FOR ANTRIM'S GOOD

This is the Main Object of the Citizens Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Antrim Citizens Association was held in Library hall on Friday evening last, with a fair attendance of members.

Previous to the business of the regular meeting, the board of governors met and transacted necessary business.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting on Friday evening, October 19. At this meeting the officers for the coming year will be nominated and elected. A nominating committee was selected to bring in a list of officers to be elected. It is in the minds of those most interested in this association to publish a circular in the near future stating just what this organization has accomplished in the past year. For the money it has cost, it is extremely doubtful if any combination of men and women has ever accomplished more for the benefit of the town and her people than has the Antrim Citizens Association in the short time of twelve months. This information will be put into the hands of our people and among those who are particularly interested in the town's welfare. These are the ones needed to help in the good cause of doing something for the town; membership in the Association is a small matter, but a wonderful help in doing things. All our people working together as an Association can accomplish very much more than trying to do things individually or in small groups; this is a fact that all must know. For this reason alone there should be 100 per cent membership in this Association. There have been occasions when it was most pronounced that cooperation was the one great thing that put across some big undertaking—we only have to go back in our memory to August, 1927, to find this fact staring us in the face! Does anyone doubt it? We'll say not! Let cooperation have its perfect work with the Antrim Citizens Association and it will be nothing less than marvelous what could be accomplished for our town.

Here is the opportunity; there are those who are willing to work hard to do things; there are those whose influence and assistance are needed; great good for the town and her citizenry may result from cooperation; and there is no real reason why we should not be a more alert, busier and better town that we are now. It will cost something in effort, but very little in cash outlay, and an amount of cooperation of the right sort. Let everybody read this brief statement of fact,—in their sober and thoughtful moments consider their own best interests, and then decide that they will join hands with all who are endeavoring to build up the town. Where this Association now has an even hundred paid up members, with the right kind of public spirit there should be several hundred members with everyone paid in, then in the period of one more short year, it will be simply wonderful what results would be accomplished. Then would everybody point with pride to what has been accomplished. Then would everybody want to renew their energy and still accomplish something very much greater. In the words of the street, Let's Go!

Bar Giving Rides

In one column of a paper is a story of a motorist held up and robbed of money and car by two youths he had been giving a ride. In another is an article stating that New Jersey has a new law to prevent motorists from giving rides to strangers along the highways, says an exchange. Very often a motorist sees ahead of him by the roadside one or more young fellows—and often girls—who signal they would like a ride. They are "seeing America" in the cheapest known way—bumming their transportation. Frequently they are camping. Sometimes they steal a night's sleep in some one's barn. Sometimes they steal the food they eat. Not all of them are bad, although nearly all are too lazy to walk far. Few of them would pull a gun on the motorist who gave them a ride. But such cases are so frequent that motorists with good judgment do not dare run the risk, and the result is that the "hitch-hikers" are apt to remain by the side of the road a long time before getting a "lift."

A law to prevent giving rides to such solicitors would do much to help the situation. It might work hardship on some innocent parties, but most laws do.

Burned buildings and property are an annihilation of profit; they are wealth reduced to ashes.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Presented to Reporter Readers in Concise Form

Most political orators apply Mark Twain's saying, aptly remarks a western authority: "Truth is so precious we should not use any more of it than absolutely necessary."

The following bit of political news is taken from the Concord correspondence of the Boston Sunday Globe, concerning our own County:

The Democrats confidently expect to carry Hillsborough, Strafford and Coos Counties and the First Congressional district, and they have hopes of piling up so large a vote in Manchester, Nashua, Berlin, Dover and Somersworth as to elect Smith and Robinson electors and ex-Mayor Sargent of Nashua for Governor.

Recounts as a rule don't change materially, but in the County Commissioner case, Frederick I. Blackwood, the Deputy Secretary of SRAE, under whose guidance the recount was conducted, finds a change in the ballots cast and Mr. Labine who was at first given the nomination is replaced by State Senator Arthur P. Smith, of Peterborough, who is officially announced as one of the nominees for County Commissioner for Hillsborough County. This fact is very pleasing to the county towns, who are entitled to representation on the board. It is hoped he will be elected on November six.

The state department of agriculture has gone on record as favoring the making of fairs more agricultural. The tendency has been to lose sight of what a fair is really for and to emphasize too much the amusement end in order to attract the crowd and make more money. The commercializing of the fairs brought about their own downfall a few years ago. An agricultural fair is one thing and a great carnival is another, where horse racing, automobile racing, amusements of all kinds and big fireworks displays attract a big crowd who are not interested in agriculture. The little fairs such as country towns are staging annually is of far more value than the big shows put on wholly for amusement purposes.

The New Hampshire Daughters of the American Revolution held their 27th annual conference last week in Concord. A number of members from the local Chapter attended. An invitation from Molly Aiken Chapter, of Antrim, was accepted to hold their 1929 annual state conference in this place.

The federal government continues to reduce the federal tax burden, but the non-stop flight of local and state governments in public expenditures and taxation refuses to end.—The Tax Digest.

Scientific construction and maintenance methods together with improved road building machinery and equipment, have resulted in more and better highways built in less time and at lower cost.

More than two-thirds of the 3,000,000 horsepower required to operate the textile mills of our country is now furnished by electricity.

Another Day

For The Antrim Reporter

Wearily the toiler
Homeward takes his way;
Languidly he murmurs,
"Gone is another day!"
At morn again he drags him
To where his duties lay;
Listlessly he mutters,
"Ah, me! Another day!"
Overwrought by struggle,
Impatient at delay,
Almost he refuses
To strive another day.
But when disaster fells him,
Heart filled with dismay,
We hear him wildly pleading,
"Lord, just another day!"
Potter Spaulding.

Whittemore—Richardson

A pretty wedding occurred Oct. 4 at the home of William Richardson, of Milford, when his daughter, Miss Mary Richardson, became the bride of Ralph S. Whittemore, son of Fred S. Whittemore, of Antrim. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. P. Daniels, pastor of the First Unitarian church, of Milford, the double ring service being used. Miss Olive Richardson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, while Nelson Brown, of Milford, acted as best man.

Mrs. Whittemore was a former teacher in Antrim, and Mr. Whittemore is employed by the firm of Caughey & Pratt. Amid showers of confetti the happy couple left for a trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and other points of interest.

The Reporter extends its right hand to Francis Donovan, who has come into this section of New Hampshire, from Hanover. He is the new superintendent of The Peterborough Transcript, succeeding S. L. Munson who recently resigned.

Sunday School Parade

With very little thought concerning details in the matter, it was decided by interested parties that it would be a nice thing and please the children to have a parade of the Sunday school pupils, and not confined to children alone but of all ages who attend the Sunday school. This was had on Saturday afternoon last and was participated in by about 180. Much interest was taken by the younger portion of the schools—for it was a union affair—and all had an enjoyable time.

