School News

Tuesday evening some Halloween "pranksters" broke two panes of glass in the school house. We hope that the day will come when a higher sense of citizenship will be reached by all, so that all the youth can discriminate between "real fun" and the "destruction of property". However, the majority of the youth do display an excellent brand of citizenship and our hope is for that "small minority."

Navy Day and the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt was observed on Friday by an assembly program in the high school assembly room. Readings were given by Ernest Fuglestad on the life of Roosevelt and by Elizabeth Hollis on the origin and purpose of Navy Day. The music group furnished songs with Isabel Butterfield presiding at the piano. The guest speaker was Rev. William D. Turkington who not only gave a very interesting and forceful talk but sang some Irish melodies and played several solos on the trumpet.

The Senior Class is beginning to think in terms of their annual play. That is, the first step, the selection of a play is under consideration. It is hoped that this play may be of educational value as well as entertaining.

There are thirty-seven pupils in the High School neither absent nor tardy during the first week of school. By classes they were as follows: 11 Freshman, 12 Sophomores, 10 Juniors, and 5 Seniors. May we increase the number during this second period. It should be a spirit of enjoyment and the wonderful privilege that is ours that motivates our attendance and punctuality and not the old fashioned idea of compulsion that keeps us in the school.

The names of Dorothy Whipple and Winslow Canby were accidentally omitted from the first honor list as furnished last week.

The Volley ball posts and nets have at last been placed on the playground back of the school. This will furnish an interesting activity for our recess period.

The Junior High School held a very interesting and happy Halloween party in their room on Wednesday evening, Nov. 1.

The class rings recently ordered and received by members of the Junior class, in design, are different from the Senior class rings. Each class contends that they have the more artistic design.

The Sophomores have purchased very pretty class pins, with the inscription A. H. S. — 1942 on them.

It was shown for six months at the Fine Arts Theatre in Boston last year.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor Fish and Game Conservation Officer

It's well to know that you cannot hunt duck or waterfowl before 7 a. m. or after 4 p. m. This law is being rigidly enforced by the State and Federal Wardens. In the past five years New Hampshire has purchased 7188 stamps. Massachusetts our sister state, purchased 51785 stamps. The biggest sale of any state was Minnesota who sold at its post offices 382,100 in the five year period. The first five states are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, California and Texas.

The American Kennel club tells us that we have 20 different breeds of pure bred dogs that will be used by the big American army which started out Oct. 1st in the field for birds and animals in the sporting class.

Here is a long tale of woe about people who have been planting their garbage in the ground and now have graded that same ground for a lawn. Well Mr. and Mrs. Skunk and all the little skunkies have found that plot of ground and the lawn (so called) looks like a battlefield somewhere over there. Well the best thing I can suggest is to get a permit from the Director to set a box trap with a chicken's head for bait and then take the little pussy for a ride. No you can't kill them nor trap them till Nov. 1. To set a steel trap and then kill them is to invite a lot of trouble and very unpleasant smells all winter.

One of the Chuckar partridges that I planted on Pead hill in Winton was seen in Temple a few days ago.

This year the Wardens have been sent a book to keep a correct account of every deer killed in his district. This gives the name of the man, his address, sex of deer, weight, license number of hunter, taken at and taken to. Failure to report in a deer killed within the ten days is an offence and can be taken to court.

Don't trespass on a man's land! He has his rights and can make it very hot for you. Ask permission of the land owner and nine times out of ten he will grant the request.

If you have a little pond or a big one buy a pair of mallard or black ducks and install them on the pond and you won't be bothered with mosquitoes during the summer. You have no idea the enjoyment you will get out of feeding them and watching them bring up a family. Grey calls and pin tails make nice pets.

But if you have plenty of money to spend get some wood duck, some Mandarin, red heads, blue wing teal, or a pair of Canadian geese. I have a little pond in the rear of my buildings and have a few ducks. Many of the townspeople come to my little pond every day to feed the waterfowl and see the horn pout come up for bread. I get a big kick out of this little pond and what it contains.

Here is an S O S to some of you older fellows who have got a nice collection of guns which you will not be able to use much longer. I know you would not part with the old favorite rifle or shot gun but you have others which are not so strong around your heart strings. Now I know of a lot of young fellows who want to go hunting but have not the proper equipment. Here is a chance for you to be a good old sport and make some young fellow happy and it won't hurt you a bit. Think it over.

It won't be long now to the time that the wild birds will be looking to you for a living. Put out a window box and fill it with good things to eat and you will enjoy seeing them at your window all winter. Fred L. Frazer of the home town has a nice little window box that last winter was well patronized at my home. A big swinging station for the birds is very popular with work last winter and I always found them well filled before and just after a big storm. Mine were built by the student body of the local high school at small expense.

The town of Peterboro did itself a parade last Saturday afternoon with a parade which was as good as I ever witnessed. Most of the old vehicles were loaned to the committee by Major A. Erland Goyette and he himself drove one of the 35 year old motor driven cars. What pleased me as much as anything was the one horse shay containing Dr. Morse and Dr. Cutler as the old Doctors of the horse and buggy days. With tall hats and old black medicine cases they looked the part.

Speaking of the unpleasantness over across no one is more interested than John Buxton the proprietor of the A & F store at Milford. John has a mother in England and several brothers all in the service and two in the front line trenches. John did not hear from any of his folks for seven weeks till a letter came the last of the week. Can you blame John for feeling anxious.

Whether the deer are more educated in my district I don't know but up in John Martin's district, Keene, he has had over 20 killed by trains and cars in the past few months and Tim Barnard in Nashua has had quite a few in the past month. I have had only one in my district in the past three years.

Several bob cats were seen in different parts of my district over the week-end but no one brought in one for the bounty. That's a funny thing. In the past five years my average has been over 30 a year brought in but last year I only got one cat all the year. There are plenty of cats roaming around but no one seems to connect.

The last 48 hours has seen a big migration of birds to the sunny south. I never saw such a large number of crows in one bunch as I saw late Sunday afternoon over Lyndeboro Mt.

John Martin of Keene, Conservation Officer, had a big consignment of ring neck pheasants from the Trow Pheasant farm in Milford the last of the week. These are to be liberated in his district.

