Feted on Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

On Friday evening, April 30, nearly fifty neighbors, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Nylander to help them celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Relatives were present from Keene, Dublin and Harrisville.

Copies of an original song by Mrs. H. E. Wilson and Mrs. A. E. Thornton, arranged to the tune of Auld Lang Syne, were distributed to the guests who joined heartily in the rendering of it. Rev. E. H. Tibbals extended greetings in the form of congratulations, story telling and good wishes. The music was in charge of Mrs. A. E. Thornton who played Lohengrin's Wedding March. Mrs. K. E. Roeder and Mrs. A. D. Perkins favored the company with several songs specially selected for the occasion. Rev. William McN. Kittredge made complimentary remarks ending with an original poem suited at its close to the presentation of a purse; this consisted of shining silver coins arranged on dark velvet, with a lighted candle in the center.

A silver vase and candlesticks were presented by the three children of the couple. A handsome bride's cake, made by Mrs. R. E. Roberts, was presented by the Antrim friends, and a beautiful basket bouquet by the Woodman Brothers of Milford.

A general social hour with singing of many old-time songs, and refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were heartily enjoyed.

The occasion was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Nylander, who responded with appreciative words.

The success of the affair was due to the untiring effort of Mr. Cochrane, with whom Mr. and Mrs. Nylander have made their home the past twelve years.

Scout Leader to Speak in Antrim

William J. Pauley, Field Executive Boy Scouts of America, will speak on local Boy Scout problems at an open meeting to be held Tuesday night, May 11th, in the vestry of the Baptist Church, at 7.30 Daylight Saving Time. All parents of Scouts in particular and all people interested in the Boy Scout Movement in general, are urged to be present.

Mr. Pauley has enjoyed great success in his field and is confident that with the cooperation of local leaders and parents, a worthwhile Troop can be developed and maintained in Antrim. The local Committee feels that this is an excellent opportunity for an open meeting of all Antrim people interested in this movement which can mean much to our youngsters. For a frank discussion of ways and means to make the local Troop more effective, it welcomes criticisms and suggestions to this end and urges a large attendance at this meeting.

At this time Mr. Pauley will discuss the possibility of instituting a Cub Troop for youngsters 9 to 12, which serves a pre-Scout group, and all parents of youngsters in this age group are particularly urged to attend this meeting.

Charles C. Gorst "The Bird Man"

Antrim is fortunate to have the opportunity to hear Mr. Charles Crawford Gorst, noted "Bird Man".

Mr. Gorst tries to entertain, inform and inspire. He is pretty generally regarded as the best imitator of bird songs in America. He sings eight hundred songs of two hundred and twenty kinds of birds. He shows his own enlarged paintings of the birds. He tells many interesting and instructive facts about birds and bird life, the knowledge of which he has obtained from years of study and living with birds in their natural haunts.

Because Mr. Gorst desires to create the stillness of the bird haunts, the audience will be requested to be as quiet as possible.

It is hoped that as many as possible will come to hear this genius of bird life.

Feeling this is a rare opportunity for the children especially, all pupils of the schools will be admitted free. All adults will be charged 25c.

Mr. Gorst will be at Antrim town hall, Friday, May 7, 1937, at 8 p. m. Daylight Saving Time.

Exhibition Flower Gardens at Charleston, S. C., Scenes of Most Unusual Beauty

By H. B. ELDREDGE

The lure of the Sunny Southland, aided and abetted by a myriad of attractive circulars and booklets issued by various Chambers of Commerce along the way, finally proved irresistible and on March 21 Mrs. Eldredge and I started on the long trip to Florida. We covered nearly 4,000 miles before returning to our home in Winchendon, Mass.

As many of our readers have made the trip to Florida, and so much of it is most uninteresting, we will omit any special mention of that portion. It might not be amiss, however, to state that miles and miles of roads in the South are just about wide enough for two cars to pass. These roads are bordered with the softest of "soft shoulders." In fact much of the road runs through swamp and if the luckless motorist falls asleep at the wheel for a moment he finds himself rudely awakened in a small stream of water, — that is, if he does awaken!