This being the first of the kind held in Antrim, a number of suggestions have since presented themselves to those most interested, and should this become an annual occurrence it is most probable that next year's parade will be a much more pretentious one, while succeeding ones are likely to be splendid productions. Such gatherings mean much to young people and it is hoped that the idea will be developed and carried forward in a way to prove beneficial to all concerned.

W. R. C. Notes

Ephraim Weston Woman's Relief Corps, No. 85, held a very interesting meeting, transacting the full ritualistic work, on October 2, when the Department Inspector, Mrs. Florence Rifford, inspected the Corps and praised the fine work.

During the meeting there were three candidates initiated into full membership.

After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee, were served, and music rendered by Miss Allen.

Next meeting is Tuesday, Oct. 16. Ethel Whitney, Press Cor.

Demon Worship Found in Tibet

Expedition Reports "Black Faith" Spreading and Buddhism Declining.

Darjeeling, Bengal.—Proofs of prehistoric religious unity under nature worshipping Druids throughout Europe and Asia and evidences of Gothic ancestry among Tibetans have been rescued from the crumbling regions of central Asia by the Roerich Museum expedition.

The first authentic description of discoveries, which may sweep the science of historical research into new channels were made available by Miss Frances Grant, second vice president of the Roerich museum of New York. Miss Grant has just arrived here to join Nicholas Roerich, head of the expedition; his wife and son, Prof. George Roerich, members of the expedition party, which regained this outpost of civilization after months of hardship and danger.

Nicholas Roerich, whose first purpose was to obtain paintings of Tibetan life, brought back no picture more striking than his account of the moral, physical and religious degradation of a dying race.

"Black Faith" Spreads.

He states that the "Black Faith of Bon Po," most ancient of the pagan religions, is spreading all over Tibet. The decline of Buddhism in central Asia, he said, had been accompanied by ancient demon-worshipping rites. These constituted a perverted form of Buddhism in which all Buddhists have been declared enemies.

The black faith has invented its own saints with a central legendary protector similar to Buddha and with a similar biographical origin. Buddhists are not allowed to enter a temple of black practices and devotees of the latter do not recognize any authority in the Dalai Lama or the Tashi Lama.

Doctor Roerich states with certainty that the northern Tibetans are descendants of the Goths. He found a striking similarity between the Tibetan tombs and those of the ancient Goths, particularly in the northern regions around the Altai mountains. He believes the Goths or their remote ancestors migrated through these mountains into Tibet.

The exhibition found buckles adorned with double-headed eagles exactly like those of the Goths and the Alans. A discovery accounted even more exclusive was the testimony of Roman Catholic missionaries, who said that the ancient name of the area around Lhasa was Gotha.

Doctor Roerich recounted his first meeting with worshippers of the anti-Buddha. They welcomed him in the belief that he had no special interest in Buddhism but their attitude changed to enmity when they learned of his admiration for Buddhist worship.

Followers of the black faith have numerous, mysterious Swastika deities like those common among fire-worshippers in prehistoric times, including some of the American Indians. He studied the origins of the faith and hopes to find additional proofs linking it with the Druid era in Britain and Ireland.

The expedition discovered many stone monuments recalling the Druid temples of England and western Europe. They were smeared with the grease of recent animal offerings and flame worship.

Members Almost Frozen.

The expedition escaped great dangers and passed through an extraordinary series of hardships. Members were almost frozen in Changtang, the central area of Tibet. Floods in the Kulknor district carried away many of their tents.

Members of the party related how they had crossed the "terrible marshes of Tsaldam," in northeastern Tibet. This area is 120 miles long with only a narrow path along its edge, where one false step would mean death in the quicksand.

At this point in the journey it was necessary to make a continuous march of several days without pause in order to reach safer ground. Stories of the long trek over barren wastes, through hostile populations and over mountain passes abound in strange incidents.

The route lay through territory never before penetrated by representatives of western civilization.

Three Sisters Wed for Forty Years

Corinth, N. Y.—Forty years ago three sisters were married on the same day in a little church near Couklingville, in the Sacandaga valley. They became, respectively, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Betts. Recently they celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary in a unique three-in-one ceremony. The three sisters have raised large families and lived in this village all their lives.

Golf Balls Act in Queer Manner

Wentworth Falls, Australia.—Two golf balls, played simultaneously, met in the air above the ninth green of the Wentworth Falls golf course here, and then dropped into the hole.

Doctor Alcorn and Mr. E. A. Avery of the local club were playing with the local professional, E. Barnes. The tee shots of Mr. Avery and Mr. Barnes at the ninth hole finished on opposite sides of the green. Unknown to each other, both players hit their balls at the same time.

Doctor Alcorn, standing at the pin, suddenly saw two balls approaching the hole at different angles. They met in the air and then dropped into the hole.

Bare Legs Bar Her From Dance; She Sues

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The question of propriety of the stockings fad has reached the courts here. Mrs. Jonne Wallace has filed suit against a dancing school company and its manager for $5,000.70, charging she was humiliated to that extent when she was barred from the dancing school because she wore no stockings.

"It is the custom and practice to abandon the wearing of hose, and the same is not against the correct rules of society," Mrs. Wallace's petition argues.

The 70 cents is claimed as a refund for the price of the ticket Mrs. Wallace says she bought to enter the ballroom.

Spark From Hob-Nailed Shoe Sets $60,000 Fire

West Point, N. Y.—Sparks from a soldier's hob-nailed shoe were blamed for a $60,000 fire which destroyed a garage and trucks at the United States Military academy. The fire broke out when the academy's fire apparatus was lined up in front for inspection. A soldier dared death to enter the blazing building and open the spigots on a loaded gasoline tank truck, preventing an explosion. The limousine of Maj. Gen. W. R. Smith, academy superintendent, was destroyed.

Birth of the Republican Party

HENRY CLAY succeeded in tulling a large portion of the public into a false sense of the quality of his compromise of 1850 as a permanent settlement for the slavery question. Clay went to his grave thinking he had saved the Union. But the "irrepressible conflict" merely had been postponed.

Senator Stephen A. Douglas reopened the slavery issue in the territories only four years after Clay thought he had laid it with the Douglas Kansas-Nebraska bill, by which he proposed admission to the Union of those two states, slave or free, according to the decision of the citizens living in them.

In the North, passage of this bill made Douglas the currently most hated man in America. He was hissed off the platform in Chicago when, in his own state, he tried to explain his position. In various places he was hanged in effigy for "treason."

The immediate political effect of the Kansas-Nebraska bill was to smash the Whig party wide open along sectional lines. A coalition of northern Democrats and members of the short-lived "Free Soil" party began at once to set in.

