Jimmie and Dick Please Full House

Jimmie and Dick, "The Novelty Boys", radio stars of Station WEEI in Boston, featuring Cora Deane "The Kansas City Kitty", were greeted at the town hall on Monday evening by an overflowing crowd; extra seats were brought in from Fireman's hall to accommodate the crowd. This was their fourth appearance at the local town hall, and although rain fell all evening, a capacity house was on hand to listen to their high class program of songs, instrumental music and fun, and the audience was most enthusiastic and demanded encores again and again.

An amateur contest was conducted in conjunction with this program which was also enthusiastically received and enjoyed by the large gathering.

Prizes were awarded as follows: 1st, Alice Normandin, West Deering, song and dance; 2nd, Velma Newton, Bennington, song; 3rd, Evelyn Rockwell, tap dance; 4th, Richard Davis, Marlow, song and dance, accompanied at the piano by his sister, Miss Lois Davis.

A special amateur attraction was little Miss Claudette Faucher of Haverhill, Mass., three years old, who sang several selections and received much applause.

People were present from Marlow, Wear, Hillsboro, Henniker, West Hopkinton, East Jaffrey, Bennington and several other towns.

Many a beautiful love affair ends its life as a breach of promise suit and many a lawyer is kept busy soldering up broken hearts with gold.

To Organize Boys' Baseball Teams

Boys' parents and friends:

Would you boys like to play baseball this summer? Would you, as parents, like to have your boys play baseball this summer?

Well, this is what we would like to ask of you: Come to the town hall on Monday evening, April 25, at seven o'clock. The Men's Civic Club would like to have the opinion of the youngsters and their parents. We would like to organize four teams of boys 13 years to 18 years old to play games between each other.

This is good, clean sport and we feel confident that a liberal number of Old Timers will devote some time as coaches and help teach the boys the game as it should be played.

So, if you are interested, come to this meeting. Do not feel that we are trying to get you there to subscribe to this plan, in cash. We would like to get the sentiment of the boys and the people in general.

This is not for a special group of boys, nor is it for the village boys only; it is for all the boys of this age in this town, and each one will have a chance.

Churches Observe Holy Week, Easter

Holy Week was observed in Antrim with two union church meetings. Thursday evening, a service of meditation and communion was held at the Presbyterian church under the leadership of Rev. William McN. Kittredge, assisted by Rev. Ralph H. Tibbals. Friday evening, a union service of devotion and worship for Good Friday was held at the Baptist church. Both meetings were attended by a good number of townspeople.

Easter Sunday was observed with special church services in all the Antrim churches. A union sunrise service was held at the Baptist church at 6 o'clock under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Fellowship. Rev. Lloyd Yeagle of Hancock was the speaker.

In the evening a dramatic cantata was presented at the Presbyterian Church under the direction of Mrs. Gertrude Thornton and Rev. and Mrs. William McN. Kittredge, which was very beautiful and realistic.

The scene was laid in the home of Galus, a Roman legionary in Jerusalem, during the days immediately following the crucifixion of Christ. Ten musical numbers rendered by a combined choir from Antrim, helped to beautify the dramatic presentation of the story. A cast of sixteen characters made the scene very real.

The cast is as follows:

Galus, a young Roman legionary — Archie M. Swett.
Rachel, his wife, a beautiful Jewess — Mrs. A. J. Zabriskie.
Marcus, his friend, also a soldier — Ralph Zabriskie.
Young son of Galus and Rachel — Charles Zabriskie.
Anna, a maidservant — Mrs. Archie M. Swett.
Sarah, the mother of Rachel — Mrs. Fred A. Dunlap.
Christian friends of Sarah; three men and three women — Franklin Robinson, Robert Swett, James Perkins, Charlotte Phillips, Betty Hollis and Norine Edwards.
Mary Magdalene — Miss S. Faye Benedict.
A Physician — Ross H. Roberts.
Two men attendants — Wesley Hills and John Grimes.
Over 250 people attended this service and all appreciated this beautiful presentation.

STUDENTS CAN WIN AWARDS FOR ESSAY

Prizes are being offered to high school students for a 250 word essay "Wings Across America," dealing with the ideas, purposes and advantages of air transportation.

These essays must be postmarked not later than May 1 and should be addressed to State Chairman National Air Mail Week Essay Contest in care of the local postmaster who will forward the essays to State Headquarters. They must also be certified by the school principal. The first prize given by the State is a trip by air from the nearest airport to Washington, D. C., and return, second prize, a trophy which will be awarded by State Headquarters.

The national prizes are first a trip by air to Hollywood and return with hotel accommodations and meals for five days; second prize, a National trophy and third prize a National Plaque. This contest will not only give the children who enter it an opportunity to win a prize but also to help educate the public in the advantages of air mail service. The contest is being given in connection with air mail week.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Eight members of Ephraim Weston Relief Corps of Antrim attended the pre-convention reception held at Concord Wednesday evening, April 13th. Miss Josie Coughlan being a Department officer, was in the receiving line.

Mrs. Sadie Munhall, Mrs. Louise Auger, Mrs. Mary Warren, Mrs. Ada Rockwell and Mrs. Helen Hills attended the convention on Thursday.

A regular meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Leon Hugron Tuesday, April 19, at 8 o'clock. Supper was served at 6.30 by the hostess and her committee.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Helen Hills on May 17th.

THE REPORTER'S RECIPE COLUMN

by HELEN RICHARDSON

OATMEAL HERMITS

1 1/2 cup sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
2 cups oatmeal
1 cup seeded raisins (cut in pieces)
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon; stir in oatmeal and raisins. Cream shortening, gradually beat in sugar then eggs; stir in flour-oatmeal mixture alternately with milk. Drop by teaspoon on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven about 15 mins. Makes 3 dozen cookies.

MOLOED SHRIMP SALAD

1 tbs. gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. mustard
2 egg yolks slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 tbs. melted butter
4 tbs. lemon juice
1 can shrimp, cleaned and cut in pieces
Lettuce
Salmon, crabmeat or tuna fish may be used in place of shrimp.

Soften gelatin in cold water 5 mins. Combine seasonings, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler, cook over hot water 6 to 8 mins. or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter, lemon juice and gelatin, stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from fire and add shrimp. Turn into mold and chill until firm. Turn onto bed of lettuce and serve with cream dressing or cucumber cream dressing.

CUCUMBER CREAM DRESSING

2 tbs. vinegar
2 tbs. sugar
1 cup diced cucumbers
1 cup heavy cream whipped
Add vinegar and sugar to cucumbers; fold in cream. This is good served with any meat or chicken salads.

CORNFLAKES MACAROONS

2 egg whites
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. almond extract
1 cup shredded cocoanut
2 cups cornflakes

Beat egg whites until frothy, sprinkle salt over top and beat until stiff; gradually beat in sugar; then flavoring; fold in cocoanut and cornflakes. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven 15 to 20 mins. Place pan on damp cloth and remove macaroons immediately with knife. Makes about 3 dozen.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor Fish and Game Conservation Officer

The first letter I pick up out of the large assortment of mail this week is a clipping from a paper in Timmins, Ont., telling of the smothering of a four months old child by a big cat crouching on its chest. The article went on to tell of the great many similar cases in the past year. Keep big cats away from small children.

This last surprise snow storm was a hard blow to the birds that came back several weeks ago. My winter feeding stations were alive with wild birds over the week-end. Large flocks of robins were seen in every back yard trying to find a place where a big fat juicy worm had come to the surface.

The past week by actual count I had 14 post cards asking some question, I am very willing to answer all questions that I can but it's only right and proper for the party asking to enclose a stamp or a postcard for reply. The Dept. does not furnish me with stamps so it's up to me to dig down for the postage. So have a heart.

In the past year I have at different times taken box traps to catch a skunk out of some one's cellar or back shed. Owing to a pressure of other business I have forgotten where some of these traps now are. If you have one of them please drop me a post card or a phone call at my expense and when near your place will pick it up. Thank you.