Another traffic hazard is the absolutely care-free attitude of the cows, hogs, dogs and goats who seem to believe the cement roads were built for their special benefit and the autoists are trespassers. Cattle roam at will across the highways, up and down, and just when a cow may take it into her head to charge across directly in front of your onrushing car, nobody knows. And the little pigs which suddenly dart out from nowhere into the middle of road are really "just too cute for anything!"

In the opinion of this writer somebody is passing up a golden opportunity to make a fortune by supplying tourists with some sort of an advertising game to occupy their attention while traversing the miles and miles and miles of dull, uninteresting country en route to Florida.

The day we left Winchendon the roads were covered with snow and ice. It was of interest to note that traces of snow were seen in various places along the route until we reached Alexandria, Va. There we did bid adieu to snow and ice, and within a short time experienced balmy Spring weather.

It is not the purpose of this article to give a detailed day-by-day description of our Southern trip. Much of it was interesting. Much of it has probably been duplicated by many of our readers who are so fortunate as to spend their Winters in the South. We do hope, however, to hit upon a few "high spots" which were outstanding.

At Charleston, S. C., we tarried a couple days for the purpose of visiting the exhibition gardens. Truly a beautiful sight! Words cannot do justice to the beauties of Nature. Regarding the Magnolia Gardens, James O'Donnell Bennett wrote in the Chicago Tribune as follows:

"To this ancient city (Charleston) each Spring there comes a pilgrimage of thousands from remote parts of the land to Magnolia Gardens, lying fifteen miles outside of Charleston. There the multitude beholds a closely massed bouquet twenty-five acres broad and more than one hundred feet high.

"You pass through lanes of azaleas fifteen and twenty feet high, sentinelled by camellias thirty feet high. You encounter nature in her minutiae and in her giants.

"Azaleas command the scene — white, purple, pink and magenta. They carpet the paths with petals. The sea breeze wafts bushels of the petals over the surface of lagoons which the powerful acid in the roots of the cypress trees has turned inky black. They lie on the motionless surface of the black waters like assuaging garlands strewn over the habiliments of death.

"At an unexpected turn the mad wilderness of beauty opens into narrow aisles of blood-red camellias, the blossoms gleaming like live coals against the dark green leaves of the bushes.

"Upward again and afar off, clouds of dogwood blossoms shimmer white in the sunlight against a background of gum trees. Again the breeze mounts and the dogwood is like high-tossed spray beating against the upper branches of the gum trees.

"Here the slender crepe myrtle flings out its banners. Yonder the pointed Spanish cypresses rise like church spires, and above the green spires tower the long leaf pines.

"Evening draws on. The sunlight, dripping through cedars, and cypresses, and live oaks, and turning the witches' locks of Spanish moss into silvery pennants, lay its benediction on the flowers beneath."

There are also other very beautiful gardens in and near Charleston, which are open to the public. Much of the above description could also be applied to these, although each has individual characteristics of beauty and charm.

Another "high spot" of outstanding interest was the Bok Singing Tower at Lake Wales, Florida. Edward W. Bok's gift to the people of America is built on the highest point in Florida. The structure is 50 feet wide at the base, 37 feet across the top and 205 feet, 2 inches in height. It is built of Georgia marble and coquina rock. The marble came from Georgia and the coquina rock came from the National Gardens, near Daytona Beach. The gray marble at the base is Creole marble, the pink Etowah marble.

It is said there is not a perpendicular line in the entire structure. Florida bird life in various forms is depicted in figures cut into the marble. There is also a frieze of birds surrounding the tower about 30 feet from the ground, the figures being carefully and beautifully carved.

The Bok Singing Tower is known far and wide for its carillon of 71 bells. These range in size from 12 pounds to eleven and a half tons. They hang in tiers near the top of the tower and are played by Anton Brees, one of the greatest carillonners in the world. Concerts are given four times a week from December until the middle of April, with special concerts on Christmas Eve, New Year's Eve and Easter Sunday morning at sunrise.

Mr. Bok's ideal through life was a message passed on to him by his grandparents: "Make you the world a bit better and more beautiful because you have lived in it." In the bird sanctuary and singing tower, dedicated to the memory of his grandparents, he has generously and beautifully perpetuated his life's ideal.