Another moose or perhaps the same one seen at Hancock has been seen over in New Ipswich near the Sharon-Jaffrey line in the Hubbard pond swamps. This is where three were seen last fall. The family of three have not been seen since they left the 101 cement road at Dublin last week.

Here is a man who wants to know about a loaded gun on a bicycle. Well if I found you on a bike with a loaded gun I would ask you to explain to the Judge why you did it.

Here is a letter from over the line asking about the use of goldfish for bait. I don't know the laws in your state but in this state there is a strong law against the use of goldfish which is a member of the carp family. The fine for planting them in any waters of the state is $50 and will be enforced to the letter. Better get in touch with the Dept. in your state.

This past week I have several letters from people wanting some good cats to catch mice. What have

Methodists "Good Fellowship" Supper

The "good fellowship" supper at the Woodbury Memorial Methodist church Friday evening was a pleasant occasion for the interested group of members and friends who assembled for the evening. An excellent supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Cora B. Hunt and assistants. The dining room was decorated with Halloween lanterns, crepe paper, etc., giving a festive air to the occasion. At each plate was a Halloween favor.

Rev. William Weston presided as toastmaster in a most acceptable manner. On behalf of those present he presented Mrs. Hunt with a handsome bouquet of roses in recognition of her 54 years' membership in the Methodist church. Mrs. Hunt was genuinely surprised, but responded in a reminiscent manner telling many incidents connected with former years of Methodism in Antrim.

Other speakers during the evening included Rev. Edwin B. Young, pastor of the Methodist church at Hillsboro; Rev. Dr. Leroy Stringfellow of Haverhill, Mass., district superintendent; Mrs. Stringfellow; Miss Charlotte Balch, who gave reminiscences of the choir; Arthur L. Poor, who spoke briefly on the history of the present church building; John Burnham, who was an usher for over 40 years; Miss Etta Miller of Brookline; Mrs. Archie N. Nay; Mrs. H. W. Eldredge and others. A solo by Mrs. Ethel Roder was enjoyed by all.

Many interesting incidents were related regarding the "Old Church" and the "New Church." Rev. Mr. Weston presided in a happy vein, his stories and introductions of the various speakers keeping the audience in the best of humor.

The event was indeed characterized by "good fellowship" and will be another pleasant memory in the minds of all who love Woodbury Memorial Methodist church.

WOLF HILL GRANGE OBSERVES BOOSTER NIGHT

Wells; harmonica solos, Harold Richardson, accompanied by Mrs. Lilly; monologues, "Aunt Polly's Ideas About Men" and "Reducing," Mrs. Helen Dearborn; vocal solos, Clarence Filer.

MRS. GRACE M. KNIGHT

Mrs. Grace M. Knight, wife of Fred A. Knight, passed away at her home in Bennington, N. H., Tuesday evening, October 31st. She was born in Hancock, N. H., on July 31, 1876 the daughter of Edward and Mary Welch Munhall. She was married to Mr. Knight on October 25th, 1899, and has resided in Antrim and Bennington for the past forty years. She was a member of St. Patrick's Church at Bennington.

Autumn Flower Show at Boston

Thousands of the choicest plants from private greenhouses will soon be moved into Horticultural Hall in Boston for the great Autumn Show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which will open on Thursday, November 9, and continue for four days. This is the one time in the year when wealthy flower fanciers are willing to give the public an opportunity to see their flower treasures.

Costly orchids from almost every part of the world will be on exhibition including some which are extremely rare such as the butterfly orchid and the heavenly blue orchid.

Magnificent displays of chrysanthemums may be expected as a matter of course. One of the most important exhibits will be made up entirely of the now famous cascade chrysanthemums, with special emphasis on the variety Jean Hart, which was originated in Boston and named for a granddaughter of Mr. Edwin S. Webster, the president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Amateurs who are interested in adding to the house plants which they grow in winter will like this show, because a special attempt is being made to exhibit as many different kinds of house plants as can be obtained. Some of these plants are from a noted specialist in Danvers, Conn.

One entire room in Horticultural Hall will be given over to Christmas wreaths, garlands and living Christmas trees. This exhibit is being made with the cooperation of the New England Wild Flower Preservation Society, Inc. Garden clubs from many parts of New England will participate in this competition. Among the prominent persons asked to judge these classes are Mrs. William Parker, North Easton; Mrs. John H. Cunningham, Brookline; Miss Katherine A. Homans, Boston; Mrs. H. H. Richards, Groton; and Messrs. George C. Greener, Frides Crossing; and Fletcher Steele, Boston.

Another large room will be devoted to gourds with members of the New England Gourd Society participating. A harvest scene in which gourds, cornstalks and similar material will be used will constitute one of the features of this exhibit. Every part of Horticultural Hall will be available to the public at this show which promises to be the season's outstanding horticultural event.

The exhibition will be open from 2 to 10 p. m. on Thursday, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. on Friday and from 1 to 10 p. m. on Saturday and Sunday, November 11 and 12.

Mrs. Julia E. Proctor celebrated her 92 birthday on Tuesday, October 31.

Patterns Practical As Well as Smart

NO. 1840. Do you take a large size? Then the beautifully long-line dress (1840) is one that you should make up right away. No. 1839 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 13 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54-inch material with long sleeves; 2 1/2 yards with short; 1/2 yard for collar in contrast.

DOLLAR MAKERS One Method Of Advancing Is to Retreat

By GEORGE T. EAGER

TONS of rock and dirt must be excavated before a diamond is found. It is just as unusual to find among thousands of salesmen that rarity among those who sell—the man who believes in the selling power of understatement.

A coffee salesman startled the retail grocers of a large city by beginning his sales talk with the statement, "This is the second-best brand of coffee on the market." Grocers naturally asked, "Who makes the best brand of coffee?" to which the salesman would reply, "Each of my many competitors makes the best brand and they all will tell you so." Admitting having the second best brand evidently placed him in a position where he was without competition and his sales results proved it.

A large baking company has successfully marketed a brand of bread in markets long held by established competitors. The new bread was well advertised in local newspapers. But under instructions from a presiding salesman sold each grocer one or two loaves less than the store's normal demand. Grocers were soon telling late afternoon customers, "I'm sorry we are all sold out of that bread." It was not very long before storekeepers as well as customers unconsciously thought of it as the fastest selling brand and therefore the best bread. Grocers unconsciously recommended it to customers and customers soon began demanding it of grocers and its success was assured.

