Annual Meeting Of Molly Aiken Chapter, D. A. R.

The annual meeting of Molly Aiken chapter, D. A. R., was held Friday, June 7th, at the home of Mrs. Prentiss Weston in Bennington. Mrs. Byron Butterfield and Mrs. Walter Hills assisted as hostesses.

The meeting was opened with the ritual ceremony, the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the singing of "America."

Annual reports of all officers showed much work accomplished by the chapter during the year.

The following officers were unanimously elected to serve for the coming year: Regent, Mrs. Benjamin F. Tenney; vice regent, Mrs. Hiram W. Johnson; secretary, Mrs. Archie M. Sweet; treasurer, Mrs. Walter C. Hills; registrar, Mrs. Maurice A. Poor; historian, Mrs. Brabury J. Wilkinson; chaplain, Mrs. William McN. Kittredge; manager, Mrs. Frank A. Seager; trustees, Mrs. George W. Hunt, Mrs. Roscoe M. Lane, Mrs. Brabury J. Wilkinson; finance committee, Mrs. George W. Hunt, Mrs. Herbert E. Wilson.

A memorial service for our late member, Mrs. Helen Barker Hitts, was conducted by the regent and chaplain.

A very fine paper on "Historical Flags of the United States" was read by Mrs. Hattie Peaslee.

The retiring regent presented the new regent, Mrs. Tenney, with the acting regent's pin and gavel.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses during the social hour.

WATER SAFETY PROJECT

Last week the committee, which has been working on a Water Safety Project for Antrim, held another meeting. Reports by the members showed that there was much interest and enthusiasm to have a swimming instructor here. Also contributions were pledged. However, due to the short time left before July 1st and the many calls for financial help from people in desperate need caused by the war, it was decided not to put on the program this season. No one knows what another year will bring to us but if conditions permit the committee will start work early next season. Those interested in a Summer Program can get firsthand information during this season by visiting Hancock, Hillsborough, New Boston, Goffstown, Greenville and Brookline.

Last Rites Held For Charles H. Smith

Largely attended services at the Congregational church in Bennington on Friday, June 7th, for Charles Henry Smith, prominent druggist, were conducted by Rev. John Logan, assisted by Rev. Harrison Packard of Antrim with Miss Edith Lawrence, organist, and Mrs. Ethel Roeder and Mrs. Vera Butterfield, soloists. Ushers were Fred Miles of Bennington and Kenneth Cragan of Greenfield, N. H. Bearers were Frank Wheeler of Antrim, Robert Powers, Walter Cleary and Ruel S. Cram of Bennington, Lee Kidder of Milford and Lester Morris of Peterboro.

Rev. Mr. Logan read from a citation conferred upon Mr. Smith on June 14, 1939 as an honorary degree of M. A. at the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy in Providence, R. I.

"Recipient of the first diploma ever awarded by our college, 1903. Registered as a pharmacist at the youthful age of twenty, you have been an exponent of strict pharmaceutical ethics these many years. Kind, altruistic, true; your life is replete with achievements, an inspiration to your many friends and associates."

Mr. Smith was a registered pharmacist in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York.

Those attending the services from out of town and town officials were representative and selectman, Col. A. J. Pierce; Arthur Bell, town treasurer; Judge Henry Wilson, Selectman George Spaulding. Others were George Proctor of Wilton, N. H., Fish and Game Department; George Moulton, druggist, of Peterboro; Town Clerk Archie Sweet of Antrim; Wallace George, druggist, of Antrim; Edward Hagan of Pawtucket, R. I., representative of druggist alumni; C. F. Ferron and son, Lane Ferron of the Ferron Ice Cream Co., Manchester; Ray Mulloney, William Kennedy, Fred Glover and Edward Keegan of the Petroleum Heat and Power Co. of Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Smith, Mrs. Alfred Jeannotte, Mrs. Annie Hagan, Miss Emma Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Corbishley, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Corbishley, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton and Daniel and Thomas Lewis of Pawtucket, R. I.; Howard W. Smith of the University of New Hampshire, Durham; Merrill Smith, Carrie Wheeler and Miss Ruth Littlefield of New Ipswich; Mrs. Fred Garland and Alfred Garland, Worcester, Mass.; and Frank Wheeler of Marlboro.