Credit for being the original initiator as well as provider of the name for the new Republican party belongs to Maj. Alvan E. Boyay, a Whig lawyer in the town of Ripon, Wis.

Visiting New York in 1852, he had suggested to Horace Greeley that formation of a new party opposed to extension of slavery in the territories was inevitable, and he proposed the name Republican for it. When the Kansas-Nebraska bill was in congress, Boyay put his plan into execution in his home town. With Jendiah Bowen and Amos Loper, Boyay summoned a meeting in the Ripon Congregational church, March 1, 1854, which passed resolutions declaring that in event of enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska bill the old parties must be discarded and a new one be formed, on the basis of opposition to slavery.

A few days later the senate passed the bill. The Ripon leaders promptly called another meeting for March 20, 1854, at which 54 voters, out of the scarcely more than 100 in the town, met and became the first members of the Republican party in America.

The little schoolhouse wherein this meeting was held still stands in a corner of the Ripon college campus, carefully preserved as the birthplace of the party.

Three and a half months later a state convention met at Jackson, Mich., for the similar purpose of fusing old parties in a new antislavery group. Too large for the biggest hall in town, the gathering adjourned to an oak grove nearby, where it adopted a ringing platform against slavery extension, urged the calling of a national convention, and as had been suggested at Ripon, selected Republican as the name of the new party. The name was proposed to leaders in the Michigan convention by Horace Greeley, who had received the suggestion two years earlier from Boyay.

The appellation Republican, was reminiscent of the earliest name applied to the party of Jefferson—the Republicans, or Democratic Republicans, who had shortened their party designation to Democrats under the Jackson regime. It also was recalled that Jefferson, though a slaveholder himself, had laid down the policy of slavery restriction for the old Northwest territory region north of the Ohio river.

Southern Democrats were not a little irked that the Republicans should claim to be reviving the ideas of Jefferson and also should revive the first name by which Jefferson's followers had been known. They tried to discredit the new party by referring to its members as "Black Republicans."

Once begun, the Republican movement was spread rapidly by local mass meetings and state conventions. Within a year of the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, the party had sent eleven senators to Washington and had majorities in fifteen northern states. It was ready to give battle on a national front in the Presidential election of 1856.

The date of the national nominating convention was timed for the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1856, and Philadelphia, the cradle-city of American freedom, was chosen as the meeting place. Every free state, also Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky, were represented in the convention by men who came stirred on the moral issue of the day with a strong crusading spirit.

The picturesque figure of the California explorer and adventurer, Col. John C. Fremont, loomed above all others, including statesmen of more seasoning, as the most available nominee for President, and he was selected on the first ballot.

The sun of Abraham Lincoln, who was to be the successful standard-bearer of the party only four years later, had but faintly risen above the national horizon. Put in nomination for Vice President, he was eclipsed by Senator William L. Dayton of New Jersey by a vote of 259 to 110.

The First Republican Campaign

"FREE speech, free soil and Fremont!" With this catchy battlecry the new-born Republican party in 1856 pitched with zeal into its first national campaign, which for enthusiasm and excitement was to surpass any. Presidential canvass the nation had seen since the picturesque "log cabin and hard cider" contest that took place in 1840.

The campaign for "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" had been waged by the Whigs in a spirit of hilarious jollity. But while the Republicans of 1856 sang, burrahed and paraded with equal gusto, there was an oarstone of deep gravity in the political developments of that summer and autumn. The issue of slavery extension or freedom lent an unusual moral fervor to the contest.

In the West there were but two parties, the Democratic and the Republican. In the East the skeletons of the Whig and Know-Nothing parties still rattled. The main battle soon was seen to be between the Democrats, whose nominee was James Buchanan, and the newly hatched Republicans with their appealing western hero, General Fremont, who had planned the Stars and Stripes on the highest peak of the Rocky mountains and with whom they hoped to plant their standard victoriously on the White House. Ex-President Millard Fillmore, as nominee of the Whigs and Know-Nothings, was destined to be a mere "also-ran."

The paramount issue for the Republicans was in truth as well as figuratively a burning and bleeding one. In Kansas and Missouri the guerrilla warfare between slavery and anti-slavery forces struggling for dominance under the Douglas scheme of "squatter sovereignty" was raging, with murders and plundering on both sides. Republicans pointed with horror to "bleeding Kansas."

Southern Democrats protested that their Republican opponents were trying to elect their ticket by "shrieks for freedom." The abolitionists had aroused genuine apprehension in the slave states. Representative southern statesmen and newspapers uttered the threat, which they were grimly to carry out five years later, that Republican victory would be followed by southern secession. Real fears that Fremont's election would mean the end of the Union caused thousands in the North to vote for Buchanan, who was pledged not to stir up the slavery question.

But the Republicans, deriding southern secession threats as political "bluff," swung with keener enthusiasm into their long torchlight parades led by pioneers bearing gleaming axes reminiscent of Fremont's exploits as a western "pathfinder," or lustily joined Rocky Mountain glee clubs in singing Fremont campaign songs, or listened in sober mood in great mass meetings to exhortations by publicists, preachers and poets.

Clergymen, professors and literary men, especially those in New England, the abolitionist stronghold, furnished to a marked degree the Republican leadership. The moral aspects of the slavery question made a strong appeal to them. Bryant and Emerson entered actively into the campaign. Longfellow canceled a trip to Europe in order to be in America to vote. Whittier heaped votes for Fremont in passionate verse. Harriet Beecher Stowe, who previously had stirred up so much abolitionist sentiment with her famous "Uncle Tom's Cabin," published another anti-slavery novel.

Southerners, convinced that the institution of slavery was a beneficent one, were wounded by the bitterness of these northern leaders denouncing their system, and felt that the North was displaying fanatical hatred when northern preachers thundered anti-slavery sermons from their pulpits and uttered public prayers for Buchanan's defeat.

Southern fears of "Black Republican" victory, while not wholly idle, proved to be premature. The election went against the Republicans. But the popular vote of 1,341,264 for Fremont as against 1,838,109 for Buchanan was a surprising demonstration of strength by a new third party in its first national election. It gave promise of future success and inspired heightened apprehension among its opponents.