What a feeling of satisfaction it creates to be able to confront the family with an attractive and substantial meal, even after a long afternoon of shopping or of bridge. It takes a bit of planning to accomplish that!

A selection of "Hurry-Up-Menus," planned to economize on time, without sacrificing quality, is the answer to that problem. Choose foods which can be prepared for cooking several hours in advance. A casserole dish requiring little cooking is a wise selection for the main dish of your meal; or, if you like, plan a broiler dinner or "grill" which can be cooked in little more time than it takes to set the table.

Appetite teasing meals, and meals that can be put together in only a few minutes' time, can be built around these popular and satisfying main dishes. In most instances all that's required to complete them is bread, a beverage, and a simple fresh fruit dessert.

UP-TO-DATE 'REVOLUTION'

THERE could be no more convincing way for the historian of the future to point out the high standards of living prevailing in this country than to contrast today's demands of those who want to overthrow our institutions with the demands of the revolutionists of other eras in the world's history. The French masses cried for bread and failing to get it brought on the French revolution. But when a present day advocate of revolution in this country recently made a speech he said: "Why should the citizens—at least 90 per cent of them—be imprisoned behind the cruel bars of want when within their grasp there are plenty of shoes, of clothes, of motor cars, of refrigerators to which they are entitled?"

From this point of view it is the salesmen who sell modern conveniences who are our most important national asset for the prevention of revolutions. We have 7 per cent of the world's population and starting with a wilderness have created and own today more than half of the world's wealth. Intelligent salesmanship and mass production have distributed this wealth so widely that stringent immigration laws are required.

The new industries created and developed in this country in the past 50 years now give employment to 10,000,000 men and women. Each new industry, whether it be automobiles, radio or rayon represents a new idea that has had to be first sold to the American people. It is significant that in this same period foreign countries, that have not developed their newspapers and publications as advertising vehicles for the dissemination of new ideas about things to buy, have not developed a single great new industry. If the United States has reached the point when revolutionists must cry for motor cars and refrigerators to get attention, it would seem that we are well on our way to prosperity. (Shell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Chemist Devises Method For Hunting Submarines
VINEYARD HAVEN, MASS.—A chemical process by which the course and position of submarines could be checked is being considered by the war department, according to Dr. Max Trumper, Philadelphia bio-chemist.

He said that certain gases discharged by a submarine when it rises to the surface to obtain fresh supplies of oxygen and recharge its batteries mingle with the water. A surface ship, by dropping certain chemicals which cause the water to change color on mixing with the gases could check the submarine's position.

Corner Shields Are Big Help in Cleaning Rooms
Hard-to-clean corners can be conquered for the housewife through installation of supple metal shields which, when pushed into the angle will eliminate the business of keeping corners free of dirt and dust. Especially suitable for the corners of shelves, the shields can be painted over to escape notice. No nails or screws are necessary for installation, as the shields contain metal teeth which clamp to the surface and secure it firmly.

★ War Cramps Hughes
★ Thomas in Screen Debut
By Virginia Vale

IF THE current crop of young Americans doesn't know all about American history it won't be the fault of the movies. Producers are fairly falling over each other in the scramble to stake a claim to a slice of it; hardly a day passes that another historical picture isn't announced.

Though it hardly seems possible, "Hollywood Cavalcade" is history too, the history of the movies, released for the industry's fiftieth anniversary. The heroine, played by Alice Faye, is a combination of all those golden-curved girls who used to act before the cameras (and as a rule most of them over-acted), and Don Ameche plays the hero, who is a number of those historic leading men rolled into one.

But the hit of the picture, so far as a lot of people are concerned, is the lads who show us how slapstick comedy used to be played. Buster Keaton, Chester Conklin, Ben Turpin, Hank Mann, Eddie Collins, Jimmy Finlayson—there they are again, throwing custard pies with vim and vigor, staging a comedy treat for the old-timers who used to laugh at them and the new generation who never saw them before. All hail the Keystone cops!

And be it said for Alice Faye that she can take a custard pie in the face and come right up for more.

Howard Hughes is returning to the picture business, since the war has cramped his style where round-the-world flights are concerned. And he wants a new boy and girl team. He has shown that he's a genius when it comes to discovering and developing talent; he launched Jean Harlow in "Hell's Angels," you'll remember, and made Paul Muni a motion picture star overnight in "Scarface."

He's shown, too, that he knows how to make pictures. During the long stretch when "Hell's Angels" was considered just a rich man's folly, people who had served their time at picture-making predicted that he'd never get back one-tenth of the money that he was pouring into it. It's still being shown and still making money.

John Charles Thomas is going into the movies. Remember the little difference of opinion he had concerning his radio appearances, because he wouldn't sing if he couldn't conclude with "Good night, Mother"? He will sing in the picture in which he makes his screen debut, "Kingdom Come," whose story deals with American folk music. It will be made by Producers Corporation of America, a new motion-picture company.

It's going to seem strange to have Nelson Eddy permanently off that Sunday night radio program; a lot of his admirers will never be reconciled to his departure. But he feels that, what with concerts, recordings and work in the movies, he hasn't time for regular radio work.

Edward G. Robinson is all in favor of realism on the radio and in his pictures, but it was almost too much for him at one of his broadcasts not long ago. The script called for the sound effect of a man being hit over the head with a chair. The sound effects man was to smash the chair against the wall (try it sometime and see if it sounds like the real thing). The chair slipped, hit an actor over the head, and put him in the Hollywood emergency hospital.

Paramount is offering the public a new romantic team in "Moon Over Burma"—they're Patricia Morrison and Robert Preston. "Four Men in a Boat" is the Charlie McCarthy program, narrated by Barbara Jo Allen, when you hear an "Aah Hally" on "One Man's Family" . . . Watch for more and better (we hope) comedies on the screen from new and veteran picture producers on the hunt for stories that will help the public to forget the war. # Reformed Red Infielder Gets League Award

By ROBERT McSHANE

A LITTLE more than four years ago, William Henry Walters Jr., third baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, was persuaded to forsake his infielder chores and try a turn on the pitcher's mound.

