Antrim Voters Should Realize the Importance of June 20 Election

Never in the history of our State has a condition existed as at the present time, in the matter of the "wet" and "dry" issue. The matter has always been prominent, in one way or another, and under the various forms of control or otherwise in the last half century, varied experiences have been forced upon our people. The most of those who have gone through trying experiences along this line don't care to have them repeated, and those who do not remember the attendant evils or were of a younger generation, should examine records, consider the effects to society in all the different ways, and learn if possible the extent to which the excessive use of such a stimulant goes. Voting "wet" or "dry" by the voters of Antrim, on June 20, places our town on record in this matter. May the result be such as shall keep our town in the place where she has been proud to stand.

Herewith are given a few facts that may interest our readers and may prove beneficial to the voters:

List of New Hampshire Delegates For and Against Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment

FOR REPEAL

Harvey C. Taylor, Portsmouth
 Ashton Rollins, Dover
 Virgil C. White, Ossipee
 Dr. Maurice E. Wiley, Laconia
 Robert C. Murchie, Concord
 John L. Sullivan, Manchester
 Mrs. Abbie L. Wilder, Rindge
 Robert E. Gould, Newport
 James P. Richardson, Hanover
 Norma T. Ordway, Berlin

AGAINST REPEAL

Charles H. Brackett, Greenland
 Burt R. Cooper, Rochester

 John A. Hammond, Gilford
 Dr. James S. Shaw, Franklin
 Mrs. Gertrude W. Osborne, Weare
 John R. Goodnow, Keene
 Alfred T. Pierce, Claremont
 Charles B. Ross, Lebanon
 Elbridge W. Snow, Whitefield

There are ten of each, for and against, to be voted for, in columns by themselves. This is not a political matter in any sense of the word,—it is one, however, that means much to every one of us in very many ways, and a careful and thoughtful marking of the ballot on June 20 should result.

As we understand it, the ballot to be used on June 20 will be made up in columns much as in other elections. The first column will contain the ten "for repeal" names, and the second column will contain the "against repeal" names; still another column at the right will be blank, for writing in names. Over the top of the two columns of names there will be an opportunity to vote for the entire list in each column. All who want to vote "dry" will be careful in marking his or her ballot, paying strict attention to such instructions as may be given. It is hoped that there will be a large vote on this occasion; it is a question of sufficient importance to interest every voter in town, for directly or indirectly everybody will be affected by the result.

In this connection, it will not be out of place to state that on Friday evening of this week, at 7.30 o'clock, at the Baptist vestry, there will be a meeting of interested "drys" of both sexes, to perfect an organization to carry forward the work of this campaign. A large attendance is urgently requested.

WREATHS of MEMORY

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

MEMORIAL DAY is the day when America pays tribute to her warrior dead by decorating their graves with flowers, thus giving to that date the name of Memorial day or Decoration day. Originally established as a day for honoring the memory of those who lost their lives in the great conflict which raged from 1861 to 1865, it is now a day for remembering all who gave their lives for their country, and the Indian wars, the Spanish-American war and the World War have given a deeper significance to Memorial day, for thousands of American families.

Because there are still thousands of survivors of these wars to help keep green the memories and the graves of their comrades in arms, we have become accustomed to thinking of Memorial day as a day set aside for honoring only the warrior dead of these conflicts. Time has somewhat dimmed the memory of the heroic dead of the Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican war and the earlier Indian wars and the graves of thousands of them are unmarked and forgotten. So we cannot decorate their graves with flowers, even if we would honor them as we honor the heroic dead of later wars. But we can pay our tribute to them in the form of wreaths of memory. In recalling, if only for this day, what they did for our country and offering up to them our measure of deepest gratitude for the lives which they so freely gave in its defense.

Lay one of these wreaths of memory upon the grave of Capt. James Lawrence! For it was just 120 years ago that this young naval officer, dropping mortally wounded to the bloody decks of the ill-starred U. S. S. Chesapeake, uttered the words which were to become a watchword of the United States navy and one of the most famous phrases in American history—"Don't give up the ship!"

Lawrence was born in Burlington, N. J., in 1781. Destined by his family to become a lawyer, at the early age of twelve he developed a passionate desire to enter the newly created United States navy. But in obedience to the desires of his family he applied himself to the study of law until in 1798 when at length they released him from his legal studies and secured a midshipman's warrant in the navy for him.

His first service was on the frigate Ganges during the troubles with France and he had a part in the capture of several French privateersmen. But Lawrence's first taste of real fighting came during the war with the Barbary pirates from 1803 to 1805 in which he more than once distinguished himself as a lieutenant under Isaac Hull, Stephen Decatur and John Rodgers.

In 1808 he was made first lieutenant of the Constitution and his services on the famous Old Ironsides marked the last subordinate place he held. The next year he was placed in command of the Vixen which he exchanged for the Hornet, a fast and beautiful little cruiser, carrying 18 guns, and he was in command of her when the long-expected declaration of war with England came in 1812.

In February, 1813, Lawrence, with the Hornet, fought an engagement with the British ship Peacock which resulted in a complete victory for the young American commander and won for him not only the freedom of the city of New York, a handsome piece of plate and a gold medal from that municipality but also the thanks of congress. But this was the last glimpse of brightness in Lawrence's short life. He had hoped to be placed in command of the Constitution but his hopes were dashed when he was ordered to take command of the Chesapeake, then being fitted out for service at Boston.

The Chesapeake was the "hoodoo ship" of the United States navy at that time. From the very first she had been an unpopular ship, for she was thought to be weak for her size and she was a very ordinary sailer. On June 22, 1813, while under the command of Commodore James Barron, the Chesapeake was an actor in a mortifying event which was to have far-reaching results. On that date she was stopped by the

1. Albert Halstead, American consul general at Plymouth, England, opening the "door of unity" leading to the Pryston house of St. Andrews church. The service was unique in the history of the church because of its international character. Coincident with the opening of the door, the unveiling of the memorial to two American naval officers who were buried on the spot in 1813 took place.
2. Capt. James Lawrence, the heroic young American naval commander who lost his life in the battle between the Chesapeake and the Shannon during the War of 1812.
3. England's peace link with America. The picture shows Vice Admiral Burrage of the U. S. S. Detroit talking with the mayor priest of the city of Plymouth, England, on the occasion of the unveiling of a memorial tablet to American prisoners of war who died in the Dartmoor prison there during the War of 1812. The tablet was unveiled in 1928 by Mrs. Samuel Williams Earle, a descendant of Roger Williams and an official of the United States Daughters of the War of 1812.
4. The famous battle flag with its motto of "Don't Give Up the Ship" flown by Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry in his victory over the British at the Battle of Lake Erie. The flag is preserved at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

British ship Leopard on the excuse that three members of her crew were deserters from the British frigate Melampus.

There had been great negligence in preparing the Chesapeake for sea and she was in no condition to resist the demands of the commander of the Leopard. So when Commodore Barron cleared the ship for action, the Chesapeake fell an easy victim to the broadsides of the Leopard and was forced to strike her flag after suffering a loss of 18 wounded and three killed. Then the Leopard sent a party aboard, seized the three alleged deserters and made off while the disgraced Chesapeake returned to Norfolk, Va.

Since this incident the Chesapeake had become more and more an object of dislike in the navy. The sailors hated her and would not enlist in her if they could help it. No officer would serve on her decks if he could avoid it, consequently she was officered by juniors who had to take her because they could do no better.

No wonder then that Lawrence was dismayed when he was assigned to the Chesapeake. He begged to remain with the Hornet but his request was denied. So in May, 1813, he took command.

Lawrence found the ship short of officers and those he had were very young. His first lieutenant, August Ludlow, was only twenty-one and had never before served as first lieutenant on a frigate. His other officers were midshipmen serving as lieutenants. His crew was largely made up of foreigners and one, a Portuguese boatswain's mate, was actively preaching dissent because the crew had not been paid the small amount of prize money due from the last cruise.

So it must have been with considerable foreboding that the young officer prepared to leave Boston late in May, 1813. Outside the harbor it was known that the British frigate Shannon, commanded by Capt. Philip Broke, one of the best officers in the British navy, was lying in wait for the Chesapeake. Broke was a chivalrous man and he had written Lawrence a letter proposing a meeting on equal terms in any latitude and longitude at any time he might choose during the next two months. Unfortunately this letter never reached Lawrence.

So on June 1 the Shannon stood in toward President's Roads, expecting an answer from Broke's challenge. Lawrence, however, took the Shannon's presence there as a challenge to an immediate fight and made sail to go out and meet her. Hoisting a flag bearing the inscription "Free trade and sailors' rights," Lawrence ordered the ship cleared for action and sailed out of the harbor. About 30 miles beyond Boston Light the two ships began maneuvering for position and at length being fairly alongside and not more than 50 yards apart, the Shannon fired her first broadside which was immediately answered by the Chesapeake.

The effect of these first broadsides at such close range was terrific. Three men, one after another, were shot down at the Chesapeake's wheel. Within six minutes her sails were so shot to pieces that she drifted into a position which allowed the Shannon to rake her repeatedly. In a short time Lawrence was shot in the leg but managed to stay on deck and continue in command. Then the sailing master, the first lieutenant, another lieutenant, the marine officer and the boatswain were all mortally wounded.

The Shannon had also been badly damaged but she closed in on the Chesapeake and Broke ordered the ships lashed together. It is said that this was done by the Shannon's boatswain who had his arm literally hacked off in doing it but he did not flinch from his task until it was done. As soon as the American commander saw that the ships were fast together he ordered his men to board the Shannon. But just at this moment Lawrence, conspicuous in his full-dress uniform, was shot through the body by one of the enemy and fell to the deck. As he was being carried below he uttered his immortal words, "Don't give up the ship!"

But his admonition was hopeless for the carnage on the Chesapeake's deck was frightful. Seeing that his enemy was virtually helpless, Broke gave the command to board and himself led the boarders. The cowardly Portuguese mate and some of the others made no attempt to resist but a few marines put up a desperate resistance, during which Broke was severely wounded, until they were cut down to a man. The officers of the gun deck tried to rally the men below, but failed and a moment later the Chesapeake's flag was hauled down by the British.

The battle had lasted only about fifteen minutes but seldom in the history of naval warfare had there been such a dreadful slaughter. The Chesapeake had lost ten officers killed and all the rest wounded and 136 men killed and wounded. The Shannon's loss was several officers killed, her commander badly wounded and 75 men killed and wounded.

The British flag was hoisted over the ill-fated American vessel and she was taken to Halifax. For four days Lawrence lingered on in great anguish but bearing his sufferings with the greatest heroism and never speaking except to make known his few wants. On the Shannon lay his chivalrous foe, raving with delirium from his wounds. At times he would ask anxiously for Lawrence, muttering, "He brought his ship into action in gallant style." When Lawrence finally died, it was thought best to keep that fact from Broke lest it add to his distress.

On Sunday, June 6, the conquering Shannon and the conquered Chesapeake entered the harbor of Halifax. On the quarterdeck of the Chesapeake lay the body of her young commander wrapped in her battle flag. His funeral was held on June 8 and the British naval and military authorities paid every respect to their gallant young foe.

In August Lawrence's body and that of his faithful lieutenant, Ludlow, were transferred to Salem, Mass., where they were buried temporarily until they could be transferred to New York. Eventually they were buried in historic old Trinity churchyard in New York city and there they lie to this day.

It is a far cry from the surging crowds of Wall street which pass the tomb of James Lawrence in Trinity churchyard every day to the quiet little village of Wickham in the Meon valley, South Hampshire, England. But there is a link between the two just as recent years have seen many links in the chain of Anglo-American friendship which have buried forever the animosities of a century and a quarter ago. That link is an old mill made from the timbers of the ill-fated American frigate Chesapeake which was brought from Halifax to Portsmouth as a prize. So a mill which for more than a hundred years has been engaged in the peaceful business of providing bread for a quiet English countryside is a memorial to one of the most famous ship duels in history and it is also a memorial to a gallant young American warrior, Capt. James Lawrence.

Our Government — How It Operates

By William Bruckart

PASSING A BILL

IT IS an obvious fact that the odds, and they are heavy odds, are always against the passage of the average piece of legislation introduced in the house or senate. The reason is that there are actually thousands of them. In the ordinary session of congress there will be from 3,000 to 5,000 bills offered in the senate, and three or four times that number presented in the house. The number of bills that eventually become law is quite small.

