubloons, pieces of eight, or louis d'or. Whether this be true or not, Lambert, when found by the English, was engaged in the peaceful occupation of preparing the skin and oil of seals, with which the shoreabounded. These were exchanged for provisions with any passing ships.

The continuous occupation of Tristan da Cunha began, however, in 1817, when William Glass, a corporal of the royal artillery, was left on the island with his wife and two soldiers who had been induced to join them. The island was discovered by a Portuguese guano, whose name the island bears, in 1503. Today there is a colony of 140 composed of shipwrecked sailors and a few settlers from Cape Town.

The people on the island are self-governing and self-supporting. They are daring seamen and clever carpenters and masons. Physically the island is entirely of volcanic formation.

The social life of the community is limited and the monotonous existence of the inhabitants is rarely broken. The island will soon experience the joys of radio, for early in 1923 the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France will stop near the island en route to Cape Town, when a powerful sea and many other gifts from American and Canadian passengers will be landed on a raft.

A Turn-Down

Vice President Barnhart of the National Surety company of New York said the other day that the modern girl expects a man to spend $50 at least when he takes her out of an evening, whereas her mother was content with an expenditure of $3.

"The modern girl, I'm afraid, is extravagant," Mr. Barnhart went on. "A young bank clerk proposed to a modern girl the other night:

"Darling, he wound up anxiously, 'you could live on $30 a week, couldn't you?'"

"The girl laughed.

"Yes," she said, "but no longer."

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. ## Preference for ESSEX almost 2 to 1

In outselling any other "Six" at or near the price, almost two to one, the signal thing is not merely the overwhelming preference for the Essex Super-Six, but the source from which it comes. A great proportion of buyers are owners, former and present, of big and costly cars. They turn to Essex because they find:

The smoothness and performance of their costlier cars. Comfort and riding ease not excelled in any car. The roominess and relaxation of their larger cars. Traffic nimbleness and handling ease unmatched in larger cars. Economy of operation and maintenance exclusive to Essex.

EAST ANTRIM

Friends in this town were greatly shocked to read in the Manchester Union of the sudden death of Frank O. Clement. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., May 5, 1854, and attended the graded schools near Boston. Later he graduated from Bryant & Stratton Business College and fitted for book keeping which he followed for many years. Mr. Clement lived in Antrim a few years in early manhood, where he met and married Alma F. Shattuck, who was his life partner and who now survives him, also one daughter, Clara V. Manchester has been his home for nearly fifty years, but the friendships formed here in early life continued and he rarely failed to call each year to meet and greet old friends. Being of a genial disposition and very well read, it was a pleasure to hear his optimistic opinion of current events and general topics of the day. It was in his home he seemed happiest, surrounded by his family and friends, and it is in the home he will be most missed. Beside the widow and daughter he leaves two brothers, John D., of San Diego, Cal., Will D., of Waltham, Mass., also two sisters, Mary C. Atwood and Charlotte C. Harvey, of Hillsboro. Interment was in the family lot in Deering.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Tuttle spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Edson Tuttle; the trip was made to attend the funeral in Manchester of Frank O. Clement.

M. S. and M. E. French and their wives, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. S. months were recently at York Beach, Me., at Mr. French's cottage, for a short stay.

The Halloween party at the East school was greatly enjoyed. Seems as though the children never did have a better time, and the order ones enjoyed seeing them and visiting. Refreshments of cake, coffee, cocoa and candy, were served.

Richard Swett and mother and Dr. Peters left town last week for Brooklyn, N. Y., where they will remain for the winter. It is their plan now to again have a boys' camp here next year, having had a successful summer. Two of the boys are living with them this winter. They have improved their buildings with shingles, paint etc., and hope to do more as time goes on.

AUCTION SALE

By Ezra S. Dutton & Son, Auctioneers, Greenfield

I shall conduct a large auction sale of cows, horses, blankets, harness, wagons, sleighs and equipment, etc., at Maplegrove Farm, Antrim, on Friday, November 11, at 12 o'clock noon. In this sale are 20 head of extra good cows, some good horses, two bales of new blankets, lot of harness, wagons and sleighs. This is a real auction sale where all goods go to the highest bidder, as I have not the room to house the stock and must sell. Read auction bills for particulars.
Fred L. Proctor, Antrim.

"Movie" Realism Not Actually New Thing

Motion picture producers were not really originators when they began wrecking trains, burning buildings and otherwise destroying property to obtain realistic effects in their films. Alexis, a member of the Russian house of Orloff, brother of Gregory and companion in the assassination of Peter III, is believed to have been the first to resort to destruction for the sake of art.

