AUXILIARY BANQUET

Some More Than Sixty Dined at Maplehurst Inn

The more we get together, together together.
The more we get together
The happier we'll be!
For your friends are my friends,
And my friends are your friends,
The more we get together
The happier we'll be!

The above few lines were recited at the banquet table, right after the first course of fruit cup had been disposed of; and what better sentiment could prevail at an occasion like this, which was being so thoroughly enjoyed by the paid-up members of these two branches of Legionnaires.

About sixty men and women sat down to a nice banquet at Maplehurst Inn on Thursday evening last, given by the William M. Myers American Legion Auxiliary. Those included in the party were the Auxiliary and their husbands, Legion members and their wives, and a few invited guests. The hour of the banquet was set for seven o'clock and it was a bit later when everything was ready for serving. An efficient committee had charge of the arrangements and everything was nicely arranged and carried out.

The menu consisted of fruit cup, roast chicken, mashed potato, gravy, stuffing, fruit salad, cranberry sauce, pickles, rolls, butter, coffee, strawberry shortcake. The service was good and courteous, helpings large and well prepared, and everything that could be desired was of the best and very pleasing. During the dinner hour DeFoe's orchestra furnished music, and when familiar patriotic and popular airs were played, those who had a musical voice and were inclined joined in what is commonly called community singing, but an official leader was not in action. Yet this part of the program was much enjoyed.

After all had done full justice to the banquet, an hour was passed in speech-making, for the most part enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Angus Nolan, president of the local Auxiliary Unit, was the presiding officer and introduced the specially invited guests. The first speaker was Mrs. Helene Green, of Brookline, District Chairman of the Auxiliary. She was followed by Wendall Crowell, of Hancock, Junior Vice Commander, who has also the junior base ball activities in hand. The next speaker was Harry Dudley, of Tilton, Commander of the State Dept. American Legion. Then was introduced Mrs. Warren E. Snitcher, of Rochester, State President of the Auxiliary Unit. These speakers did their talking along lines wholly independent of each other, and each endeavored to present their story in an acceptable manner and succeeded admirably. It is not thought the other speakers will take offence should it be said that Commander Dudley was the leader in speechmaking. He had something to say that was interesting and worth-while, has a splendid flow of language in transmitting his thoughts, and besides is a convincing talker. His remarks will be remembered for a long time by all who had the pleasure of listening to him.

The Auxiliary committee, having the affair in charge, has every reason to feel pleased with the success of the evening in all ways. Mr. Kelley, also, should be congratulated on the banquet he gave and the satisfactory manner in which it was given. Altogether, an unusually happy occasion was what everyone said it was.

Signal at Nahor

The editorial notice in last week's issue of The Reporter, concerning the dangerous crossing at Nahor, in Peterborough, and the great need at this point of some sort of signalling device, received attention, and Major Arthur J. Pierce, of Bennington, president of the Monadnock Paper Mills, wrote a letter to the Public Service Commission, at Concord, of which the following is a copy:

"We would appreciate it very much if you would put it up very strongly to the Boston & Maine Railroad relative to the danger of their crossing at Nahor on the Peterboro-Hillsboro road.

"In these days of modern methods this bank could be removed in very short order.

"This is the identical spot where the railroad accident was not so very long ago. At some time there will be a very

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Presented to Reporter Readers in Concise Form

James N. Fringle, formerly deputy commissioner of education, this state, has been named commissioner to succeed E. W. Butterfield who goes to Connecticut in September. Mr. Fringle was headmaster of the Hillsboro high school in 1897 to 1899.

The United States census, with increasing losses being shown by cities and corresponding gains by adjacent towns, indicates one change brought about by the automobile and good roads. It now takes the man living in the country no longer to reach his work in the city than it once did to walk or go on a street car, to it from his urban home.

Perhaps no better evidence of the fact that the United States is getting slowly but steadily drier can be found than in the statement recently issued by the Board of Temperance and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, that while there is today only one Senator still in office who voted against the Eighteenth Amendment, there are twenty-two still holding office who voted for it.

Among the many good things that Proctor says in his last Sportsman's letter, here are a very few that will specially interest The Reporter readers:

The Greenfield Fish and Game club have got their pool finished and the water is running over the forty foot cement dam. We have the promise of 2500 fingerlings and hope they will be put into the pool this week.

Putting out poison where dogs and cats and other domestic animals can get it, as well as wild birds and animals, carries a fine of $500 and a year in jail.

Two of my towns have come across 100% on the dog taxes, Sharon and Hancock. Several more are nearly there.

In an old New England Gazetteer of 1839, we notice an interesting account of Antrim:

It is 20 miles N. W. from Amherst, 30 miles S. W. from Concord, and 67 miles from Boston. The East part lies on the Contoocook river and although somewhat hilly is a tract of productive land, a lot of which is arable. The North Branch River, so called, a small stream originating in Stoddard forms several ponds, furnishes several valuable mill sites. The W. part of the town is mountainous and affords wonderful pasturage. There are six natural ponds well stored with pike and perch. A curiosity has been found in the middle branch of the Contoocook river, a rock about 10 feet long and 6 ft. wide, covered with a shallow coat of moss affording sustenance to 21 different kinds of plants and shrubs, three of which produce edible fruit. Population in 1830, 1309; sheep 4,400.

The population of other towns in 1830 may prove interesting: Windsor, formerly called Campbell's Grove, population 226, Hancock 1,316, Hillsboro 1,792, Stoddard, formerly called Limerick, 1,159, Deering 1,227, Franconstown 1,541 population, sheep about 7,000, Greenfield population 946.

Following the heated term of last week, there was a thunder shower late Friday afternoon. The electrical display was very active, a number of places in the village being visited by the unwelcome agency. One house was entered by a bolt through the chimney in the roof; at another, a bolt came in on an electric light wire, jumped from a socket to a radiator and falling onto a polished linoleum exploded and was gone. No one was injured.

A serious railroad-automobile accident at this point. Recently a man driving a truck going to Peterboro was hit by the early morning train from Winchendon.

"I have found that the Boston & Maine Railroad, wish, want and expect everything from their patrons but are loathe to give way to the same.

"I certainly trust that you will demand that something be done to this dangerous point; at any rate, I have gone on record as stating that a very serious accident will happen here unless something is done to help the situation."

The Commission has very courteously replied to the above letter.

The dangerous crossing at South Bennington coming from Greenfield way was made a subject of complaint some time since but nothing has been done. The complaint concerning the danger of the tool shed on the Forest Road, going from Hancock to Stoddard, was given due notice and the shed was moved to the other side of the track.

Boy Makes Hero of Mail Aviator

Achieves Ambition to Ride With Idol and Is Now Official Mascot.

Springfield, Ill.—Do dreams come true?

They do for little nine-year-old Charles Castle, of Pawnee, whose dreams and faith have won him the realization of a year-old dream to meet, know and fly with "Jimmy Donnelly," a pilot-hero of a school story book.

The Castle home is on a little farm commanding a view of the surrounding countryside outside Pawnee. From the elevated site of his home Charles had been an "unknown," friend of air mail pilots of Universal division of American Airways, Inc., for many months. Today he is their mascot.

There was born in Charles that which comes to men, women and children today—a desire to fly. This desire was kindled, directly by the deeds of that wonderful book hero "Jimmy," "Mother," Charles said to his mother, Mrs. Sam Castle, one day, "Mother, I wonder if that pilot carrying the mail over our house isn't Jimmy?" "It may be, son," Mrs. Castle replied, and forgot the matter.

Prays for God's Help.
A few nights later, while Mrs. Castle was hearing Charles' prayers, the little lad asked God's help in the realization of his life's "big adventure"—to meet, to know, and to fly with "Jimmy."

"Jimmy, don't see me, mother," Charles told his mother. "If he did I know he'd come down in the big pasture."

Days passed, "Jimmy" failed to land in the big pasture, although the little lad waved in vain as the planes sailed over the farm home.

Finally a Springfield newspaper (Illinois State Register) received a letter in which Mrs. Castle pleaded that "you try and find 'Jimmy' for my little Charles. 'Jimmy' pilots that big green and silver double-winged plane. I know there must be more than one pilot, but Charles insists that 'Jimmy' pilots all these ships. When you find him please send him this letter from Charles."

City editors have the reputation of being "hard," but when this Springfield city editor (J. D. Myers) read Charles' letter to "Jimmy," he knew that Wayne Williams, of Universal, was the pilot.

Charles' letter read:
"Dear Jimmy:
"I see you go over every day in your airplane. I see you if you don't go I would almost cry."

"I love to watch you fly by. Some day won't you come down and take me up in the sky with you I want to fly like you. Will you, please Jimmy? Do you know where my Daddy's pasture is—the big one? Could you come down there?"

"Have you a boy? What is his name? How old is he? I will be nine (9) years old groundhog day. Did you bring Santa Claus to my house Xmas in your plane?"

"I'm looking for you to come see me every day Jimmy. Good-by Jimmy. "Charles Castle."

Charles Held Faith.
Pilot Williams received Charles' letter and there was certain correspondence between Universal officials and Mrs. Castle. Little Charles held faith—some day "Jimmy" would stop. Nightly he prayed and dreamed. Bad weather brought serious fear to his mind and heart—for "Jimmy's" safety.

Then came the sunshine. A letter and a package for Charles was brought by the rural route mail carrier.
"It's Jimmy, mother, it's Jimmy!" shrieked the lad, as he tore through the farm home waving a picture of his beloved pilot.

"To my friend, Charles Castle," was inscribed on the face of the photograph, from his friend "Jimmy Donnelly."

Little Charles hardly ate or slept for two days and nights. Then "Jimmy" received a letter.