So the fact that a bill receives approval of the committee to which it was referred and that it has been given a place on the calendar of business, assures nothing at all insofar as the average legislative proposal is concerned. There always are certain types of bills that will receive attention on the floor of the house and senate, but they are negligible in number.

To be sure, then, that the bill we will discuss can have final action and will not find its way into a pigeon-hole of a committee room or be allowed to die on the calendar of business with no record of having lived at all, let us take the case of the bill creating the Reconstruction Finance corporation, passed by the last congress. Legislation of that type was recommended by the President. No sooner had congress convened than bills of identical language were introduced in both the house and the senate. This was done to enable rapid consideration, since it was recognized that the legislation was urgently necessary.

It received consideration in the house after this manner: following the committee report, two whole days were given over to a general discussion of the legislation. Representatives were allowed considerable time each in which to talk about it—and other things that came into their minds. At the end of that "general debate," the reading of the bill began.

Although the visitor in the gallery could hardly make out what was going on, the reading clerk was reading every line of the bill that was to set up a gigantic, federal-owned corporation which could make loans to help out banks, railroads, insurance companies, etc., who were sound but whose assets were tied up as a result of the depression. Following that reading the bill was "open to amendment," and it was then that the house membership individually began to exert the power that reposes in them. Eventually, amendments were accepted or rejected until a majority of the members were satisfied with the bill, or at least enough of them were satisfied with it to constitute a controlling group. A roll call was had and the bill was passed.

Attendants of the house scurried around and made a "true copy" of the bill, and one of them carried it over to the north end of the Capitol where the senate sits. This had to be done while the senate was in session.

Through the same routine of committee procedure in the senate, it went. It was reported with a recommendation that it be passed but "with amendments." For the senate committee had other ideas. The senate voted to give the bill its immediate attention, and debate began, a general talkfest. More amendments were proposed and some of them were accepted by the senate, and in the end the bill as it came from the house was hard to recognize in the language which the senate passed as the shape in which it wanted the law to be.

A senate messenger then had the duty of advising the house that the "Reconstruction bill," as it had come to be known, had been passed by the senate but that it had been amended. Of course, the concurrence of the house was requested but everybody knew that the house would not concur just that way. Instead, the house requested "a conference" with the senate, and the senate agreed. Each house then named five of its members—they always are from the committee that handled the bill—and in due time these ten individuals tried to reach an accord on the terms of the legislation in a meeting among themselves.

This is where the greatest game of horse trading in the world has its beginning. Each house wanted the bill the way it was passed, but each house obviously could not have it that way. So these ten conferees began swapping. The senate group says, for example, we will give up this amendment if the house will give up that proposition, and they work along, always behind closed doors for that is the only way possible for them to reach an agreement. The whole affair is not unlike the story of the two boys in the cemetery: "You take this one and I'll take that one." Except that the frightened colored man, who thought the souls of the departed were being divided, is absent from the proceedings.

Ordinarily, these groups of conferees settle things satisfactory to the house and senate which in turn agree to the conference report and the bill goes to the President for his signature. They did agree in the case mentioned, but sometimes they don't and they are ordered back into conference again and again until all of the differences have been reconciled.

Howe About:

Watching Out The Alarm Bell The Youth Movement

By ED HOWE

LOVE of wives for husbands is oftentimes said to be a very unstable thing, but Slierius expresses the belief in his memoirs that it is more stable than the love grown children show parents.

Slierius mentions with approval and thankfulness that his third wife once said to him that the blunt regularity with which he was called on daily for money with which to pay household expenses, and the hard way in which he was compelled to earn all his money, excited her pity, and caused her to resolve to be more frugal in her expenses.

Slierius adds a note (page 82, 2nd vol.) that none of his grown children ever said an equally agreeable thing to him.

Another Great Man has gone to the dogs. The trouble seems to be he didn't watch out on his way up.

In climbing, one must be constantly careful: see to it that every round above is as sound as those below which carried him safely.

And such care is always easier than a fall.

I do not believe Samuel Insull was a rogue, but became careless as he climbed, and developed dangerous conceit.

I cannot understand how any man, intelligent enough to fully realize what a man necessarily is, can become conceited.

In youth and age only natural things have impressed me.

And natural things have impressed me only because of the power behind them to force my acceptance.

As a young man I was often ashamed because of youthful incompetence and judgment; because those older daily demonstrated more capability as a result of longer experience. In learning my trade I never doubted the foreman's greater ability, and accepted his instructions as I accepted the suggestions of the older men in the same shop.

I have never been able to understand the Confidence of Youth of which so much is heard.

The other day I met an old fellow who had long lived luxuriously. He seemed "about all in," as the saying is, and told me of his ills. I said the only remedy I had ever found was taking care of myself. His reply impressed me.

"Yes," he said, "I know about that, but I did not begin early enough."

I send out another general alarm to be lost in the magnificent errors of today. Most people live like greedy children until something serious happens.

One should begin taking care of himself before the first alarm, which comes long before forty or fifty. The alarm bell began ringing very early in my life; I believe it does in the lives of most men, and beg them to pay attention earlier.

We frequently hear exclamations as to the Most Amazing Thing in the World. I think it is the dullness, inefficiency, carelessness and dishonesty of adults who are permitted to run at large, bear children and vote, although they refuse to learn the simplest lessons we birch children for not practicing.

Men who are careless, not honest, and do not pay their debts, have bad judgment in other respects; it has been discovered that one-fourth of all automobile drivers having collisions are listed as dead beats in their communities.

As moving an incident in life as I have ever heard is this: A young girl of average good family in my town married at seventeen, and had five children in seven years. One day she disappeared and has never been heard from since, except a letter she wrote her mother from a distant town, which said she couldn't stand the burden of being married. She found no fault with her husband saying he was as great a martyr as she had been. "You may be sure," she added, "there is not another man in the case; the man-lack in my life has been completely satisfied."

One of my greatest humiliations is the manner in which politicians make a fool of me; my helplessness in protecting myself from the harm they constantly do me. I frequently work myself into a frenzy about it, and splutter to others who are also angry, and hurt, but we get no relief out of our exchange of indignation.

Some one excited so long ago by declaring we were not being treated right. . . . The people were never promised, by any real authority, anything they are not getting.

I lately tried to read a book about Abyssinia, the author having traveled extensively in that strange country. But he lacks judgment; he devotes most of his pages to "jokes." Mark Twain, best of our modern humorists, was frequently dreary while trying to be "funny." Books of humor are almost as rare now as books of poetry, so many serious things having developed requiring serious consideration.

Where Will You Stand June 20, Will You Vote For Wet or Dry?

Editor of the Reporter:

On June 20, the citizens of New Hampshire will be called to the polls to decide whether they will retain or reject the 18th amendment.

For the last few years the breweries, the distilleries, a group of wealthy men, who seek relief from taxation, wholesale and retail liquor dealers, and men who seek to buy liquor legally for beverage purposes, have been sowing propaganda up and down the land, and official records at Washington show that large amounts have been contributed to help get the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution.

Men and women who have openly and consistently worked for temperance have been organized in the churches, the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League, the Grange, the National Educational society and similar organizations, for the purpose of helping to prohibit the sale of liquor for beverage purposes.

Between these groups that I mention above is a very numerous class of citizens who are somewhat indifferent to this question; these people are many of them most excellent citizens,—they drink little, if any liquor. Many of them profess to be interested in temperance, but as long as their own interests are not affected by liquor they remain passive and uninterested; they are like the man who prayed "God bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife, us four and no more," but nevertheless, the fate of the 18th Amendment rests in their hands, and if you are in this class I wish to suggest that you do a little thinking before you vote.

If you really are against intemperance and drunkenness and you vote against the 18th Amendment, you are voting with the various kinds of liquor proponents that I mentioned at the beginning of this article, and by no sort of reasoning or logic can you evade the issue.

The breweries, distilleries, liquor dealers and liquor drinkers know what they want, they are not of the dumb or disinterested variety; they hate the 18th Amendment and have said it with money and effort.

Many of the indifferent class have hitherto hidden behind the fort of local opinion, but hard surfaced roads, automobiles and airplanes have burst the local opinion bubble, and henceforth there will be no such thing as a dry town, city or state, if the 18th Amendment is repealed. Do not expect to protect your son or your grandson through local opinion; you might just as well try to strain typhoid fever germs out of a bucket of putrid water, as to try and stem the tide of liquor that would flow over hard-surfaced roads in defiance of the wishes of any dry majority in any dry town.

To legalize distributing centers for liquor or to repeal any liquor law, would be like imitating the Irishman who was pulling a man up out of a well, and when he got his man halfway up he let go of the rope so he could spit on his hands. Spit on your hands Mr. Dry, but hang on to the good old 18th Amendment; it is better than substitute laws written by the foes of temperance.

Fred A. Dunlap.

The town of Lebanon, with a population of 7000 and 1200 on the relief list, has given out that those assisted by the town will give some kind of work in return and a refusal will bring them in Court and perhaps in confinement. Town authorities are opposed to having any interference whatsoever by State authorities.

An advertising boost for a certain auto shows a man at a filling station smoking a pipe right over an open gasoline tank! That sort of thing is better advertising for the undertakers than it is for the auto business.

Governor Winant has issued formal proclamation calling upon Selectmen of towns and board of mayor and aldermen of cities to hold an election on Tuesday, June 20, to select delegates to the convention to vote on the repeal of the 18th Amendment. There will be on the official ballot 10 "for repeal" and 10 "against repeal." The delegates will meet to cast the State's vote on Tuesday, July 11. Much interest is felt in the outcome of the June meeting as well as the one in July.

Weekly News Letter Concerning the Happenings in the Legislature

Over-running the five-day limit in the matter of returning an act which had passed the House and Senate, either with or without his signature, Governor Winant created considerable of a stir. The natural result was that a resolution was presented by Representative Arthur J. Pierce, of Bennington, calling upon the N. H. Supreme Court to rule if the bill had not automatically become a law by reason of the failure of the Governor to either sign or veto within five days. This was the age limit bill of the Commissary General, and was returned with a veto in a little more than six days after its arrival at the Governor's desk—almost 26 hours over-time. Did the leaders get busy? From all reports it would seem so. After all was said and done, the Pierce resolution was passed by a voice vote.

There may have been other feelings in the matter beside those expressed on the floor of the House. The decision of the Court will be awaited with interest.

The Governor and Council have authorized the beer control commission to employ an assistant treasurer, who will act as chief clerk, four office assistants and 10 agents.

New Hampshire has joined the states that have ratified the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution. By a vote of 14 to 10 the Senate concurred with the lower branch in the passage of the resolution.

Governor Winant on Thursday of last week signed the bill which will permit manufacturers of beer in New Hampshire to increase the alcoholic content of their beverages for export into "wet" states when and if the 18th amendment to the federal constitution is repealed.

The House bill which would have fixed the hours of labor on all State projects at a maximum of forty a week was defeated by the Senate.

Ninety-five New Hampshire communities observed Old Home Week in 1932, it is stated in the 34th annual report of the New Hampshire Old Home Week association, just issued. Not all the programs were elaborate and some of them were extremely simple, but nearly 100 cities, towns and villages recognized the New Hampshire festival.

 May 19, 1933.

Within the past two weeks, serious fires have occurred in our sister state, Maine. On May 7th, Ellsworth, a town of 4000 inhabitants, was visited by fire, sustaining a loss of over two millions of dollars. The entire business district was wiped out, one hundred and twenty-five families were rendered homeless, about eighty families losing both homes and household furnishings. The Red Cross locally and Nationally gave prompt emergency aid and while plans for rehabilitation were going on here, with the Red Cross feeding 300 individuals daily, there came on the Auburn disaster, one of the most terrible fires in the history of the state. Five hundred more families were thrown out of homes with an almost complete loss of household furniture and personal belongings. To-day in Maine, over 2000 person have only the shelter given by neighbors, friends and relief agencies. State and Red Cross officials have issued appeals for funds in Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire, in order to raise the money for relief of these disaster sufferers.