Today Bucky, right-handed sinker ball star of the Cincinnati Reds, is the National league's most valuable player, an honor voted him by 24 members of the Baseball Writers of America, three from each city in the league.

Had that 1934 suggestion been made a few months earlier "Bucky" would have laughed it off. He broke into organized baseball and climbed up to the majors as a third baseman. The Boston Braves brought him up for his first big league chance, but he failed.

Then the Red Sox tried him, but again it was no go. As a hitter he was a distinct washout. He was a .339 hitter in the Pacific Coast league, but he couldn't prove that in the majors.

The Red Sox sent him to Philadelphia on waivers. Still he failed to make any impression on major league pitching. Johnny Vergez was holding down the third sack for the

BUCKY WALTERS

Phillies and Bucky couldn't displace him. Both Walters and Jimmy Wilson, then manager of the team, were pretty well convinced he wouldn't make the grade as a top-notch third baseman.

Wilson had noticed, however, that Walters put more stuff on a throw from third to first than some of his so-called pitchers. So he suggested pitching. At first Bucky didn't think much of the plan, but when Wilson pointed out that there was gold to be found in the pitcher's mound, he agreed to go along with his manager.

The Conversion

That was in 1934. Walters pitched every day in batting practice. He did look pretty crude, but had a fine teacher in Wilson—and also had a mind of his own. Before the season was over he had responded to treatment and had developed a good fast ball, curve and sinker.

He had no won and lost record in 1934. In 1935 he won nine and lost nine with the Phillies. The next season he won 11, but lost 21. In 1937 he scored 14 decisions while losing 15. The next year he bettered the .500 mark, winning 15 and losing 14.

Cincinnati purchased him in June of 1938 for $55,000 and two players, Catcher Virgil Davis and Al Hollingsworth. This past season, his most successful by far, saw Bucky winning 27 games, balanced against 11 losses. He led the league in victories, in innings pitched with 319 and in complete games with 31. He struck out 136 men, walking 109.

It was a rapid conversion—he really looks like a pitcher now. He has developed control and poise through experience. He is a real fielder, too. Fielding the pitcher's position is much the same as fielding at third, and he's quick as a cat at shifting off the mound and covering up on bunts.

'Hittingest' Pitcher

Though he'll never knock the league's leading hitters from their pedestal, Walters needs no one to pinch hit for him. Right now he's the "hittingest" pitcher in the big leagues, his lethal bat adding extra-base hits to a large assortment of singles to any part of the field.

To show the esteem in which Bucky is held, the committee of 24 sports writers gave him 303 out of a possible total of 334 votes. His worth to the Reds in winning 27 games was considered such an outstanding contribution to their success that his nearest rival, Johnny Mize, St. Louis first baseman, had only 178 votes.

Walters is well liked by newspaper men. Last July, after winning the first of a doubleheader from the Phils in Cincinnati, Bucky observed the second game from the press coop. During the game he pulled a brand new ball out of its carton and, almost bashfully, handed it to one of the reporters, saying: "Here, will you autograph this and then pass it down the line?"

African Troops Are Prepared To Help France on Battlefield

THESE PICTURES show two scenes from along the French colonial empire border in Africa and demonstrate how native troops have been trained under conditions similar to those they would fight under on European battlefronts. In Africa, France has a "Mareth" defense line with many military devices not unlike those along the famous Maginot and Siegfried lines on the Franco-German border.

Colonial Soldiers Are Valuable to Mother Country.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

France has received assurance of the loyalty of citizens of her colonies in West Africa, including the colony of Senegal which is smaller than Nebraska or South Dakota.

French West Africa—the group name for France's half dozen or more colonies in the western portion of the Dark continent—has a population of nearly fifteen million. Included are the colonies of Senegal, French Guinea, the Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Mauritania, the Sudan and the Niger.

In the World war, Senegal alone provided France with several hundred thousand men. They proved courageous fighters, according to the Germans, who spoke of them as strong, wild fellows who dashed over no-man's land with a grin, their black heads wrapped in dirty rags, some with rifles and bayonets fixed, others armed only with knives.

While often preserving their superstitions and pagan practices, throbbing tom-toms and strenuous dances, the majority of the Senegalese profess Mohammedanism. This religion permits the retention of their fundamental customs, particularly polygamy, long practiced especially in the middle classes.

World's Peanut Capital.

Dakar, the principal seaport, has been called the peanut capital of the world. (Americans are sometimes confused because peanuts, in translated reports and statistics, are called "groundnuts.") During the harvesting season the quays are piled high with peanuts, from which ships are loaded to the hatches. Peanuts constitute the principal crop of Senegal, the production some years exceeding a billion pounds.

About one-third of the 1,800,000 population of Senegal is made up of Jolofs, the more intelligent and influential of the many Negro tribes. Many are skillful workers in gold and silver, weavers and dyers. They largely dominate the colonial council which has considerable power both with respect to taxation and general legislation. Senegalese women are more interested in coiffures and trinkets than in clothing; their dress may be a lohn cloth or an elaborate cotton print.

The French claim to have traded with the west African coast since sometime in the Fourteenth century. St. Louis, capital of Senegal, is said to have been the site of a European settlement in the Fifteenth century. French occupation is dated from the founding of St. Louis in 1626, when a fort was built on the island at the mouth of the Senegal river.

Wilhelmshaven Is Nazi Outlet To North Sea

Early War Reports Indicated Bombing by British.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Early reports from the first days of the European war indicated that the British had bombed Wilhelmshaven, chief naval station of the Reich on the North sea.

Situated on the western shore of Jade bay, due south of the island of Helgoland, German sentinel of the GATEWAYS TO THE WEST. Map shows the locations of Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven, Germany's naval stations on the North sea. These important seaports are the Nazi navy's chief gateways to the west on the shores of the North sea.

North sea, Wilhelmshaven is about 365 miles by airline from London or less than two hours' flight by modern military aircraft.

Wilhelmshaven was planned as a naval station in 1853 when its site was purchased by Prussia from the grand duke of Oldenburg. The city is new as German cities go. It was built in 1855 and its harbor was not opened to commercial shipping until 14 years later. Its 25,000 inhabitants today are employed largely in the naval station, in the handling of shipping and in shipbuilding. Wilhelmshaven was the scene of the mutiny among seamen that spread over the German fleet in 1918.