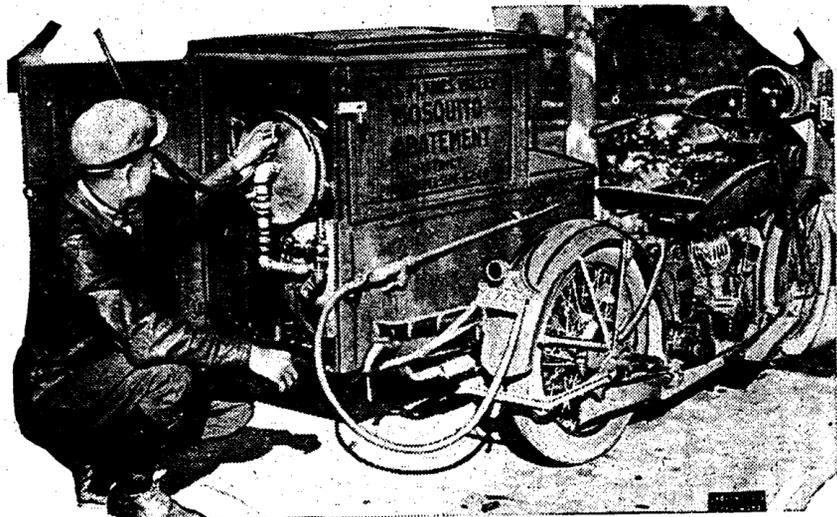

How Franklin Proved Fitness for Position

Benjamin Franklin, at nineteen years old, visited London. He was in search of work and went straight to a printing office. The foreman was rather disdainful and said:

"Ah, a lad from America seeking employment as a printer! Well, do you really understand the art of printing? Can you set type?"

Young Franklin stepped to one of the cases and in a brief space set up these words from the first chapter of John's gospel: "Nathaniel said unto him, Can any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip said unto him, Come and see." The text conveyed such a delicate rebuke, and the work was done so quickly and accurately that a position was granted him at once.

Fighting the Mosquito With Motor Cycle

Residents of Chicago's western suburbs report that evenings spent on porches and in back yards have been much more enjoyable lately. The reason is that an anti-mosquito motor cycle has been added to the equipment of the Des Plaines Valley Mosquito Abatement district. This machine, which is the invention of J. Lyell Clark, carries a thirty-two gallon tank of acid tar oil on its side car. This is deadly to the mosquito. The photograph above shows Mr. Clark and his new contrivance.

GERMAN SHIP OBEYS ORDERS WITH NOT A SOUL ON BOARD

"Phantom" Vessel, Radio Controlled, Performs Difficult Manuevers With Accuracy.

Wilhelmshafen, Germany.—Germany's new "phantom" ship, the radio-controlled Zaehringen, is able to perform difficult manuevers with weird accuracy, and not a soul on board.

In trial manuevers witnessed by experts and press representatives, it obeyed radio commands with the exactitude of a fully manned vessel.

The ship's only point of contact with the world is its antennae. On the commander's bridge instead of the usual nautical instruments there is an electrical apparatus which upon receiving the corresponding signal from the mother ship, "Lightning," sets in motion such machinery as is necessitated for starting, increasing or retarding the speed, stopping or changing the vessel's course.

The Zaehringen is a former ship of the line, with a displacement of 11,000 tons. This modern phantom ship, in addition to obeying wireless instructions for speed and direction, also contains a series of automatically operating safety devices such as fire extinguishers which operate in case defective feeding of the oil burners should cause a fire. Should feeding of the boilers be defective all the propelling machinery immediately ceases and skyrockets indicate to the mother ship that there is something wrong.

The mother ship can also ignite searchlights and other lights on the Zaehringen, and can cause the Zaehringen to envelop itself with a smoke screen. As the vessel is being used for target purposes, heavy layers of cork have been built in at various places to prevent the ship sinking in case of heavy damage.

During a recent demonstration the ship piled back and forth near Nordeney, sometimes described complete circles around the accompanying steamer and once approached it within three yards.

French Troops Will Get Pretty Barracks

Paris.—French army barracks will be rose-bowered and tastefully decorated under a plan just advanced by Minister of War Painleve. Art is to be called into the service of the god of Mars.

M. Painleve issued a circular to the engineering corps asking for designs, combining the useful, beautiful and economical and enabling the erection of "garden barracks."

His plan includes painting mess rooms and dormitories in gay shades and the use of mosaics on the outside walls, giving the barracks, "without much expense, an agreeable aspect."

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

"He knows it's true," he cried. "They knew I was armed, and they planned the whole thing. When the joke went too far they got cold feet and framed me up."

"I've some interesting facts to add. Here are some of them. While you were asleep I went through your pockets and took out those letters I had carefully planted at Deal Beach."

"You are lying," Grant whispered; his face was white. Trent rose, went to the door and reappeared with a strongly built man of middle age who had a keen, incisive way with him.

"You didn't appreciate my anecdotes on the way to Ellabestown, did you?" the pursuer said.

"I want my clothes," he snapped. "I've my rights, too. You can't detain me."

Late that night the governor was consulting with the state attorney general on the peculiar status of Frank Warren Sutton, address unknown, who seemed to be entitled to executive clemency.

"This is my friend, Capt. Frank Warren Sutton," said Curtis Weld, the Power.

CHAPTER XIV

"The New Life Comes in the Old One's Stead."

Payson Grant was brought to justice with commendable speed. What threatened to become the most sensational trial of the year was quickly finished with.

The public which had heard vague rumors about the amazing way in which the confession of Grant had been brought about, was cheated of its thrills.

Those employees he had paid to perjure themselves held nothing back. The man Grant had hired to put a revolver in Captain Sutton's pocket confessed fully.

Late That Night the Governor Was Consulting With the State's Attorney General.

war record, the commendations of his superior officers and the testimony of the old friends who now flocked, a trifle shamefacedly to his support, moved the governor to pardon him before the trial began.

Again Payson Grant occupied a cell overlooking the Hudson, but this time with the certainty that the river view would be his for many years.

It was not until after Grant had been sentenced that Anthony Trent went to see Mademoiselle Dupin, who still remained with Mrs. Kinney.

"I see very plainly how you did the thing up to the moment you drugged him," she said, "but it seems incredible you could have persuaded him that he had been a convict so long."

"That was the hardest part," Trent answered, "but attention to details brought us success."

"But the drug," she said, "as Mr. Warne was not a physician were you not frightened?"

"You are always successful," she said slowly. "I don't think any other living man could have done what you did for your friend. It amazes me that you do not look triumphant."

"I'm neither tired nor bored," he replied. "I'm nervous. What I did for Sutton was play, but now I want to do something for myself."

"Why should you fall at that?" she demanded.

"Perhaps because I am so anxious to succeed."

"Then you will only have to put out special effort," she smiled. "You see, Mr. Trent, I have very great confidence in you."

"I wish I dare believe that," he sighed.

"You know it is true," she said, almost indignantly. There was something vaguely frightening in this abandonment by Anthony Trent of his former supreme self-confidence.

"It has something to do with you," he confessed.

"But how can that be?" she demanded.

"I'm thinking about your future. You have no money and you cannot take any position, even a lowly one, without the danger of being recognized."