The local Red Cross Chapter will be glad to receive contributions, and same may be paid to any officer of the Chapter.

The Bennington Chapter also received the above communication, and its officers will be pleased to receive contributions.

Ever in the Style Picture Is Velvet

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WITH a growing appreciation of what the art of good dressing really means, women who "know" will consider none other than the hat, the gown, the accessories which "do something for you" more than serving merely as wearing apparel.

When it comes to a fabric which performs miracles in the way of doing something flattering for you, such as softening harsh lines, accentuating charms, while it minimizes defects until it takes years from one's appearance, it is generally conceded that velvet has no peer. Which readily explains why designers of this day and age are seeing to it that velvet be kept in the style picture, the whole year round.

Paris adores velvet as a summer item. In creating the newer costumes the best couturiers seldom lose an opportunity to complement sheer and summery frocks with the most ravishing and colorful little velvet jackets or gapes one may ever hope to see. If not a cunning wrap, then bows, circles and furbelows of velvet play an effective contrast to the dainty organzies, chiffons and such which fashions milady's wardrobe for the coming months.

The lovely models in the illustration convey some little idea of the perfectly charming things leading French designers are doing with velvet. The three wraps are Patou creations. The dotted frock is a Maggie Rouff model. Note the new short front of its skirt.

The material for this dress is a white crepon with blue dots. The decollete trim is of blue velvet, the same also used for the belt which does not show in the picture.

The cape dress, pictured above to the left in this group, is made of pearl blue broadcloth. The girde, bag and shoes, likewise the enormous bow, all in matching gentian blue place unmistakable emphasis on the velvet vogue as it is interpreted among haute monde fashions.

The youthful velvet evening jacket, shown below to the left, is in ruby red. It tops a mousseline frock which conveys the message of floral prints in gorgeous colorings. The intricate seaming of this charming velvet wrap, as well as the high ruff about the throat, are points of high style distinction.

The other velvet jacket, which is worn over a light blue evening dress, abounds in ingenious details which set it apart from the ordinary. A wrap of this type is a much-to-be-coveted possession. In whatsoever color one may choose, or in black, since it can be worn smartly in the afternoon as well as for formals.

A very pretty effect is being achieved in afternoon frocks of dainty crepe done in pastels such as pale green or light blue or some such, the idea being to trim with a velvet in darker shade.

SYNOPSIS

On her eighteenth birthday, Barbara, motherless daughter of Christopher Thorne, artist, awakes with anticipation of the joys of the day. She receives a birthday ring from Bruce MacLain, young artist friend of the family, but more than friend to Barbara. Barbara and Bruce go picnicking on the sands at Provincetown. He tells her a story of a gypsy boy, a little gypsy girl whom he loves, and the song of a silver flute. She knows it is her own love tale. Her happiness turns to sorrow when she returns home to learn her father has been drowned. Barbara fears she and her brothers and sister will be separated. Relatives arrive and take charge of things. Having been almost a mother to the others, Barbara cannot think of Kit's sensitive nature bruised in Uncle Herbert's household by his rough-and-ready cousins, and Gay spoiled by her association with silly Aunt Lola. Bruce urges immediate marriage, but that would mean separation. Desperate, the four children plot to run away to Barbara's godfather, "Uncle Stephen" Drake, whom they have never seen.

"Four of us are quite a lot." Kit's brow wore an anxious frown. "Do you suppose he'll have enough beds?"

"Uncle Stephen is rich," Gay said with easy assurance. "He sends such lovely presents."

"I wouldn't expect him to keep us always," Barbara explained. "Four is quite a lot. But he's a lawyer and he can tell us what to do. I know he will help us. He said he would."

Kit was reassured. The frown smoothed itself out and his face slowly brightened. Barbara felt more confident. She saw "Uncle Stephen," a nice old man, telling them what to do. They needed a champion. Father would have approved. It seemed a sensible idea.

"Where does 'Uncle Stephen' live?" Gay asked, hoping it would be some enchanting far off place.

"Near Philadelphia,"

"That isn't so far," Gay felt disappointed. Florida was lovely. She had been there with Aunt Lola before. But it was fun to be running away. . . .

"It's not right in the city," Kit said. "Don't you remember? We looked it up on a map. It's far enough. Have we any money? How will we get there, Babs?"

"Hitch-hike," Jamie said promptly. "I'll bet we could, as easy as anything." His face was bright and excited.

"Or we could dress up like gypsies," Gay, always dramatic, suggested. "And dance and play on tambourines and people would give us money."

Gypsies! Barbara felt a pain in her heart. . . . "Once upon a time there was a gypsy boy who loved very dearly a little gypsy girl. . . . But she couldn't think about Bruce. She kept seeing Kit's face streaked with tears and Jamie looking at "Chips" and Gay growing up into a silly little peacock like Aunt Lola's horrid Gwn. She had to take care of the children. . . .

"I have some money," she said, swallowing hard to banish the lump in her throat. She showed it to them, a very slim roll of bills, provided by Great-aunt Josephine's check.

It looked like a fortune. The children's eyes widened. They felt like millionaires.

"When are we going?" Gay asked, her voice fluting high with excitement.

Idently, her cheek against Martha's. "You won't do any such thing." Martha surrendered herself unconditionally to the charms of the four Thorne. "There's no fool like an old fool. I won't do any such thing." They told her about the problem of getting away in the morning. Martha considered, her forehead smocked in a frown.

"Jake Preble drives his truck to New Bedford Thursday mornings," Martha said after an interval of thought. "Early, though. He leaves around five o'clock."

"Tomorrow was Thursday morning. It seemed an act of providence.

"We'll leave a note," Barbara said. "We'll tell them we've gone to Uncle Stephen. They don't know where he lives. That will give us time. But Martha," she added, a shadow slipping across her vivid face, "I'm afraid it won't be pleasant for you. They'll make a dreadful scene. They'll probably explode."

"Don't mind about that." The light of battle flamed in Martha's eyes. "I'll speak my mind and pin on my hat and leave."

They fell upon her with strangling hugs.

"You're an angel, Marthy-Ann," Barbara whispered gratefully, her arm around Martha's neck.

"I'm an idiot!" Martha pushed the children away. Her voice sounded scolding and cross. "I'll probably live to regret it. But you have a way about you. There's no fool like an old fool! I'm going to see Jake Preble."

Barbara lay, wide awake, in the low carved bed that Father had made. Gay, curled beside her, was fast asleep, worn out by excitement and plans. The alarm clock was set for four. Martha had "managed" Jake Preble. They were to leave at five o'clock in the morning.

Everything was arranged. The children, quaking for fear they would be discovered, had hidden their luggage in the studio. Sitting together on the sofa in the attic, a quilt around their shoulders, Kit's lantern lighted beside them, he and Barbara had marked the way they would go. By seven o'clock tomorrow night they would be at Uncle Stephen's.

For the children's sake, Barbara had suppressed her uncertainties and doubts. Lying awake in the low carved bed, with the rain falling outside and the wind in the willows singing a mournful song, the doubts and uncertainties could no longer be suppressed.

It was impolite to be running away. The relations meant to be kind, though they had never approved of Mother marrying Father and having four children and living "like a gypsy." It was appallingly impolite to leave them and run away.

The money troubled her, too. Was it stealing to use Aunt Josephine's check for the purpose of running away? Aunt Josephine would say that it was. "What can you expect?" she would say. "They've been brought up heathen!" She wouldn't blame them so much. She would blame Father's happy-go-lucky way of letting them do as they pleased. It seemed a treachery to Father. But, deep in her heart, she knew that Father would approve. He had promised that they should never be "parceled out" again.

What would Uncle Stephen think? His letter had been so friendly. . . . "If a crusty old bachelor can be of assistance, please let him know at once." He had called her his "little fillette." It was a caressing, intimate word. A "crusty old bachelor" wouldn't have thought of such lovely things to write. Perhaps he was lonely and wanted some children. Surely he would appreciate the charms of Kit and Jamie and Gay.

And Bruce? What would he think? It would be lovely to be with Bruce. She loved him so much, his golden brown hair, his teasing ways, his eyes that were as deeply blue as the sky on a frosty night. . . .

Thinking of Bruce, she felt warm and drowsy and not afraid any more. Darling Bruce! She told herself a story. . . . "Once upon a time there was a gypsy boy. . . . The sound of the rain was pleasant now. Doubts and uncertainties vanished. She nestled close against Gay. . . . "The flute knew only one song—I love you, pretty gypsy girl with the roses in your hair. . . ."

She could hear the song of the silver flute if she kept very breathless and still, showers of sprinkling silver notes, thin and high and sweet.

Barbara's lashes drooped. She sighed and was fast asleep.

CHAPTER V

Stephen Drake, in an evening shirt and well-pressed trousers braced with black and white suspenders, stood before a mirror trying with fumbling fingers a narrow black silk tie. The mirror was set in a wardrobe carved with oak leaves and acorns and opulent bunches of grapes. All of the furniture in the large high-ceilinged room was of walnut and similarly carved. It was a man's room, unmistakably, the room of a man of elderly habits and a studious turn of mind. Books, pushed together by bronze elephants, stood on the bedside table. Books, handsomely bound, filled the shelves between the windows.

There was but one unusual note in the subdued symphony of the room. Above the fireplace hung a painting all color and sunlight, red rocks, blue sea, distant rust-colored sails, a girl, slim and graceful, with the wind blowing her skirt against her bare brown legs. The painting made you wonder about the tall erect man, gray at the temples, tying a neat silk tie into a neat silk bow.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

By GLORIA SWANSON

I WAS never "screen-struck." I did not think of the movies as a road to fame and fortune. And I spent no weary weeks at the studio gates waiting for "my chance."

An impulse, or perhaps it may better be called a "hunch," was responsible for my introduction into motion pictures.

My old interest in acting had been confined to school plays. The first appearance I ever made was as a child of seven, when I had a singing role in a benefit performance at Key West, Fla., where my father, an army officer, was stationed. I do not remember whether the benefit was a brilliant success. Certainly, my part in it could not have been exceptional.

On another occasion, in Porto Rico, I was the "leading lady" of an operetta given by my school. I had been told, since that my "natural talent" was the subject of numerous comments, but I paid little attention to the remarks of my elders. I only knew that I enjoyed doing such things.

Later, I returned to Chicago to finish my schooling in the city of my birth. One day my aunt suggested a visit to the old Essanay studios. Up to this time I had taken no particular interest in motion pictures, but I welcomed the opportunity to visit the studio in order to satisfy my natural curiosity. I was then fifteen years old.

Once past the gate of the studio I was fascinated. It was all so new to me, so different. And then came the "hunch." Almost without realizing what I was saying, I expressed a desire to appear before the cameras. A director or some one who stood nearby heard me; my first appearance was not as an extra, but as a "bit" player. After that I was given further "bits."

As time went on, I became more fascinated and made the most of every opportunity to learn all there was to learn. In three months I was made a stock player, which meant that I was guaranteed four days' pay each week, at $3.25 a day, whether I worked or not. Consequently, I was given more interesting parts to play. I was cast for a "bit" in Charlie Chaplin's first Essanay picture, "His New Job," but after about a dozen rehearsals of a single scene Charlie "fired" me. He was quite right. I was terrible. Later, I appeared in George Ade's "Elvira Farina and Meal Ticket."

My "breaking into" the movies had been quite simple, but I quickly discovered that the business of remaining in the ranks, while hundreds clamored for admittance, called for plenty of hard work. And I have worked very hard ever since that time.

On leaving Essanay, I decided to journey to California. After two weeks in Los Angeles I went to Mack Sennett at the Keystone studio and was signed for a picture following a brief rehearsal. Then I made one picture at Universal; Mack Sennett offered me a contract and I "held out" for $75 a week, with an increase of $5 or $10 every three months or so. He agreed to pay the amount and the contract was signed. I appeared in a number of Sennett comedies, being co-starred with Bobby Vernon, but during my work there, for a year and a half, I never was cast in a "bathing beauty" picture. The general belief that I once was a Sennett bathing girl is erroneous. I left the Sennett lot for a starring contract with the Triangle company, which enabled me to make progress in more serious roles. Next I appeared under Cecil B. DeMille's direction and then came the lengthy starring contract with Famous Players.