"Dear Jimmy:
"I got your picture and I want to thank you. I love to look at you. I love your airplane. You bet I want to ride with you. Will you show me how you do it? May I sit beside you up there? I love you Jimmy and so does Nellie and James. You know Nellie and James are my little sister and brother. Don't forget to come soon. Please be careful in this bad weather. I love you Jimmy. "Your friend Charles."

"Jimmy" enlisted the aid of his fellow pilots and the north and south-bound mail and passenger planes saluted Charles as they sped along on their scheduled flights.

One day Charles received a letter saying that "Jimmy" was coming to see him and take him for that long-awaited ride in the clouds. And he did.

Accompanied by Postmaster William Conkling, of Springfield, Charles was at the municipal airport a few mornings later. There came a roar of motor—far away, then closer and closer.

Hope and Faith Won.
"It's Jimmy," Charles yelled, as he danced about in his great excitement. Santa Claus, in person, would never have been afforded such an eager welcome.

Hope and faith had won. Charles was about to realize a dream, to see the fulfillment of his prayers. He stared as down swooped the great plane and then up to circle the field. Then down to a swift and graceful landing, and to taxi up to the waiting crowd—

Firm hands held the excited child. As "Jimmy" cut off his power the little lad was released and he sped to the plane's side and into "Jimmy's" arms with a wild cry—and burst into tears as his idol held him close and petted him.

Pilots, grease-monkeys, men and women in all walks of life who knew of and appreciated the real drama that was being enacted before their sight found their vision dimmed by tears of happiness—happy that hope and faith had won and for a little child's happiness.

Later came the ride. Little Charles climbed into the plane with his Jimmy. The motor roared and the craft swept down the field, into the wind, and was up and away. "Jimmy" headed due south to Charles' home and school.

A little loving mother danced with joy, meanwhile waving a towel to her son there above her as the plane circled the home. In the field was the father at his task of coaxing a living from the soil for his little brood. At the schoolhouse pupils and teacher were in the yard, each happy for Charles and the realization of his big adventure.

"There's Mother," the lad screamed into his idol's ear. "There's Daddy." Over the home and the school "Jimmy" swung his craft low and in wide circles so that the faces of the beloved mother and father and playmates were plain to the excited boy. Charles was presented with gold wings by "Jimmy" and not to be outdone, the boy gave the wings that adorned his little natty flying suit to his "Jimmy."

Wants to Be Pilot.
Questioned later by Postmaster Conkling and city officials Charles declared:

"Jimmy's wonderful—I want to be a pilot just like him."

One hitch in the program brought tears of sadness to Charles. He had planned that "Jimmy" would visit him, stay with him there, play with him, fly with him. When he was told that "the mail must go through" he drew his little lips to a straight line, blinked his eyes and said:
"Sure, the mail must go through. But, Jimmy, please don't forget that pasture I showed you!"

There was dinner with its chicken, and all the "fixins," topped by extra-special serving of ice cream—and then the trip home to a waiting family and playmates of the school yard.

"It was great," he exclaimed, head up and chest expanded. "Believe me, my Jimmy knows how to fly a plane—and he showed me all about it."

Following came the secret, but assuredly the promised prophecy that one day Charles and Jimmy will be flying the air lines together.

Poisoned Oats Found and Eaten by Horses

Metropolis, Nev.—Squirrels, carelessness, and a horse's natural desire for oats resulted in John Blake losing his best work team and a good saddle horse. The three animals were turned loose on a load of hay under which were three sacks of poisoned oats, procured for eradication of squirrels and gophers. Blake had forgotten about the oats. The horses reached them, broke through the sacks, and the oats worked as effectively on them as they were supposed to do on gophers and squirrels.

Community Building

Importance of Proper House Design Apparent

Through a better appreciation of architecture, home lovers more and more are striving toward perfection and beauty of house design. As a result, a knowledge of historic styles is well defined in the minds of interested discriminating home builders. Today people know approximately what they want in the way of a home, and recognize the importance of architectural guidance. Only well-proportioned homes with artistic and correct architectural treatment attract and appeal.

To assure the ideal home—be its size ever so small—the technically trained architect should be consulted. No one thinks of going to a dentist with bodily ills. By the same token no one should go to a contractor for home design. Home design is a highly specialized field, and only an architect can reflect and crystallize your home ideas properly and correctly into a design possessing merit.

One often hears "because I'm building a small house, I can't afford an architect—besides, I know where I can get some plans cheap."

This attitude has accounted for hundreds of unattractive homes which have no resale value—eyesores and a disgrace to the community.—Cleveland Leader.

Store Front Counts as Good Business Asset

"The store front indicates the character of a business establishment as well as of the man back of it, and that holds good whether the business is clothing, shoes, plumbing or what not," Howard H. Edmonds writes in an article called "Store Fronts" in a recent issue of Domestic Engineering. Edmonds draws upon his experience in building and remodeling store fronts for many Cleveland companies for the material in his article.

"The store front is a silent salesman which works 365 days in the year and if given half a chance will return its cost many times over in sales volume," he continued.

"A few of the great advantages of bringing a store front up-to-date are: It becomes a public improvement; it stimulates an activity in the entire community; it gradually builds up a healthy trading center in which to do business."

Attractive Homes an Asset

Two ideas about the American home have had a remarkable growth in recent years. One is that the dwelling of today, if it is to hold a fair position in competition with the motor car and other comparatively recent allurements from the outside, must display the attractiveness and good taste that characterize many of these other things. But it has become increasingly evident, too, that the task of bringing the home up to the desired artistic level is even more a matter of education, good taste and skillful guidance than it is a matter of money. The element of cost must be considered, of course, in any circumstances. But attractiveness of the best sort may be a feature of the moderately priced home as of the motor car of a similar nature.

Getting on Airman's Map

Communities that want the world to know they are air-minded—and most of them apparently have this desire—can make air-marking one of their first important objectives. Labeling the town, village, city or hamlet with its name painted in large and legible letters on the roof of the tallest building may seem rather a humble start in the direction of aviation. Far from it.

"It is the easiest way to get on the airman's map," says a pilot with hundreds of hours of cross-country flying to his credit.

The Fireless City

The fire prevention idea has developed into a major community enterprise in the city of Albany, Ga., and it now enjoys the distinction of being regarded as the "Fireless City." With a population of 20,000, it has the lowest annual loss by fire of any city in the country. There were but 91 alarms of fire during 1928 and the total loss was but $4,520. This has been accomplished by wiping out many fire hazards and by maintaining an energetic fire patrol nightly.

Much Money for Building

Fifty-six life insurance companies, located in cities throughout the country, lent $374,011,470.30 on American homes in 1928, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

FRENCH INDO-CHINA

Throne Room Building of King of Cambodia at Phnompenh.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

FRANCE has recently found it necessary to send a punitive expedition across the border that lies between Indo-China and China because of the activities of Chinese Communists along the frontier.

The expedition operated from Tongking, northernmost of the French colonial colonies, but the step was taken as a protection for the whole of French Indo-China, that stretches from the southeastern corner of Asia some 800 miles to the north and northwestward. It is a sizable empire which France controls there in Asia, either by outright possession or protectorate—205,000 square miles, an area almost exactly the size of the state of Texas.

The region is, however, much closer to the equator than Texas, occupying a position corresponding to that of southern Mexico and Central America. Thus the French Asiatic empire is wholly within the tropics and in a region of heavy rainfall.

The units of French Asia are Cochinchina, in the extreme south; Cambodia, in the southwest; Annam, stretching along most of the eastern coast; Laos, inland and to the northwest; and Tongking, filling the northern end of the elongated territory and extending from the coast inland for 200 miles.

Annam is less completely under French control, officially, than any of the other states with which it is associated in the territorial group known as French Indo-China. It has its own emperor and is listed as a protectorate. But Annam and the twelve million people of Annamese blood really constitute the chief factor in this region of French influence.

In few places are the old forms of oriental magnificence maintained as completely as in the imperial establishment at Hue, the capital of Annam. Until recently the palace was forbidden ground, and it is still far from easy to obtain access.

Inside the palace walls is a richness and an elaborateness seldom encountered outside fairy tales and the settings of extravagant stage presentations. There are picturesque gardens; paved courts, where on occasion the ten thousand mandarins of Annam strike their foreheads in unison on the ground before the emperor; dim corridors of countless columns with their huge perfume burners sending up continual clouds of incense; and exquisite rooms of intricately wrought ceramics and gold and silver.

Opening into the emperor's state rooms is the great Golden Door, through which, in addition to the sovereign, only the extraordinary ambassadors may pass.

Lavish festivals and displays take place within this fairland of luxury. The most charming and characteristic, perhaps, are the children's ballets, in which scores of dainty, costumed youngsters go through elaborate steps and postures with bright fans in their hands and a lighted colored lantern attached to each youthful shoulder.

Hue Itself Not Beautiful.
Outside the palace enclosure Hue is less appealing. The "metropolitan area" of the city is in large part a collection of native villages clustered in the shadow of the great palacelike citadel walls. Across the river is the French residency with its Gallic-western atmosphere. For a long time Hue was little known, and as the seat of an important country its size was exaggerated. Its population is only about 80,000.

The town is in a tropical region in a latitude corresponding to the southern extremity of Mexico. It lies near the mid-point of the long double-curving coast of French Indo-China, a few miles from the sea on the Hue river. Built on a flat, the city itself has little beauty of form or setting; but it would be difficult to find in the tropics more beautiful environs than it possesses. Only a few miles away rise the mountains from which the Hue river flows, and even closer are lower wooded hills and valleys. Numerous villages are all but hidden in a mantle of green; palms, bamboo, and scores of tropical vines and shrubs. Carefully kept paddy fields alternate with wild regions of underbrush, and scattered about the countryside are innumerable graceful pagodas.