"Money, if carefully applied," he said eagerly, "will do most things. You and I have a fortune between us. If we choose, we can get away easily enough."

"No, not to absolute ruin. I said, if you will remember, that we had a fortune between us. Look at this Mademoiselle Dupin. Have you forgotten this?"

Anthony Trent drew from a little chamolite-leather bag that magnificent stone which collectors the world over knew as the "Nizam's Diamond."

Anthony Trent drew from a little chamolite-leather bag that magnificent stone which collectors the world over knew as the "Nizam's Diamond."

It was the famous jewel which Trent had taken from Mademoiselle Dupin when she had been known as the wealthy Long Island society woman, Madame de Beaulieu. Trent knew the stone but he did not know from whom she had taken it.

Roll-roofing, which has stood the test on thousands of

The cut corners give a rugged appearance to the shingle great massiveness to the roof.

Genuine Ruberoid Octabs are supplied in many beau-

Harry and Philip Knapp and friend George Flynn, of Rutland, Vt., have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knapp.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Knapp visited their daughter, Marion, at the Margaret Pillsbury General Hospital, in Concord, on Sunday.

Miss Dorothy Knapp, who is a student nurse at the Mass. General hospital, in Boston, has been spending vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Knapp.

Harwich Center. The groom is manager of the Milton Farm and during his residence among us at the parsonage with his parents since early last spring, has formed many pleasant friendships and is held in high esteem. The bride, born here, and since the death of her mother soon after, has been brought up in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Herman E. Bassett, who with Mr. Bassett, have bestowed upon her lavish love and devotion as one of their own. She graduated from the Harwich High school last June and entered the Hyannis Normal school at the opening of the fall term. She is a favorite among the young people of the village. They enjoyed a short honeymoon to Boston and are returning to the Milton Farm where they will reside for the present.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, there will be a beautiful religious entertainment in Congregational church next Sunday evening, 7 o'clock. More King has had a platform built for this and to be used for future occasions. There will be tableaux, drills, exercises, songs, vocal and piano solos, with autumn decorations. The program is being prepared and put on by Mrs. S. Wood. All who are interested in children and young people's work are invited to encourage them by attending.

Its big roomy oven is heated on all five sides, for better baking

The Model "C" Glenwood Coal Range
Made with or without Reservoir Attachment for Heating Water

In order to bake evenly, an oven must be evenly heated. One of the features of Glenwood oven construction that has helped to make Glenwood baking famous is the even heating of all five sides of the oven.

In this Glenwood "C" coal range, the back of the oven is heated just as thoroughly as the top, bottom and both sides.

Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Good morning, Kangaroo," said a Sparrow who had come to visit the zoo.

There was no answer. "Did you hear me, or are you a deaf kangaroo," the Sparrow said again. At last the creature who was questioned turned around.

"I am most certainly not a kangaroo," he said, "and when you said, 'Good morning, Kangaroo,' I did not answer because your question was not addressed to me."

"Well, well, well, but I think you're particular," said the Sparrow.

"Besides, if you're not a kangaroo, what are you?" "What am I? A Wallaby, of course, a brush-tailed Wallaby."

"Pardon me," said the Sparrow, quite meekly. "Well, how do you do, Mr. Wallaby?"

"Now you've asked me a question I can answer. I am quite well, I thank you."

"I feel better now that I am called by my right name. It is not," he continued, "that I dislike the kangaroo family."

"Far from it. But I do not like to be mistaken for some other creature."

"One likes to be one's self, no matter if one is queer and ugly."

"No one would change places with the peacock."

"It is all very pleasant for the peacock to have a handsome train, but do you suppose that the monkey would change places with him?"

"Not at all. The monkey has a far better time playing and swinging and doing tricks."

"The wart hog is ugly but he wouldn't change places with a peacock. He is used to being a wart hog."

"He wouldn't feel natural or at home in the world if he were anything else, even though he is so hideous."

"I didn't ask for any hideous creature," said the Sparrow.

"It's all a part of my talk, though," said the Wallaby. "Poor old wart hog has crooked horns, ugly wrinkles, a few queer hairs and an enormous snout which has a peculiar way of hanging down."

"But he is happy. He likes to be like that."

in the sun and dig in the ground like any member of the pig family.

"You see all creatures want to be themselves. He'd be very unhappy as a peacock. He wouldn't know how to act or what to do."

"That is probably so," agreed the Sparrow. The Wallaby was still talking.

"Now you see over there, my

"That is probably so," Agreed the Sparrow.

cousin. He is the Agile Wallaby, because he can move easily and quickly.

"An agile creature means one who is nimble and quick, in case you don't know, Mr. Sparrow!"

"And there is the Wallaroo too—he is a cousin, though he is quite gray in color and is a good deal larger."

Now the Brush-tailed Wallaby is really like a small kangaroo, and he comes from Australia.

He has a very long tail, short front legs, and longer back ones.

When he had finished making his speech to Mr. Sparrow he sat down upon his hind legs while he put his tail between and sat upon it, letting it come out in front of him, for it is so long.

He is a mixed color of gray and brown and red.

"Well," said the Sparrow, "I must be leaving, but I thank you for teaching me all about your family and the different members of it."

"Always glad to be a teacher of lessons, or a professor," said the Brush-tailed Wallaby.

"I like to talk about what I know, but I believe that is true of all creatures."

"And people usually teach what they know best—so you see I did the same."

And now the Sparrow was off, for he had seen a few nice crumbs not far away.

Tab on Bookkeeping

Loose-leaf systems of accounting are prohibited in Brazil, where the keeping of books by commercial firms is strongly fiscalized. Only bound ledgers are permitted. Similar laws prevail in other South American republics, some even requiring that every sheet of every ledger be stamped by a government official before the book can be legally used for entries.

Some Good Things to Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Great Mother Woods, stretch forth your arms to me.

For I have come again with falling fire.

My only strength the urge of my desire.

A patient for your tonic greenery: Your roots are deep in wisdom as the sea.

And yours a singing soul of wind-tossed mirth.

To heal me as you healed the scars of earth.

With kiss of moss and tenderness of tree.

—Amanda Benjamin Hall.