Sportsman Column By Warden Proctor

It's in the early morning hours when you see the wild life at its best. One day recently "Al" Milne, the local fishman, with his daughter and some friends from Massachusetts were standing on the de-tour bridge on the road to Greenville, route 31, when they saw what they thought was a big dog coming up the middle of Gabel brook. They all stood very still and were thrilled when a young buck deer came up and passed under the bridge. "Al" said he could have put his foot on the animal as it passed under his feet. It soon got a scent of them and was away in no time. Later they saw a flock of wild duck and plenty of birds just back from the South. The early hours for seeing wild life.

Did you know that there is a big shortage in Pheasants. Quail, wild turkey and kinds of water fowl. A man who has got a nice lot of breeding stock is all set for a good business. Ring Neck pheasant eggs are in good demand this year and breeders are reporting a good business in this line.

The open season on horned pout is June 1st and that's plenty early enough. Right now they are full of spawn. In Massachusetts they are now catching pout. They figure there that if the ponds are open to pout fishing that will save their trout. But what about the pout?

The other day I took a nice long hike on Temple mountain. I ran into Mr. Glazier who is building camps on the mountain side and next winter (if we have snow) will have a wonderful place for the skier. The day I was there he had several men burning brush and building trails. A nice brook, the head waters of Blood run through the property. It's a wonderful location and you want to run in some day and give it the once over.

"Cluck" Cummings of that Fly Casting club at Peterborough gave me a "Royal Coachman" Fly the other day and its up to me now to see if I can coax one of those big ones to bite.

Garden Club Holds Monthly Meeting

The Antrim Garden Club met Monday evening, May 3, at the home of Mrs. Blanche Thompson. The president, Mrs. Alice Nylander, presided and the usual business was transacted.

Schedules for the Flower Show to be held June 23rd in the town hall, were given out.

The program consisted of the poem "Daffodils", read by Mrs. Caughey. A Book Review, "Color in My Garden" by Louise Beebe Wilder, was given by Mrs. Roberts. Mrs. Caughey told some very interesting "Believe it or not" facts about flowers and plants.

The next meeting will be a pilgrimage to Lowell and Lacart. Members will be notified when the exact date, which depends on the season, is known.

Rose Poor, Press Cor.

In the old days of volunteer fire companies, the partisans of rival organizations often expended more time and effort in keeping each other in the background than they devoted to the conflagration. The internal strife in the Republican party during the presidential campaign of 1884 gave rise to a cartoon based on the contending fire company idea. Mr. Blaine was defeated as a result of division in the ranks of those who might have been expected to form a united group behind him. The Democrats received similar instruction in the bitter school of experience when they split on the free

in Supreme Court

The proposed change in Supreme Court situation has not progressed beyond the point of general discussion, airing of views and offering suggestions. The President's stand is well known. Boiled down to few words it is: More justices, and do it now. A more moderate course, tending in the same direction, is put forward by those who hold that, although changes may be desirable, constitutional amendment is what is required. The latest plan to be put forward is an eighteen year term of service, terminated in any event when the age of seventy

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be sagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of rest and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. The Doan's Pills, Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your druggist!

Hugh Bradley Says

Bob Feller Is Shy; Publicity Has Not Swelled His Head

THEY said the kid was upstairs in his room but that it would be a good idea to hurry for it was about time for the night...

The two young Indians sat down. Weatherly is small and pudgy and twenty-two, but looks even younger than Feller.

"We get along great," said Stormy. "Like the same things, like to go to bed early."

Feller was sitting silently. He is a shy youngster, terribly afraid that people will think all this publicity has gone to his head.

His dad visited him at New Orleans and some one asked if Pop would spend much time in Cleveland this summer.

"No, Dad doesn't like big cities," he said. "If I have a good year, though, he'll probably do a lot of visiting."

He pitches three-quarter fashion now, but doesn't wholly approve of the plan.

"I'd like to be a pitcher like Walter Johnson," he said. "He pitched side-arm, didn't he? And he lasted a long time didn't he? Well, I think I should pitch side-arm, too."