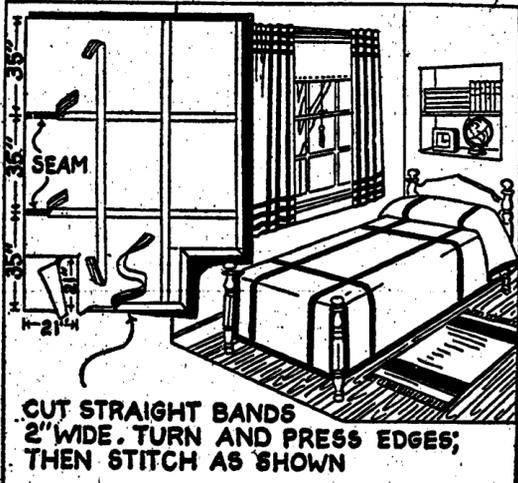

There are several large and small basins with shipyards and drydocks for the construction and repair of ships. Each of the three entrances to the basins has locks (necessitated by the tidal range) which are guarded by strong fortifications.

Cuxhaven, another German naval base, where it is reported 5 of 12 attacking British military planes were brought down, is 400 miles by air from the British capital.

The city lies on the west bank of the Elbe river only a few miles from the point at which the stream flows into the North sea. It is about 40 miles northeast of Wilhelmshaven. Hamburg, one of Germany's leading ports, is 64 miles up the Elbe from this city.

CUT STRAIGHT BANDS 2" WIDE. TURN AND PRESS EDGES; THEN STITCH AS SHOWN

Blue denim with red bands for a boy's bed.

"STURDY and masculine." Also, "Red trimmings, please." That was the order for the bedspread in the combination work-and-play room of a 10-year-old lad. Blue and tan predominated in the room. The clever mother made curtains for the rather large square window; using lunch cloths in these colors—one cloth making a pair of curtains.

Blue denim with red gingham bands is suggested for the spread. The diagram may be used as a guide for cutting and making a spread of any 36-inch material for a bed of any width. The amount of material needed will be three times the full width of the finished spread, plus two inches. Two seams covered by bands run straight across the width of the spread. The two lengthwise bands may be close together or far apart according to the width of the bed. The corners at the foot are cut out as shown. The edges are then pressed to the right side and bands stitched over them.

NOTE: Readers who are now using Sewing Books No. 1, 2 and 3 will be happy to learn that No. 4 is ready for mailing; as well as the 10 cent editions of No. 1, 2 and 3. Mrs. Spears has just made quilt block patterns for three designs selected from her favorite Early American quilts. You may have these patterns FREE with your order for four books. Price of books—10 cents each postpaid. Set of three quilt block patterns without books—10 cents. Send orders to Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York.

REAL NEUTRALITY VITAL NECESSITY

Now that Europe is again at war, the question in the minds of every American is, Can America stay out? Or must she join in the chaotic debacle as she did in 1917? Some feel that this country should enter wholeheartedly in a united effort to maintain tolerance and freedom the world over, even if such a course leads to war. They believe that saving the world for Democracy on foreign shores will forestall possible attack in the Western Hemisphere. But actually we have reached the point where American neutrality is a practical as well as an idealistic necessity. If this nation goes to war, freedom and representative government will automatically end, perhaps permanently. Brief study of "M Day" (mobilization day) recently drawn up by military officials, encompassing the entire economic life of the nation, is sufficient proof of this fact. We will have one-arm government in this country from the instant war is declared, just as completely as Germany has been subjugated to the will of one man. Likewise, in view of the present Federal debt, a war would mean ultimate financial chaos—which alone is sufficient to destroy freedom.

The greatest service that this country can render the world today is through maintenance of representative government, tolerance, and individual liberty within its own borders. Only by doing that can the arts of peace be preserved and a toehold saved for the rebuilding of world civilization after chaos has had its day abroad.

INSURANCE POLICIES REQUIRE FREQUENT CHECKING OVER

These are days of rapid change. Values change, prices change, conditions grow better or worse, almost overnight. It keeps the business man on the jump. Profits are narrow and competition is keen. Losses must be avoided or kept at a minimum. And in all the rush and confusion it is all too easy to forget a mighty important adjunct to this matter of avoiding losses. We refer to insurance. Too many business men feel that once they have bought the various types of insurance they need, they can just forget the whole subject. That's a bad plan. The same changes that affect a man's business may also affect his insurance, and the only way to be sure of sound and adequate coverage is to have a frequent check-up. Whether it is fire, life, theft, casualty, or any of the other forms of insurance, it all deserves a check up at reasonable intervals.

How long is it since yours was checked?

To cultivate kindness is a valuable part of the business of life.—Samuel Johnson.

Fur Accessories Typify Fall Opulence

The favor shown brown furs makes the multi-skin scarf of henna marten (above) an ideal suit or coat accent.

Just right with the first fall suit is the glove of kaynede (top right) with capskin back and thumb. A Kayser glove.

Afternoon elegance is seen in the matching bracelet and clips, and "sculptured" bag—accenting a first fall dress, (right).

The brilliance of gold kid shines on this suede handbag, belt, "bracelet" and glove ensemble. Photo: Dress Accessories.

Belts slim the waist—whether bead embroidered, fashioned of gold links, or with cluster tassels. Photo: Dress Accessories.

With so many of the new coats untrimmed, the necessity for fur accessories becomes self evident. And the smartest women in the land will be scurrying to their furriers with old fur cloaks and "hair-rooms" to be transformed into new muffs and stoles—if brand new ones can't be afforded.

Brown furs are so popular in actual fur garments, and cloth coat trimmings, that their importance is emphasized by further appearance in muffs.

Mink, for instance is developed into large, flat, supple types allowing plenty of room for hands and all the perquisites that would ordinarily fit into a handbag.

More like an actual handbag is the mink envelope with flap into which slide the hands, and which conceals the slide fastened purse.

Sheared beaver is another newcomer to appear in tiny round muffs, or novel spool shaped types that suggest the tiny waistline silhouette! Ruby Silver fox is another newcomer in the fur kingdom, which has been styled into shield-like luxury—appropriate for any long haired fur's muff design.