CARVING STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB

How to Carve Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many people think the meat of a shoulder of lamb is just as tender and quite as delicious in flavor as the leg or any other part. The shoulder is not so easy to carve as the leg, owing to the irregular shape and central position of the shoulder blade. This difficulty about carving is easily met, says the bureau of home economics. Select a shoulder of lamb weighing from three to four pounds. Have the butcher remove all the bones, as well as the fell, or outer pupery covering of skin. The bones may be saved for making soup. The shoulder may then be stuffed, and either left flat or rolled. The flat shoulder, as illustrated, is easier to sew up than the rolled, and the pocket holds twice as much stuffing. Either of these completely boned stuffed shoulders can be carved straight through in attractive slices of part meat and part stuffing.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle the inside of the pocket with salt and pepper, pile the hot stuffing in lightly, and sew the edges together. Rub salt, pepper, and flour over the outside. If the shoulder has only a very thin fat covering, lay several strips of bacon over the top. Place the roast on a rack in an open pan without water. Sear for 30 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). If bacon is laid over the roast, shorten the time of searing so as to avoid overbrowning. Reduce the temperature of the oven to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and cook the meat at this temperature until tender. From 2 1/2 to 3 hours will be required to cook a medium-sized stuffed shoulder at these oven temperatures. Serve hot with brown gravy.

Mint or Watercress Stuffing.

3 cups fine, dry bread crumbs, 6 tbs. butter

1/2 cup fresh mint leaves, or 1/4 cups celery

finely cut water-cress, leaves and stems, 1 1/2 lbs. chopped onion

1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. pepper

Melt one-half of the butter in a skillet and add the onion and celery. Cook for two minutes and add the mint leaves or the finely cut cress and the other seasonings. Push this mixture to one side of the skillet and in the empty part melt the remaining butter and stir in the bread crumbs. When they have absorbed the butter, mix all the ingredients together. When using watercress allow the liquid which cooks out to evaporate before the buttered bread crumbs are added.

Banana Fritters.—Prepare the following fritter batter: One cupful of flour sifted with one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder; add one-half cupful of milk and one well-beaten egg, then one tablespoonful of melted butter. Beat until thoroughly mixed.

Cozy Dining Alcove

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Do you have a comfortable spot in your kitchen, where you can sit down for some of your tasks? We hear much in connection with modern housekeeping about saving energy by sitting at one's work, and there is no doubt but that a high stool at the sink or ironing board is often a great help and back saver. There are many other kinds of work done in the kitchen, too, for which one might be seated if there was an inviting corner and comfortable working surfaces handy—shelling peas, stringing beans, picking over fruit for canning, even peeling potatoes and apples or capping berries, although these foods may afterwards have to be washed at the sink. One of the great advantages of a "breakfast alcove" or "dining recess" or whatever you like to call such a nook of the kitchen is that it provides just this sort of place for working in comfort. The top of the table is easily protected by paper or oilcloth if the work makes dirt. For many of us the refrigerator and the other on the grocery order. A small shelf these tasks two people join forces at times, and there is not room for both at the sink, but here a sociable half-hour can be made of an otherwise uninteresting task.

A place for keeping track of household expenses, particularly foods and kitchen supplies, is almost a necessity.

plants would add charm, just as does a bowl of flowers on the table.

In a small house the alcove sometimes serves every purpose of a regular dining room. In others it partly occupies the position formerly given up to a "butler's pantry," between the dining room and kitchen, where it is especially useful for hurried breakfasts and the housekeeper's solitary lunch. At dinner time, and on occasions when there are additional persons to serve, it is very convenient for spreading out salad or dessert plates to be filled, or otherwise to take the place of a serving center.

The floor plan, which is from Farmers' Bulletin 1513-F, "Convenient Kitchens," shows one way of arranging an alcove so that it is well situated in relation to other features of the kitchen. The window may be placed at the side or at one end of the alcove as in the other picture.

The illustration shows an alcove which was part of the kitchen improvement in a Massachusetts farm home, carried out during a kitchen contest directed by extension workers. The table and benches were built by a member of the family. The benches have hinged tops so that they can be used for storage. The table in this instance is not hinged, but a tilting table is often arranged to permit easier cleaning of the alcove.

and in such an alcove there is comfort, quiet, and order, and the records can be attended to in those intervals that occur while something is cooking, when there is not enough time to warrant going to another part of the house to sit. Meals can be planned here, too, with one eye on the left for cookbooks and records might be arranged at one side of such an alcove. Outside the window, a box filled with evergreens or flowering

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. Velvet Chic for Milady's Suit

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

So extravagantly have the praises of velvet been sung, it would seem that there is nothing more to be said upon the subject—until one catches a glimpse of the new velvets for this season. Then does one realize that the story of velvet is only at its beginning. There was a time when velvet was just velvet, suitable to wear only a few months in the year, and then laid aside until the coming of another winter season. But now! In color glory, in sheerness of texture, in artful patterning or in superbly beautiful monotone, velvet challenges the most exquisite of chiffons and other supple lightweight weaves to outdo it. That there is a velvet for every occasion also adds greatly to its prestige.

While the new and enchanting print velvets are conspicuously in the limelight, they have in no way detracted from the vogue for sheer handsome solid-color velvets. So far the velvet vogue is developing on a fifty-fifty basis, plain colors and prints sharing the honors.

In the tailored daytime costumes, sheer monotone velvet finds one of its happiest expressions. The model in the picture, which is of transparent velvet in a deep wine tone, merits a place in the fall wardrobe of the woman who understands the art of dressing with distinction. It would be equally as attractive developed in one of the handsome and voguish autumn browns, or in dark green, which is also a very fashionable color this season.

time like this is that it can be made more or less dressy by tuning the blouse worn with it to the occasion, preserving tailored simplicity for casual hours, and for the formal function wearing a very handsome metal fabric type or one otherwise elaborated.

Smartly simple two-piece models of transparent velvet such as this one and others equally as intriguing are registered on the calendar, not only as an autumn item but for midwinter resort wear as well. Stressed in the styling of these lovely colorful velvets are finely plaited skirts which vie with those of circular treatment. The soft jackets are usually detailed with scarfs, the latest wrinkle being to monogram them.

WHAT HE GAVE FOR BALL

On reaching the links one morning Smith was accosted by his usual caddy. "Excuse me, sir," said the lad, "but I've got the ball we lost yesterday at the second. One of the village kids had it."

"Oh, good," said Smith, putting his hand in his pocket. "I'll give you whatever you gave for it."

"Er—no thanks, sir," said the caddy, hastily. "I gave a black eye for it."

Why He Sighed

The thin, pale man in a large bathing suit, standing knee deep in the water, sighed.

"Why," he asked, "are you so sad?"

"Alas!" he answered, "the sea is the grave of my first wife."

"But you married again."

"Yes," he said, "and my second wife won't go into the water."

GIRLS DON'T BUY

She—Why do you object so strongly to girls smoking?

He—Because they'll never buy their own smokes.

High Cost of Sarcasm

Beware of the sarcastic chaff. It serves no end. If, every time you get a laugh, You lose a friend.

Captain (to mate)—The pudding you made was very hard—where did you get the flour?

The Young Mother—Oh, Jack, why have you put baby's cradle on the dressing table?

The Heavy Sleeper—So that I shall hear if he falls out.