If you have a pond in your district that you think needs stocking with pout, bass or white perch get in touch with us right off. We are now making up our lists for the spring stocking of ponds. If not in my district get in touch with the Warden in your own district. He will be glad of your assistance.

The smelt law has been changed and you can take but five pounds a day. The law used to read 10 lbs. Most of the smelt brooks in my district are closed to all smelt fishing.

In the past week I have had calls for a lot of big watch dogs. Have been able to furnish homes for six the past week but still the calls come in. What have you?

This is the time of the year that they drop off dogs before the Selectmen come around. Later they go around and find the lost dog. We have on hand or know of nine nice dogs picked up last week. If you have lost or found a dog report it in at once either to us or the local Police Dept.

It is with a great deal of pride that we look around and see that most of the self hunting dogs have been tied up. This is a great compliment to the boys who try and live within the law. We understand that once in a while a dog will slip his collar or break a chain but such things happen. But if they don't happen too often.

No furbearing animal is so well protected as the beaver. No trapper can send one into a fur house without it's being reported back at once to the state from whence it came. If they are protected in that state the trapper finds himself in the hands of the law. It can't be done. The boys of the State Police have been having their hands full the past few weeks. With impassable back roads and many breaks in summer homes the "boys" have had plenty of sleepless nights. But on the other hand they have cleaned up a lot of breaks and have shown this class of would be gangsters that they can't get away with it.

Several valuable hunting dogs have been reported as lost the past week and any one finding report at once to the nearest Conservation Officer. All had well marked collars when they disappeared.

Francis and Herbert Chamberlain of Dublin, two school children of that town, sent me two paper bags filled with tinfoil. Some one asked me what they did with the tin foil and what connection it had with the Shriner's hospitals. Well this tin foil is melted and made into a hundred different things which are sold and the money turned over to the hospitals for Crippled Children. Candelsticks, cigar holders and many other things. It's a worthy cause and we like to help it along.

Thumbtacks seem to be a bad combination with dogs. The past few weeks I have been called in to see a number of dogs that were very lame. Every case a thumbtack had been picked up by the dog's foot. So look at your dog's feet if he goes lame suddenly.

Last week was burning week and every town I visited large gangs of men were at work burning over fields and pastures. Most of this was near public highways. It was done to prevent fires from careless smokers.

Expect to Add Petroleum to Rich Alaska Products

Wealth of Commodities Now Flow From Territory.

Washington, D. C.—Ever since Seward pushed to a successful conclusion the purchase of Alaska, his critics have been forced to "eat their words." Alaska cost $7,200,000, an oversize sum for an ice box in 1867, but few investments of United States dollars in land have given better return.

Recently 500 tons of oil drilling equipment were dispatched to new oil fields of southwest Alaska in the hope of adding petroleum to the long list of commodities now flowing from the territory.

Alaska Spells It "Salmon."
"Without oil figuring in the role of an export, Alaska, last year, shipped to the United States products valued at nearly nine times the amount paid to Russia for the territory," says the National Geographic society.

"Alaska salmon canneries transported $42,026,365 worth of their supplies these, as well as hides of hair seals, from which purses are made, and fur seal skins, which become popular, durable wearing apparel.

"The Pribilof islands in the Bering sea are the breeding grounds of four-fifths of the fur seals in the world. The seals are protected by the government and only immature males are killed. Last year 55,000 fur seals were taken. Nearly 1,000 blue fox pelts also were produced on the islands.

Alaska Good Market.
"Alaska has great forest resources of hemlock and spruce that have been only partially cut over.

"Vast acres in the territory, worthless for agriculture or forest, are used as grazing grounds for reindeer herds. About 1,280 reindeer were dispatched to Alaska in 1891-1902 from Lapland and Siberia. In 1938 there were 800,000, although many were killed to supply Eskimos with food and clothing. Last year the United States imported $18,000 worth of surplus reindeer meat and hides.

"Alaska is a good market for American goods, importing $42,860,774 worth in 1937. Largest single import was more than $6,000,000 worth of tin cans for salmon canneries. A million dollars worth of fish-canning equipment, and quantities of machinery and vehicles also were purchased by Alaskan industry. American ships brought to Alaskan ports meat and dairy products, nearly 2,000,000 dozen eggs, grains, vegetables, and fruits, including, for the first time, canned

Monster Snake Conveyed in Deed Found in Ohio

Mansfield, Ohio.—WPA workers engaged in a survey of records of Richland county discovered an eighty-year-old deed conveying not only a 20 acre tract of swamp land but also a fabulous giant rattlesnake believed to dwell in the marsh.

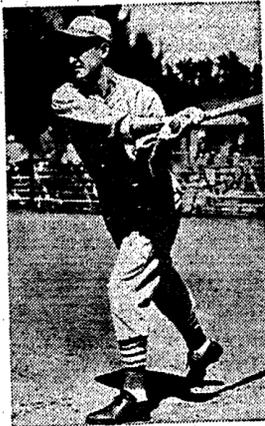

By deed dated February 10, 1858, George B. Wright, as receiver for a railroad company, conveyed the land and the monstrous snake to Allen B. Beverstock, of Lexington, Ky.

The reptile was supposed to be of such size and strength that it could push down fences, breaking the rails with its weight. Beverstock not only had a clause of conveyance inserted in the deed to gain title to the serpent, but a pen sketch of the animal was drawn on the face of the deed.

The picture was more than 10 inches long. It was that of a gray snake, its back spotted with yellow, with a longitudinal row of black spots bordered with white. What became of the snake, or whether it ever was seen, was not recorded.

"For Alaskan housewives 'made in the U. S.' baking soda, sewing machines and brooms, fancy soaps, perfume and cosmetics, and pianos were imported."

Discover Haydn Sonata Lost for a Century

Pianist to Bring It to U. S. for Publication.

Paris.—An unpublished Haydn piano sonata, written in 1796, has been discovered by Johann Singer, young New York pianist, and he has arranged for the possessor of the manuscript to take it to the United States in May. Until then his identity is being kept secret.

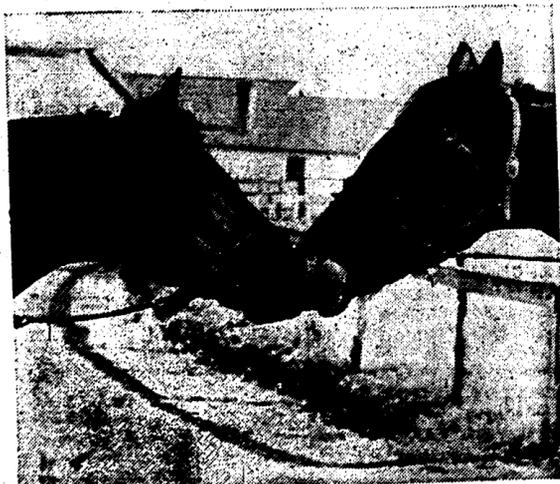

Singer found the work six years ago among a collection of old manuscripts in a bookshop in Antwerp but he kept the discovery secret until he was able to verify its authenticity and get the opinions of leading musicians in France and Belgium. He is certain now that the sonata is a late work of Haydn, which was never published while the composer was alive and somehow was overlooked by his heirs for more than 100 years.

The manuscript proved to be an old copy made from the original, which is in the possession of a musician in Frankfurt. The work has been played from the manuscript several times in Germany without being identified.

Singer himself has played it at various times in concerts in the United States as an encore but did not say what it was.

"The work is a piano sonata in four movements," Singer explained. "I recognized the style when I first played it but said nothing until I had time to go into it thoroughly. I found it had the same thematic material as was used in an earlier, less developed Haydn sonatine, and the form and exposition of the work is definitely 'late Haydn.' Professors at the Conservatoire in Paris, and leading musicians in Liege and Antwerp have studied it with me and agreed."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—By now, the smoke of battle has cleared away and a proper appraisal can be made of the greatest political defeat President Roosevelt has had since he entered the White House. Perhaps, indeed, by killing the government reorganization bill, the house of representatives administered to Mr. Roosevelt the most stern rebuke he ever has had since he entered politics. That licking has been given now and we are, or ought to be, concerned with its meaning because the story contains valuable information.