The most remarkable feature of Hue are the famous tombs of the kings, which lie in the charming pine and banyan-covered valleys and hills a few miles from the city—true cities of the dead, far more attractive in setting than that of the living. For each departed ruler of the past several centuries a large area has been developed as a resting place and memorial for himself, his wives, children and servants. These developed areas are in two parts. One is a beautiful group of gardens, lakes, summer-houses and a memorial hall. The latter is fitted with the furniture from the departed emperor's apartments. The second part is a vast enclosure near-by, usually a series of terraces above the gardens, in some unmarked spot of which the body of the emperor lies. The reigning emperor visits each of these garden-tombs of his ancestors annually and makes obeisance to their spirits.

The notable structures and gardens extend from the end of the Eighteenth century to the present. The earlier of these are exceedingly elaborate and have much in them to remind one of Fontainebleau and Versailles.

Cambodia's Capital.
Strikingly different from Hue is Phnompenh, capital of Cambodia. It lies on the route to the famous ruins of Angkor and is better known to tourists than some of the larger capitals of Indo-China.

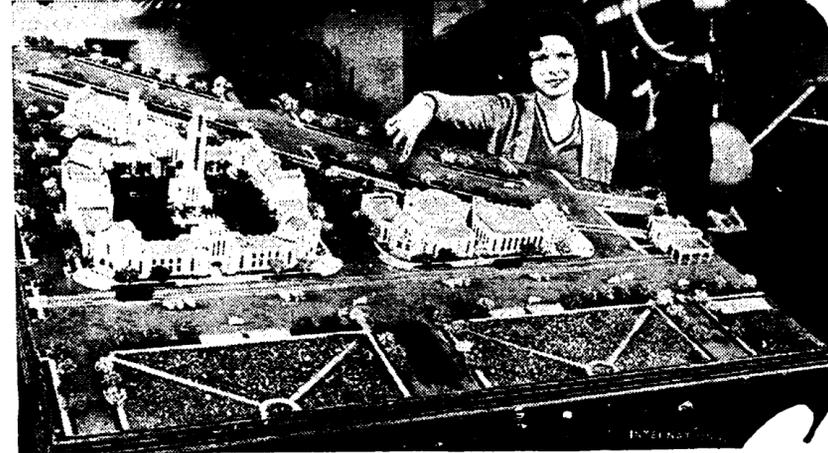

The palace of the kings of Cambodia is not elaborate. The royal dwelling place, in fact, is a series of rather modest buildings, not richly adorned without or within. Greatest of the palace sights is a life-size gold statue of Buddha in a room whose floor is of silver tiles.

Five or six hundred female retainers occupy the royal colony, among whom are the dancing girls. They, in their golden gowns, royal jewels, and tiaras that resemble miniature carved steeples, have become famous for their charm and grace.

Near-by is the Khmer museum with a collection of sculptured stones, implements of war and jewelry; the weather-beaten royal pagoda, and an ancient temple approached by a long flight of steps with a stone railing representing Naga, the sacred seven-headed cobra. Tails of the sacred reptile adorning the roofs of some of Phnompenh's buildings resemble crooked lightning rods on American farm houses.

The one thoroughfare of Phnompenh that has a right to be called an avenue leads from the palace to the public park. Two hotels bordering it offer excellent accommodations for a small Eastern city save for their orchestras that dispense impossible nocturnal jazz. The rest of the street is cluttered up with open-front native shops, some of which make an attempt to duplicate French pastry. Now and then through a vacant space one gets a glimpse of a garden spot a block or two in the background where a French colonial official lives in a palatial home amid broad lawns and flowering trees.

Beverly Hills to Have This Civic Center

So delighted were the citizens of Beverly Hills, Calif., with this model of a proposed civic center that they promptly went to the polls and voted a bond issue of more than $1,000,000 with which to carry out the project. Practically every voter endorsed the scheme after studying the model, which is considered one of the finest ever contemplated by a small city.

A PEST? YES, BUT "COMMON SCOLD"? NO! MAN CONTENTS

Cursed His Neighbors and Roared All Over the Place, "But What of It?"

Pittsburgh.—Charles Rizzo admits he may have disturbed the peace of Duffield street; he further admits he may have been contentious, obstreperous, pugnacious, and pestiferous; he may have been unseemly in his conduct toward his neighbors, have injured their feelings by hard words and threats.

But Charles Rizzo is ready to fight to the end to prove he is not a "common scold"; he intends to go to the United States Supreme court, if necessary, to set aside the verdict given in Criminal court by a jury of eight men and four women.

The affair goes back to last winter. The good people of Duffield street claim that every day and every night during the winter, Rizzo came home shouting and cursing. The neighbors caused to be invoked against Rizzo the old colonial law, adopted in and still standing on the statutes of the commonwealth. And they hailed Rizzo into court to answer to being a "common scold."

A dozen neighbors testified that Rizzo would swear at them every time he saw them, day or night, and that his conduct at all times was unseemly. They testified he would stand in his yard and would curse them until they fled.

Questions by counsel failed to develop answers as to why some neighbor did not exercise the great American privilege of extirpating him. Eventually Rizzo was convicted. But he appealed for a new trial. His lawyer, F. L. Lagorio, cites the wording of the scold statute to prove biologically that Rizzo could not be convicted under it, for the law defines a scold as "a glib woman with a too active tongue."

Furthermore, counsel pleads, should the conviction stand, the county would be put to wasteful expense, as the law provides that "any person convicted of being a common scold shall be ducked three times in an open body of water."

The learned counsel points out that neither Allegheny county nor Pennsylvania state now owns a ducking stool.

$7,500 Is Too Much for Too Tight Shoes

Hard Luck Due to Camel Kick

Ahmed Sure Had Run of Mishaps After Animal Hoisted Him.

New York.—Ahmed Karn was sitting on a cane-bottom chair in the Seaman's institute, down on the East river front. He was puffing a funny-looking pipe with a brass lid.

O. Henry once wrote a story about a fellow named Kearney. This Kearney was afflicted with chronic tough luck. Every time he took hold of any project it went into the ground, except when he tried to plow.

It seems that Ahmed comes from the land of the Pharaohs. Twelve years ago in Schogg, Ahmed was kicked by a camel. When he recovered he found himself lying in a field alongside the Nile.

In Cardiff Ahmed struck up a friendship with a lady snake charmer. She must have misunderstood his intentions because one afternoon a lawyer approached and told him he'd have to marry the girl.

He signed up with an Italian ship, sailing for Genoa. Thirteen days later, when he landed, he was arrested as a war spy. When he finally got out of jail his ship was gone and so were his clothes.

He got to Genoa and signed up with an English tramp, bound for Port Said. The rest of the crew were Chinese. Before he could get aboard ship Ahmed was waylaid by a gang of sailors.

Ahmed got out of jail and had to bribe his way into a job in a steamer. She was loaded with coal, and two days out a torpedo sent her down. Ahmed was plucked out of the water by a steamer headed for South America.

DISCOVER FIVE "BUGS" IN FRUIT WHICH AID HEALTH

Little Family of Germs Gives Human Body Vitamins We Must Have.

Norfolk, Va.—Five little germs—"a family of five"—discovered in fruits and vegetables such as apples, figs, oranges, beets, potatoes and turnips—germs that aid health instead of injecting poison into the human body.

These germs, according to Mr. Tucker, are vital to life. Unlike others, they impart health and strength to the human body.

Ahmed without benefit of salt and pepper. A squall came up suddenly and saved him.

The gale swept the decks clean and a wooden tub hit Ahmed in the small of the back, putting him in bed for the rest of the journey.

In 1920, after varied misadventures, Ahmed found himself in Tampico working on an oil ship. He missed the ship one day and was arrested as a deserter. Finally he was released on bond.

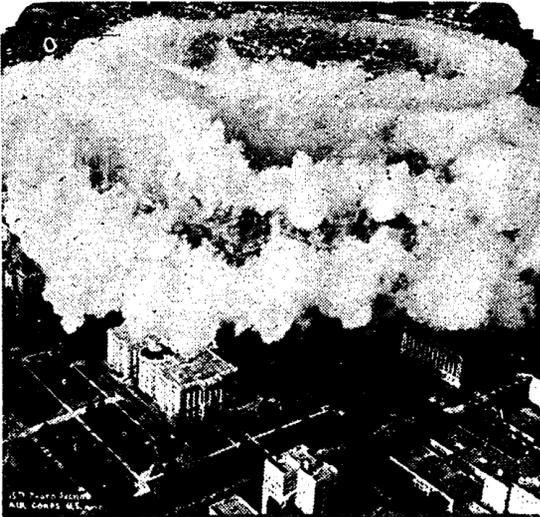

Then Ahmed came to the United States. He had sad adventures in Port Arthur, Texas, and in California, altogether too numerous to mention. Eventually he reached Baltimore, where, in a speakery, his skull was fractured in a brawl.

Ahmed told his story, displayed his scars, and announced that he was preparing to leave New York on the first ship which would take him back to Egypt.

He has a reason for wanting to go back to Egypt. He wants to look up that camel. He's going to kick the living daylight out of the beast. That's the way Ahmed is.

He thinks the camel started it all.

Screening Sacramento From Attack

During the army air maneuvers over the Pacific coast a single pursuit plane spread a dense smoke screen over Sacramento in less than one minute.

Tut! Tut! Egypt Loves This Mother-in-Law. Cairo, Egypt.—The famous bust of Queen Nefertiti, the mother-in-law of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, which recently has reposed in the Berlin State museum, will journey back to Egypt.

Motorist Robs Man Whom He Gave Lift

Santa Barbara, Calif.—Louis Turner, twenty-six-year-old resident of the Seaman's institute in San Francisco, recently was clouted over the head with an iron bar and robbed of $180 on a side road off the Coast highway near Naples by a motorist who had picked him up near Ventura as he was "hitch-hiking" back to his home port, San Pedro.