Interment was made in the Maplewood cemetery at Antrim under the direction of Philip J. Woodbury, mortician. Rev. John Logan officiated at the committal services.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks to those kind neighbors and friends, who by their many acts of kindness, gifts of flowers and spiritual bouquets comforted us in our hour of sorrow. Also to the donors of automobiles we express our appreciation.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor Fish and Game Conservation Officer

If the man in Nashua who forgot to sign his name to the letter he wrote me wanting to buy a boat will get in touch with C. L. Haskell of Fitzwilliam, N. H., he may be able to get what he wants. I still have his stamped envelope for a reply but no address.

Was sorry to have to miss the good supper and meeting of the Hillsborough County Forest Fire Wardens at Mount Vernon the other night. They tell me it was a fine meeting.

We notice that the Forest Fire Wardens in my district are sporting a nice little sign on the front of their cars announcing to the world that they are in that department and ready for anything.

Had a nice call the other day from a well known Boston Lawyer. He was looking for a camp or an old farm in the country for a week-end visit. We steered him onto five real estate agents and also "Ed" Ellingwood of the Monadnock Region. I guess some of them will be able to land him.

Foxes were so cheap last fall that the old real dyed in the wool trapper did not set out a trap. The result of this is that there is a large amount of foxes this year. This is good news to the fruit man as he tells us that when foxes are plentiful he don't have to wire his trees as the foxes take care of the mice. On the other hand the poultry man complains that they lose a lot of poultry during the time that foxes are young. Now who are you going to please.

Fur prices are bound to go sky high this fall if this war over across keeps up. 80% of all the furs used in this country come from Russia and if we break off trade with them, furs go to a new high. The fellow who had the nerve to hang on to his black foxes and mink will reap a harvest later on.

Don't blame the Agent when he asks for your poll tax bill. That's the law and it's part of his work. Remember you can't drive a car nor get a license to hunt or fish unless that poll tax is paid.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred E. Fiske of Dublin have presented to the State Fish and Game Dept. a fine specimen of the Dublin lake trout. Mounted on a birch bark background the trout will make a fine addition to the State Museum which is about to be started in the basement of the old State House in Concord. This trout was caught 20 years ago and weighed about four pounds. It's well preserved.

By order of President Roosevelt two important branches of the Government have been merged into one and that will be known as the "Fish & Wildlife Service." The two branches which have gone out of service are the Bureau of Fisheries and the Biological Survey. Both were under the Dept. of the Interior and the Dept. of Agriculture.

Last week in asking for hawks and owls I should have said these birds must be alive and unhurt. These birds are to be used as pets and must not be injured. Had many letters and phone calls but all had stuffed birds. Sorry, you misunderstood my item.

In two of my towns I have killer dogs. The town authorities have given me every possible aid but we are still in the dark as to who owns these dogs. Any one seeing these dogs chasing any kind of game now get in touch with us or your nearest police department. It's your duty to report in this matter even if it's a dog owned across the street. You would report at once if you saw any one setting a fire or breaking into a house. What's the difference? Believe it or not but in the past month I have notified a good many owners of dogs to tie them up. Some of the notices were not official and some were and I found that the ones who got the official ones are more willing to cooperate with me than the ones who got the tip to check on the dogs.