First, I think it ought to be said that Mr. Roosevelt was made a victim of his own brand of politics. It is quite absurd to say that the bill to reorganize the federal government would have given him dictatorial powers. It did add to his powers, but he has powers now which would let him be a dictator if he felt that he dared to use them. So we can dismiss that dictatorship phase of the controversy insofar as its merit is concerned. We can not dismiss it, however, as a factor, indeed, the factor, that brought about the President's crushing defeat.

There is no use in hemming and hawing about the real issue that was decided in the house vote, which was by the narrow margin of 204 to 196. That issue was the combined fear and dislike of Mr. Roosevelt against confidence in and blind following of Mr. Roosevelt. In other words, it was the climax of a fight that has been going on since Mr. Roosevelt attempted to force legislation granting him six additional appointments to the Supreme Court of the United States, an accumulation of undercurrent bitterness.

The real importance of the reorganization bill, therefore, lay in the fact that it was a political football, a vehicle. It was being carried by Mr. Roosevelt's faction in congress—and eventually was booted off of the field by those who dislike or distrust him.

The reason I feel so certain about the real issue in the case is that a Democratic congress only a few short years ago almost gave the then President, Herbert Hoover, the same powers sought by Mr. Roosevelt now. Further, an overwhelmingly Democratic - New Deal congress did give Mr. Roosevelt virtually the same powers in 1933, and he neglected to use them. The question, therefore, strikes me as being clear cut. In fact, it is made to appear that there is no question. A majority of congress—representatives and senators—were looking for a chance to show the President they again want to be congress and not a rubber stamp.

The strangest thing about this battle was that a mistake by the President provided the basis for a new courage on the part of congress.

I said above that it was absurd for anyone to believe the reorganization bill would make Mr. Roosevelt dictator. It would have done some dangerous things which I shall discuss later in this article, but the dictator phase was rather silly. Yet, it was the conviction of hundreds of thousands of persons that the legislation would make Mr. Roosevelt dictator that licked the bill. And paradoxically, Mr. Roosevelt caused them to believe that. His own act was responsible for that conviction.

It will be remembered that Mr. Roosevelt was in Warm Springs, Ga., on vacation when the bill was passed by the senate. It was obvious from the close call it had in the senate, even after certain concessions had been made, that it was confronted with trouble in the house. Mr. Roosevelt told newspaper correspondents at Warm Springs of his gratification that the "senate could not be purchased by misrepresentation." That provoked a row in the senate. Sen. Hiram Johnson of California told the senate he would be "wanting in courage if he did not resent" such statements. Others spoke as frankly.

The congressional record for that day contains several emphatic observations to the effect that Mr. Storm Broke Roosevelt was trading closely to the edge of constitutional rights. The Constitution, it will be recalled, assures the right of petition. It says that congress must make no law that will interfere with the right of petitioning the government.

That was just a flurry, however, when compared with that storm which was to break next day. According to authenticated reports, Mr. Roosevelt informed the correspondents in his party at Warm Springs that he would have an important announcement to make very late that night. They were enjoined to say nothing; they were not to let their home offices know that an important announcement was coming. In the middle of the night—between midnight and one o'clock—the correspondents were given the important announcement of which they had been advised. It was a letter, or a copy of a letter to "a friend," who was not identified in the press release. It praised the purposes and plans of the reorganization bill and then said in these words:

"I do not want to be a dictator; I have none of the qualifications to be a successful dictator, and I have too much historical background and too much knowledge of existing dictatorships to make me desire any form of dictatorship for America."

Publication of that statement convinced hundreds of thousands of persons that Mr. Roosevelt could be a dictator under it. They deluged house members with telegrams, letters, telephone calls, personal calls. The pressure was terrific, although in the morning of the day the bill was killed, I doubt there were twenty men in the house who believed the measure would be sent back to committee for burial. They hoped to emasculate it, but they did not believe they could destroy it completely.

Now, as to a further reason why I believe the President's denial of a dictatorship desire proved his own undoing, I quote here a paragraph of a statement made on the floor of the house by Representative Barton of New York (an advertising executive in private life):

"Mr. Speaker, one of the first lessons I learned in advertising was taught me by the head of a great concern manufacturing radiators. He said to me: 'Never advertise that our radiators do not leak. I do not want the word, leak, or the idea of leaking associated in the public mind with our product in any way.' Mr. Speaker, night before last a certain gentleman got up in the middle of the night to associate the words, dictator and dictatorship, with his name; thereby putting those words into the minds of 130,000,000 people, many of whom may never have thought of them before. I do not know much about political strategy, but I do know that this national advertisement of an idea of dictatorship, like his use of the word, purchase, and his use of the word, feudalism, was bad advertising practice."

And there you have the complete answer. It was the greatest political mistake Mr. Roosevelt has made, greater even than submission of the bill to appoint six new members of the Supreme court. When he mentioned dictatorship, millions of Americans, proud of America, its traditions and its heritages, suddenly understood and said "No, Mr. President!"

Earlier, I mentioned some dangerous phases of the bill. Those phases concern federal money and federal patronage. Patronage, now and projects, as the thing is now broadcast.

At the outset, the bill contained provisions for placing the interstate commerce commission under political control. That would provide political control of the railroads—and railroad rates. Politicians have wanted to get fingers in that pie for half a century. Outbursts against that were terrific and it was eliminated. Provisions which would have permitted political control of the securities and exchange commission also were sidetracked. But there remained provisions which would have destroyed the general accounting office and the civil service commission. The first named agency decides whether congressional appropriations have been spent or are being spent according to law. The second has been the defender of the merit system in government. It has fought off political spoilsmen successfully until recent years.

Had these two provisions remained in the bill and if it had passed congress, Mr. Roosevelt, or any succeeding President, would have had direct control of spending billions of dollars, ordinary government expenses, relief, public works, grants to cities and states—all of the money. And reference must be made to political appointments for the spending of this money because they go hand in hand. There you have executive control that could perpetuate any kind of a political machine; Pendergast, in Kansas City, or the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, or Guffey in Pennsylvania, had to be in league with the White House in Washington or sink, if the President had the control that was proposed.

In summation, then, it seems proper to say that Democrats are breaking away from the New Deal faction in a more definite manner than ever before. I firmly believe we shall see reprisals against many of them; I believe, too, we will see some who voted against the reorganization bill come crawling back for presidential favors in order to gain re-election, and I think we saw in the reorganization bill defeat, the beginning of the end of the New Deal in control of American national policies.

NEW YORK.—This summer's session of the Institute of Pacific Relations will have many new factors and policies to consider, as new power formulas are being drawn. The Philippines have changed their mind about cutting their United States towline. Japan and Germany make a joint survey of a 50-mile, low-lying canal route across the upper neck of Siam, which will bring Japan four days nearer Australia and perhaps five days nearer India. England's Singapore naval base isn't what it used to be. Australia announces a big new rearmament program.

Ian Mackenzie, Canada's handsome and versatile defense minister, breaks the news that Canada will rely on the United States fleet, voicing "reasonable assumption," rather than definite "commitments."

And Paul V. McNutt, commissioner of the Philippines, says we should carry "liberty and peace" to the Far East.

Mr. Mackenzie, a Vancouver lawyer, is one of Canada's most famous he was the most illustrious prize-scholar of his generation, virtually monopolizing all the medals and garlands of the University of Edinburgh, for attainment in the classics.

He later won a Carnegie research fellowship, gathering more honors in his work on old Irish manuscripts. He later attended the Royal academy at Dublin, wrote songs and stories in the ancient Celtic language and picked up a law degree as a sort of afterthought.

He went to Vancouver in 1914, returned for the war, and romped through grades to the rank of captain, fighting in all the major engagements.

He kept his stride in his later success in law and politics in Vancouver, becoming national defense minister in 1935. He is regarded as Canada's most eligible bachelor. He says his favorite recreation is study.

JOSEPH A. LYONS, Australian prime minister who announces a rearmament program of approximately $215,000,000, has no such gift of tongues and reached eminence by a longer and harder road.