Turner said a man driving a fine car had given him a "lift" from Ventura and that they had come to this city, enjoying several drinks together en route. Later, according to his story, they started north, the man driving the car off the Coast highway on a side road near Naples, explaining the action by declaring that some "beautiful scenery could be seen from the road."

After stopping, Turner said, his companion reached into the back of the car, grabbed an iron pipe and hit him over the head with it.

Canada Best Customer of U. S. in Year 1929

Ottawa.—Reports of the United States Chamber of Commerce show Canada to have been the best customer of the United States in 1929 for the second consecutive year as well as the principal distributor of foreign products in the republic. The reports show that Canada's purchases from the United States amounted to near $1,000,000,000 and were 18.1 per cent of the whole, exceeding those of 1928 by $33,788,000.

Germans Plan Fete in Honor of Von Steuben

Berlin.—Arrangements are being made by the Carl Schurz society to observe on September 17 of this year the 200th anniversary of the birth of General von Steuben.

An honorary committee has been named with President von Hindenburg at its head.

Other members include Frederick M. Sackett, the American ambassador; Julius Curtius, foreign minister, and Paul Loebe, president of the reichstag.

DIES SO BROTHER CAN MARRY BRIDE

Suicide Leaves Letter Saying "I Hate Them."

Newark, N. J.—Henry Keller was an emotional boy who liked to dramatize himself. When he did even so small a thing as wave an arm in conversation he did it as if he were playing to an audience.

With Henry, hate was uppermost, for he wrote: "To whom it may interest; the cause of it all: I loved and trusted my wife and my brother. Now I hate my wife, despise my brother and sentence myself to die for having been fool enough to have ever loved any one as contemptible as my wife has proven to be."

Told Brother of Love. Henry and Edward had been inseparable for ten years. Both had enlisted in the marine corps. In Philadelphia, where Henry was stationed, he met Florence—and married her.

Every time Henry saw his wife and brother, he told them again that he would commit suicide. On the day before his death, he made this entry in his diary—the last entry and made to read as if it actually was written after death. It was:

"Friday—Went to Ed's office to make him suffer physically a little. He wasn't there. Went downstairs to car. They were there—told them again. They laughed, but I could see fear in their eyes. Wrote letters and took final curtain sometime after midnight. Wurra, wurra, wurra, here goes nothing."

He took three pies home Friday night. One of them he gave to his landlady, the other two he took to his room. He wrote three letters, an entry in his diary, and then prepared to write a running account of his own death. It follows:

"This would be a real opportunity for an essay on 'How it feels to sentence one's self to die,' but—who cares—it wouldn't matter a bit a hundred years from now. And then, so darned many suicides have an idea that the rest of the world is going to be interested in their theories on the 'uselessness of living' and the 'fascination of death'—horse feathers!"

"I'm fixing a little apparatus on the gas line—good idea—I'll get the full strength of the gas and prevent the odor from permeating the house and bringing on discovery too soon. 'Incidentally, I was twenty-two on December 1, 1929. I've lived in those 22 years. The age on my marine corps discharge is three years over. I had to lie about my age in order to get by."

"It is now 1:20 a. m.—all is quiet on the western front. All the drunks and night owls are in, so I'm off—no relieve."

"I took my panacea for all human ills. It won't be long now. I'll bet Florence and Ed are having uneasy dreams. When the stuff starts to take effect I'll plaster my little funnel to my face and turn on the gas. Ten minutes later—my head is hot. I'm perspiring and shaky, but brain is still clear."

"Gee, I loved you so much, Florence. It's now 2:15. I feel very tired and a bit dizzy. I have the gas nozzle plastered on my face, but disconnected from the gas jet. It's quite uncomfortable, damn it. My brain is very clear. I can see that my hand is shaking—it is hard to die when one is young. How I wish oblivion would hurry—"

Henry Keller's clear brain kept directing the hand to write, but the hand, which had been growing unsteady, now trailed off into an illegible scrawl—in a few minutes Henry Keller was dead.

Taxi Drivers Protest "Four-Flush" Customers

London.—London taxicab drivers are preparing a petition to the metropolitan traffic authorities to save them from the "twelve-cent snobs." They say that in order to make a show young couples leaving theaters hire a taxi, ride to the nearest bus stop, pay the minimum charge of 12 cents and take a bus home.

Typhoid Victims Sue Helena, Mont.—This city faces 11 damage suits, with claims totaling $100,000.

They are the result of a typical epidemic last fall. Each plaintiff contracted the fever and blamed the city, on the ground of municipal negligence.

Boys Try to Wreck Train Just for Fun

Windsor, Ont.—When two "train-wreckers," the oldest thirteen, appeared in court here charged with attempting to wreck a train by placing a steel tie plate on the tracks, the younger, eight, smilingly told the court they "just wanted to see what would happen."

Kansas University Wars on Cheating Students

Lawrence, Kan.—Cheating in examinations at the University of Kansas has become so prevalent that the college faculty has recommended to Dean J. G. Brandt that he appoint a faculty committee to meet with the student representatives to seek a possible solution to eliminate "cribbing."

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

Beauty Contract

The recent death of a show girl, whose health had been broken through dieting to keep her figure, brings to light a more or less standard contract which beauties sign with music-show producers. It states: "It is expressly made part of this agreement, that if at any time you should, during the term of said arrangement, increase in weight more than sixteen pounds, or decrease in weight more than ten pounds, or let the dimensions of any part of your figure vary more than one-half inch from the following: weight, 115; neck, 12 1/2 inches; bust, 34; upper arm, 11; lower arm, 7 1/2; waist, 26; hips, 34; thigh, 18; calf, 12; ankles, 8 1/2; then and in that event you shall have a right to cancel this contract upon giving you one week's notice."

Radio Chat

Short-wave wireless telephone communication with far-distant points on the globe depends upon many factors which wireless engineers have charted, with the result that, if one wishes to broadcast to Java, Madagascar, South Africa, Germany or any other place, it is a simple matter to find out the wave length, the time of the year and the time of the day when one will be most successful.

Not long ago a radio engineer was conducting experimental communication with a station in Sydney, Australia, where a man named McDonald was operating the apparatus. They chatted about this and that, and then McDonald introduced his wife to the American.

"This is Schenectady," said the American. "Can you say Schenectady?" "Oh, yes," said Mrs. McDonald. But what does it mean?

"It's the name of a city. It means the river valley beyond the pines." "How clever!" said Mrs. McDonald.

Ho, Hum!

Commissioner Whalen is authority for the statement that New York is one of the safest cities in the country, as far as burglary, assault and robbery go. Basing his figures on every 100,000 in population, he recently told insurance men that New York has, each year, 73.6 of these three crimes per 100,000 persons, while Los Angeles has 331.3, Chicago 170.4, Detroit 161.8, and Cleveland 288.3. That's a comfort on a dark night here, but what about Los Angeles?

Reason Why

Tourists returning from Paris aren't bringing in as much jewelry as they used to, according to customs officials, and one of the reasons is the ambition of Parisian salesmen to collect rewards. The story of a couple who spent their honeymoon in Paris is typical. A jewelry salesman visited them at their hotel, and persuaded the bridegroom to purchase a bracelet for his wife. "It's cheaper over here," he said, "and you can smuggle it in. Here: I'll show you how." And he showed the girl how to wear the bracelet under her glove to escape detection.

They purchased the bracelet, and the salesman, armed with information concerning the boat they were taking home, warned United States agents of an attempt to smuggle jewelry. When the bride and groom arrived in New York they were assessed a stiff fine—and the Parisian jewelry salesman got 25 per cent of the fine as a reward.

This and That

Long evening gloves, colored to match the costume, have appeared in Fifth avenue stores, at $40 the pair.

A scientist has figured it out that we first-nighters are in peril of our lives. One person out of 150 regular theatergoers, says he, becomes diseased and dies from the impurity of the theaters. Ho, hum. And while that is going on, five more die of ennuil, is my guess.

Couple Divorced After 51 Years of Wedded Life

Liverpool.—A marriage that had passed the golden anniversary mark was dissolved here when the divorce court granted a decree to Mrs. Maud Mary Imlach, seventy, for the dissolution of her marriage with Charles Imlach, seventy-five. They were married in May, 1879. Five children were born. Imlach, a professional man in Liverpool, did not defend the suit.

Bamboo Trees May Give Newsprint for America

Seattle.—Bamboo trees may supply a new source of newsprint if American paper manufacturers adopt Japanese methods of making newsprint paper. Japan has constructed three large factories for the manufacture of paper from bamboo pulp. If this wood is used, it means a more ready source of pulp, as it attains its growth in a year. Copies of newspapers printed on bamboo paper show up excellently.

Woman Shows Strength

Tulsa, Okla.—Mrs. R. T. Richards wonders how much strength she actually possesses. When fire broke out in her apartment she carried a large trunk from the house. It required two men to carry it back into the apartment after the fire.

FREAK FURNITURE FADS ON DECLINE

Less Being Made This Year Than Ever Before.

New York.—Fewer fads, freaks, and hysterical furniture designs are being made today than ever before, according to A. P. Haake, Ph. D., managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers. He reported on style tendencies at the semiannual meeting of the association, which met here.

"Fashions in furniture," Doctor Haake explained, "do not necessarily mean good taste in furnishing. For a number of years furniture designers were striving for bizarre and unusual effects, instead of for beauty. The designs which happen to be most widely accepted today are more beautiful in design and proportion than any which have achieved a popular vogue in nearly a century."

"Good manners and formality have again become popular. We see this in the long skirts which cover a multitude of shins; we see it in the formal evening suit which is replacing the tuxedo. The jazz age is dying, and with it is passing the eccentric, erratic, whimsical modes which reached their peak a few months ago."

"England has contributed largely to the furniture styles which are most popular today. The Georgian and Queen Anne patterns are highly regarded. Colonial styles are selling in excess of any other period designs, while maple is increasingly used as a wood for recreations of early American furniture. Oak in early English design has doubled its popularity within the past year."