Black is classic in dressy coats and slant lamb lend themselves admirably to dressy muffs such as the pendant shape with flat loops by which it may be carried on the arm. One particularly effective muff in Persian is finished off with cuffs at the side, giving the impression of belonging to the coat rather than the accessory muff.

In a season when fur trimmings are so generously applied, and fur coats promise to be so extensively worn, the hat entirely of fur, or trimmed with fur becomes the natural "accessory."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Belligerents Fight for Favor Of European Neutral States; 'Flint' Incident Still Simmers

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE WAR IN BRIEF

Unorthodox warfare continued on the western front, original positions being assumed after Nazis forced the French to relinquish early gains.

Scornful

Though 1,500,000 German troops were massed at the Siegfried line, any offensive must come immediately or not until next spring.

Three solid days of rainfall left trenches half-filled with water and stranded the highly touted mechanized artillery. Then came snow and sleet. Diplomatic activity continued at top speed, far overshadowing the actual war. Turkey's new pact with Britain to guarantee the eastern Mediterranean was the source of all efforts, which resolved into a frantic scurrying among belligerents to line up neutrals. At Danzig, German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop furnished diversion by lashing at British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for "breaking promises." He also tried to drive a wedge between the allies by wooing France. Two days later Chamberlain replied just as scornfully. In the Balkans, Britain encouraged Turkish formation of a neutral bloc, using what some observers called poor strategy by apparently neglecting to consult Italy.

While the Reich wooed Rumania, Turkey and Hungary by threats, Britain was more subtle. Under consideration at London were trade pacts to assure the neutrality of Sweden, Netherlands, Finland, Latvia, Turkey and Russia. To soothe the latter nation, Chamberlain agreed that Dictator Josef Stalin's invasion of Poland had been necessary for protection against German aggression.

Russia continued negotiations with Finland, but their nature remained mysterious. Finnish Foreign Minister Eljas Erikko called "just as unfounded as all others" the latest report that Russia had demanded concessions in the Gulf of Finland, a friendship policy between the Kremlin and Finland, and destruction of all fortifications in the strategic Aaland islands. Some observers believed Russian demands on Finland were increased to offset the Soviet's diplomatic defeat in Turkey. But it remained unlikely that Russia would invade Finland.

MARINE:

'Flint' Saga.

German seizure of the 5,000-ton U. S. S. City of Flint bid fair to affect world commerce far more than all the 100-odd vessels which bombs and torpedoes have sent to the bottom since November 1. Carrying contraband to Britain, the Flint was seized by Germany in mid-Atlantic, taken first to Norway and then to Murmansk, Russia, where her American crew was reported safe. But the Soviet indicated Germany would get the ship, thereby relieving Joseph Stalin of bickering with the U. S. Most observers agreed the Reich was justified in seizing

THE REICH BREAKS LOOSE

Next raiders have broken Britain's North sea blockade to raid Atlantic shipping, and Britain cannot hunt them down without weakening her home defenses. Evidence of raiding: British liner Stonegate picked up torpedo victims at (1), was then torpedoed herself (2), probably by the Deutschland, which proceeded north to capture the U. S. S. City of Flint (3) and sail her to Tromsø, Norway, (4) where Stonegate passengers were dumped. City of Flint was then taken to Murmansk, Russia (5). In the heavily protected North sea (6) a convoyed Greek steamer was sunk, while three British vessels went down 80 miles off Gibraltar (7). A French sub reported driving five Nazi raiders to an African port (8).

the Flint, but few expected his next bold move. Berlin ordered a prize court hearing to determine whether the boat, crew or cargo should be freed.

Britain began crowing prematurely about her "speedy" inspection of neutral vessels by contrast with German blundering. U. S. skippers thereupon complained to Washington that Britain's contraband control was actually pretty bad, often taking 18 days to clear a boat. Result: A "gentleman's agreement" to speed inspection.

Obviously the Flint incident put Russia on a spot. By releasing her to the American crew, Russia would snub an erstwhile ally, Germany. As it was, the Soviet incurred U. S. skepticism. If Russia again offers haven to a neutral vessel seized by Germany, the Kremlin might well be asked to tell how she stands in 1939's war.

There was a strong hint of her position in another Flint aftermath. At Moscow, British Ambassador Sir William Seeds was given a note rejecting Soviet recognition of Britain's war contraband list because it violates international law and impairs neutral rights. Incredible as such effrontery, a London spokesman blurted: "Fantastic!"

CONGRESS:

Victory, Then What?

If an isolationist filibuster was really delaying action on the neutrality bill, the City of Flint incident (See MARINE) was enough to end it. Next day the senate agreed to allow each speaker 45 minutes for the bill and an extra 45 minutes for each amendment. Lashed by acid-tongued John Nance Garner, who rebuked the senate for being a "horse-and-buggy outfit," battling solons called a truce to approve amendments (1) banning 90-day credits to either belligerent nations or their residents and (2) lifting shipping restrictions against American boats in the Pacific (except armament), Bermuda, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Tasmanian sea and Capetown. Rejected was an amendment to make President Roosevelt sole judge of the necessity for invoking neutrality. There was good chance another amendment would pass: To forbid any belligerent ship from flying the U. S. flag as defense against a foe.

As early as two days before the senate's final vote, Isolationists Borah and Nye conceded administration forces a two-thirds victory. But they were more hopeful about the house, where neutrality would run against pretty strong opposition. An attempt to invoke parliamentary rules (preventing amendments to the senate bill) was conceded little chance by argumentative representatives.

At South Bend, Ind., the U. S. anti-trust suit against General Motors (for allegedly forcing dealers to use G. M. A. C. financing) went to the jury. In Washington three other prominent anti-trust actions were in the mill: (1) against the American Medical association, being appealed once more; (2) against Chicago area milk dealers, being weighed in the Supreme court; (3) against building trades, which may mushroom into a nation-wide probe. mission and the senate's temporary national economic committee. A fifth case, against certain motion picture interests, was blossoming in the West.

Against this background Trust Buster Thurman Arnold popped a new issue: In District of Columbia federal court the justice department filed complaints charging the Association of American Railroads and 236 individual roads with violating the Sherman act. The charge: That member roads refused to co-operate with motor carriers in hauling freight and passengers.