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken and bull-headed father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sherman Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sherman's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides.

CHAPTER I—Continued

From under the counter where he lay the storekeeper did not announce his presence. He had ducked just in time to keep from being seen.

A crook-nosed man with rusty hair stood beside some sacks filled with potatoes.

"Who in Mexico are you, Sorrel-top?" demanded Pender. "Where's that bald-headed galoot Sanger?"

He did not wait for an answer. In his hands was a rifle drawn from its place beside the saddle. Raising it, he drummed holes in the tinware suspended from the wall. A forty-four had jumped to the hand of the man beside the potatoes, but though the weapon covered the drunken fool it was not fired.

The frightened horse went into the air, and as it came down jammed the rider's leg against the counter. The animal whirled, flung Pender from the saddle, and dashed wildly out of the store. Scrambling to his feet, the drink-crazed man snatched up the rifle and followed his mount. He took a shot at the gelding as it went racing up the street in a cloud of dust. Apparently he had forgotten what he had come to get, for he limped across to the cow-ponies in front of the Golden Nugget, selected one, mounted, and rode away with a wild yell.

Sanger showed cautiously the top of his bald head above the counter. "Fireworks over," drawled the crook-nosed man, and his weapon vanished from sight. He gave the girl a hand to help her up from where he had flung her. "You were sure right, Mr. Sanger. You know yore town. It livened up like you promised."

Ruth Chiswick stood beside him, breathing a little faster than usual, her cheeks still pale. The man with whom she was eloping came round the corner of the counter. He was carrying a revolver.

"I would sure have got that bird if I hadn't seen he didn't mean business," Lou Howard boasted.

Ruth looked at him, scorn in her eyes. The scorn was less for him than for herself. For hours she had been discovering that the man she had chosen was vain, shallow, and a boaster. Now she knew too that he lacked courage, the one essential virtue on the frontier for men both good and bad.

"Watching him through a knot-hole maybe," the stranger suggested lazily, a hint of derision in his murmured comment.

Lou turned to Ruth. "Let's get out of here," he said sulkily. "Sanger is going to send Spicer down to Ma Presnall's."

The crook-nosed man remembered having seen a sign on the street mentioning that Al Spicer was a justice of the peace.

In a low voice Ruth said, "I'd like to speak with you alone, Lou."

"Sure," he replied. "On the way down to the hotel."

"No. At the back of the store." Her voice was almost a whisper. He followed her reluctantly toward the small boxed-in office.

The girl talked, fast and low. She seemed to be both urging and pleading. An angry oath ripped into her words. "Have you gone crazy?" Howard demanded, raising his voice. "Think you can make a fool of me?"

She spoke again, trying to calm him. He would not listen. "You can't do this crazy thing. You've compromised yourself. Don't you see it, you little idiot? Folks will talk about you. They'll say—"

Ruth began to lose patience. "Never mind what they'll say. I've made up my mind. I'm going home."

"You got no right to treat me that way. I'm not going to stand for it."

"I'm sorry, but be sensible, Lou. Be glad I've found out in time."

He flung a name at her. She looked at him for a moment steadily, then turned and walked up the store.

"My name is Ruth Chiswick," she told the man with the rusty hair. "I'm much obliged to you for looking after me."

"Nothing at all, Miss. I'm a stranger here—name, Jeff Gray."

Lou Howard joined them and broke in curtly, speaking to Ruth. "Let's get out where we can be alone and talk this over."

The name he had called her still rang hotly in her heart. "I've nothing more to say to you, sir," she said, and again there was the sting of a lash in the low voice. Ruth turned to walk from the store, but instead of doing so stood rigid, her eyes fixed on two men riding down the street. To Howard she said, over her shoulder: "You'd better light out; my father is here."

The young man took one look at the dismounting men. "Maybe I had better, to keep from having trouble with him," he faltered.

He left by the side door. The girl did not even notice him go.

"I don't see how Father could have found out already," she said, frowning in thought. "But that doesn't matter. I'll go meet him."

Gray shook his head. That would not do. Decent girls could not go into such a place as the Golden Nugget for any reason. He heard himself, to his own surprise, offering to do her errand.

He walked across the road into the gambling-house.

A big, fat, heavy-shouldered man who was playing solitaire lifted his head as Sid and Mile High came into the Golden Nugget. He beckoned them to him.

Nobody paid any attention to the body on the floor.

"What's all the shootin' about?" he asked.

One of the men playing poker at the next table leaned back to catch the answer.

"Jim Pender on one of his toots," Sid replied. "Wants to clean up the town again, Sherm."

Sherman Howard frowned down at the table and shifted a queen.

"He'll go just so far, that bird."

The man at the poker table, a tall, broad-shouldered fellow with black, curly hair, said significantly, "He's here only for a short visit."

"I reckon you're shoutin' Curly," agreed Mile High. "I never liked any of that bully-puss warrior's game." He mentioned, in a low voice, news that might or might not be important. "Stranger in our midst."

"Where?" asked Curly.

"Over at Sanger's. Drapped in on a big roan that has been rode far."

"What kind of a guy?" inquired Howard.

"Red-headed. Tough as they come. Wears his gun low." Howard made a sign and a man strolled over from the faro table. He was a slim, hard-eyed young fellow sporting a fancy silk bandanna tied loosely round his neck. The name he went under was Morgan Norris. He was known to be a killer.

"Stranger over at Sanger's, Morg," the solitaire player said. "Might stroll over and size him up. Find out if you can where he comes from, what he is doing here, and how long he aims to stay."

Into the Golden Nugget walked two men. Their entrance created a stir, as a breath of wind does in a field of grain. Out of the corner of his mouth Curly murmured, "Look who's here." Interest in the games momentarily diminished. The bartender stopped polishing a glass. To Morgan Norris, in a whisper, Mile High gave warning: "Keep yore shirt on, Morg. Let Sherm make the play."

The men who had just walked into the gambling-house had the stamp of their calling written on every crease of their dusty clothes, on every wrinkle of their weather-beaten faces. Both were big men who had taken on the solidity that comes with years.

Unless his salient, close-shut jaw, his steady, keen, blue eyes gave false witness, the older man, Lee Chiswick, was one of dominant will, one who would fight for his rights. His companion and foreman, Dan Brand, was a barrel-chested fellow of great physical strength. On his tanned, open face there was the hint of a smile, not unfriendly, as if he offered it to mitigate the hostility of his chief.

A thin, satiric smile rested on the face of Sherman Howard. He leaned back in his chair, opaque eyes fastened on the older of the newcomers.

"Nice to have you drop in on us, Lee. You don't often get around Tail Holt way. We sure feel honored." He nodded at the younger man. "You, too, Brand. Both welcome as the flowers in May. Pete, take the orders. The house is drinking on me."

"I don't drink with you or any of your crowd, Howard," said Lee Chiswick harshly. "I'm here strictly for business."

Through the swing doors a man dropped into the Golden Nugget. He was the stranger who had given his name as Jeff Gray.

"Tail Holt will welcome yore business, Lee. You have always been cash on the barrel-head," Howard told the cattleman blandly, ignoring the insult.

"I came to serve notice that anyone who steals my stock from now on will do so at his own risk," Chiswick answered bluntly. "I've given my men orders to shoot rustlers at sight."

A tense silence followed the words of the cattleman, one pregnant with peril. Gray's gaze swept the room. Unless rumor lied, three-fourths of these men present must be cattle rustlers.

Instinctively Gray knew that half a dozen men were waiting for their cue. Howard gave it to them. For the time at least his decision was for peace.

"That's fine," he said with suave mockery. "Sooner we get rid of scalawags of that kind the better."

"You can pass the word that any I catch will be hanged to the nearest live oak," Chiswick said flatly.

Morgan Norris asked a question, his eyes narrowed, his voice low.

"Having anyone particular in mind, Mr. Chiswick?"

"Meaning anyone the shoe fits," Howard answered for the cattleman. "And I don't reckon that is anybody present, Morg. If there is any way we can help Mr. Chiswick, we will all be glad to do so. Am I right, boys?"