"Modern furniture in its present form may have an ultimate success, although in modified form. It will take many years for the homemaker to create backgrounds which will suit the contemporary designs in furniture, but the conservative modernistic fashions being made today are frequently adapted to use with other furniture of similar line, proportion and coloring."

"The building program which embraces a large number of structures should provide a vast amount of space to be furnished, and the furniture industry as well as building contractors should benefit by the new construction."

Russians Wait Seven Years to Enter America

London.—Among the new arrivals at Ellis Island when the next quota influx begins this summer there will be 30 Russians who started on their journey from Riga to the United States in 1923 and who for seven years have been men without a country.

They are the last of a party of 600 who left their native land, as so many hundreds of thousands had done before, to find a new home across the Atlantic. They were caught by the reduction of America's quota for Russian immigrants.

By a technicality they could not be sent back to their own country, and they could not be allowed to settle in England. And as they could not proceed to the United States they were sent to Atlantic Park hotel, Eastleigh, a temporary halting place maintained by the big shipping companies for European emigrants.

Little by little the band of 600 diminished as its members were being called by the quota. Many obtained visas as a result of marriages with other emigrants who had become American citizens. Now, after seven years, the United States authorities have issued visas for the final band of 30. The journey will be resumed at an early date.

Propose to Make Late Czar of Russia Saint

Belgrade.—There is at present before the Synod of the Serbian Orthodox church a serious proposal to proclaim the late Russian emperor, Nicholas II, a saint of the Serbian church. The proposal comes from the population of one of the larger provincial towns of Serbia, Leskovatz, where a special series of church services and meetings was recently held.

It was stated that Nicholas II was "the most pious, pure, and noble of the European rulers," and that to the very end one of his principal cares was for the Serbian people; he should therefore be declared "a Jugo-Slav saint and placed in the ranks of Serbian saints, together with St. Simeon, St. Sava, St. Lazar, and St. Stephen."

If this proposal is given effect, to the late czar would be the first "Jugo-Slav" saint, since all the others were elevated long before the formation of the state.

Antrim Grange, No. 98

The regular meeting was held at Grange hall June 4. At the close of the business meeting, the doors were open to the children and the public, it being Farm Bureau night. Mr. Pierce, County Agt., gave several reels, viz.: Unblazed Trails, David in Baffin's Land, Around the Clock with the Girl Scouts, The Transformation. All interesting subjects. Over one hundred were present, and all were greatly interested. Next meeting, June 18, is a required meeting by the Home and Community Welfare Committee. Minnie M. McIlvin, Lecturer.

AT GRANGE HALL June 19

Arrangements have been made for Dr. Hugh K. Moore, of Berlin, to give a strictly non-political address on Industry, illustrating many of the products of New Hampshire and its possibilities. June 19 being the only open date for Dr. Moore to be able to address an Antrim audience, it is hoped all persons having the good of our State at heart will endeavor to be present, as we are promised a very interesting lecture by Dr. Moore. It is hoped he will be greeted by a full house. Remember date: June 19; remember place: Grange hall; remember time: 8 p.m., standard time. Minnie M. McIlvin, Advertising Com.

Another Youth

We are often made to feel that there is another youth and age than that which is measured from the year of our natural birth. Some thoughts always find us young, and keep us so. Such a thought is the love of the universal and eternal beauty.—Emerson.

More Birds

On islands in the South seas ornithologists bagged a ground dove, a sand piper and a species of paradise bird which sea captains of the old sailing days used to spin yarns about, but which have not been seen for the last hundred years, and which were supposedly extinct. The occasion was made a "shower" of various presents for Miss Howard, who is soon to be married.

Why Fraternities?

In reading an interesting editorial upon this subject, in our "old home town paper" we felt constrained to use a portion of the article which seemed unusually timely. The preliminary words are not made use of, but extracting at once the meat, here is the real thing:

The answer to these questions is the answer as to why do we have fraternities at all—we NEED them. Why do we need them? Well, as we see it, this is still a mighty selfish sort of a world in which we are living. The great struggle in the daily grind and battle for life, fame, fortune, etc., is apt to force us to breed selfishness and greed and envy and jealousy. In fact, this speed age in which we are living is a perfect breeding place for these undesirable symbols. We are so self centered in acquiring our share (and more than our share) of worldly goods that things which are taught in the lodge rooms are seldom encountered in the daily routine of life. In the mad scramble for wealth one of the gravest dangers which America faces today is that the stars in our Flag will sooner or later be replaced by dollars signs. Why, then, should we have fraternities? Just as we have churches to remind us of things eternal, so, too, should we have a place where we can go once every week and think of the other fellow. There is a great need for fraternities and they are today exerting a great influence for good in the world.

Knight's store has received a new coat of paint.

Miss Elisabeth Barr is a guest at Edgerton Farm.

The Benevolent society meets in the chapel at 2 o'clock on Thursday.

The weather-vane on the town hall has been re-gilded, making another bright spot.

Miss Carolyn Edwards, of Boston, was home for the week-end, driving a nifty runabout.

The Sunday school teachers and board members met with Mrs. Seaver on Tuesday afternoon.

There are several garden patches started by 4 H club members, which look as though they might prove successful.

Miss Barbara Edwards is home from Boston, for a little rest, as she recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Clarence Edmunds, the eldest son of the Finast Store manager, has been very ill with pneumonia, but is reported better.

Pupils of the Pierce School enjoyed a picnic at Gregg Lake on Saturday. The most appealing feature seemed to be the ice cream and ginger ale, donated by the School Board.

An entertainment will be given at the town hall, Friday, June 13, at 8 o'clock p.m. Two plays "Isn't This Exciting" and "Saving the Situation" will be the features with orchestra and specialties between acts. Benefit of Grammar and High school pupils.

A meeting of Mt. Crocheted 4-H Club was held on Friday, the 6th; the meeting was opened and conducted as usual. It was voted to send flowers to Clarence Edmunds, who is sick with pneumonia. After the business was finished a social hour was held, closing at 8.30 p.m.

Beginning next Sunday morning, the Sunday school will meet at eleven o'clock; the younger classes going into the chapel, the older ones remaining for the service in the church, going a little later for class study into the chapel. This arrangement will bring everything within the hour, until September.

The Children's Day observance was very good indeed on Sunday morning; the flowers were very well arranged and beautiful. The singing by Hattie Parker, Catherine Scott and Phebe Champany is worthy of mention, and the three little umbrella girls were fine. In fact every number on the program was good.

A child health conference will be held in the town hall on Tuesday, June 17, from 1.30 to 4 p.m. The examining physician will be Dr. G. D. Tibbets, of Antrim. A committee of ladies, with Mrs. Earl Sheldon as chairman, will assist Miss Mary Hurley, State Nurse, who has charge of this work in Hillsborough County. This is for children of pre-school age. Any one wishing transportation to the conference will call Mrs. Sheldon, who will make arrangements for same.

Senior - Junior Prom

The Seniors and Juniors of Antrim High school held a Prom at the Town hall on Friday evening, June 6. The hall was attractively decorated with evergreen and cut flowers. Music was furnished by DeFoe's orchestra. Two promenades and several old fashioned dances added to the enjoyment of the evening.

This was a subscription party, and was arranged by Rachel Caughey, Margaret Pratt, Dorothy Lowell and Richard Johnson. Mrs. Leo Lowell, Mrs. Byron Butterfield, Miss Hazel Pitts and Miss Doris Howard were patronesses for the dance.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed in spite of the unfavorable weather.

Harvey W. Frye Candidate for Commissioner

Wilton, N. H.

To the Voters of Hillsborough County: I have decided to stand as a candidate in the primary election for County Commissioner to represent the small towns.

I have been interested in farming since boyhood; for forty years much of my time has been spent estimating the value of timber and in buying and selling lumber.

I have had the honor to represent my town in the state legislature, and to serve for six years as selectman of Wilton. If elected I shall give my best efforts to the work.

Yours sincerely,
 HARVEY W. FRYE.

SOME FAVORITE RECIPES

By NELLIE MAXWELL

The most lovable quality that any human being can possess is tolerance. It is the vision that enables one to see things from another's viewpoint. It is generosity that concedes to others the right to their own opinions and their own peculiarities. It is the bigness that enables us to let people be happy in their own way instead of our way.—Rotary Bulletin.

Let us not forget the value of fruits and vegetables in our menus.

Banana Supreme.—Peel, scrape and cut four bananas crosswise into quarters. Put one-half cupful of nuts through a food chopper with four graham crackers.

Mix with one-third of a cupful of brown sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg. Roll the bananas in this and lay close together in a buttered pan. Bake 20 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Maids of Honor.—Beat two eggs with one-half cupful of sugar until light, then add two cupfuls of cottage cheese, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one-half cupful of seedless raisins, one teaspoonful of lemon peel, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of chopped almonds. Put a spoonful of the filling into individual tart pans lined with rich pastry and bake in a moderately hot oven.

Apple Fluff.—Peel, core and cut up three large apples, simmer with just enough water to cook without burning. Soften one and one-half tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one cupful of water, then heat until well dissolved. Add the grated rind and two tablespoonfuls of juice of lemon, with one-third of a cupful of maple sirup to the apples which have been previously put through a sieve. Cool, and when beginning to set, beat until light. Add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs folded gently into the mixture. Turn into a mold which has been rinsed in cold water and chill. Serve with a custard made of the egg yolks, or cream may be used as a sauce.

Polenta With Sausages.—Sprinkle one and one-half cupfuls of corn meal into a quart of boiling salted water, stirring and cooking for 20 minutes.