Cause for action was an A. A. R. resolution of June 25, 1937, which declared public interest would be served "if railroads refrained from establishing with motor carriers through routes or joint rates or fares which invade territory not served by such railroad and which is already served by one or more other railroads."

In Washington, A. A. R.'s President J. J. Pelley "welcomed the action in order that there may be one and for all . . . determined to what extent the railroads are permitted . . . to declare sound policies consistent with the public interest."

Boys Stay Home

Addressing the New York Herald-Tribune forum on current events, President Roosevelt added his thoughts on America's responsibility in Europe's war. He excoriated "orators, commentators and others beating their breasts and proclaiming against sending the boys of American mothers to fight."

Commented he: "Such statements constitute one of the worst fakes in current history. It is a deliberate setting up of an imaginary bogeyman. The simple truth is that no person in any responsible place . . . has ever suggested . . . the remotest possibility of sending the boys of American mothers to fight on the battlefields of Europe."

Antarctic 'Snow Cruiser' Goes for Trial Spin

Thousands of persons gathered in Chicago's Grant park recently to view the "snow cruiser," a huge glacial dreadnaught built for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's expedition to the Antarctic. In an experimental trip the huge ice buggy traveled 15 miles per hour on its 10-foot wheels. Fifty-five feet long, the gigantic machine is built to carry an airplane on its top. Steering levers control the wheels in pairs, although any one wheel may be turned separately. Two 150 horsepower Diesel motors supply power for the cruiser.

May Head England's 'Rightful' German Government

Should Great Britain set up a "rightful" German government (similar to the Polish government now seated in Paris) as is rumored internationally, these three men would undoubtedly head it. They are: Dr. Rudolf Breitscheid, left, former social democrat, who would be foreign minister; Dr. Hermann Rauschning, center, one-time Nazi president of the Danzig senate, who would be chancellor, and Dr. Joseph Wirth, right, former German chancellor, who would be finance minister. The three men are all exiles from Germany. The rumor adds that Britain would loan the "government" 2,000,000 pounds sterling to defray expenses.

Fears that Ham Amin El Hussein, former grand mufti of Jerusalem who recently escaped from exile, may start a new anti-British terrorist campaign were expressed by government officials. The mufti, now in Iraq, is held responsible for the Arabs' campaign of terrorism.

Convicted Pastor Fights for Life

Rev. Walter Dworecki, Camden, N. J., preacher, sentenced to die in the electric chair, is getting another chance to prove his innocence. The pastor will appeal his sentence, given him when he was found guilty of plotting the murder of his daughter, Wanda, who was slain by a stranger who testified Dworecki hired him to commit the crime. He is shown receiving a final embrace from his daughter, Mildred. The appeal automatically postponed the execution date, originally scheduled for the week of November 12.

The annual hunt of the N. H. Fox Coon and Rabbit Hunters' association will be held at Holderness Inn in that town the week of Oct. 22nd through to the 28th. The annual meeting will be Wednesday, the 25th. Walter E. Dunlap of Laconia is the president and when he has charge of a meeting it's as full of pep as he is.

It was my pleasure to sit in at the 44th annual banquet and meeting of the Hillsborough County Fish and Game Protective association at the Kernwood hotel last Thursday. I went with "Clem" Herson who also has been a member of this association for a good many years. This is the second oldest association of its kind in the state and I always get a big kick out of these gatherings. The meeting was small this year but take it from me the quality was there if not the quantity. James DeRocher of the Federal Hatchery at Nashua was president and was re-elected for another year. My old friend and sportsman, Mr. Putnam of Fitchburg, Mass., was the guest speaker. Mr. Herson showed a group picture of an outing of this same club taken over 30 years ago. This was one of the highlights of the meeting. Caterer Stanley James was at his best and the turkey dinner showed some of his handiwork.

We know of many of the raccoon hunters who now have their limit of raccoon. Ten is the limit for a hunter in the season. We know of two men who now have their limit and all alive and well. If the price of pelts is as low at the end of the season as it is now they are to take them back into the woods and release them for another year's sport. That's what I call sportsmanship.

If you have a boy under 16 and he wants to go hunting take time out and do that little thing. He will think a great deal more of you and you will get some real fun out of it. Boys and girls under 16 cannot go hunting alone but must find some one over 21 who has a license to take them out. They cannot go with other boys over 16. The law says over 21 years of age.

Had a caller the other day and they asked me what I was going to do with some of the late arrivals. Two muscovy ducks came out from under the barn with 12 and 8 young ducklings and a buff cochon bantem came from the hayloft with a five point landing. Guess we will have to make mittens for the chickens.

The little corker spaniel still heads the list as the most popular dog in America with the Boston Terrier a close second. The corker is an all around dog, being as good a hunter as a household pet.

I see by the papers that Nashua is being hailed as the first city in the U. S. A. to be 100% on its bicycle registration and requiring everyone who rides a bike to carry a light at night. Every town should follow the example of Nashua. We also commend the town of Milford for its signs 25 miles per hour for all traffic in that town.

In traveling around the country I believe that this fall is the worst in regard to the water question. All brooks and ponds and lakes are way down and many a farmer is busy carting water. We need a lot of rain before the ground freezes.

Here is good news to you winter fishermen who are trying to get a few shiners. At the Springfield Exposition in September I ran across a man who is in the shiner business in a big way. He buys up ponds and then lets the State Dept. take out all the other fish and he saves the shiners. He can deliver to you any amount at a price that will please you. In fact he will sell you so cheap that you will wonder why you ever bothered to go out and catch them in small 18-inch traps. If you want a few or a million he can supply you. Get in touch with me if you want to know more about this.

Guy Washburn of Mason gets a 26 pound snapping turtle which he says has been living off his ducks this past summer. The Nashua to Wilton mail man picks up a 20 pounder in the road on 101A. It's unusual for them to be out this time of the year.

Talk about your foliage tours two weeks ago. This past Sunday was just as beautiful as it was before. The heavy frosts the past week have brought out the colors and Sunday the mountains were beautiful.

Sunday was bird day. I have never in any one day seen so many birds as I saw Sunday. Crows were bunching up for the long trip south. Blue jays, robins and millions of little birds. We also saw many pheasants and grey squirrels.