In 1926 I became an owner-member of United Artists, and an independent producer. "Sadie Thompson" in the silent screen version of "Rain," was one of the most popular of the plays made under this arrangement. More recently I have appeared in several pictures made in England.

Marion's Freckles

One of the few people in the world who looks beautiful with freckles is Marion Davies. "Zander," featured her freckles and it is remembered as an outstanding characterization. "Peg o' My Heart" will be minus curls, Marion will have the same tight pigtail and freckles that were so popular in "Zander."

Funny thing that Marion's freckles do not show in real life but the camera seems to bring them out when she doesn't use makeup.

"WASH DAY" DREAD DONE AWAY WITH

Modern Appliances Almost Make Work a Pleasure.

It is no longer necessary to scrub and boil in order to have the snowy white clothes we want. Put the white clothes to soak the night before, or early in the morning, in lukewarm suds, first removing any special stains, as fruit, coffee, etc. It is easy to make suds with granulated soap. Just shake the tiny granules into a tub of warm water and swirl for a second with the hand. Rich, creamy suds!

The next morning make hot suds with the granulated soap in the tub or washer, put in the clothes, and work them around thoroughly in the suds. Be sure to use enough soap to have lasting suds. If the clothes are very much soiled use fresh suds—clean suds are needed to remove dirt. Then wring and dry in the sun if possible.

Hanging garments of a kind together saves time. An electric washer equipped with a wringer or dryer is very helpful, but even when washing by hand, little rubbing is needed if granulated soap is used.

To be safe, always test a new colored garment before washing it with other things. This is easy—just squeeze a sample or inconspicuous portion in clear, lukewarm water for five minutes or so.

Colored fabrics which are even slightly unfast should be washed and dried quickly.

Make rich, lukewarm or cool suds with the granulated soap in the tub or washer. Put in the garments and wash quickly.

Thoroughly rinse in clear lukewarm or cool water. Some cottons, as curtains, aprons, etc., is desirable to starch lightly. Have the starch lukewarm. Then squeeze out the moisture.

If the color is unfast, it is helpful to roll article in a dry turkish towel to absorb excess moisture, if size permits.

Your colored things should be dried indoors, or in the shade, as the sun tends to fade colors. Iron with a warm iron—too hot an iron often fades colors.

How to get to SLEEP

When you can't sleep, it's because your nerves won't let you. Don't waste time "counting sheep." Don't lose half your needed rest in reading. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin, drink a glass of water—and go to sleep.

This simple remedy is all that's needed to insure a night's rest. It's all you need to relieve a headache during the day—or to dispose of other pains. Get the genuine tablets of Bayer manufacture and you will get immediate relief.

Bayer Aspirin dissolves always immediately—gets to work without delay. This desirable speed is not dangerous; it does not depress the heart. Just be sure you get the genuine tablets stamped thus:

SMARTLY TAILORED

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The casual, tailored suit, shown to the right, with its swagger topcoat, checked shoes and cavalier bag, is characteristic of the latest mode for about town and travel wear. The hit is of straw with an organdie bow and band, and the blouse is of striped shifting silk. Remove the topcoat of this handsomely tailored three-piece and there is disclosed a clever jacket and skirt suit. The suit, above to the left, of men's cloth is in correct tailored form from shoe to hat. Note the series of bracelets and the tailored bag. The little sailor has one of the very new high-back crowns.

Gun Metal Leather Used in This Season's Shoes

Gun metal leather is one of the season's contributions to new and different footwear—and shoes of it solve the problem of one pair for gray, blue and black outfits.

Because of the nature of gun metal shoes styled in it are generally without much decoration. In some models it is combined with suedes.

SPRING LINGERIE IS MOST ALLURING

It is to sigh with rapture, as one catches a glimpse of the latest delectable trifles which Paris has designed in the way of spring and summer lingerie. No signs of hard times here. Exquisite filmy fabrics, cobwebby laces, plenty of handwork seem to be the rule for the latest underthings.

Gowns are more elaborate than ever, borrowing their design from formal evening fashions. One adorable night-dress of palest pink chiffon is pleated from yoke to hem in clusters, emphasizing long slender lines, with fullness released below the knees.

There's a deep yoke of the finest of silk lace which is tinted the same delicate pink as the gown. Double puff sleeves of the lace are held with narrow bands of the chiffon, and a narrow sash belt ties at the back.

The separate jacket scheme turns the nightdress into a tea gown, and is proving very popular.

Sleeve Lengths Vary in New Jackets for Spring

The box type jacket shows interesting new shoulder treatments, such as Lanvin's sleeves with padded or stuffed pleats from shoulder to elbow, and Schiaparelli's cartridge pleats on shoulders or sleeve top.

Other jacket or coat sleeves appear in every length, elbow, three-quarter, seven-eighths and full length. And new style sleeves for ensembles are sleeves bagged from elbow to wrist, or from elbow to any chosen sleeve length; wide cuffs to finish elbow or three-quarter length sleeves; slashed sleeves, with the dress showing through the slashes, and the usual plain, raglan, and set-in sleeve types.

Skirts Generally Longer Than Worn Last Season

Skirts generally are accepted to be longer than last season—considerably longer. Some houses show only a few sport things above the ankle, all the other daytime skirts touching the ankle bone, and evening ones sweeping the floor.

Waistlines are normal to low except in the mind and models of Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli, who continues to place them high, wide and handsome, in an eccentric way.

U. S. GRAND JURY IS PROBING BIG BANKS

Senate Committee Also Is Busy Investigating.

New York—An epidemic of jitters is sweeping the Wall Street financial district.

The impression prevails that the government is "after" big bankers and nobody knows where the lightning is going to strike next. Some of the leading figures of the profession have already been knocked from their pedestals by preliminary bolts. A federal grand jury is probing into the situation with might and main—presumably on orders direct from Washington. The scope of the senate inquiry is being extended, with particular attention to "private bankers and their part in the flotation of securities." Officials and books of some of the biggest houses of the street have been subpoenaed for examination.

President Roosevelt has ordered a general cleanup of the situation and not the biggest by any means—banks of the city. Harriman, later indicted on fourteen separate charges of making false entries in the bank's books while he was president of the institution, was arrested and arraigned as he lay ill in bed in his home. "Irregularities" involved in the specific charges footed up to a total of $1,718,223. The accounts of 14 depositors were found to have been juggled—allegedly by the bank's president.

The Harriman bank was the only one of major importance in the city which did not reopen after the March banking holiday.

Another big banker to feel the impact of the administration's heel was Charles E. Mitchell, until recently head-of-the-National-City-bank, which, as everybody knows, rates as one of the top-notch financial institutions of the country and indeed of the whole world. Banker Mitchell is accused in two federal indictments, one of them returned shortly after his resignation

Activities and Scholarship

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

There is a curious misconception among high school and college students that if you are going to do anything worth while in extracurricular activities you are bound to be a commonplace or indifferent student, and that if you go out after scholastic honors, it follows that you will get no nearer the athletic or activities "field" than the side lines.

"I don't want to have my nose in a book all the time," the aspirant for honors on the track team announces. "I want to do something else." So he loafs on the books, flunks economics 27, goes on probation and is ineligible for a year. What he really means is that he has a constitutional antipathy to hard work.

Our local high school held a public initiation a few weeks ago of the boys and girls who had been elected to the honorary scholastic society. I wasn't at all surprised to see in the group boys who had won their letters in football who were wearing medals for musical and journalistic excellence and girls who were quite outstanding in other things than scholarship.

"If you're going to be a Phi Beta," some loafer tells me, "you're got to give all your time to it."

It isn't true. One of the best guards we ever had on our team made Tau Beta Phi, honorary engineering fraternity, earned his living and was in love at the same time. Of course he had energy and concentration and desire to do well in each of the activities in which he was engaged. He won his letter, got enough to eat, made the senior honor society, and married the girl to whom he was engaged. What more could one ask? I know an end who made Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year, and any number of editors and managers and debaters who have done the same thing.

had known definitely he was going to die, according to a statement of his widow, Mrs. Wilma Aldrich.

She says Mr. Aldrich had discussed the probability of death with several of his close friends and had written a scientific article on death which he sent to his colleague, Prof. C. G. Jung of Zurich, Switzerland. Mr. Aldrich's theory held that every person, if he cares to search his mind, can predict his own death weeks ahead. Apparently believing in this theory and knowing his time had come, Aldrich, on the day of his death, placed all his business in order. Then he retired for the night and less than half an hour later he died of a heart attack, although a previous medical examination had shown him to be in excellent condition.

and the other some two weeks later, of evading the payment of income taxes totaling more than $700,103 by concealing fictitious losses through the transfer of securities which were later deemed back to him.

The second indictment charges the evasion of payment of $156,791.09 in income taxes for the year 1930 by a fraudulent sale of $750,000 worth of stock which the banker is alleged to have repurchased five months later for substantially the same sum.

Another Banker in Hot Water.

Still another "big league" banker in hot water with the government is Horace C. Sylvester, until recently vice president of the National City company, an affiliate of the National City bank, who is under indictment on a charge of third-degree forgery growing out of his testimony in the senate stock market inquiry about the time Mitchell was making his grudging admissions. Sylvester is accused in the true bill returned against him by the federal grand jury here of having directed the treasurer of his company to take $12,020 out of the account of a syndicate formed to float a Port of New York authority bond issue as an expense of the syndicate when it was really used for a loan to John E. Ramsey, general manager of the Port of New York authority. The loan, it developed, was made six weeks after the National City company had underwritten an issue of $66,000,000 in port authority bonds.

HERE'S NEW LIGHT ON C. C.'S VOYAGE

Italian Bank Said to Have Backed Explorer.

The world, especially the American part of it, now must find itself possessed with mingled feelings toward the Bank of St. George of Genoa, Italy. This banking institution, the world now is reminded, has been doing business since 1252. Presumably it remains in sound condition and will not be calling on the R. F. C. for help.

Now the well-known Bank of St. George breaks into the news through the alleged discovery that it was this institution, and not the good Queen Isabella of Spain, that financed Columbus on his trip of inspection to the West. Here is something for the school histories, one of which says pointedly that "hard-headed business men, although they were anxious to find a new route (to eastern markets), were not willing to risk any money on such an uncertain venture." That is why hard-headed business men always succeed, a fact schoolboys should be acquainted with.

But if the Bank of St. George actually put up the money for the expedition, the standing of the banking business will be definitely improved in the eyes of the public. Encouraged by the news from Italy, modern business men will go to their bankers with renewed confidence that those gentlemen will finance Twentieth century Columbuces in their business ventures.—Kansas City Star.

He built up his little army into an important unit of the Austrian heimwehr, of which he assumed supreme command. He has two heimwehr men in the cabinet under Chancellor Dollfuss, and recently he issued a manifesto dissolving the schutzbund and providing for a federal commissioner to run the realm, intending to take that post himself.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

A splendid bearing and posture is part of the equipment necessary to those who are graduates from West Point and Annapolis. Much of the reputation for being handsome which distinguishes this class of young men, is derived from this feature of their training. Whether or not they also either of a person who is a discouraging individual or a cheering one, a gallant man or woman, or one indifferent to the great values that are in every life. By the expression in their eyes, smile and bearing, they advertise as plainly as does the flag of a nation, what is the nature of their allegiances. A casual glance at the individuals in any group will suffice to give an estimate of who "wear the colors" of a land of pessimism in which the citizens carry a constant burden around with them, to inflict its weight whenever possible on others; and also those who "wear the colors" of a more optimistic country where the best thought, and good cheer is in order.

A standard bearer, he who carries the colors in military functions, as well as drill where there may not be a band, would not hold his position long if he did not do it with the air of importance, authority, and pride, as well as erectness. One may argue that it is because he is always under inspection in so doing. The argument holds in private life also. Whether among strangers or not the individual is always "under inspection."

We have observed strangers, with good news in their possession which makes them walk as if to martial music and we have known that they had good news. And we have seen others, unconscious of our gaze, who advertised the fact of their failure just as plainly. The face "is the flag" which proclaims the sort of boundaries one lives within. To make public admission of unworthy ones is not anyone's necessity.