Now add one pound of sausage meat which has been well cooked and broken into small bits. Stir it into the corn meal and pour into a mold to cool. Unmold, cover with tomato sauce and cheese and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

Here is something different to serve with a lamb roast instead of the usual mint jelly: Cut grapefruit into halves and remove every other section, in the cavity place a wedge shaped piece of mint jelly. Mold the jelly in one-half grapefruit shell and the wedges will be of the same size. These are delightful substitutes for a fruit cocktail when serving lamb or fowl.

Bake small cup cakes. spread with jelly and roll in coconut. These make very nice little cakes to serve with a cup of tea.

Rhubarb Betty.—Mix one quart of dry bread crumbs with one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter. Place a layer of sweetened rhubarb sauce in a baking dish and cover with the buttered crumbs; repeat, adding a dash of cinnamon or nutmeg until one quart of sauce and all the crumbs are used. Bake fifteen minutes. The fresh rhubarb may be used, adding sugar for each layer and baking twenty-five minutes. Serve with a hard sauce.

Peach Dainty.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with one cupful of sugar and add the yolks of two eggs lightly beaten. Now add one pint of whipping cream beaten stiff and one quart of sliced peaches. Serve over sliced angel food or sponge cake.

Jellied Custard With Peaches.—Prepare the following custard and mold: Take one tablespoonful of gelatin, soften in one and one-half pints of milk, heat to boiling and pour over the beaten yolks of three eggs and one-half cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of almond; cook well, adding the almond after the mixture is taken from the stove. Fold in the beaten whites and turn into a large mold. When chilled serve with sliced peaches and cream.

Asparagus Wholesome

Asparagus, freshly cut and immediately served is a wholesome and appetizing product of the garden. As it is one of the earliest green vegetables it is especially enjoyed.

Wild asparagus, which is often found growing on the farm, may be used by the housewife. It furnishes nourishment for the family which would otherwise be used by the plant in the growth of its stalk and leaves.

For green asparagus the shoots are cut near the surface of the soil, while for white asparagus the shoots are cut several inches below the surface as soon as the tops appear.

Ice Should Not Be Wrapped

Difference in Temperature in Two Boxes.

Wrapping may save ice, (a cent a day), but it does not save food. Unwrapped ice melts slightly faster, therefore gives lower temperatures and furnishes surfaces for condensation of odors

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A better understanding of what goes on when we put ice and food into a refrigerator has led to an absolute repudiation of "ice blankets," or any sort of paper or cloth covering that retards the melting of the ice. It is true that wrapped ice does not melt as fast as unwrapped, but for that very reason it does not give as low temperatures in the refrigerator as unwrapped ice. In a good refrigerator the faster ice melts the lower the temperature of the air around it. More surface is also furnished by melting ice for the absorption of odors. The important thing in using a refrigerator is that it shall be possible to maintain temperatures low enough to safeguard milk and meat, especially since bacterial increase goes on very rapidly in these foods above certain temperatures. Below forty-five degrees is now considered proper for a 24-hour storage of milk and meat.

The diagram prepared by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture shows the difference in temperature in two boxes, one with unwrapped and the other with wrapped ice. Currents of cold air move downward from the melting ice so that the place just below the ice on the floor of the refrigerator is the coldest spot. In the first case it is 42 degrees Fahrenheit in this part of the box and in the second, 43 degrees Fahrenheit.

In laboratory tests made by the bureau the total amount of ice saved in 24 hours by wrapping was two pounds, worth about one cent a day, but to save this small amount the housekeeper runs the risk of insufficient refrigeration and failure to have odors absorbed. These shortcomings defeat the entire purpose of refrigeration.

SOME HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Cheese is an excellent meat substitute because it is rich in protein and fat and contains calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin A.

Blankets should be hung for drying so the stripes are vertical. This prevents the brighter colors from running into the ground color.

To cut butter without having it stick to the knife, rinse the knife off with hot water first, or fold a piece of waxed paper over the sharp edge.

The miles she walks in her work, not to her work, are what make the housewife weary. Rearranging equipment will often reduce the distances.

Story for Children at Bedtime

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"My seasons," Saturn told Harry, "are like yours in their degrees of warmth, mild weather, and so forth—only every one of my seasons lasts seven years."

"Do you mean seven years of winter and seven years of spring and seven years of summer and so on?" asked Harry.

"Just what I mean," said Saturn. "Glad you get the idea at once." "Do you find anyone grumbling over having a season last so long? Now if we have too long a winter or too long a spring people grumble."

"I never hear complaints." Harry had hoped from the way in which he had put his question that Saturn would give himself away and answer that having no people on his planet there could be no complaints. But Saturn's eyes twinkled as he answered, for he knew what was in Harry's mind. However, Harry was just about certain that there was no life here. From the look of what he could see he could tell that it was very hot and that it was not like his earth where so many creatures lived.

It was the strangest thing—but at this moment Cosmo arrived with the plane. How well they were going to guard their secrets! Harry said good-bye to Saturn hurriedly for Cosmo said they mustn't be late. "Don't forget to look at my rings through a telescope next time you get a chance," Saturn called out. "Sorry I couldn't have shown them to you here, but on account of going around me—" Harry did not hear the end of the sentence. For they were flying once more.

He made himself quite at home in the plane now. He looked at some of the charts as he ate sandwiches.

"We'll just whiz by Uranus," said Cosmo. "He's next to the most distant planet and you can't see him without a telescope. You're always asking about life on the planets. Of course they wonder most about Mars and a little about Venus, but I will tell you that there's no life on Uranus—nor on Neptune. Both are too hot. Stars are also too hot.

"Uranus was named after an ancient god. A brilliant man named William Herschel discovered him but was too modest to have the planet named after himself so chose the name of an old god instead."

"If I ever did anything like discovering a planet I'm sure I would want it named after me," Harry said, "although I'm not strong for conceited people."

They flew by Uranus, looking out at it from the windows of the plane. It seemed very large from their view of it—so close at hand—and then the pilot went in the direction of Neptune.

"Neptune was discovered less than one hundred years ago by an Englishman named John Couch Adams, but he named this planet after Father Neptune. About the same time, too, a French astronomer named Leverrier discovered this planet."

"Have either of these planets a moon?" Harry asked.

"Yes, Neptune has a moon to keep him company way off in the sky. And Uranus has four little ones."

"Better than none, I should say," Harry remarked.

"But now we must visit the stars. Oh, there is so much to be seen. Your Solar system amounts to so little when we think how much else there is—such countless stars, and other sky families."

Historic Vessels

The names of the vessels which brought the first colonists to Jamestown, Va., were the Sarah Constant, the Godspeed and the Discovery. They came to anchor off the island where Jamestown was established on May 13, 1607.

Shakespeare's Family

William Shakespeare was the third child in the family. Two daughters, who died in infancy, were the first and second children. The others were Gilbert, Joan, Anne, Richard and Edmund.

Shoulder of Lamb Easily Boned

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A shoulder of lamb is one of the most tender and juicy cuts, but it is sometimes passed by because the housewife believes it will be difficult to carve. All of the bones can be easily removed, however, and the meat is then sliced without any trouble. The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture likes a boned shoulder to be stuffed and sewed up for baking in the form of a "cushion roast" rather than a rolled roast. Directions for taking the bones out properly are given by the Bureau of Animal Industry.

The first requisite is a sharp knife with a narrow blade about 4 or 5 inches long and half an inch wide. Do not keep this knife in a kitchen drawer among other kitchen tools, or where it is likely to be picked up for odd uses, like peeling potatoes or whittling.

Lamb shoulder, as cut for the retail trade, is almost as square and plump as a cushion. It contains four or five ribs, the shoulder blade, the round arm bone, and part of the neck. To bone it, lay the shoulder flat on the table with the fat side down and the rib side up. First, slip the knife under the edges of the ribs and follow down along them to the neck bone, leaving just as much meat as possible on the shoulder. Cut the ribs and the neck bones from the meat. Inside the shoulder there still remain the blade bone and the short end of the arm. The flat blade and the round arm bone form a sort of ell that extends through the center of the shoulder. The edge of the blade bone can be seen on the rear of the shoulder, and the arm bone on the side toward the one who is cutting. Slip the knife deep into the meat along the top or smooth side of the shoulder blade. Continue the cut around the corner to the arm bone, raising a flap of lean meat that can be laid back far enough to expose the full length of the bones. Peel out the shoulder blade and arm bone. You now have a cushion of meat open on two adjacent sides with a fine large pocket to hold a tasty stuffing. Whether roasted with or without stuffing, the edges of the pocket should be sewed together before cooking.

HOW TO COOK OKRA

Select young okra, wash it well, and cut crosswise in pieces about 1/2 inch thick. Heat the fat in a heavy skillet, add the okra, cover, cook for 10 minutes, and stir frequently to prevent burning. Remove the cover, continue to cook until the okra is tender and lightly brown, and serve at once.

2 quarts okra Salt to taste
4 tbs. fat

Okra is one of the vegetables which, after being used chiefly in a limited locality, suddenly began to find its way all over the United States. Due to better marketing and storage facilities. One result has been that many people are not quite sure how to cook it when they set it offered for sale. In the South, there are numerous uses for okra, and various methods of preparing it. Here is one of the best. The recipe is furnished by the bureau of home economics:

Embroidered Fabrics Are Popular

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Fashions at afternoon parties and other daytime social affairs are replete with the motifs, fabrics, colors and the general gaiety so characteristic of the 1920 modes.

An interesting trend observed at these "drowsy" afternoon occasions is the use of embroidered fabrics. It will be seen by the sketches herewith that we are slipping back gracefully to a designfulness, so far as materials are concerned, which for some time past has been omitted from the style program. We refer to the application of embroidery floss in decorative motifs on plain backgrounds, also embroidered eyelet effects.

For the costume to the left in the illustration the designer chooses one of the very new embroidered fabrics—crisp linen in this instance, the patterning worked in soft durenne yarns of subtle luster and extremely clear and buoyant colors.