Services Held
For Mrs. Frank
J. Boyd

Funeral services for Katherine Wadleigh Boyd, who died Wednesday morning at the Glencliff Sanitarium, were held from her late home on School street on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Frank A. M. Coad, pastor of Smith Memorial church, was in charge of the service and spoke as follows:

Katherine Boyd, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wadleigh, was a native daughter. She was born in Hillsboro in June 17, 1907, she attended our schools, and then later joined her father in the employ of the Public Service Co. of N. H. After a few years she was married to Frank Boyd, and it was the hope of all their friends that the newly married couple would walk down life's long highway together, until for both of them the lengthening shadows of life's evening, merged into the new and glorious day of the larger life. But such was not to be the summons of that invisible world was imperative, and after a long illness she said goodbye, and left her loved ones with hearts sad and desolate, because for them the light and joy of life was forever dimmed. Personally, I cannot say the things that I would like to say, and I know that I can even less adequately express the sympathy that is in the hearts of all gathered here, — for the husband, the children and the parents. But by our presence and by our very inability to express ourselves, we pay our highest tribute to her who has gone, and our sympathy and comradeship in grief to those who are left behind.

It was my privilege and honor to perform the ceremony which united Mr. and Mrs. Boyd in marriage, and at a banquet given at the Center Club House. I recall how that in a short speech which I was called upon to make, I made a play around the words power and light, Mr. Boyd, then being in the automobile business, would I then suggested furnish the power and Mrs. Boyd the bride being associated with the Public Service supply the light. Little did I know how well Mrs. Boyd would live up to that chance suggestion, and become indeed the light of the home, a true companion, taking the rough with the smooth, with a courage which never faltered, a devoted mother, a helpmate in the best sense of the word. Were I asked to say what was the most outstanding characteristic of her life I should say it was her uncomplaining, shining courage.

This little incident truly reveals that courage. Just after the second attack of her illness she was taken to Concord to undergo an X-ray examination; the verdict was not at all encouraging, and on the homeward journey she was rather more quiet than usual but on reaching home she called her mother upstairs to her bedroom and read this little poem of Edgar Guest:

SEE IT THROUGH

When you're up against a trouble
Meet it squarely face to face,
Lift your chin and set your shoulder
Plant your feet and take a brace
When it's vain to try to dodge it
Do the best that you can do
You may fall, but you may conquer
See it through.

Black may be the clouds about you
And your future may seem grim
But don't let your nerve desert you
Keep yourself in fighting trim
If the worst is bound to happen
Spite of all that you can do
Running from it will not save you
See it through.

Even hope may seem but futile
When with trouble you're beset
But remember you are facing
Just what other folks have met
You may fall, but fall still fighting,
Don't give up whatever you do
Eyes front, head high to the finish
See it through.

Another favorite quotation was this, "Say at the end of a very dark day, 'I have fought a good fight,' I have kept faith with life and with God. If again and again you face life with little hope, summon every drop of your blood, every spark of your intelligence, and say 'Life is worth while and worth, all it costs.' I shall see it through."

For some months Katherine has been at the Glencliff Sanitarium, and there she used to often repeat these words:

SHUT-IN?

Shut-in? Oh yes, perhaps that's so,
As far as getting out may go,
Shut-in away from earthly cares,
But not shut out from Him who cares,
Shut-in from many a futile guest:
But Christ can be your daily guest;
He's not shut out by your four walls,
But hears and answers all your calls.
Shut-in with God! Oh, that should be
Such an opportunity.
Then, after you have done your best
On God's hand safely leave the rest.

Lack of Confidence

The fact that banks are doing more and more advertising and soliciting for worthy loans would seem to thoroughly blast the argument that the banks are intentionally hoarding their capital, and are not helping to build up their communities, state and nation.

No industry is more interested in obtaining new business and increasing old, than banking. Banks are constantly seeking to better their service to the small borrowers as well as the large. Many banks, for example, have gone actively after such "little stuff" as personal loans and automobile financing, and are offering money to responsible borrowers at very favorable terms.

This doesn't obviate the fact that there is a serious lack of new investment, and that the growing amount of idle money in banks is a very real problem. But to lay all the blame at the door of the bankers is to confuse cause with effect. The barrier to investment, and to substantially increased banking loans, lies primarily in the lack of confidence in the future felt by individuals, and by both small and large business. You can't expect a man to go into debt to expand his business or for any other purpose when he doesn't know where the money is coming from to pay out. There is, of course, a minority of wishful business men who are eager to experiment at any time with somebody else's money—but in cases such as these sound banking practice, to say nothing of the rigid state and federal laws regulating banking, make it necessary to refuse loan applications.

A concern which doesn't want business would hardly advertise and solicit it—and that is as true of banking as any other industry. The banks have money, and they want to put it to work—after all, their very existence is dependent upon a large and stable volume of sound loans. Money will go to work when conditions in this country are such as to give the legitimate potential borrower faith in the future.

Many people ask about the best method for keeping gourds over the winter months. It is discouraging to spend time and effort in growing such a crop and then have them mold shortly after they are brought indoors. Amateur growers often ask when gourds should be harvested. They must be ripened on the vines. If a gourd is picked before it is ripe, it will decay in a short time. The best indication of a ripe gourd is when the stem becomes somewhat withered. An accompanying hardening of the shell may be noted as the gourd ripens. It is just as bad to have the gourds overripe or exposed to frost. Ripe gourds, if left out in the sun, very quickly lose their best colors. The green is changed to a dirty yellow, the yellows lose their brilliant color, and the reds fade. Because gourds are about 90 percent water they are easily frozen and will not keep after they have been frozen.

The following is the recommendation made by the New England Gourd Society for preserving gourds: "There are several ways of preserving ornamental gourds. Shellac and varnish change the natural colors and are not good for this reason.

"A better method is to wash the gourds as soon as they have been picked. Use a strong solution of sulpho-naphthol or any other non-bleaching disinfectant. Scrub them in this solution but not too violently with a fiber brush. This removes the dirt, dust, mold organisms and other foreign matter. Then put the gourds away in a dry, airy place out of the direct sunlight for a week or ten days so that they may thoroughly dry and their shells harden. Don't dry gourds in the sun. After the gourds are dry, wax with a good, liquid floor wax."