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers do not know what the trouble is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, etc.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor, Deputy Fish and Game Warden

Don't forget to buy a poppy.
The last big snow storm in April did a great deal of damage in more ways than one. It brought out the coney rabbit into the young orchards and in some cases much damage was done to the young trees. The big jack and the snow shoe never bother the orchards. It's that perky little cottontail or coney that does all the damage.

We have a man that wants to find a home for a big, big, great Dane female five-year-old. Home and a fine watch and good with children.

Four more parties have written who want good watch dogs.

Four of my towns have sent me reappointments as dog and special officer. May 10 was the final day for payment of the dog taxes. A pup over three months of age has to be licensed.

Young fox puppies, young grey squirrels or in fact any young of any kind of wild bird or animal protected by law cannot be kept in captivity. They can be kept only when captured in the open season. And the open season is when they are old enough to take care of themselves. Possession of anything means a stiff fine and a fine of five dollars for each bird or animal.

Have a letter from a man who says I am all wet as to skunks being protected. All you have to do brother is to dig out a fish and game law book and study page 41, Chapter 198, Section 17. That's the story. Who's wet now?

Starlings, crows, hawks, owls and English sparrows are not protected. Everything else that flies is protected.

Worked with a motor official, a forest fire officer and several Massachusetts wardens last week. In fact we spent nearly two whole days way down on the Massachusetts border. There is a little pond tucked in the woods right on the Massachusetts-New Hampshire line so we worked it with a result that four men appeared in a Massachusetts court and paid $80 for about 40 hornpout. None had a license in either state. They also set a lot of fires near the edge of the pond. It's a waiting game. If you approach them while fishing they throw the pout in the pond or the bushes and your exhibit A is gone. So we waited 5 1/2 hours for the first bunch and even longer for the next crowd.

Those four men begged like real beggars—not to be handed over to the New Hampshire warden. They agreed to plead guilty to anything rather than go over the line and face New Hampshire justice.

Talk about your real wardens at work. That man, Lovely, from Orange, Mass., is the real thing when it comes to finding his way around in the pitch dark.

It's a real wild country on the Massachusetts border. This lake is a mile from the highway and wild is right. We heard cats, owls and all sorts of night noises including tree squeaks.

This Warden Peck missed his calling. He should have been a lawyer. O Boy! but you should see him in action in a court room.

No the new game laws books are not out. Why the legislature is not finished yet. They have a summer's job ahead of them yet.

Talk about your wonderful weather and the beautiful sights right now. The wild cherry, the early apples and the peach trees are all in the pink. A ride through the apple-belt now is a joy forever. Don't miss it.

The tent caterpillar is now right in his glory. I will say a good word for the starling. I saw one having a feed from a tent caterpillar nest. I let him enjoy his meal.

The Federal Cartridge Co. are inserting fine cartoons in the different magazines bringing before the people the different methods of conserving our game. In the June number of Sports Afield is a fine one showing an autoist driving through a bunch of quail killing right and left. In driving at night through wooded sections be careful as a big buck deer might jump in front of you and the damage to your car may be great. Also it might cause a serious accident.

Never have we seen so many dead snakes on the highways as this past week. Way over in Massachusetts the other day a big snake gilded across the highway and Warden Lovely with his little 22 Colt made short work of the big fellow. Say and can that man Lovely shoot. The first shot and the snake lost his head.

The date to catch hornpout is June 15. This year all the ponds are being watched so don't take a chance. Just a friendly little tip and don't say I did not warn you.

White perch open season June 1. muscalonge June 1. pike perch June 1. suckers may be speared from March 1 to June 1. pickerel June 1. Pickerel may be taken from any stream containing trout at any time and any quantity.

Don't forget the fires over the week-end. Break your match in two.

Hey did you know that the belly fin of a trout makes a fine trout bait. It's so successful that many flies have been made to imitate this fin? Also did you know that the innards of trout makes real eel bait? Worth knowing.

Listen did you know that a mixture of sweet oil, anise oil and honey makes a good lure to attract fish when put on bait?

Here is a letter from friends in Philadelphia that spend the summer in Peterboro. They want to get a cub bear and a small deer to use as models for modeling in bronze. Where can I find them?

Here is a letter from Mrs. Sargent of New Ipswich. She reads in the Bedford town history where on June 8, 1775, a man fished at Manchester falls and caught 120 shad and salmon. He also caught a salmon 12 1/2 pounds and one 18 pounds at what now is Manchester city. At High bridge in New Ipswich a man shot a salmon that measured from the man's hip to the ground. "Them were the good old days all right, all right."

Have a nice letter from some Boston doctor who wants to buy a tumbledown farm with no good land and away from everyone. Wants a good brook on property.

Have you seen the nifty little circulars gotten out by E. D. Putnam of Antrim? They are nice but nothing compared to his illustrated lecture on native flowers.

One evening last week I journeyed to Deering to address the Men's club of that town. I got the surprise of my life when I found the whole town was out to see the hard-boiled game warden. Well we had a fine time and before I left that hall I had organized a real honest-to-goodness fish and game club. About 30 signed on the dotted line. I know this is going to be a good club for the boys over that way are interested. Why some of the ladies signed up and when the women get interested in a project it's going to go or they know the reason why. They served a lunch. For real cooperation and community spirit give me the small town. Success to the Deering club.

Every one knows of Jim Peck of Fitchburg, Mass., "Bull of the Woods." Well Jim has a boy that is an Eagle Scout and he wants to find a place of a small game farm to work this summer for his board. Just enough money to keep him in chewing gum. Don't all speak at once.

My old sidekick way down in Connecticut, Owen Shepherd, has not forgotten me and up from the Nutmeg State comes a setting of extra No. 1 AAA silkie eggs. Owen has a fine plant and a lot of pleasures and quail. For a busy man he sure writes a nice long letter.

R. C. Goodell of Antrim sends me some newspapers from Los Angeles, Calif., which contain some very interesting articles. Thanks.

One of the papers shows a picture of six inches of snow in California which fell in 24 hours. This was at the summit of the mountain near Truckee and in the month of May. Think of that in sunny California.

Out in New Jersey a fellow wants to be buried alive for 40 days but his police chief has different views of it.

Over in Deering they have a great respect for the black snake. They call 'em racers. They drive off the rattlesnakes. That's why they like 'em.

Here is the latest on the lake fishing limit, etc.: No person may take in any manner a total of more than two salmon, aureolus trout or lake trout collectively in any one day, except that four lake trout may be taken by a person through the ice during the ice fishing season, and persons or parties irrespective of the number therein, fishing in any one boat upon any of the waters of the state shall not take or kill any more than two fish per person or six to a boat in any one calendar day of the species of salmon, aureolus trout or lake trout collectively except that four aureolus trout may be taken by one person in one calendar day in Lake Sunapee only. Better clip this out and stick it in your hat. That's the latest. Dated May 12.

Great news is coming down from old Newfoundland Lake. Last week was fish week. They got some beautiful lakers and salmon. One party took 24 salmon in two days. Dr. Woodman of Plymouth is a fly fisherman and he got a nice one. And when we say a nice one, it's a fish.

Everyone knows Oscar Greenwood, the well known baseball umpire of Greenville. Oscar is a friend of mine. And now don't forget that. Why—Well the other night he gave me a ring and told me about a real whoopee party that the Indoor Baseball league was to put on. Did we go? I'll say we did. It was all Oscar said it would be and more. Artists from Boston sure gave us an evening of thrills. Those boys up to Souhegan know how to do things up brown.

It was my great pleasure one night last week to act as host with other officials to a large, colorful party at the Wilton gym. It was Junior Prom night of the W. H. S. This was my first official appearance as a school official. I sure got a great kick out of that evening.

Have several letters and cards from people living in Merrimack thanking me for the article of last week on people chasing forest fires and not doing any work but hindering the firemen and blocking the highways. If you can't help keep away.

The bad fire in Merrimack last Sunday has brought out a lot of interesting facts. It's going to put more authority into the hands of forest fire wardens and we hope will increase the power of motor cops over country roads as well as trunk lines. That big fire in Maine was plainly seen from Peab hill in Wilton along about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

You have heard the old saying, "Get a gate on you." Well Trufonk, the blacksmith way over in Franctown, has got the "gate" in fact he has got several of them. He was working on them all last winter. If you want to see some real artistic work in iron you want to see these gates. They are for an entrance to a cemetery or to some swell estate. The very best thing I ever saw in iron work. All hand-made. Don't fail to see these gates before they are sold. Sure the roads are all safe now if you know how to drive.

The $20 bobcat bounty still stands. A bill to make it $10 went through the house a-whooping but the senate stepped on it. So bring in the kitties. Speaking of kitties one morning this past week Joe Ring, the man that takes care of the Hillsboro Mill gateway, fished out a 20-pound cat "bob" that did not have its ears punched. How it got there we know not. Joe said the cat was ripe to bring out for the ear punching act.

Zephyr lake in the town of Greenfield is closed to ice fishing for an indefinite period. This is to protect the firm of D. Whiting & Son for their ice harvest.

A new law has just been made now that all out-of-state trappers will pay $50 for the right to trap in this state instead of $25 as heretofore. This is only right as an expert can catch a hundred dollars worth of fur in a short time.

A new hare law reads that you can take three hares and five cottontails in one day but the total of each must not exceed five in any one day.

A new law has just been passed that all game wardens must pass a test, the commissioner and the advisory board to be the judges of one's fitness for the position.

The Profile Kennel club has issued a snappy little circular calling to the attention of the doggy world that they have an organization worth tying up to. Albert Converse of Amherst is the main squeeze while Mrs. Hill of New Boston pushes the pen. This club has not on eight shows in the past—all successful.

Have a letter from a lady in one of my towns who sends an S. O. S. for me to come and get 13 kittens and several adults. She was cleaning out some camps and found the families well installed. Any of you want some cats tell us.

Here is a letter from a real estate man in Franklin who is willing to sell half that city and most of the surrounding country. Gee but he sent us a list that will take a week to look over. If interested come see it.

Skull Beehive—The old Greek historian Herodotus tells us a story of a pirating buccaneer named Silius who invaded the island of Cyprus; but was slain by the inhabitants of one of the cities, who jubilantly, and as a warning to others, fixed his head over the gateway leading through the walls. As the head dried away a swarm of bees took possession of this skull and filled it with their honey.

CARL CHRISTOPHERSON GOOD USED CARS CARBURETION AND IGNITION SPECIALISTS OVER 20 YEARS PRACTICAL MECHANICAL EXPERIENCE CALL KEENE 163-J FOR APPOINTMENT

Located at 540 Main Street in Keene, is one of the firms in this section of the state that is rendering an essential service in a business that deserves your careful consideration, enjoying a large and well merited patronage from the city and surrounding country.

The real worth of a good used car is apparent. Intelligent buyers have been known to pay practically the price of a new one for a used car when delivery was too long deferred. The dividing line between new and really good used cars is steadily vanishing. The fact is now accepted that some used cars are better investments than some new ones because the first depreciation, which is heavy, is avoided.

A good used car is positively and absolutely the better investment. The average purchaser of a new car with its great first depreciation over which he has no control, realizes it as a heart breaking and a ridiculous sacrifice of money.

However, in purchasing a used car the word GOOD must be emphasized because any other than a good used car is also a heart-breaking and a ridiculous waste of money.

Now if the seller knows his merchandise and handles nothing but good quality piece of goods he will sell it to you under conditions that will eliminate the gamble for you—make it perfectly safe for you to purchase his merchandise.

In making this review of the progress of the period, we desire to say that this firm meets the demands of the public, and that the reputation of the past has been maintained and to refer it to all our readers.

ARTHUR B. COLBY

Specializing Entirely in N. H. Egg-Bred Red Bay Chickens Special Price After May 18th, $9.25 Per Hundred Delivered, or $8.75 at Hatchery HATCHERY CAPACITY 12,000 PER WEEK 559 South Main Street Manchester. PHONE MANCHESTER 3601

One of the most highly specialized lines of endeavor is that of hatching and raising chickens. The average person has no idea of the meticulous care exercised in the production of a healthy, sturdy strain in breeding chickens, through a number of generations in order to produce a thoroughbred stock of chickens. The scope of the layman's knowledge on this subject is usually so lacking that he judges the quality of chicken by the manner in which it is cooked. He does not realize how all important to chicken farms is this expert raising of stock of a strain that lays heavily, where eggs are featured and that produces stock that makes a chicken farm pay. Mr. Arthur B. Colby, who conducts his hatchery at Manchester is one of the recognized leaders in this field and so excellent in his stock and so fair and liberal are his dealings that he has justly earned an enviable reputation throughout a wide territory. In fact there are many farmers who would not secure their chicks from any other source. This is not surprising for Mr. Colby's stock is such as to be a positive assurance of the utmost satisfaction. Mr. Colby has spent his lifetime in studying the science of this business and it is safe to say there is no one in the entire country better posted or more expert. He is indeed rendering yeoman service to the community and well merits the highest praise.