The formal afternoon frock to the left seen at Aiken, where the sun shines brightly and garden parties are consequently in order, illustrates the revival of sheer batiste with eyelets embroidered in softly sparkling durenne, which by the way is a new nationally used term referring to an improved method of mercerizing cotton. Durenne cotton is stronger, more sparkling and more porous than ordinary cotton.

The use of the uneven peplum should be noted in the sketch at the right. It flares up in the front while the long skirt line remains even. The handkerchief cape is removable, leaving the frock with a definite sleeveless dinner-gown character.

These sketches point to more than one good fashion lesson—contrast in frocks and wraps for afternoon, both normal and high waisted, hats, coats and shoes matching or their color harmonies contrasting the tone coloring of the costumes with which they are worn. Vogue for the hand bag, which is of the same material as one's gown, is accentuated in the figure to the right.

Gems of Colored Glass

Pitkin flasks are the products of the Pitkin Glass works, which were the first works of the kind built in Connecticut. The works were constructed in 1783 and were in operation until 1830. Many containers made by the Pitkin Glass works were never surpassed in beauty or color or pattern. "The Pitkin type flask," says R. M. Knittle, "is known to every glass collector. Many large bottles are green with long banded necks. The sunburst pattern flask is particularly meritorious."

Division of Palestine

A plan to divide Palestine according to the faith of the population—Jewish, Moslem and Christian—has been suggested. Mr. Ben Avi has proposed that 16 cantons be formed—8 Jewish, 7 Moslem and 3 Christian. The object is to place the inhabitants in congenial surroundings, giving each group freedom to govern itself in accordance with its own traditions. All would come under a central government, the mandatory power for Palestine.

"Battle of Battling Orioles"

DURING the days when John McGraw, Hughie Jennings, Pat Tebeau, "Scrappy Bill" Joyce and many others of their type were in major league baseball the daily attraction was a double bill—a ball game and a fight.

A battle fought August 6, 1897, at Boston, is known as the "Battle of the Battling Orioles." This story should convince the fans of this double bill that baseball games played during the above mentioned period were anything but pink tea affairs.

In the eighth inning Umpire Lynch, enraged at the frequent tongue lashing and vile epithets Doyle had inflicted upon him, kept piling up the fines until $300 had been plastered all over the rioting Doyle, but this didn't stop that player, so Lynch, losing his temper entirely, planted a powerful blow on the massive jaw of Mr. Doyle and it started something, for instantly the ground in front of the grandstand became the scene of a fierce battle. Players of both teams swarmed into the thick of it; then the mob from the bleachers stepped in, all eager for a piece of the trouble.

Joe Corbett, brother of "Gentleman Jim," staggered out of the crowd and the thick of the battle with his arm hooked around the classic neck of Umpire Lynch, while the Baltimore players were swinging all kinds of uppercuts, hay-makers and straight punches at the unfortunate umpire's face. Then the Boston players began punching the Baltimore crowd and it took a small army of cops fifteen minutes to stop the battle.

In the ninth inning hostilities were renewed, when John McGraw, now manager and vice president of the New York Giants, knocked Fred Tenney, Boston's first baseman, down with a wicked right hook. Tenney jumped up and started after Mac who started for the clubhouse with all the players of both teams joining in the running battle.

The reserve police were called out who came to the park in double quick time and after a severe encounter succeeded in restoring order.

Chet Wynne Was Fastest Notre Dame Grid Runner

Chet Wynne, who recently resigned as football coach of Creighton to take the job at Alabama, was one of the fastest halfbacks ever turned out on a Notre Dame team.

"Wynne probably is the fastest runner, next to Jack Elder, that ever came out of Notre Dame," writes Bill Hanna in the New York Herald Tribune. "I mean fastest football runner. He could skim an end remarkably fast and flit like a wrath, just a rush of light—noiseless, then gone. Mahan moved with that same swift, graceful, lightfoot silence. There was more clatter to the running of Eckersall, Thorpe, Weekes, Barrett and Grange. Running in straight lines, Elder was more dangerous, it seemed to this onlooker, than Wynne in his noiseless arcs. At least, recollection of Elder's dash to a touchdown in the Army game is much more recent and, therefore, more vivid."

Rifle Champion

Donald Anderson, student at the Missouri Military Academy, Mexico, Mo., who won the individual championship in the National R. O. T. C. rifle meet in which 63 schools competed throughout the country. Anderson, who turned in a score of 196 out of a possible 200, will make a trip to Washington, D. C., to receive the championship award.

Baseball Mark Goes in Cardinal-Robin Battle

A modern major league record was broken and a National league record equaled in the second game of a recent bargain bill between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers. The new mark was set when the Cards and the Robins went to bat officially 103 times, the Dodgers with 52 and the Red Birds with 51. The all-time record was made June 9, 1883, when the Boston and Detroit Nationals batted 110 times, but the more recent record was 99 times between the New York Giants and the Cincinnati Reds on June 9, 1901. The National record, which was equaled, was by the Red Birds employing 22 players, the same as was used by the Phillies against the Cards on September 16, 1920, and by the same club against the Dodgers, May 17, 1929.

Minnesota Proficiency Medal Is Won by Tanner

Bob Tanner, star end of the Minnesota football team for the last three years, was awarded the conference medal for proficiency in athletics and scholarship, at the cap and gown ceremonies. He is the only athlete in Minnesota history to have won nine "M's," playing baseball, guard in basketball and end in football.

Sport Notes

Jimmy McLarin won his first fight at the age of twelve.

The batting sensation of the Coast league is Frank Crosetti, San Francisco shortstop.

Roger Peckinpaugh, Cleveland manager, says Jonah Goldman is the most amazing shortstop of the last 20 years.

Pitcher Lili Stoner was released outright by the Pittsburgh Pirates to the Fort Worth club of the Texas league.

The St. Paul American association baseball club has sold Bernie Tesmer, catcher, to the Dallas club of the Texas league.

A winning football team at Purdue has brought an enlargement of the Ross-Ade stadium. Ten thousand seats have been added.

It seems that San Quentin, the best of the prison baseball teams, got a break this season. The entire schedule is played at home.

Eppa Rixey of the Cincinnati club is the oldest left-handed pitcher in the National league and the tallest in the parent circuit, towering six feet five inches.

J. D. E. Jones and Arnold Jones, national father and son tennis champions, are co-coaches of the Brown university varsity and freshmen tennis teams.

First Baseman Bernard Senne, who had a tryout with the Montreal Royals of the International league this spring, has been signed by the Peoria Tractors.

Only two players, John Booth and Capt. William Kenney, who were members of the Seattle Reds, baseball champions of the Northwest in 1886, are still alive.

Richard F. Hoyt, winner of the 1929 gold cup at Red Bank, N. J., again will depend on his boat trip to retain the trophy. This year's race will be held August 16.

Several big league pitchers are hitting well over .300. Last year Uhl, Yde, Bayne and Ruffing in the American league, and Cventros, Mays, Donohue, Brame and Scott in the National did it.

Our favorite name for a baseball catcher has been Grabowski—or possibly Hoving of Boston—but we are weakening a little toward Gathernum, young backstop with the Buffalo Internationals.

Only three world's series have resulted in a clean sweep. The Braves accomplished this feat in 1914 over the Athletics and the Yankees in 1927 and 1928, against the Pirates and Cardinals, respectively.

Baseball is played in Sweden but the scoring rules differ from ours. "Fielders' choices" are scored as hits over there, sacrifice hits and flies are not recorded, catchers and pitchers are given errors on passed balls and wild pitches respectively.

Another Tom Oliver, who is not related to the Tom Oliver patrolling the outfield for the Boston Red Sox, will enter baseball at the close of the current semester of the University of Arkansas. Pitcher Tom Oliver, star of the Arkansas nine, has signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Law Krausse, seventeen-year-old Media, Pa., high school pitcher, may join the Philadelphia Athletics. His father, John Krausse, was once a professional pitcher, and his son's chief claim to fame is that he had hurled one no-hit and two one-hit games. The boy has been working out with the A's at Shibe park.

FANS HAVE LITTLE USE FOR ARBITERS

President Heydler Says Umpires Have Few Friends.

After his many years in baseball, John A. Heydler, president of the National league, is convinced that players and fans have little use for the umpires. Heydler just about says so in his "special instructions" to the officials.

If there is any doubt about it, read as follows, and find out for yourself:

"Study the rules daily. A thorough knowledge of them is your greatest asset. Be courteous and firm and so compel respect from all, and never lose sight of the fact that friendship for the umpire, appreciation of his arduous duties, and practical co-operation in his troubles rarely extend outside of this office."

Another thing, Heydler likes umpires who are able to "stand on their own feet" and are not everlastingly appealing to a fellow mate to make the decision in some intricate play. He wants them to be in the right spot at the right time and get their own plays.

Fisherman and sportsmen generally will be interested in the announcement that the Anglers' club of Sarasota, Fla., will give $5,000 in cash prizes to anglers and guides for the best fish caught during the national tarpon tournament to be held there May 9 to July 15 inclusive. This is said to be the largest sum ever offered in a fishing tournament. These awards are in addition to cups, trophies, fishing tackle, etc., usually given at such an event.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, has issued a warning to gamblers who make the stadium their headquarters while the Yankees are playing at home. "I am opening heavy fire on those who bet openly at the stadium on Sundays," said Barrow. "I have prepared warnings which will be handed to patrons, and I hope the fans do not take offense and will appreciate what I am trying to do. I have been fighting gamblers at ball parks ever since I came into the game, and I am never going to give it up. The situation at the stadium has become serious, and I am going to stamp out the evil."

Harry J. Rockefeller, graduate manager of athletics at Rutgers university, announces that Dennis Mulligan, captain of the West Point football team in 1923, has been appointed coach of the Rutgers freshman football eleven. This gives the Rutgers' coaching staff two former West Point stars. Mulligan succeeds Don Storck, his teammate for four years on the army squad, who will be chief assistant to Head Coach Rockefeller next fall.