"Sure you're right, Sherm," agreed Curly Connor heartily. "If you can use me, Mr. Chiswick, I'm much at yore service."

"Don't want your help," Chiswick flung out bitterly. "I'll look out for my own stuff and find out whether an honest man has a chance against a pack of thieves. What I'm here to tell you is that from now on I'll be sheriff, judge, and hangman on the L C range."

Dan Brand, foreman of the L C outfit, poured oil on the roiled waters. "Don't get us wrong, boys. We're not here to start trouble but to stop it. This steal is getting so big the L C has got to bust it up or go broke. We don't claim we know who is doing this rustling. If we did, our job would be easy."

"We don't know, but we can guess," Chiswick cut in hardily.

"Out loud?" Norris asked, his eyes slits of menace.

The swing doors of the gambling-hall burst wide open. A wild yell brought everybody in the room to attention. Excitedly a horse did a nervous dance on the floor. Its flushed rider waved a rifle about recklessly. Long black hair fell to the man's shoulders. The chaps were fringed, the fancy vest decorated.

"Way for Wild Jim Pender!" the drunken man shouted.

"All eyes focused on him."

"Get out of here, you fool!" Curly ordered.

"My night to howl!" Pender exclaimed. "Me, I'm a wild wolf from the Chiricahuas."

To emphasize the point, or else by accident, a bullet from his rifle plowed into the ceiling.

Half a dozen revolvers roared together. Pender pitched from the saddle like a sack of meal. He struck the floor in a crumpled heap, rolled over, and lay motionless.

Norris thrust his smoking weapon back into its scabbard and caught the bridle of the rearing horse. Someone else ran forward to assist him. The two men got the frightened animal out of the place.

Sherman Howard gave a curt order. "Get the coroner, Sid."

Nobody paid any attention to the body on the floor. It was as if the roar of the guns had banished the strained situation the entrance of Pender had interrupted. The games were resumed. Sounds of voices, the rattle of chips, the spinning of the roulette wheel filled the room. Wild Bill Pender's adventure was finished business.

Jeff Gray took temporary leave of absence. He had to explain to a girl probably sick with fear that the shooting had nothing to do with her father.

CHAPTER II

The cowboy Sid stood in the doorway of the store.

"Job for you, Sanger," he said. "Fellow bumped off in the Golden Nugget."

Jeff Gray shouldered past him toward the white-faced girl leaning against the counter. "It's all right, Miss Chiswick," the red-headed man told her cheerfully. "Nobody hurt but Pender."

"Who was sure shot into rag dolls?" Sid added.

Ruth relaxed limply as the blood poured back into her frozen heart. "I thought . . . I was afraid . . ."

she murmured, the words drying in her throat.

"Help me carry this stretcher, Sid," requested Sanger. He was coroner and undertaker. In Tail Holt the first of these positions was honorary, but the other was no sinecure.

"Did you tell my father I am here?" Ruth asked.

"Haven't had a chance yet," Gray answered. The other two men were leaving with the stretcher. He continued, lowering his voice: "Mr. Chiswick came to town about some rustling."

"And doesn't know about . . . me?"

"I couldn't say."

"What is he doing in the Golden Nugget?"

"Serving notice that he is on the warpath against rustlers."

The eyes of the girl opened wide. "To that gang in there?"

"Looked to me like some of them were sull about it," he conceded. "Lucky for him Pender picked that time to cut loose his wolf. The boys got the finger-itch out of their systems. I reckon it's going to be all right now. Howard seems to be the big boss, and he is making peace talk."

"Father is so bull-headed," Gray asked for information, reluctantly. This was none of his business, but he had been dragged into it. "This young Howard—any kin to Sherm Howard?"

A flag of color fluttered in her cheeks, but the dark eyes held steadily to his. "Son," she said. Then, sharply, "Why do you ask?"

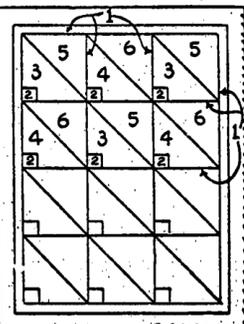

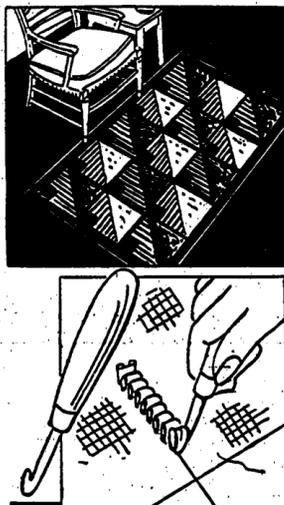

"If you aim to tell yore father about this little fling, maybe you had better get him out of town first," he suggested.

There was a slurring drawl in his speech that stirred anger in her. Clearly he disapproved of what she had done. She did not hesitate to affront the young man who fluttered around her, but she objected to being made the victim of cool contempt.

Hook an Old Fashioned Rag Rug

OF ALL rag rugs the hooked type is the most fascinating and economical. A rug hook, such as may be purchased in notion and fancywork departments, is a little larger than you finished rug are the essentials. Most rug hookers also use a frame of slats bolted together at the corners. They stretch the burlap over the frame and tack it. Some like a rather large stationary frame. Others use a small one and many hooked rugs are made without any frame at all.

Here is a quaint old rug pattern that you may mark off on your burlap with a yardstick and pencil. The numbers indicate the colors used for the original rug—now more than a hundred years old. The finished rug measures 28 by 34 inches. Allow two inches at all edges for hems. Overcast the edges, then mark the solid one-inch border just inside the hem allowance; then the large eight-inch squares; then the small two-inch squares; then draw the diagonal lines across the large squares as shown. Use wool rags if possible and cut the strips not wider than one-half inch. Hold the strip against the wrong side of the burlap and pull loops of it through to the right side with the hook as shown. Short strips are as useful as long. Just pull the ends through and clip them.

A MODERN CURE ALL

When you are not feeling fit, And your head aches fit to split, Take an aspirin.
 Here's a balm for all your ills, Cures fever, cramps and chills, Better than the Doctor's pills, Take an aspirin.

In the balmy days of spring, When romance is on the wing, Take an aspirin.
 If in love you hope to win, Tho' you've failed just try again, Lift your head and square your chin, Take an aspirin.

Should your lover prove untrue, If you feel he has wronged you, Take an aspirin.
 Broken hearts are healed today, We'll be happy come what may, Happiness no power can stay, Take an aspirin.

If your poems are turned down, Should an Editor on you frown, Take an aspirin.
 Tho' you fail a rhyme to make, Let it not your courage shake, Open up the box and take, An aspirin.

Should your bank roll disappear, Don't give away to sighs and fear, Take an aspirin.
 Tho' they take our times and pence, We'll enjoy life from hence, Measure bliss by fifty cents, Take an aspirin.

Don't tell me of bygone days, Nobler thoughts and better ways, Take an aspirin.
 Like a princess we can live, Tho' we have no gold to give, We can show them how to live, Take an aspirin.

Mrs. Elsie Mosley of Antrim and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Mosley of this town called on George Prichard at Contoocook this past week.

The Misses Marie and Jane Proctor, students at St. Mary's College at Hooksett, are spending their Easter vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Proctor.

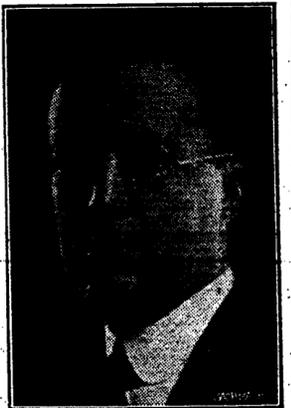

Mr. and Mrs. Burt H. Smith were called to Hooksett this week by the death of his mother, Mrs. Louisa Smith, who passed away at the home of her son, Harry Smith. She was well known in this town having been the guest of her son here many times in the past few years.