His work is testimony to his ability. Equal service to the small as well as the large piece of work is his motto. All work guaranteed.

LIVING COSTS IN CITIES

A farm family of five spends about the same amount for food that a bachelor does in the city, figures gathered in the state of Ohio show. The single man who buys all meals spends $1 a day, or $365 a year. One farm family of five spends $178 for groceries and raises $223 worth of food, a total of $34 more than the city man spent. Another farm family raised $210 worth and spent $178.

Actual cash spent per person in all of these families was $37, compared to the city bachelor's $385. If value of food raised on the farm is included, the food cost per person on the farm was about $75. And, better yet, the farm residents had home cooking.

At first glance these figures may not mean much to the average person. But they are certainly entitled to serious thought by the rural resident who has a longing to live in town, and who has foolishly led himself to believe that living costs there are as reasonable as they are in the country.

THE GREATEST NEWSPAPER PRINTED IN NORTH AMERICA

G. S. Crane of the Campbell-Ewald Co., National advertising agency, says: "The greatest newspaper in North America is not published in New York City. Chicago has none that compares with it. Florida or California's large cities know it not. For the greatest newspaper in North America wields ten times the influence, is read by a hundred times more readers, carries intensely more pages of advertising than any newspaper in any great city in this continent of ours."

"The greatest newspaper in North America gets closer to its readers, is read longer, believed in more confidently, determines the outcome of more elections, exerts a greater power for progress, sells more merchandise and rights more wrongs than any metropolitan daily ever published."

"The greatest newspaper in North America is issued in 11,500 editions, 52 times a year, published in 11,000 separate newspaper offices in 8,000 different towns and villages throughout the United States, which offices occupy a combined floor space far in excess of that afforded by the great Woolworth building in New York and the great Wrigley building in Chicago."

"The business of this greatest newspaper in the aggregate would astound even the president of America's largest industrial corporation. The greatest newspaper in America is the hometown paper, better known to most of us as the Country Weekly."

LIARS?

"I have read that 'All men are liars, but a few are not,' said an unsuccessful candidate after last year's election.

"That some voters lied to me is true, or else the ballots were not counted squarely," he continued. "I prefer to believe that promised votes experienced a change of heart when voters marked their ballots."

"Nevertheless, it is very disconcerting to make a campaign, talk with men and women, and receive sufficient pledges to make you feel certain that victory will be yours on the day of the election."

"I feel like having a strict law that will not permit a candidate to personally seek a vote, and also prohibiting voters from openly expressing their preference, and really having a real secret ballot."

"Such a condition would save many voters from just plain lying and deception. Candidates, too, wouldn't feel the shock of defeat when success had been assured through pledges."

BON TON CAFE

Beer Served When Legal Parties Accommodated Special Dinners Served Booras & Meleones, Props.

In Keene at No. 45 Main Street, has gained a name that has spread over a large territory as a place where both the local and traveling public can well satisfy their demands in the matter of obtaining good food.

In traveling over the country you will find nothing in greater profusion than poor eating places. That is why it is indeed refreshing to find such an up-to-date establishment as this. It is unsurpassed by any eating place in surroundings or accommodations of service. When the proprietor went into business it was with the idea that a modern cafe would be appreciated by the local and traveling public.

That this principle was well accepted is proven by the success they have attained.

Here you will find well-cooked food, wholesome and deliciously appetizing. The service is equally satisfactory. Whether your order be large or small, and you will be made to feel that your trade is desired and appreciated by the management. There is no better equipped place in this section of the state than this one, and there is none that has attained a greater measure of popularity. There is none in which the service and courses are more pleasantly satisfactory. Farmers and all other parties will find this a pleasing place to visit while in town shopping for the day.

We are pleased in this review to compliment the proprietor upon the high character of the Bon Ton Cafe which is rendering a much needed service to the community.

The young man took his partner down to supper, and objected to the manner in which the waiter looked at her.

"See here, waiter," he said, "what do you mean by staring so rudely at this lady?"

"Oh, I'm not meaning to be rude, sir," said the waiter in surprise; "It's admiration I have for the lady. This is the seventh time she has been down to supper tonight."

EVERY ONE OF 'EM

"Does Bill ever come back to the old farm since he got into the movies at Hollywood?"

"Every summer," said Grandpa proudly. "Every summer of the three years he's been away."

"And did he bring his wife with him?"

PROGRESSIVE FIRMS AID IN PROGRESS

The expense of this edition is paid for by the various firms whose names appear as material and labor used in the production. Every article on this page is a paid advertisement.

While Firestone, Edison, Ford and Burroughs were touring, a light and a tire on the car went bad. Mr. Ford went into a store and said to the merchant:

"What kind of lights do you have?"
"Edison," replied the merchant.
"And tires?"
"Firestone."

"You may be interested to know that Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone are out in my car, and that I am Henry Ford."

As the merchant was putting on the tire, Mr. Burroughs, who was well adorned with white whiskers, leaned out of the car, and the merchant, looking at him with a grin, said:

"If you tell me you're Santa Claus I'll crown you with this wrench."

"Isn't the sky glorious? Oh, for the wings of a dove!"

"Can't say that's my taste, exactly. A large plate of cold ham would be more appreciated."

FACTS ABOUT FEET

They say persons with big feet usually have good understanding. Now it is reported by shoe experts that women's feet are getting bigger. They say the enlarged size is really for the better. Assembled recently in annual convention at Chicago, the National Shoe Retailers' Association reported that the size three shoe, which used to be a "best seller," has become all but extinct. The only women now able to wear "number threes" are the adorable petite sisters. Today the average woman takes a five or six, and many of them would be more comfortable in a seven or eight. As a matter of fact, cunning salesmen often flatter women customers by selling them shoes which are really a size larger than they think they should be able to wear. This is a sensible plan, too, and one that pleases everybody.

"Hair after the permanent wave process, is nearly restored to its natural conditions and responds thereafter

W. W. ADRIAN

ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR WILTON

Mr. Adrian just recently completed the electrical work on the Abbott Worsted Mills at Wilton, installing all the motors and generators. He does all kind of wiring and motor repair work, including the rewinding of either large or small motors and generators. His work in the Abbott Worsted Mills is to be commended for its thoroughness. The company being very much pleased with the way in which this job was installed.

No business requires more technical skill and experience than the electrical contracting business and upon that skill depends future satisfactory service from the work done. Ofttimes a man who is building a home or commercial structure, will pay all too little attention to the importance of the installation of wiring and fixtures and other phases of this business and the result is to say the least most unsatisfactory. It is safe to say that there is not a man in this section who knows more about electrical contracting than W. W. Adrian, whose headquarters are at Wilton in the state of New Hampshire. He is distinctly a self-made man and all the splendid success he has attained has come as the reward of honesty of purpose and untiring effort to give the people with whom he deals, an honest dollar's worth for every 100 cents they pay him for his work. A long list of good customers testify to this. For these reasons Mr. Adrian well merits his present enviable standing and splendid business.

SOMEWHAT ODD TREE

The Franklin tree has a white flower in some instances with a pinkish tint, and resembles dogwood to a great extent; however, it has a larger and more beautiful blossom. It blooms, unlike most trees, in August and September.

Jasmine, often considered the perfume most pleasing to men in general, is obtained from a shrub of that name common in Asia and Europe. The origin of the jasmine is unknown, but it is known to have been brought to Europe and Asia, where it met instant approval and the plant is to be found almost anywhere in the two continents where too severe. At maturity the shrub grows to a height of from 6 to 10 feet and is covered with evergreen leaves and bears a white, waxy flower.

The Curtis Inn are dispensers of true hospitality. A home where the best of everything is to be had. Courteous, efficient service is the outstanding feature. Anything that contributes to the happiness of the traveling public is at hand.

In by-gone days the wayside inn was a resting place for the weary traveler who stopped for a night or perhaps a few days lodging. The inn was a general meeting place for men high in military affairs and affairs of the state. Gathered nightly around the fire, the momentous problems of the day were discussed with the stranger who happened to pause in his journey.

In this age of the rapid advance of science and ideas, the inn still keeps pace with the world. Modern hotels, though far in advance of the inns of the last century, still retain that home atmosphere that is so necessary to their clientele. All the comforts of the home in a strange city are to be had in the best hotels throughout the world. This hotel is no exception to the rule.

As the door of your room is opened for you, the spotless white of the linen and towels strikes you. You cannot help but notice the cleanliness and easy comfort of the room. Your enthusiasm mounts to a high plane. If there is nothing which you desire you lounge around with that comfortable feeling of possession of a rich gift.

BIBLE AND DEPRESSION
It should interest everybody to know that there is at least one business the depression hasn't hurt. That is the publication and sale of Bibles. Sales in 1931 were 98 per cent greater than in 1930. Publishers report that 1932 were as good as the previous year.

When he is prosperous the average man thinks he can take care of himself and do a good job of it. He wants little advice; he is not humble, and he doesn't appear to have much time to think over his own shortcomings.

But when times are bad he turns somewhere for help to get him out of the pit of despair and to rid him of his worries. He goes back to the Bible, from which he'll probably depart very shortly after prosperity again comes his way. But that is neither here nor there. The fact remains that more Bibles are now being sold than ever before, and that a Bible reading nation is a long way from being down and out.

THE OLDEST LIVING THING

The oldest living thing known in the world is the redwood tree named General Sherman in Sequoia National Park, California, reports "Boys' Life," the monthly journal of the Boy Scouts of America. This tree "is as old as history itself, having begun to grow between 4,000 and 5,000 years ago. It was a large tree before the golden age of Greece, before the Egyptian pyramids were built," continues "Boys' Life." "It was at least 2,000 years old when Christ was born.

"This tree is still in its prime. Despite its age and the damage to its base by forest fires of countless centuries, it has continued to flourish and today produces thousands of cones from which young plants grow. This tree," continues "Boys' Life," "stands 273 feet high and is 102 feet in circumference at the base. At one hundred feet above the ground it is fifty-eight feet around its trunk. There is enough lumber in its trunk to build five hundred five-room houses."

REAL ESTATE BEQUESTS

The practice of bequeathing or devising lands to the church had become from the early centuries after the Norman conquest of England an increasing burden. It was estimated at one time that practically half the land in England was owned either by the church or institutions. Agitation began in the English parliament as early as 1279 to deal with the evils arising from this transfer of land. In the reign of George II, 1736, the Mortmain (dead-hand) act was passed, and this was amended in the reign of Victoria, 1883, by the Mortmain and charitable acts combined, in which no bequest for a charitable use was to involve the acquisition of land. In 1891 the statute was revised to make it possible that land might be bequeathed, but must be sold within a year, unless released from the provisions of the act by a commission. There have been several modifications since.

J. CUSHING & COMPANY

BRANCH OF FARM SERVICE STORES, INC.
LARRO AND GOLD METAL FEEDS VIGORO PLANT FOOD
EVERYTHING FOR YOUR GARDEN
SPECIAL MIXING BY COLLEGE FORMULA
CEMENT, ROOFING, PLASTER AND PIPE

One of the most important fields of endeavor in a community like Peterboro is that of the feed business. Feed for live stock is just as important as the food we eat. It has the same effect on the health and growth of animals, beneficial or delicious. Thus the wise man will pay strict attention to the kind of feed he supplies for his stock and not make the mistake in believing that all feeds are more or less alike. There is only one kind of feed fit for us and that is the best. Anything else is a poor substitute. Reliable dealers will not handle anything but the best and being reliable means something more than merely being honest. It means knowing one's business in its every phase.