Another boost for the managerial ability of Donie Bush, leader of the White Sox, is the fine play of Bill Cissell, Sox shortstop, who is playing second base under the Bush regime. Cissell gives Bush credit. In 1928 Cissell was a widely heralded star of the Coast league, playing with Portland. Comiskey is said to have paid $123,000 for his release, $75,000 in cash and $48,000 in players. "Bush has helped me immensely," says Cissell. "He has shown me several things that have been helpful to me, and I am playing with greater confidence than ever before. Bush is the greatest manager I've played under."

George Duncan, a gentleman who knows golf if anyone ever did, picks Hoylake as the hardest course in Great Britain. It is the No. 1 course on his list.

There is no watering system at Hoylake (watering systems being strange to nearly all British courses) and Hoylake often dries out. When the course is dry it is like cement. The greens turn light brown in color and become smooth as glass. A pitch shot is impossible; the player must run up the ball.

"Like the weather so Hoylake," they say over there and the American players who have tried Hoylake agree.

Friendly Feeling for Birds That Kill Snakes

All over South Africa the secretary bird is protected by law and custom. In the stomach of one secretary bird were found three snakes, each about a yard long, eleven lizards, and a quantity of crickets and locusts. The bird has no hesitation in attacking a cobra or any poisonous snake. It comes up quietly, then, opening its wings to shield its body, flushes upon the snake and usually kills or disables it before it can strike. If the snake does manage to strike, the blow is caught upon one of the wings, then the bird's beak and feet finish the business. Before eating its prey, the bird plucks out the feather which was struck.

In South America, the carlama, a prettily crested bird, much smaller than the secretary, kills snakes. Australia's snake killer is the laughing jill, of which there are several kinds. The bird is a saucy creature and a bit of a thief. But since it kills and eats snakes it is protected and encouraged.

Texan Was Figuring on Journey Across Ocean

Battery C, One Hundred Twenty-ninth artillery, was ready to leave Camp Mills for the long trip across. We were to be taken from camp to the transport on a flat-bottom ferry boat and we were crowded on with full packs and just enough room to stand. After about an hour of the two-hour ride had passed I felt some one punching me in the back. Turning around, I saw a long, lunk Texas recruit behind me.

"What do you want?" I asked him. "Say, how long did you say it would take us to go across?" he asked me.

"Oh, about ten days or two weeks," I told him. He just blinked his eyes a few times and shifted his full pack a little before saying, "Oh, boy! This is sure going to be a h— of a three-month trip."—L. H. Cunningham, in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

OLD DOCTOR'S IDEA IS BIG HELP TO ELDERLY PEOPLE

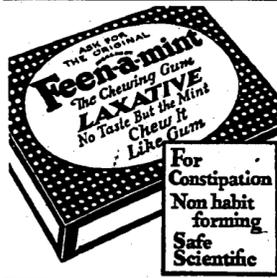

In 1885, old Dr. Caldwell made a discovery for which elderly people the world over praise him today! Years of practice convinced him that many people were endangering their health by a careless choice of laxatives. So he began a search for a harmless prescription which would be thoroughly effective, yet would neither gripe nor form any habit. At last he found it. Over and over he wrote it, when he found people bilious, headachy, out of sorts, weak or feverish; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. It relieved the most obstinate cases, and yet was gentle with women, children and elderly people.

Today the same famous, effective prescription, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the world's most popular laxative. It may be obtained from any drugstore.

Ladybirds to Aid Planters

Love at Asher's

By JANE OSBORN

IT WAS a whim of old John Asher, the founder and director of the large group of industries known to those who worked therein simply as Asher's.

"I don't think I'd ever have a girl in the office," he told Jane Kirk the day he considered her as a possible stenographer.

Jane Kirk flushed with something very near to rage.

That, by way of preliminary, it explains the dogged determination that possessed Jane Kirk never to become personally interested in or acquainted with any of the men she associated with at the office.

Jane Kirk took dictation for three or four of the executives of the concern, among them Walter Lewis.

But because of what old John Asher had said, Jane never did try to make Walter Lewis smile.

Weeks passed, and inevitable hours that must be spent between Jane Kirk and Walter Lewis.

Then from the letters dictated to her she learned that John Asher was opening a new plant in Bradtown.

But it seemed to Jane as if it would be easier to work there than here where she had those endless hours with Walter Lewis.

Self-Control Prominent Attribute of Socrates

Socrates was a graduate of the school of hard knocks who learned to talk by talking and to preach what he had himself practiced.

His two main tenets were self-control and self-knowledge.

Good food he enjoyed, but he could endure the poor cooking of his wife.

If the Greeks had smoked tobacco he would not have belonged to the Anti-Nicotine league.

Willy—the Clerk

By RUBY DOUGLAS

LEILA MADDOX went to the telephone table that stood under the stairway in the rear hall of the old Maddox homestead.

To the average young woman of twenty-eight, this would have meant nothing.

After she had called the number she wanted, trembling, for the voice to answer.

"Hello," came in mellow tone across the wire.

"Good morning," said Leila, "who is this, please?"

And always the same answer would come: "It's Willy—the clerk."

Then Leila would proceed, asking in detail about each item.

Lella's mother had been an invalid for years and the entire responsibility of the household had fallen on the girl's shoulders.

"My dear," he began, "I find that your mother will need a stimulant today in the shape of this prescription."

"But—are you going back to the village, doctor, or are you on your country rounds?" she asked.

One morning the old village doctor came downstairs a little more briskly than usual.

"Oh, yes, of course. I'll call them right away," said Leila.

The doctor said good-by and left Leila at the telephone.

She found that the delivery boy had left for the Bradley road section but Willy—the clerk—assured her.

"Miss Maddox?" she asked.

"This is the prescription from White. The chemist asked me to explain to you that you must be careful to keep this out of reach."

"Won't you come in a minute?" asked Leila.

Leila suddenly remembering that this man had made the trip of four miles for her during busy hours.

"I was only too glad to be of service. I—"

"He hesitated for an instant and then went on.

"I have rather wanted to see Miss Maddox for a couple of years.

"You've been with Warner & Co. a long time," she said.

"So long," he laughed, "that I am now—Warner & Co."

"Leila was taken completely, aback."

"Then—"

"He cut her short. "Yes—I know what you would say. But when I started in at the grocery I was 'Willy—the clerk' and it became such a habit with me to answer to that name on the phone that I have continued it—"

"with certain customers, just for old times' sake."

"And you are—"

"William Warner," he said, simply. "I hope that it won't make any difference?"

"There was deep concern in his tone and in his eyes."

"Oh—no," Leila hastened to assure him.

"I hope your mother will be better," he said as he left.

Leila thanked him.

But it was not many months before it was necessary for her mother to know all.

Leila and "Willy—the clerk" were engaged to be married.

"But, remember," Leila explained to her lover one night when he had come out to sit with her and play nurse.

"It was only the voice of 'Willy' I fell in love with."

First Washing Machine Got Inventor "In Bad"

Therill E. Raisin of Glory, Maryland, who is credited by Country Home with being the first man to experiment with a washing machine.

The would-be inventor, says the article, had such an aversion to work that he hated to see others toiling.

Mr. Raisin took a discarded butter churn, filled it with water, soap and several pairs of overalls.

The idea was superb, the execution all wrong.

The overalls and churn were wreckage in no time at all and there was such a furore about it that Therill moved out.

"Go ahead and rub your hands off on your darning washboard," he said.

"I ain't saying you can't get clothes clean on a washboard, but one of these days you're going to have washing machines and then you'll think of me."

Little Mary Knew All About Social Workers

Karl de Schweinitz, general secretary of the Family Society.

It was the first automobile ride for both the children—and Sammy could not restrain himself.

Everything that passed, including street cars, people and even vacant lots.

The social worker repeatedly told him to sit down—but he was too interested in the passing scenery.

Finally, in desperation, she said: "Sammy, if you don't sit down I'll never take you for another ride in my car."

To which Sammy rather impishly replied: "Do all your children mind you perfectly, Miss X—?"

But little Mary knew better than her older brother and she scornfully corrected him.

"Don't you know, Sammy, that Miss X— doesn't have any children—she only has an office!"

Inventor of Piano

Bartolommeo Cristofori was an Italian harpsichord maker and the inventor of the hammer action used in the modern pianoforte.

No great amount is known of his career.

He was born in Padua about 1651, and early served an apprenticeship as an instrument maker.

After following that work for some years in Padua he began to be known elsewhere.

About 1687 Prince Ferdinand, son of the Grand Duke Cosimo III, persuaded him to remove to Florence.

It was during the Florentine period that he made his first pianos.

Descriptions and engravings of the time show that the invention is correctly ascribed to him.

A grand pianoforte by Cristofori is said still to be preserved in Florence.

Early Saxon Cemetery

The discovery of more than forty skeletons on the "Hog's Back," near Gullford, England.

There was once a large Saxon settlement there.

It was thought, when first the skeletons were unearthed, that they were the remains of malefactors hanged on the gibbet.

But further excavating resulted in finds of great interest, including a perfectly preserved drinking vessel and a spearhead.

From these British museum authorities are able to place the date of burial somewhere between 600 and 650 A. D.

Among the skeletons are some of very large men, several measuring over six feet.

My Lady Nicotine

My Lady Nicotine was named after a gentleman—Jean Nicot of Nimes.

He served as French ambassador at Lisbon under Francis II.

While there fell in with a Flemish merchant who gave him some seeds of the tobacco plant.

Portuguese adventurers had brought the seeds from South America.

Nicot carried them back to France in 1559, and his countrymen, after experiencing the pleasures of indulgence in the crushed leaves of the plants.

Hence to this day, botanically, it is Nicotiana, and its active principle is known as Nicotine.