Only a Sentence

"You know," said one, "it took John Bunyan all his life to write a story."

"Garn!" was the reply. "It took me ten years to do a sentence."

SHE'D BE MUMMY, SURE

"Who knows? But if he were alive today he'd call her mummy don't you think?"

"It's the one left by a rich relative that makes you his sole heir," replied his dad.

AMBASSADOR BRIDGE LARGEST IN WORLD

Huge Detroit-Canadian Span to Cost 20 Millions.

Detroit.—The Ambassador bridge, spanning the Detroit river between Detroit and the border cities of Canada, will be the largest suspension bridge in the world when it is completed next year at a cost of $20,000,000. The first physical contact between the two shores was celebrated with elaborate ceremonies recently when the two-mile bridge first reached Canadian soil.

The first spanning of the Detroit river was by means of a steel cable 1 1/2 inches in diameter which was strung over the path to be taken by one of the two main supporting cables of the permanent bridge structure. The cable was lifted from the bed of the river, where it was placed a few days before, to the top of the two huge towers which will carry the burden of the finished international bridge.

Nineteen Inch Cables.

From this steel cable will be hung the working platforms from which the workmen will construct the 7,622 parallel and closely compacted steel wires which will form one of the two main bridge cables. The same operation will be followed in the construction of the other main 19 inch cable.

Because of the size and importance of the Ambassador bridge, dignitaries from both the border cities of Ontario and Detroit were present at the ceremonies. The mayors of Detroit and the Ontario border cities of Windsor, Sandwich, Ford, Riverside, La Salle, Tecumseh, and Walkerville officiated in the elaborate program. A squadron of airplanes dropped brilliantly lighted colored balloons on the river and along the shores.

The mayor of Detroit gave the order for the setting off of an aerial bomb, the signal for the raising of the cable from the river bed, while the mayor of Sandwich, Ont., gave a similar signal on the Canadian shore. As the cable was raised into position on the towers rising 363 feet above the river, the flags of the United States and Canada appeared from the steel rope and from the tops of the towers.

When completed the Ambassador bridge will be approximately 7,400 feet in length. Adjoining the ends of the bridge structure proper will be two terminals, each roughly equivalent to a large city block in area. The main span between the towers will be 1,850 feet in length, or 100 feet longer than the Philadelphia-Camden bridge, which is at present the longest suspension bridge in the world. The bridge under construction over the Hudson river between upper Manhattan and the Palisades on the Jersey shore will dwarf them all when it has been completed.

The bridge will carry an unobstructed roadway 47 feet wide, with a capacity of five lanes of traffic, and an 8-foot sidewalk. The number of lanes of traffic used in any one direction may be varied to suit traffic conditions.

Plenty of Clearance.

Major Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers, United States War department, ordered the clearance over high water in the river to be 135 feet near the shore and 152 feet for a short distance near the center of the span. This allows the passage of vessels with stacks, masts, or funnels 20 feet higher than any plying on the lakes and 60 feet higher than any present freighters. The approach grades are entirely acceptable for the best highway practice.

An idea of the magnitude of the bridge may be gained from the following statement of approximate quantities of different kinds of materials entering into its construction:

Structural steel and cable wire, 24,000 tons; concrete masonry, 25,000 cubic yards; cement, 40,000 barrels; roadway pavement, 60,000 square yards; sidewalk, 8,000 square yards; rivets driven, 2,000,000; terminal buildings, 540,000 cubic feet; maximum number of laborers simultaneously employed in field, 550.

Two Alligators Set Up

Home Beneath Store

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Two alligators have established a permanent home beneath the downtown business building of Oscar Grace, proprietor of a local cleaning establishment, where they have led more or less hectic careers for the last year.

Grace has torn holes in the floor and has dug crevices in the foundation in an effort to reach the 'igators and restore them to a glass tank where he can enjoy their companionship. But so far, his only reward has been badly scratched hands and arms. Rapping of their backs on the floor, he said, is "making a nervous wreck of me."

Rabbi's Flock Strays,

So He Takes to Radio

Tours, France.—Radio is obliged to come to the rescue of religion in the large Jewish colony of Tours. M. Sommer, rabbi of Tours, finds that his parishioners no longer attend services, like the adherents of many other faiths.

M. Sommer, who is ingenious and a believer in progress, intends to deliver his prayers by wireless. He has written an impassioned article advocating radio religion in a Jewish religious journal.

WELCOMES SON REARED BY MAIL

Mother Sees Boy for First Time in 49 Years.

New Orleans, La.—Separated 49 years by the wide gulf of Atlantic, a mother and the son she reared by mail now are reunited.

Mrs. Mary Ann Tiernan Moonan has seen her son, George A. Moonan, Dublin barrister, for the first time since he was seven years old.

Although related by the closest of blood bonds, they met virtually as strangers.

The man barely remembered the mother who had left him with relatives in Ireland when she left that country to visit her father and mother, who had migrated to New Orleans.

Moonan's mother never returned. She kept constantly in touch and directed his rearing by mail. On numerous occasions she planned to go back to her native land, but as time sped on, the old ties weakened and the new ties strengthened.

It was tomorrow for her and tomorrow never came. But now this slender woman of eighty-two is planning to sail for Ireland under the protecting arm of her fifty-six-year-old son.

She would not come to him so he came to her. The mother had turned deaf ears to his cabled and written pleas to return to her native shores, so Moonan came to plead his case in person.

With the picture of her relatives waiting to receive her in old Ireland she capitulated, packed her belongings and is ready for the journey.

"Old scenes, old songs, old friends again," is the thought that is carrying Mrs. Moonan over the ocean.

Sea's Salt Plant Yields

Six Billion Tons a Year

Leninrad, U. S. S. R.—Six billion tons of the commercially useful chemical, Glauber's salt, is made available each year by a natural evaporation plant on the eastern shore of the Caspian sea.

This outdoor chemical factory, built by the sea and operated by the sun, is the shallow, narrow-mouthed Gulf of Kara-Bougaz.

Through its connecting strait, which is only about 800 feet wide, the heavily salted waters of the Caspian flow in a steady torrent, for the higher rate of evaporation in the shallow gulf keeps its level about a foot lower than that of the main body.

During the summer the temperature of the water is high enough to keep all the salts in solution, but in winter the water temperature drops to a few degrees above freezing, and according to the well-known laws of solution the least soluble minerals crystallize out first.

In this case the Glauber's salt is the only one that comes out; the others, principally common salt, sodium sulphate and magnesium chloride, remain in solution.

The Glauber's salt crystals settle on the bottom and are washed ashore by the waves. When they dry they are picked up by the wind and carried still farther from the water.