Paul Chandler, 33, escaped inmate of the State Hospital, Concord, was captured Wednesday morning on the Flat by Special Police Officer Frank Glading, assisted by Officer Arthur Jackson. Chandler slept in Walter Dutton's barn Tuesday night and was discovered about 5:30 Wednesday morning by Walter Dutton. He rode to Hillsboro with Mr. Dutton, who bought his breakfast at a restaurant. He then wandered up Main street, where he was seen acting suspiciously by Selwyn Davis, who reported seeing a man acting strangely to the police. Officers Glading and Jackson, assisted by Jesse Sweeney, approached Chandler and had difficulty in putting on handcuffs. He was finally subdued and taken to the police station. During the time that Mr. Glading was left alone at the station, Chandler had his handcuffs adjusted and as Mr. Glading loosened the left cuff, the prisoner bit him on the hand. Officers from Concord arrived later and he was taken to the hospital following a desperate struggle.

Congressman Tobey Announced His Candidacy for the Senate--Many Others Announce Their Candidacy for Congress.

FOSTER STEARNS

The long-awaited announcement from U. S. Rep. Charles W. Tobey of his candidacy for the U. S. senatorial nomination at the Republican primary next September this past week precipitated a rush of five other Republican candidates for the seat which he has decided to relinquish. Mr. Tobey tossed his hat into the senatorial ring alongside those of two other announced candidates for the nomination--former State Senator Eliot A. Carter of Nashua, who has been conducting a vigorous, state wide campaign for some time, and former Mayor Charles E. Carroll of Laconia, perennial candidate for major office, who has thus far largely confined his activities to his home city and vicinity. The incumbent, Senator Fred H. Brown of Somersworth, has not stated whether he will run for reelection. Shortly thereafter, in rapid succession, came announcements from five aspirants to the Republican nomination in the Second congressional district, all of whom had been waiting for Mr. Tobey to reach his decision. Only one candidate for the nomination--Atty. John D. Warren of Nashua, who unsuccessfully opposed Mr. Tobey at the primary two years ago, had previously come forward without reservations. Mr. Warren made known his intentions several months ago. The five who definitely entered the field as soon as the news of Congressman Tobey's announcement reached them included: State Rep. Foster Stearns of Hancock, World War veteran, popular member of the last Legislature and former Massachusetts state librarian, who was at one time identified with the U. S. diplomatic service at Constantinople and Paris. Charles W. Howard, adjutant-general of the New Hampshire National Guard, former state senator and representative, who has held his present post since 1915 and who is the senior adjutant-general from the standpoint of continuous service, among all the states of the Union. General Howard has been a member of the National Guard for 47 years. James P. Richardson of Hanover, professor of political science at Dartmouth college, former state representative for two terms, chairman of the Committee on Bank Taxation in New Hampshire in 1926 and member of the commission to study taxation in New Hampshire, 1926-27, and a member of the American Academy of Political and Social science. State Senator Howard Hamlin of Claremont, former solicitor of Sullivan county, former moderator of the town of Claremont, member of the Constitutional Convention of 1930 and assistant clerk of the House of Representatives in 1925, '27 and '29. James A. Hanley of Franklin, justice of the Franklin municipal court for the past three years and who has achieved statewide prominence through repeated efforts to curb gambling operations. A native of Franklin, Judge Hanley was graduated from the University of New Hampshire in 1930 and from Boston University Law school in 1933. He is a member of the New Hampshire, Massachusetts and U. S. Supreme Court Bar associations, is married and has two children.

BOISCLAIR, REGISTER OF PROBATE, WILL RUN AGAIN

Mr. Boisclair announced that he will seek a third term as Register of Probate for Hillsborough County. He has made many friends among the legal profession as well as with the public who have had dealings with his office for his promptness, efficient and courteous service, keeping in mind always that he and his clerks are public servants. Many improvements in keeping the records have been made in his office since first elected Register of Probate. Mr. Boisclair is a past commander of the American Legion as well as a past Chef-de-Gare Voiture 548 of Hillsborough County. He is also President of the Inter-Club Association of New Hampshire and belongs to several fraternal organizations and civic clubs in Manchester and Nashua. He is married and has three daughters. Frequently mentioned as a potential candidate for the nomination, Judge Hanley formally declared himself in a statement this past week. Mr. Stearns, despite the fact that he has been a resident of this state for a comparatively few years, has already built up a strong following in New Hampshire. As a candidate for representative to the last General Court he won the endorsement of both parties and polled Hancock's entire vote in the election. He served on the important House judiciary committee as well as on the committee on State House and State House yard, and was a member of the Hillsborough county delegation.

WILFRED J. BOISCLAIR Register of Probate

Mrs. Leo Lowell has been quite ill with a throat infection at her home.

Miss Pauline Whitney, teacher in the Hampton school, is with her mother here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Tuttle of Fairhaven, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edson Tuttle in East Antrim.

Miss Martha Dziengowski, R. N., of Manchester spent Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dziengowski in East Antrim.

A child health clinic was held at the town hall Wednesday afternoon under the direction of Miss Hazel Waite, State nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall and daughter, Dorothy, of Winchendon, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Clark on Sunday.

Mrs. Junia Wilson returned to her home here on Saturday from a several weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Will Ellinwood in Hillsboro.

Ross Roberts was called to Quincy, Mass., yesterday (Wednesday) by the serious illness with pneumonia of his mother, Mrs. Fred Roberts, at the home of her daughter.

Mrs. Daniel McClure, who has been quite ill with pneumonia, is much improved and able to sit up a little while each day. She is under the care of Mrs. Ethel Peaslee of Hillsboro.

The Presbytery of Newburyport meets Wednesday and Thursday of this week at the Old South Church of Newburyport, one of the most historic churches in America. Rev. and Mrs. Kittredge have been in attendance.

Your representatives of the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer are expecting as generous contributions as you made last year. Your gifts may be handed to Mrs. G. D. Tibbetts, Mrs. A. E. Young or Mrs. D. H. Goodell.

Miss Margaret Felker and friend, Darrell Root, of Boston, were callers on the former's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Felker, first of the week. On their return to Boston they were accompanied by Miss Betty Felker who returns to her studies at Vesper George Art School after spending a week's vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Dora Black is ill with pneumonia at her home on Clinton Road. She is under the care of Miss Gertrude Bonnette, R. N., of Hillsboro and Miss Harriet Wilkinson, R. N. Her daughter Mrs. Ethel Drury of Medford, Mass., has been with her part of the time, as well as her son and daughter here.

Miss Doris Rockwell was given a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hugron on Friday evening, April 15, by a group of friends in honor of her 18th birthday. On return from a ride she was greeted by the folks who had gathered. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by playing games after which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. She received a beautiful birthday cake and also many gifts and a sum of money.

The Antrim Rod and Gun Club's monthly meeting was held at Fireman's hall Thursday evening with about 25 members present. The Club voted to spend a day in the near future fixing and cleaning its trout rearing pool. Members also appointed a committee to assist in forming four young men's baseball teams in town this summer. Following the business a game of indoor baseball and quizes were enjoyed. Refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the committee.

DEAN MEYER TO PREACH AT DEERING SUNDAY

Dean Meyer of Boston University will be the preacher at the Deering Community church on Sunday, April 25th. All invited.

THIS COLUMN is initiated in an effort to present to my constituents, a weekly picture of current events as viewed from the National Capitol. In these stirring times national news is of greater significance than it has been since the World War. Because of numerous inquiries through the mail relative to the effect of Washington events on our local communities, I am led to believe the readers of this paper are particularly interested in developments here at this Capital and I shall endeavor to chronicle happenings in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the United States Government.

DAIRY SITUATION--Butter prices declined sharply in January and early February, but have been about steady since the Federal purchase program started on Feb. 14. Since mid-February about 1.5 million pounds of butter have been purchased by the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation for relief distribution. About the usual seasonal increase in milk production has occurred since the beginning of the year, and it seems probable that it will continue until the seasonal peak in production is reached in June.

AIR POLICING--Under the new program to check fulfillment of AAA crop control, farmers will be checked from the air. Contracts have been let so far for the photographing of 108,844 square miles by air. An additional 300,000 to 400,000 square miles will be photographed in this same manner if suitable bids are obtainable.