"How many do I think I'll win? I just wouldn't say, couldn't say. I'll be satisfied if my average is as good as it was last year."

Last year in his short time with the club he won five games, lost three. If he averages a victory a week he'll come up with twenty-three decisions.

Business Manager Slapnick's recent statement that Feller would pitch once a week doesn't meet with his heartiest approval.

"Why, back home I used to pitch three times a week," he says, "and it never bothered me."

Never Tries Bean Ball but Batters Beware!

Some one suggested that perhaps the American league was a little different than the sandlots of Iowa. "Well, not to me, it's not," he replied.

"All I do is rear back and let it go, whether it's in a sandlot game or up here."

Some one else wondered if, when he improved his control, the haters wouldn't gain more confidence. "I just won't improve that much," he said.

"What about Hubbell, what do you think of him?" "I guess he's the greatest pitcher I've ever seen," he said.

Then some one asked him if he had a girl back home and the meeting sort of broke up. "Well sort of," he said.

How it was that the Dodgers did not take Gabby Hartnett when he was offered to them by the Cubs? Gabby, one of the smartest and most popular players of recent years, still should have a season or two of top catching and hitting left in him.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE: THE Yankees figure Detroit is the team to beat this year. They insist Cleveland is over-rated and that Bob Feller can be beaten by a combination of waiting him out and bunting.

Nasty men insist that all is not sweetness and light among Cornell's football folks. They insist that Graduate Manager Jim Lynch recently called in Coach Carl Snavely to chide him about proselyting activities and that Carl has been doing a bit of lip-biting since.

Although Temple loses 14 letter-men by graduation Pop Warner wears a bigger smile at spring football practice than he did 13 months ago.

Vinnie Richards again has been invited to coach the Australian Davis cup team in preparation for the Aussie's North American zone finals with the United States at Forest Hills May 29-31.

Dick Gill, Boston college's gas-house blond, is due for plenty of shoving around on the intercollegiate tracks this spring.

He is of a Samurai family, a veteran of the Russo-Japanese war. He was the gentlest strong man who ever worked at that ancient trade, taking over Manchuria apologetically, but with dispatch.

"New American Race." PERHAPS Van Wyck Brooks' "The Flowering of New England" left you sad. They almost made a culture, but not quite.

They are excellent, healthy white stock," says Dr. Hrdlicka. "It is something of a pity that they can't be kept in an Eden and stay there forever."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

A Modern Cellist. NEW YORK.—Pietro Mascagni, the greatest living Italian composer, was quite angry and unforgiving about America after his tour of 1902.

It is, of course, big news in the musical world, but the shaggy, old composer probably will land on the news pages, too, as he has a way of touching off excitement of one sort or other—not always musical.

First off, there was that unhappy business about the maestro's shirts—on that 1902 tour. The laundries tore them up or put saw edges on the collars, or stuck them full of pins.

There was a fierce tangle of lawsuits, and ever since then Signor Mascagni's graying, bushy hair has bristled a bit at mention of America.

He was a baker's son, helping his father in the bakery. He slipped a tiny statue of the Virgin in a loaf of bread. A rich woman customer broke her front tooth on it, and, dodging his angry parent, young Pietro kept on going—an itinerant player and student.

He was unknown in Italy in 1902, when his Cavalleria Rusticana was produced. The next day he was as well known and as conspicuous as Vesuvius, acclaimed as the successor of Verdi, experiencing what he might call a Lindberghian triumph.

He is quite a way over to the left in 1922, but finally made his peace with Mussolini. Mussolini had promised senatorial togas for both Puccini and Mascagni, in 1926, but only Puccini's came through.

He is a dapper little man who likes to go about his business in a quiet, genteel way. When he conquered, in 100 days, a Manchuria area as large as a brace of New England states, he put on a regular daytime fighting shift, with all hands knocking off when the whistle blew, all lights out at eight and everybody asleep at nine.

He was quite complacent about it, having consulted the famous soothsayer, Donsho Kodama, who had called every important happening in Japan before it happened—including the fall of six cabinets.

"They are excellent, healthy white stock," says Dr. Hrdlicka. "It is something of a pity that they can't be kept in an Eden and stay there forever."