Navy Plane Scoops Up

Gold in Nicaragua Mine

Washington.—Mining gold with an airplane is the most bizarre of all tales yet to come to the Navy department here from the marines in Nicaragua. Captain Howard, marine corps pilot, made a forced landing with an amphibian plane—so goes the story—in the jungle area near the La Paz mine and his pontoon scooped up earth heavily laden with gold.

Corporal Cole, observer aboard the plane, panned out $100 worth of yellow metal with ease, says the Managua report. The marooned aviators were rescued by other planes the following day and were returned safely to Managua—with the gold as evidence.

Scale Mount Baker

Fort Portal, Uganda, Africa.—The Chicago Geographical society expedition to the Mountains of the Moon, planted the American, British and Explorers' club flag on the summit of Mount Baker, August 28. The climb and descent was attended by great hardship, the party having to contend with snow storms most of the way.

Bees Hold Business

Section Two Hours

Westwood, N. J.—This town suspended business for two hours when a swarm of bees took possession of the principal corner, Westwood and Center avenues.

The first intimation came when Dr. F. C. Young hopped into his car, and hopped right out again. He wanted a white, but the bees refused to abandon his machine, and he had to resort to a taxicab. Stores closed doors and windows, and the bees tried particularly hard to enter the Waller department store. Furtive individuals darted down the streets, but most of them were stung.

Finally an unidentified citizen, experienced in the ways of bees, brought a hive, mosquito netting and smokepot, and soon had the swarm captured.

FIND SOUND WAVES 'THAT DEAL DEATH

California Scientists Conduct Successful Tests.

Berkeley, Calif.—Death dealing sound waves!

An experiment in this strange new field has been successfully carried out by three University of California scientists.

They demonstrated that high-frequency sound waves, emanating from a crystal vibrating at the rate of 750,000 times a second, will kill large protozoa.

So terrific and so instantaneous was the effect of the lethal sound waves, that the gill filaments of the protozoa were torn from their bodies.

Strange fields of conjecture for scientists of the future have thus been opened.

Tell of Work.

A. R. Olson, associate professor in the department of chemistry, one of the experimenters, pointed out that previous experiments had been conducted in this same field; that he and his associates, F. O. Schmitt, research assistant, and C. H. Johnson, teaching fellow, have merely carried on the work to a higher degree of perfection.

Beneficial rather than destructive results are the goal of the local scientists. Bloodless surgery has been accomplished by the same methods used to kill the microscopic organisms.

In carrying out the experiment, which was begun two years ago, they found it necessary to invent and to build much of their own apparatus. They perfected glass needles to carry the sound vibrations, the points of which were so fine as to be almost invisible.

This delicate instrument was necessary because all the experiments must needs be carried out under powerful microscopes. They were exploring in a world unknown to the naked eye.

First a drop containing the protozoa was placed on a microscopic slide and a glass cover laid over it. The slide was then laid over an oscillator dish.

The oscillator dish contained a crystal which was caused to vibrate by the passage of an electrical current through the liquid in which it was immersed.

In conducting the experiment with planarian worms, the glass needle was used. The large end of the needle was placed in the oscillator dish, and the point of the needle directed against the worm.

So delicate was this operation that the scientists used an extremely sensitive instrument, the micromanipulator, with which to guide the needle. They discovered that when the needle point was placed against the worm, even though lightly, the vibrating point instantly burned the worm. If the shank of the vibrating point was placed across the worm, the body would be severed.

Other men have worked on this phenomenon of the effect of high frequency sound waves, it was explained, but none have developed the technique to such a high point. With the glass needle as perfected on the Berkeley campus it is possible to observe the effect of sound waves not only on each tiny cell, but even on parts of the cell.

Chinese Typewriter

Perfected by American

New York.—A test of the comparative might of the pen and the sword in China, through the use of the modern, rapid-fire evolution of the pen, is now made possible by an American invention. This is a Chinese typewriter. The machine is based on the newly adopted Chinese alphabet, known as "Chiu Yin Tzu Mu."

The Chinese language is ideographic—that is, it presents picture ideas, but the Chinese typewriter operates like its English cousins. Its keyboard has 48 characters, comprising all the phonetic symbols, 21 compound signs, Chinese numerals, tone marks, a symbol indicating emphasis, parentheses and a period.

The characters are set sideways. To read such a sheet, it must be given a quarter turn after removal from the machine.

Bid on Vast Store of

Bone-Made Fertilizer

Tacoma, Wash.—Millions of dollars' worth of seal and sea-lion bone deposits on the shores of the Pribilof Islands in Bering sea, a vast store of government owned fertilizer available for practical use, is attracting local capital to bid for the privilege of recovering the product.

Although not fully nor officially surveyed, the accumulations of centuries form the largest bone deposits in the world, one of the piles being a mile long by half a mile wide and fully six feet deep. Action of ice and waves has formed the bones into huge drifts or windrows, while it is possible sand covers equally as large deposits as appear above the ground.

2,000 Cats on Pay Roll

Le Havre.—Two thousand pussy cats have been put on the municipal payroll of Havre. Havre was over-run with rats, a year ago, many of them brought from all parts of the world by the hundreds of boats using the port. The municipality decided to rid the port of rats, and hired cats to do it.

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

REPORTER RAMBLINGS

Touching the Topics That Are More or Less Timely

Twenty-three of Philadelphia's police force are now under arrest charged with bribery, conspiracy and extortion. No wonder General Butler had a hard time in his attempt to clean up that city.

Boston has just issued a lot of new traffic rules. "They say" a college education is required to understand them. We wonder what sort of language the traffic officer would use to anyone stopping on the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets at rush hours to read the new rules?

Nathan Rosenthal couldn't keep up his payments on his fiancée's diamond ring, so he tried to get it back and got into a whole lot of trouble. Engagement rings have landed a good man into a heap of trouble, but it usually takes a little longer time than Mr. Rosenthal was allowed.

The peak of the per capita ownership of automobiles has been reached, says Owen D. Young. He may be right, but it seems as though every Saturday afternoon and Sunday found more on the road than the preceding week end.

A farmer in France, says a news story, found his buildings on fire and no water available to extinguish the flames. He had several barrels of cider on hand which did the trick. Just think of the predicament of this farmer if prohibition had been in force in France. This still leaves a question of what the farmer and family do on Saturday night.

In New York State recent legislation has raised the penalty against parents for permitting their children to violate school attendance requirements from five dollars per day to ten dollars. Unless New York children are exceptionally valuable workers it will be a losing proposition for parents to keep their children at home when they should be at school.

A blueberry seventeen millimeters in diameter was in a jar of fruit entered for exhibition at a fair held in Whiting, Maine. Seventeen millimeters sounds pretty big, but just how big not many of us know without consulting higher knowledge. To save you the trouble we'll give you the benefit of our investigation: a little less than seven-sixteenths of an inch.