CIVIL SERVICE INFORMATION--Absolutely free to anyone is information on Civil Service. All that is necessary is that inquiries be addressed to the Secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board at any first-class or second-class post office in the U. S.; to the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., or to my office. The Commission, on request, will place the inquirer's name on a mailing list and he will receive prompt information of projected examinations. A warning has been issued by the Commission to everyone, not to be misled by promises or claims of so-called "civil service schools." No such schools have any advance information on examination questions, influence in procuring federal employment, or any authorization to give civil service examinations.

SUFFRAGE VOTE--A tie vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee was the result of a proposed amendment to the Constitution to outlaw any remaining discriminations against women. The Committee has authorized that the Resolution, S. J. Res. 65, be reported to the State without recommendation.

RURAL TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS--The Bureau of the Census reports that 2/3 of the traffic fatalities occur on rural highways. It is estimated that in 1936 the death totals were 11,800 urban and 26,000 rural. As an aid to safety education, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has published the pamphlet, "Guides to Traffic Safety." It outlines the best methods known today for securing traffic safety. The discussion is brief but comprehensive, summarizing the traffic safety situation. This pamphlet should prove of value to municipal or town safety commissions, grammar and high school teachers, parent-teacher associations, and individual citizens. The report may be obtained by writing to my office.

THE GUESSING BEGINS--The annual custom of guessing the adjournment date of Congress has begun. From all indications the House of Representatives and the Senate will hear the crack of the gavel announcing adjournment about the 1st of June. In fact, Rep. Sun Rayburn, Majority Leader, freely predicts that Congressmen will be packing their luggage on May 14th. However, some important legislation may encounter difficulty in either House, and it would not be safe to predict adjournment before June 1st. Your guess is as good as mine.

FEDERAL HOUSING--The amount of mortgage which will be insured by the Federal Housing Administration on any home, small or large, depends on the degree of excellence of the property in question. To warrant the insurance of a full 80% mortgage, the property must be a sound mortgage risk, constructed of good materials, of good functional planning and in a neighborhood of enduring value as a residential community. Even a small home -- a $2,500 or $3,000 dwelling -- can attain a sufficiently high valuation to warrant the insurance of an 80% mortgage.

Two Very Important Fashions for Spring

A TWO-PIECE tailored dress for street and business, and a softly detailed afternoon dress that's especially becoming to large figures. Even if you're not an experienced sewer, you'll enjoy making them, for the patterns are easy to follow and each includes a complete and detailed sew chart.

Dress With Jacket-Blouse.

Exactly the style you want for street wear, shopping trips and business. The jacket blouse is so attractive, with its puff sleeves, fitted waistline and saucy little peplum. It can be worn with your spring suit skirt, too. Make it up in flat crepe for immediate wear and later in linen or pique, using all one color or a printed blouse and plain skirt, as pictured.

For Large Women.

A very graceful dress with slenderizing lines, thanks to the smooth shoulders, the cape sleeves, always flattering to plump arms, and the skirt that's narrow round the hips and slightly wide at the hem. Gathers beneath the raglan shoulders make the blouse soft and becoming. In georgette, flat crepe or polka dot silk, this will be your spring favorite. Later, during hot weather, it will be a cool joy in dotted Swiss or voile.

The Patterns.

1477 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material for the jacket and 2 yards of 39-inch material for the skirt.

1499 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 36 requires 5 1/4 yards of 39-inch material. If contrasting collar is wanted, it requires 2 1/2 yard.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous; all played out. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. BOOKS IN BRIEF

English Lord's Romance Told In 'Patrician'

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

LORD MILTOUN, main character of John Galsworthy's "The Patrician," was born into the titled class of England. His family owned and controlled vast properties and the lives of countless people.

Amid the varied interests of his family, in which three generations lived in close contact, and against a background of town houses and country houses, Lord Miltoun grew to maturity with an ascetic soul and a highly cultivated mind. World travel had added breadth to his university training so that he now felt himself somewhat qualified to take his place in parliament.

Elizabeth James

It was at this time, just when his parents, Lord and Lady Valleys, were satisfied with the trend of things, he met Mrs. Noel.

Mrs. Noel lived alone in a little house not far from Lord Miltoun's country place. Through music and over the tea cups before a warm fire, she grew into the barren heart of the young nobleman, who loved her warm, soft coloring and her artistic insight. As soon as Lord Miltoun's family heard of this situation, they had much to say about it to each other. As usual Lady Casterly was first to do something.

Using her walking cane and holding the arm of Lady Barbara, her beautiful granddaughter, the seventy-eight-year-old grandmother went down to the little house to see this person who dared intrude into the well-arranged life of Lord Miltoun. The conversation was such that Mrs. Noel decided to give up seeing Lord Miltoun.

Family Discovers Marriage.

In the family a sort of crisis arose after Lady Casterly's call. There was much talk and it was discovered that Mrs. Noel was already married. Lord Miltoun was shocked. He had interpreted her situation to mean divorce.

Lord Miltoun went to see her. She told him now she had been married very young to a much older person, a clergyman of the Church of England. How life had grown intolerable and how she had lived alone for this long time. He told her good-by and left at once for London and his affairs in parliament.

THE GREATEST NOVELIST

Into a family of wealth and prestige, John Galsworthy was born in 1867. His education included the best preparatory schools and then Oxford, where he studied to be a lawyer.

The practice of law, wide travel, and a well-balanced life passed the years until Galsworthy was forty. In that year he published his first novel, and from then until his death in 1933, his fame continued to grow. In 1932 he was awarded the Nobel prize for his novel, "The Forsyte Saga."

His first speech brought acclaim to the name of Lord Miltoun and honor to the family. Lady Barbara went into London to congratulate her brother. Going to his suite of rooms, she found him raving with a brain fever. His ravings were to Audrey Noel and he spoke beautifully of his love for her.

Immediately Lady Barbara went to a telephone and made communication with Mrs. Noel, asking her to come at once to take care of Lord Miltoun. Of all this, Lady Barbara said nothing to her family. Mrs. Noel came at once and remained for days with Lord Miltoun, bringing him out of his delirium and giving him peace of mind.

Confronts Indecision.

Convalescence brought no peace of mind to Lord Miltoun. He had not the strength to fight the solid wall of his family, yet his mind and body were ill with longing for his loved one. As soon as he was strong enough, he went to London to see her.

Wishing to settle the dangling ends of the affair as quickly as possible, Lord Miltoun sought out his mother and father at their country place. The son stated that he would resign from parliament because his life was already joined with that of Mrs. Noel.

Sought Advice of Others.

But Lord Miltoun did not have what it takes to face a strongly united family. He did not rely upon himself, but instead he turned to others whose opinions he had been taught to follow instead of his own.

When Lord Miltoun went again to see Mrs. Noel, he found only a letter that said little. She was gone. Rushing into the home of Lady Casterly, he spoke with fury to her, rushing out into the night again like a madman. Lady Barbara followed him into the automobile and drove all night with him.

Again Lord Miltoun entered the affairs of parliament, intent on becoming a successful statesman.

CUT-RATE MILK SEEN AS MENACE TO DAIRY FARMERS

New York.—The upset of New York City's badly-battered milk cart is viewed in dairy circles today as a threatened consequence of the sale of cut-rate milk by a few grocers in the metropolitan area, and is a growing cause of concern to more than 100,000 New York and New England farmers whose livelihood depends almost entirely on getting a return on the milk they supply the world's largest city.

While latest store surveys show that price cutting is not yet general, there are indications that the pressure on chain stores and large independents, if intensified, may force a break in prices which would be reflected promptly in a smaller milk check for the dairy farmer. Grocers in the vicinity of stores featuring milk as a cut-price leader to attract trade say they cannot continue long to be underbilled.