Alexis was an admiral in command of the Russian fleet that destroyed that of the Turks under Capudan Pasha. By way of perpetuating the victory, Alexis ordered Hackert, an artist, to paint four canvases portraying it and when the painter mentioned to Alexis that he hadn't an idea how a ship on fire looked, the admiral immediately ordered that a Russian ship-of-the-line, carrying 74 guns, be cleared and placed just where Hackert could obtain the best view of it.

When this was done, the ship was set afire and burned to the water's edge. The four paintings were made and first hung in the Strelina palace, afterward being transferred to the Hermitage palace at St. Petersburg, now Leningrad.—New York Evening World.

Mail Armor

The use of mail armor probably was known in very early times, but owing to its propensity for rusting unless steadily cared for, few relics of early armor are found. Some fragments have been found in the graves of Vikings, and Rome knew it. The use of chain armor died out with the fall of the Roman empire, but had been revived in the Eleventh century.

Missionaries Active

Missionaries today are maintaining 54,000 European and American men and women of considerable education, and these missionaries minister to 21,000,000 persons, enroll 4,250,000 children in their schools, operate 1,445 hospitals, and care for 416,000 patients in a year, besides providing dispensary treatment for several other millions.

chocolate cracker he stopped and ate one before storing any away. The boy who showed people their tents told me that the squirrel went into every new car that arrived to see what he could find. No dogs, cats or firearms are allowed so that he feels safe to be a thief.

He came into our tent early one morning and found some peanuts which he did not like very well, although he carried away some of them, but he bit into some peaches and nibbled off one strap on our field glass case. When we went out of doors we had to hide any fruit or nuts in the stove as these seemed to be no other safe place.

A big buck came to the door and ate from Mrs. Goodell's hand and would have come in the tent if we had encouraged him to come up the step to the tent floor.

When I offered some dry bread toast to a doe in the field I dropped one piece, and she was so angry that when I stooped to pick it up she stood on her hind feet and struck me several blows with her sharp front hoofs.

The other day we went to a pet show where the boys and girls show all kinds of pets, including dogs, cats, birds, mice, ponies, and many other animals. The pony which took first prize made a fine bow when the boy who rode him up to the platform asked him to do so. The boys' band played and all the children who had pets there had some sort of a present even if their exhibit did not win the prize.

There was a man in one of the music stores who gives two evenings a week to training the boys to play in the band. In one street parade this summer there were over one hundred boys from eight years of age up to about sixteen years old in the band. Now he is starting a band for girls.

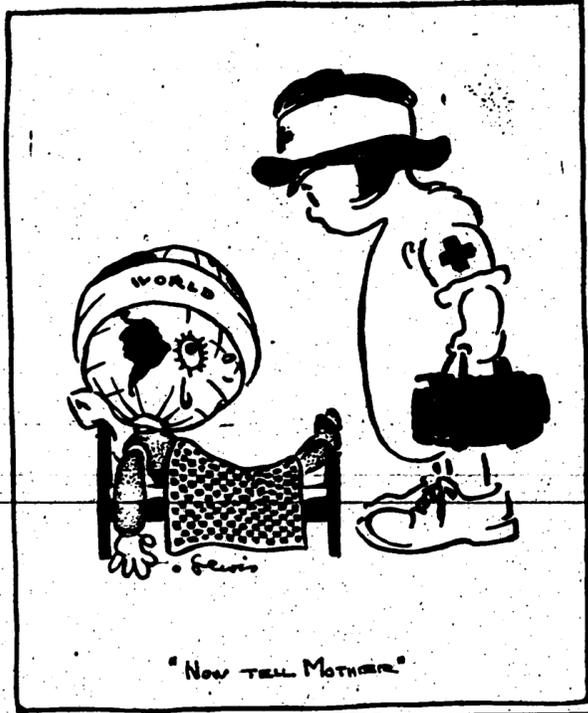

It is about time for the cat to come across the street to have a late supper of milk and sometimes he has peanut butter, so will stop for this time.

Tax on Ears in Tibet

In Tibet there is a tax on ears, and one-eared men are feeling fortunate again. The full tax only is levied on men with two ears, and it was the levying of this tax a year or so ago that caused revolutionary outbreak. One-eared men have to pay only 50 per cent of the assessed tax. Those without ears are completely exempt.

Red Cross Meets Heavy Demand for Water Safety Duty

Trained life-savers in the United States, qualified by the Red Cross as experts in all phases of water safety, now number 134,532 adults and Juniors, according to the Life-Saving Service of the American Red Cross, which reported 32,506 trained and qualified in the past year. This number does not include other thousands who were taught to swim.