For example the concern trading as J. Cushing & Company, and located at

Main Street in Peterboro, is one of the most successful in this territory because its long list of customers know that George Ouelette, the able head, knows feed like a book. He has made a study of this highly specialized business and has a knowledge that may be termed both practical and scientific. He knows the proper source of supply is always of the same uniform quality. Thus there is assurance of satisfaction when patronage is extended J. Cushing & Company that is worth a great deal. Moreover Mr. Ouelette always treats his customers with a fair and square policy that shows that he is surely living up to his reputation of making every customer a friend. Thus Mr. Ouelette well merits this commendation in this special column. Such good businessmen and good citizens deserve it.

WALTER A. WILSON

GENERAL MERCHANDISE
CENTRAL SQUARE NEW BOSTON

Never was the word general so important and never did it cover so much ground, as when it became part of the phrase, "general store." What an institution is the general store; what a field it covers; what a service it renders. Think of a large community covering many miles of territory and all these people depending on the general store for their household requirements. They go to the general store when times are good and when times are bad they still go there and find a friend. They may go there for merchandise and then again they may just drop in to get some advice concerning a problem in hand and they always get the same sympathetic reception. Take for example Walter A. Wilson, who conducts his store at Central Square in New Boston. There is a man who has more friends in ratio to the population than any man of affairs in a metropolitan city. He is known to everyone in the entire community and he is a man whose word is his bond. Mr. Wilson knows the sources of supply where he can buy a reasonable lot of merchandise of dependable quality cheap enough to sell at a price his patrons expect to pay. Moreover, he only expects a small profit. He may not enjoy the earnings of a city merchant but he is doing a yeoman service for his community and every man, woman and child look to him as one of their leaders who are helping to make their lives easier. That is the privilege of Walter A. Wilson, who is a citizen to be proud of.

LUTHER MARK LANGDELL

AUCTIONEER

Located in Wilton, phone Wilton 37-5, is one of the foremost auctioneers in this section of the state. If his name appears on your sale bill everyone knows it will be one worth attending. The most essential thing in preparation for a public sale is the auctioneer. Of course, you may have a lot of valuable things to offer the public at auction. There even may be a great demand for the particular goods that you wish to sell. But if you do not get a first-class auctioneer your sale will be a failure.

He has proven that he can close sales rapidly with people who will be responsible financially. His record as an auctioneer is evidence of his ability to handle sales of farm implements with competence and dispatch, getting the highest prices possible. The many stock raisers for whom he has officiated will tell you about how he has officiated for them and of how his knowledge of raising and breeding enables him to talk straight from the shoulder when selling stock.

That is why we refer you to this well known auctioneer. If his name appears on your sale bills as the officiating dignitary of the occasion, there will be no question about the success of your undertaking. By disposition and temperament he is especially qualified for the profession in which he is engaged and his wide acquaintance renders him one of the foremost auctioneers in this part of the state.

In this edition we are glad to compliment Luther Mark Langdell on his activity and efficiency in his field of endeavor.

Through the years they have been efficiently serving the public, they have solved the problem of overhead distribution, purchase of raw materials, etc., so satisfactory that they are now able to compete with any concern of similar nature.

However, many citizens get into the habit of taking the service of such important industries rather as a matter of course and in this edition we refer this concern to you as a vital factor in our industrial progress.

New Hampshire Mills is well known in connection with the manufacture of these high grade products. We call your special attention to the better quality of products which this company makes.

Production of quality products has always been the fundamental basis of this concern for their wide experience early taught them that by making a quality product they would please all. Then they developed a system of production that enabled them to maintain the highest quality at a production

We deem it most fitting and proper that we make special mention of this concern. We want to aid you in appreciating what an important part it plays in the industrial life of the community.

PROGRESSIVE PETER COOPER

Peter Cooper designed and built the first locomotive engine ever constructed in this country. Cooper was one of the most important men of the nineteenth century and he made coaches, manufactured mica, and owned iron works. He erected a rolling-mill and manufactured railroad iron. He founded Cooper Union, New York City's famous free institute of science and art, at a cost of approximately $700,000, and presented it to the city in 1858. He dabbled in plans for paper currency to be issued by the National Government and was at one time a candidate for President.

He was also deeply interested in home economics including foodstuffs. He had the first vision back in 1845 of a concentrated jelly powder such as later became one of America's favorite desserts. His original product and its successors until recently have required the addition of boiling water, which has robbed the desserts of their full, fresh flavor. The manufacturers of one have announced that they have reached high standards worthy of Peter Cooper in a new discovery which permits making fruit-flavored gelatin dishes with warm water instead of boiling water. Heretofore wisps of steam carried much of the flavor away. The new discovery also causes the gelatin to set quicker. Thus science—patient, tenacious science—contributes again to the greater happiness and leisure of our modern lives.

LOUIS B. SEAVEY

SPECIALIZING IN CHILDREN'S PORTRAITS

With studio located at No. 42 Beaver Street in Keene, is a photographer who for many years served some of the most notable business and professional people in Boston and of Harvard University in particular. We refer to Louis B. Seavey of 42 Beaver Street. This is the art center for this section.

What vast improvements have been made in the art and science of photography since the days of the old Daguerrotype! It has been a scientific achievement that goes down on the records as one of the modern day wonders. But yet, with all the purely mechanical achievements, how few photographers are able to manipulate the lenses and box-in such a manner as to bring out the true characteristics of the sitter—to make a character study that fits a man or woman individually and that merits being truly called a "portrait?" Take for example, Louis B. Seavey of Keene, whose studio is located at 42 Beaver Street. There is a man who can paint with the lens and bring out all those intriguing shadows, tones and highlights in a manner that might suggest the brush of an artist on canvas. He seems to have captured a peculiar technic that places him apart from most photographers. Thus Keene is extremely fortunate in possessing a man of such talent as Louis B. Seavey and that this fact is appreciated is evidenced by the large volume of work he receives. Future generations will look back with pleasure if they have a photograph of the present day members of the family—and it is a duty to have that photograph made by an expert who charges no more. That man is easily Louis B. Seavey.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

A daily newspaper in Nice recently contained the following advertisement: "Millionaire, young, good looking, wishes to meet, with a view to matrimony, a girl like the heroine in M—'s novel."
Within 24 hours the novel in question was sold out.

Mother—"Bobby, didn't you do anything else but eat at the Sunday school?"

Bobby—"Yes, mother. We sang hymns. We sang one called, 'We Can Sing, Full Though We Be.'"

Mother—"What?"
But the Sunday school teacher told Bobby's mother later on that the hymn was "Weak and Sinful Though We Be."

AUTO GLASS A SPECIALTY

Installed While You Wait. Glass For All Purposes
5 Odd Fellows Avenue, Concord Phone Concord 352

There are countless articles that we could get along without in this world of ours and still have comfort. But how many of us could get along without glass and its allied products. We might say this is a glass world for we use glass for hundreds of sanitary purposes and comforts daily.

At this establishment they know the glass business from A to Z. Being thoroughly experienced in how glass is made they consequently know how to handle it. Possibly you would like to have a desk top to be made so as to fasten same to desk. They will cut a hole just large enough for a screw for making it a permanent part of the desk. Here you will find a superior quality of glass, having clearness and will not check. To look at glass the layman could not tell if it was O. K. or not but by driving back of it all day long a serious headache might develop. Not so with glass from E. R. Adams, for they guarantee their glass and all products, including plate glass, window glass, mirrors and glass for every purpose.

We, in this business review, wish to give this enterprising firm commendable mention for the wonderful glass service they are offering the public of this section.

DANA GINGRAS

ARTESIAN WELL DRILLING
COMPLETE SERVICE FROM THE WELL TO THE HOUSE
PUMPS INSTALLED, PIPE LAYED

At Wilton, Box 12, has been a great aid to the progress of this part of the state by reason of the very modern and scientific service in well drilling, and has many satisfied patrons in this community.

There is nothing so essential to the general welfare and health of the people as pure water. To drink water with any form of impurities is to simply court disease in many forms.

The well drilling business is of modern creation and one of the necessities of latter day civilization. In the first days of digging wells men posed as water witches and would go around with a forked stick and claim to tell where there was a spot to dig for water. But with the advancement of science and the spreading of knowledge of geology came the modern and scientific well driller. The management of this concern has made a deep study of the geological formation of this section of the country and are able to tell how deep you will have to go and thus render the most advanced service.

He has a most complete mechanical equipment for quick and expeditious work and has men in his employ who thoroughly understand the business.

If you are figuring on a well all you have to do is to call here and he will promptly go and look over your place, give you an estimate on the job complete, drill the wells, lay the pipes, build the water towers and see that everything is placed in perfect operation.

In this review we are glad to compliment Dana Gingras upon his great success and to say that it is well deserved as he is rendering a great service for the people in these days of difficulty of obtaining a pure water supply.

YOUTH HAS MANY OPPORTUNITIES, SAYS SENATOR DAVIS

The oft-repeated cry that youth has few opportunities today is scouted by Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, writing in the July issue of Moses Magazine. "It is wonderful to be young today," he writes. "Shame on the person who says that opportunity is dead! The world is calling for just such young Americans as are being graduated from our schools this June. In every quarter of the globe you will find our young men and women concerned with the progress of humanity, whether it be in an industrial and economic way, or for the betterment of social conditions. Already the world is weary of depression and is beginning to discard old methods and call for new. In this awakening there will come greater opportunity than ever before."

Roofing is the one factor that is easily converted into either the weakest or strongest link in the chain that holds the house together. Nothing is more expensively destructive than a bad roof. That fact is not always appreciated. But when first having a roof constructed, it must be borne in mind, for before long it is sorrowfully brought to our attention. Again some people think that a good roof should last forever. Repair is a word that they do not want to place in their vocabulary. Then some rainy afternoon, when they are treated to an impromptu bath from water trickling through the ceiling they refer to it as an accident.

It is therefore of interest to everyone to note the activities of C. F. Worcester, located at Keene, R. F. D. 1. This concern, so ably headed by C. F. Worcester is one of the best known concerns of the kind in Keene. It is a concern that has covered a long period of years in giving the public a real service and a skill and honesty in their work that is generally known. Following such fair methods C. F. Worcester has naturally made an enviable reputation for himself and that is why his business has grown in such leaps and bounds. C. F. Worcester surely deserves credit and everyone does well to patronize him.

BE A GOOD SPORTSMAN

You fishermen, take heed! Talbot Denmead, of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, who has a lot to do with the protection of game fish in this country, says the problem of preventing the unnecessary death of undersized fish inadvertently hooked by anglers is becoming a very important one. He points out that every undersized fish which dies as a result of either being hooked or rough handling deprives some angler of the privilege of hooking a good-sized, fighting fish at some later date. The death of each little fish also places more pressure upon the already busy propagators of game fish who are striving to keep the lakes and streams of Uncle Sam's domain reasonably well stocked. So, you gentlemen who love to fish and who recognize it for what it is—one of the greatest sports in the world—won't you be careful in future to unhook the little fellows without injury to them, and then toss them back into the stream, that they may furnish you or your neighbor good sport a little later on?

A VISION OF TAXATION

Each day you may see me out working on the farm.
I have a little forty, a chicken coop and barn.
I love to work upon the farm and keep it neat and clean.
But when I'm in my bed at night, I have such awful dreams.
I see taxes on the ceiling, I see taxes on the wall,
I see taxes in the kitchen, I see taxes in the hall,
I see taxes in the dining room, I see taxes on my plate,
I believe I can taste taxes in everything I eat.
I believe in paying taxes, I believe in being sane,
I believe these unjust taxes are taxation of the brain.
I see taxes on my children, I see taxes on my wife,
I see taxes on my income, I see taxes on my life.

"Do what?" asked the brakeman.

"Jump from the ground to the top of a box car," answered the fireman. —Railway Employees' Journal.

THEY WANTED SHOT

Zeke, Tim and Joe, three timid boys entered the village hardware store. The rather gruff proprietor said to the oldest, "What do you want, Zeke?"

"A dime's worth of BB shot please."

The old man climbed a ladder, brought down the shelf box that contained the air-rifle shot, made up the packet and returned the box to the shelf boys. Then he asked the second boy, "What do you want, Tim?"

"A dime's worth of BB's please," was the meek answer.

"Why didn't you say so before?" said the old man, irritably, as he went for the ladder again. He made up the packet as before, and then turned to the third.