The menace of price demoralization, according to dairy economists, will become more acute as the seasonal cycle of milk production speeds up to a point where the yield of the New York milk shed in June will double that in November. The variations in the city's requirements are also sharp and far less predictable. It is explained that because of these fluctuations in production and demand a great white reservoir which rarely finds its way into bottles or containers stands always behind the virtual "Niagara of milk" which flows daily into the metropolis.

Stability of milk prices, these experts say, depends primarily on keeping this reservoir from flooding the market and is the reason why organized producers groups have developed elaborate facilities for turning surplus milk into cheese and various other by-products. And, while most of the milk flowing into New York City comes from organized producers groups, the entire price structure of the industry can be jeopardized by dumping on the market even a comparatively small volume of milk from unorganized sources.

Farm groups in recent meetings have been considering steps to combat price cutting by grocers and it is reported that federal and state authorities are also trying to work out a plan aimed at stabilization of milk prices.

All Teas Classified in Three General Divisions

All teas are classified into three general divisions—the black or fully fermented; the green or unfermented; and the oolong or semi-fermented. Usually the tea drinker prefers one of these kinds. There is a noticeable difference in the flavor and aroma of each.

Some black teas are graded according to leaf sizes. After picking, the leaves are separated into five grades: Flowery Orange Pekoe, Orange Pekoe, Pekoe, Pekoe Souchong, and Souchong. Flower Orange Pekow is made up of the most tender leaves taken from the tip end of the tea plant. Souchong represents the coarsest leaf used for tea. These terms do not have any specific reference to the cup quality of tea, nor do they indicate that the scent or flavor of oranges is present.

Next to black teas, observes an authority in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the green or unfermented teas are most numerous in the United States. These come to us chiefly from China and Japan. Green teas have a sharper, more astringent taste than black ones.

Oolong tea, or the semi-fermented type resembles a blend of black and green tea. It comes mostly from the island of Formosa and from China. Oologs are in-betweens in flavor as well as color.

Tannin, caffeine, and the volatile oils are the most important constituents of tea. Tannin gives to tea a brisk, pungent flavor. Caffeine provides mild stimulation. And many persons think that the volatile oils make the most difference in tea flavor. The "body" of a cup of tea depends upon the soluble materials that come out into the liquid as the tea steeps.

Seedless Fruits

The Spaniards planted orange trees in Brazil at an early date, but it was not until about the year 1829 that there appeared near the village of Bahia, Brazil, a form of seedless navel orange, since known as the Bahia navel. The first trees of this kind in the United States were sent from Brazil to the government propagating grounds in Washington, D. C., in 1870. The cause of the freakish development of the navel orange is unknown. Under scientific breeding, the improved fruit has been produced. The production of the seedless varieties of grape is the result of centuries of development by growers, through grafting, cross-fertilization, selection, etc. These seedless fruits are propagated by the means of bud grafting instead of by seeds.

The Pitcher Proverb

"The pitcher goes so often to the water that it is broken at last." This is the form in which the English proverb is generally quoted. It belongs to the common folk sayings of several nations. Its most famous expression in literature is in Cervantes' "Don Quixote": "So many times the pitcher goes to the fountain!" Meaning that it gets broken. But the same proverb is found four centuries earlier by a French writer, Gautier de Coligni,

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses

TEETH--Your Passport to Good Health--and Tells How You Can Avoid the Tragedy of Dental Decay

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York.

A SCIENTIST, who was also a wit, once remarked that you must be true to your teeth or they will be false to you. That most people do not heed this advice is evidenced by the fact that almost 100 per cent of the adult population is affected by some form of oral disease, and from 90 to 97 per cent of all school children have decayed teeth.

As there is a close relationship between healthy teeth and healthy bodies, and conversely, between decayed teeth and sickly bodies, it is easy to understand why science views this appalling situation with the greatest alarm—and why such an eminent authority as Professor Ernest A. Hooton of Harvard University warns that "unless steps are taken to discover preventives of tooth infection, and correctives of dental deformation, the course of human evolution will lead downward to extinction."

Health and Happiness Depend on Sound Teeth

That is a strong statement, but it is not an exaggeration, for it would be difficult to over-estimate the influence of the teeth upon human health and happiness.

Do you wonder how teeth can affect happiness? Consider, then, that a pretty face depends, first upon the position of the mouth when the lips are closed, and second, upon the appearance of the teeth when the lips are parted. You cannot have a lovely mouth when the lips close over crooked front teeth; you cannot have an attractive smile if the teeth are dull.

And when gums recede, and loosened teeth are forced out of their natural position, the position of the lips is likewise changed—with the result that the lower part of the face is disfigured.

Surely this is tragedy enough. But the effect of decayed teeth upon health is of far greater significance.

Dental Decay Does Extensive Damage

A decayed tooth is a poison factory, distributing its noxious product to every part of the body. In the body, that poison attacks and centers in the weakest spot.

It may lead to neuritis, rheumatic ailments, dyspepsia, or even duodenal ulcers. It may be a contributing cause of heart disease.

In view of such extensive damage, it is easy to understand why a prominent medical authority has declared that if the teeth were given proper care, so that dental decay became rare, instead of al-

It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East Thirty-ninth Street, New York City.

phosphorus and vitamins A, C and D.

Second, frequent and thorough brushing of the teeth, to remove all food particles. The use of an efficient dentifrice encourages efficient brushing and helps to keep the teeth looking attractive.

Third, the inclusion in the diet of foods that require the chewing, tearing, gnawing and biting for which our teeth were designed, such as raw cabbage, celery, apples and other fibrous foods.

Fourth, a visit to the dentist at least twice a year, so that he can check the condition of the teeth.

If every mother will follow this program, and train her children to follow it, the result will be a vast decrease in dental decay, and a forward step in human progress. For it is not too much to say that the SALVATION OF THE HUMAN RACE LIES IN SAVING ITS TEETH.

Questions Answered

Mrs. E. T. D.—Answering your question as to the effect of cooking on vitamin D, this is no problem in the kitchen. Natural vitamin D is virtually absent from most foods, but in irradiated foods, or those to which vitamin D concentrate has been added, the vitamin D is stable and ordinary cooking has little destructive effect on it.

Mrs. J. B. McK.—It is incorrect to say that rye bread is more, or less, fattening than white bread. A slice of rye bread supplies the same number of calories as a slice of white bread.

Miss F. S. P.—The sulphur dioxide used to bleach a good grade of dried fruit is present in a chemical combination that is entirely harmless.

Terence Shea Tells of His Bulging Barrels

A social worker with more enthusiasm than tact went to call upon Terence Shea, night watchman, at his home.

"I hope, Mr. Shea," she said, "that you do not squander your money in riotous living. May I ask what you do with your wages?"

"I'd just as soon tell you as not," replied Mr. Shea. "This $15 a week I make. When I've paid the rent, the provisions, and the milkman, and bought what's needed for Maggie and me five children; I deposit the rest of my money in barrels. Mostly, me'am, sugar barrels. They're bigger an hold more. But when I can't get them I use plain flour barrels."

How the "Well-Dressed" Furniture Should Appear

This season—and every season—furniture should be kept fresh and gleaming! The home-maker owes it to her furniture—and the appearance of her home. Before it leaves the shop of the furniture dealer, before it is sold—good furniture is kept polished! The dealer continually gives it a "polish service", to maintain its rich appearance—keep the wood "alive!" He, who is an authority, regularly uses a good oil polish (the best is non-greasy, because it has a fine, light-oil base). He knows the importance of this—for selling furniture is his business—and on his shop floor, every piece of fine wood must be kept at its lustrous best! He knows, too, how vital it is to the finish, the very pores of the wood, to frequently apply a quality oil polish on the various suites and fine pieces! The effect of its frequent use on furniture is two-fold: It prevents drying-out and cracking—and it brings to the furniture a deep, lasting high-tone—that softens the wood, brings out all the natural beauty of the grain. All woodwork and furniture will remain "well-dressed," decorative, sparkling—if cared for periodically with a reputable light-oil polish!

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will love you to dance and parties. BUT, if you are cross, lifeless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. For three generations on, we have told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure. Make a note NOW to get a bottle of world-famous Pinkham's Compound today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit. Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?