Training courses conducted by the Red Cross last summer brought out a uniformly high standard of proficiency. In addition, more than 20 winter training courses were conducted the past year. Swimming "institutes" at camps in Arizona, California, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, North Carolina, Missouri, Oregon, Washington, and Wisconsin; "splash weeks" and swimming and life-saving campaigns under Red Cross auspices held in many States aroused great interest.

The experience gained during the last few years indicates that the dangers involved in water sports can be eliminated through training and by the adoption of water safety methods, a recent Red Cross report stated.

"When our communities provide sufficient swimming pools, bathing beaches, and skating places, and furnish trained leaders under whose guidance both adults and children may enjoy themselves in safety, the number of preventable deaths through drowning will be greatly reduced."

The Red Cross is endeavoring to supply trained leaders in water safety so far as its facilities permit. To increase the effectiveness of this and other services, the Eleventh Annual Roll Call, from November 11 to 24, will urge an enrollment of 5,000,000.

The American Red Cross will ask an enrollment of 5,000,000 members for the coming year, during the Annual Roll Call, November 11-24 inclusive.

Capital's Police Women Stand High in First Aid

Members of the Women's Bureau of the District of Columbia police department recently completed the Red Cross first aid course. This is perhaps the first women's group of the kind to be awarded the special first aid arm insignia by the American Red Cross in token of completion of the training.

The Red Cross in the past year qualified 24,812 persons in first aid and awarded certificates to members of police and fire departments, industrial groups and utilities employees all over the United States.

RED CROSS FLOOD RELIEF IN SOUTH COSTS $17,000,000

Greatest Disaster of History but One of 111 Operations in Year of Calamity.

Tornadoes headed the list of disasters which struck the United States in the past year, the report of Red Cross relief operations for the year ending June 30, showing 23 great storms. Floods were second on the list, 24 being recorded for the same period.

This record does not include the St. Louis tornado which occurred in the current fiscal year, as did a number of other storms and disasters since, in which the Red Cross provided relief.

Included in the list of 111 disasters covered by the record of the past year's relief operations of the Red Cross, are earthquakes, explosions, mine disasters, a cloudburst, a hail-storm, fires, floods, hurricanes, a railroad wreck, a scarlet fever epidemic, typhoid epidemic, tornadoes, and a typhoon. The latter occurred in the Philippines, but is included in the operations at home. In all, the Red Cross extended its services in 77 major disasters in the United States and in 20 abroad, including a hurricane over Havana, Cuba, and the Isle of Pines, one in the Bahamas, and others through various West Indian regions, fire in Porto Rico, another in Haiti, earthquakes in Armenia, Japan and Albania, floods in Jugoslavina and Mexico.

The organization conducted refugee relief operations in Syria, Bulgaria and China, the latter largely due to factional wars fought over various parts of China the past year.

The two outstanding disasters at home were the Florida hurricane and the Mississippi Valley flood. Rehabilitation operations of the latter disaster are still in progress under the Red Cross. A national appeal for funds was made in both disasters, resulting in contributions for relief amounting to more than $20,000,000.

The Mississippi flood is the outstanding disaster in the whole history of the Red Cross disaster relief service. In this one catastrophe the organization raised through subscriptions by the people of the country and foreign nations approximately $17,000,000 for relief use. Aided by this fund it fed, clothed, sheltered or otherwise assisted more than 600,000 human beings, fed and cared for approximately 200,000 head of livestock and established 149 refugee camps. The flood inundated approximately 20,000 square miles and affected 174 counties in eight states. Some 330,000 homeless persons were sheltered in Red Cross camps. When the emergency was at its height the Red Cross was serving more than a million meals a day.

So vast was the work imposed on the Red Cross and allied agencies conducting rehabilitation that this phase of the flood relief task is expected to extend well into the coming year. Up to September 15, 104,441 families in the flood zone had been given rehabilitation assistance by the Red Cross, and 1,700,000 acres of flooded crop land in seven States had been replanted with Red Cross aid. There had been expended or committed for expenditure in connection with this relief and rehabilitation work a total of $15,866,000.

The appeal for a nation-wide membership increased to 5,000,000 adult members, it was pointed out, is based on the realization that demands on Red Cross service such as occasioned by disaster relief are increasing each year. For that reason special importance is lent to the Eleventh Annual Roll Call of the organization, to be held from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving, November 24, during which this membership will be built up.