"And do you want a dime's worth of BB's too?" he demanded.

"No," replied Joe, hesitatingly.

The old man climbed laboriously to the shelf again and deposited the box of shot. Then he returned to the counter.

"Well, my boy, what do you want?" he demanded of Joe.

"A nickel's worth of BB shot," said Joe.

W. A. BRYER AND COMPANY

IMPORTED AND DOMESTIC GROCERIES LOCAL AGENTS FOR S. S. PIERCE SPECIALTIES

At 26 Grove Street in Peterboro, are well stocked with staple and fancy groceries as well as fresh fruits and vegetables in season.

At this popular grocery and food store you will find only the most wholesome of staple and fancy foods.

Buy it at this grocery, is a fitting slogan for all people who wish to keep their food bill at the lowest possible figure. At this day and age the modern grocery is more than just a grocery store. It is a twentieth century service station where one hundred and one articles of every description can be had for the household. When you buy it at the grocery you save money. For the well-known fact that a grocery store operates on a smaller margin of profit than any other line of business. And for this reason they must turn their stock five or more times a year, thus insuring fresh goods at all times of the year.

This local grocery is one of the vital elements of the health and prosperity of this section. Their motto is Service and Quality. So the next time you are tempted to send to distant cities for your supplies, just stop to think, when you spend your money in foreign markets it is used to develop the distant cities and makes your own products less valuable. Money spent at home tends to create the community spirit, and a percentage of this dollar thusly spent will actually come back to you in some form or another.

On your next visit to town drop in at W. A. Bryer and Company. Look over their stock and it will surprise you to find such a variety. The housewife is cordially invited to drop in and get acquainted.

FUTURE BANK RECEIVER

The first heavy snow of the year caused the teacher of the small-town school to warn her pupils against catching cold.

"I had a little brother seven years old," she said, "and one day he took his new sled out in the snow. He was taken very ill with pneumonia and three days later he died."

The schoolroom was very quiet. Suddenly a boy in the back seat asked: "Where's his sled?"

People all over this section have learned that this garage is a haven of expertness and reliability in all classes of automobile repair work and therefore it enjoys a large patronage.

The Cedar Street Garage has gone to great expense to install a heavy duty Bear Cold Process Axle and Frame Straightener that has the distinction of being the only one in the whole state of New Hampshire which will do the work on cars, trucks and busses. Mr. L. A. Gilbert, the owner, has also paid out considerable money in going to the factory and taking a course in how to operate this machine. The Bear Cold Process System is the best and most economical way of straightening frames and axles as you do not have to have the car dismantled to do this work. This is the best and quickest system yet devised and it would be well to drop in here occasionally and have your car checked to make sure it is in alignment as care will save your car and it eliminates shimmy, hard steering and gives perfect wheel alignment, and remember this work is all done under the supervision of a factory trained expert.

We desire to refer this garage to all the people of this section and ask them to call for specifications and estimates on contemplated needs. DUNNELL SERVICE STATION

AUTHORIZED UNITED MOTOR SERVICE
Dealers In
NEW AND USED HARLEY-DAVIDSON MOTORCYCLES
PERLEY F. DUNNELL, Prop.

Located at No. 60 Railroad Street in Keene, day phone Keene 1779-W and night phone Keene 1779-R, renders an excellent service in auto electrical work. No adjusting or repair on an automobile is more delicate or requires more careful technical skill than adjustment to the electrical system—starting, lighting and ignition and the battery. This company was organized to handle in an expert manner just such delicate work.

No automobile owner wants to take a chance on his starting, lighting and ignition system. Anyone can grease the car, fill it with gas and oil and even make minor adjustments, but the electrical system must be entrusted only to an expert.

That this firm has qualified in the eyes of the public is proved by the fact that the number of its patrons is constantly increasing. It is a policy of this shop that no piece of work must leave the shop which does not give satisfaction to the user. This is an exacting demand for the establishment to make on itself, but its management believes that it pays in the long run.

If you feel that your car is not exactly in adjustment, perhaps the fault is with the electrical system or the storage battery. To find out whether it is or not, they invite you to bring your car around. One of the experts employed at this shop will look it over and tell you whether any part of the electrical system needs adjustment free of charge. No charge will be made for this service and it does not obligate you in any way to have an inspection which may be needed made, at this shop.

It is a tribute to this shop that manufacturers of many standard makes of automobiles have made this shop the official starting, lighting and ignition service station for their cars. A greater tribute to the shop, however, is the way in which the work of this shop has increased since it was started.

JOY IN THE HILLS

Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. A Kansas City reporter recently found a pretty story in the Ozark mountains, a region often thought of as too remote from the "gray white way" of the big cities to be interesting. He found there a happiness that harks back to the early days of this country; family visitings during the long winter evenings, with an accompanying feast of apples, nuts, molasses taffy and—best of all—old-fashioned neighborly conversation.

Even around here there has been a noticeable return of this same spirit. Since times became a little more hard, conditions seem to have made the company and friendships of neighbors more valuable; people are actually growing more thoughtful of each other and more helpful to others than they were in the "jazz age," when everybody was too busy spending money and having a good time to think of his neighbors. Half the world may not know how the other half lives, but if conditions remain as they are a few years longer they're going to find out.

In this age of the rapid advance of science and ideas, the inn still keeps pace with the world. Modern inns though far in advance of the inns of the last century, still retain that home atmosphere that is so necessary to their clientele. WHERE TIRES GO

At sometime or another the person who has occasion to buy auto tires wonders where the old ones go. Most people believe they are salvaged by the tire factories and the rubber reclaimed. But a writer in a New York paper says not. He points out that America exports about 50,000,000 pounds of old tires yearly to Mexico, China, Spain and Portugal, whose people get additional "mileage" out of them—as footwear.

Spain is the best market for these old tires. There a type of shoe known as the "arabaca," with soles cut from old tires, has become very popular. China is the next best market, where the coolies also use them for shoe soles. Such shoes bring about three cents a pair. In Portugal shepherds use old tires to make overshoes. Castings are used as supplemental soles and heels on wooden shoes. At the country fairs of Portugal stands dealing in used American tires and tubes are very common.

DANIEL WEBSTER STAGES, INC.

TERMINAL AT CURTIS INN
LIMOUSINE SERVICE TO BOSTON, PROVIDENCE, HARTFORD AND NEW YORK
DEPENDABLE EXPRESS SERVICE

Manchester headquarters at No. 66 Manchester Street, operates a modern bus service with careful drivers. The management is an authority on transportation.

The twentieth century saw the advent of the aeroplane, of the radio, the automobile and hundreds of other inventions. The twentieth century also saw the advent of the motor bus as the safest, quickest, most economical and most reliable method of transportation.

There are many good and valid reasons why traveling by bus is the accepted route today, and these reasons have had their influence on the public. Those who do not possess their own motor car prefer the bus line for its easy access and its "down town" delivery. They have close connections coming and going on their business or pleasure trips. Those who own motor cars prefer the bus line for quick trips as well as from the standpoint of bus service, freeing them of the necessity of driving their cars and finding parking places at their destination. The bus line provides cheaper travel for the car owner. His bus fare is considerably less than the expense he would incur in driving his own car. Besides there's no inconvenience attached to the bus. All you do is pay your fare and enjoy the invigorating country air as your bus smoothly glides over the smooth country road.

Their drivers must come to a dead stop a safe distance from every railroad crossing to see if the tracks are clear, and when he determines that they are, he immediately crosses over with safety.

The manager is a man who realizes he has the responsibility of the safety of his patrons at stake. He takes his duties seriously and is ever on the alert to improve the service of his company. He is a public-spirited business man and a community booster.

ERNEST T. BRODERICK

PLUMBING AND HEATING. LYNN RANGE OIL BURNERS
DEMING AND BURKS PUMPS

Located on Main Street in Wilton, ranks high among the leading heating and sanitary engineers of this section. He brings all tools with him, thus eliminating the loss of time taken up by many similar firms.

He has spent his efforts in studying the plumbing problems of all types of homes, and will be glad to solve your plumbing problems for you. He is rendering a great service to the community, for it is readily admitted by health experts all over the country that greater attention paid to plumbing systems by expert heating and sanitary engineers have done much to raise the general standard of health of all the people—particularly of those in our crowded cities.

The complex construction of the modern home compels the sanitary engineer to have as thorough a knowledge of the principles of heat, water and air circulation as the physician has of anatomy. In this regard, we can do nothing but congratulate him throughout the state for his thorough and scientific knowledge of the principles of plumbing.

He has had the plumbing contracts on some of the most modern homes built in recent years in this and surrounding communities. His bids, as well as his repair charges, are as low as possible to be consistent with high grade plumbing work and the use of only high grade materials.

He is a man of the highest standing in the business circles of the community. He takes an active part in every movement seeking to promote the welfare of the community.

WYMAN'S CASH MARKET

HIGH CLASS GROCERIES AND MEATS

Located at 20 Main Street in Peterboro, has enjoyed a large trade; people from all over the surrounding territory when out motoring drive here to secure the very finest of food and meat products of the day.

They have made an extensive study of modern conditions in the provision trade and keep right abreast of the times. There is nothing new that passes over their heads and the people of this part of the state are fortunate in having men of such ability to serve them. They make a study of the meat and grocery trade of the country and are in touch with the leading sources of supply. Being large buyers they are given unusual concessions both as to price and the quality of the products. This store has the very finest of modern equipment, the fixtures and store furniture being such that they are an aid in the expeditious handling of all the stock and making it a convenient place to buy.

They handle groceries and meats of all kinds from the best packers and producers, spices from the far-away East and specialties of all kinds.

A marked advantage of their service is the fact that one can secure about everything needed for the table and does not have to travel around from store to store.

In this review we are pleased to refer Wyman's Cash Market to all of our readers and to compliment the management upon the conduct of an institution that is the most modern and aids in the ease of housekeeping, as well as in the lowering of the high cost of living and the producing of dinners that are highly appetizing.

GRAY'S GARAGE

Compete Lubrication and Greasing Facilities. Socony Oil and Gasoline. Simonizing a Specialty. Cars Laundered. Park Your Car from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. for 25c. Agent for White Mountain Refrigeration. 180 North Main, Concord Phone Concord 1200

Did you ever find your car balking?

Instead of taking chances of dropping into just any garage for an overhauling, go to the nearest phone and call Concord 1200 and in a jiffy you will have an expert on your trail and the old motor will soon be humming. That is the number of Gray's Garage, conducted by R. B. Gallagher at 180 North Main Street. Incidentally it's a mighty good place to park the car whether you are in town for an hour, day or week or longer. Local residents have found that out and are getting satisfaction for a fee that makes one have a respect for the management. Fairness these days gives any motorist a thrill of appreciation and if there is anyone more fair than Mr. Gallagher, we haven't met the gentleman.

This garage is well equipped with every convenience and when your car is washed it does not come out like it emerged from a cat fight. No scratching in their methods. They are open day and night, have an all-around service that is on the square and the smile they wear has not been planted—it is natural. That's the kind of honest-to-goodness spirit we like to see and that is why Mr. Gallagher and his associates have not only succeeded in business but also have taken their place among the respected and popular business men of the community.

WHITE'S CAFE

On Proctor Square in Hemiker, has gained a name that has spread over a large territory as a place where both the local and traveling public can well satisfy their demands in the matter of obtaining good food.

In traveling over the country you will find nothing in greater profusion than poor eating places. That is why it is indeed refreshing to find such an up-to-date establishment as this. It is unsurpassed by any eating place in surroundings or accommodations of service. When the proprietor went into business, it was with the idea that a modern cafe would be appreciated by the local and traveling public.

That this principle was well accepted is proven by the success they have attained.

Here you will find well-cooked food, wholesome and deliciously appetizing. The service is equally satisfactory, whether your order be large or small, and you will be made to feel that your trade is desired and appreciated by the management. There is no better equipped place in this section of the state than this one, and there is none that has attained a greater measure of popularity. There is none in which the service and courses are more pleasantly satisfactory. Farmers and all other parties will find this a pleasing place to visit while in town shopping for the day.

We are pleased in this review to compliment the proprietor upon the high character of the White Cafe which is rendering a much needed service to the community.