Just what are we doing for the out of state visitor who comes up to spend a week-end. Why not put up some out door kitchens like they do in other states. Then a family can pull in off the road, build a fire, broil a steak or fry a couple of eggs and have dinner. After dinner burn up the refuse and go along and enjoy the day. I don't know of but one place in the southern part

ANTRIM LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. William Stacy have moved from Depot street to the Matthew Cuddihy house on the Hancock road near Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham have returned to town and have rented a camp at North Branch until Mr. Cunningham builds a camp on his land.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Hurlin and daughter, Miss Barbara, of Jackson Heights, Long Island, were week-end guests of Henry A. Hurlin. They were accompanied by a friend, Miss Clara Drake, who is a social service director in the New York Post Graduate hospital, New York city.

The true story—never told before—of the Mormons' epic march to find their "Promised Land" is revealed in "The Road To Zion," beginning in the American Weekly Magazine with the June 16th Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Garden Tour To Be Held Next Tuesday

The proposed Garden Tour will be made Tuesday, June 18th, afternoon and early evening. This is free to all.

All those interested in seeing the town's gardens are invited to participate in this tour. Those driving their own cars are asked to take as many others as possible. Those desiring transportation should get in touch with Mrs. Ross Roberts.

The tour will start from the home of Mrs. Emma Goodell and cars may leave at any hour. Lists of the gardens that may be visited will be provided and the gardens may be visited as leisurely as desired.

This tour is to show the different ways our townspeople have developed their home grounds, however simple and incomplete and to show what may be accomplished with any sort of grounds. Mrs. Ross Roberts, Mrs. Harrison Packard, Mrs. George Nylander and Mrs. Maurice Poor are the committee in charge.

ANTRIM GIRL GRADUATES FROM CUSHING ACADEMY

Jane Hurlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hurlin of Fairview street, Antrim, N. H., is among the class of 66 seniors receiving diplomas at Cushing Academy on Monday, June 10th. At the completion of the 65th year one of the largest attended commencement in the history of the school featured the graduation address given on Monday morning by Sen. Charles W. Tobey from New Hampshire. Making a hurried trip from his duties on Capitol Hill, Sen. Tobey spoke forcefully and courageously on the challenge to youth as he reviewed the opportunities growing out of the national and international problems of today. At the conclusion of his address Principal Clarence P. Quimby presented diplomas and awarded over $300 in commencement prizes. The featured commencement prizes were as follows:

The school publication medals for outstanding helpfulness to three senior members of the Breeze staff: Althea T. Quimby, Ashburnham; Jane Hurlin, Antrim, N. H.; William Goble, Cambridge.

ANTRIM LOCALS

Mrs. Floria Huntley of Marlboro is visiting her sister, Mrs. Cora B. Hunt.

Mrs. Guy D. Tibbetts has returned from an auto trip to the Middle West.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hastings have returned from a visit of several weeks in Boston and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Robinson went to Boston Tuesday. Mrs. Robinson will visit her mother for a short time.

Out-In Frock With Braid Edged Panels

DON'T you think it's one of the prettiest ideas for cotton prints that ever bloomed in the spring—all set for a summer of great popularity? There's something so perky and young about 8716, with its choice of low-cut or tailored collar finished with a come-hither bow, and panels outlined in braid, to call attention to the supple slimmness of your waist! It's simple and comfortable enough to wear around the house, but it's much, much too pretty to spend all its time at home. Wear it to market and for runabout, too. Make this of plaid or checked gingham, polka dot percale or plain-colored chambray, with bright ric-rac braid. Step-by-step sew chart comes with your pattern.

Pattern No. 8716 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 dress with either neckline, requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch fabric without nap; 8 yards ric-rac to trim; 3/4 yard ribbon for bow. Send order to:

"HOLLYWOOD was never like this!"

Jean Arthur was talking. Dressed in faded jeans, a leaky sombrero and a blouse that most women would use for a dusting rag, she stood in front of the adobe hut which is her dressing room at Old Tucson. Old Tucson is just what it means, a reproduction of the original walled city of the sixties, where Wesley Ruggles is currently filming Clarence Budington Kelland's "Arizona." Situated 16 miles north of present-day Tucson, it is a monument to movie ingenuity, a village of 125 buildings, re-created by Columbia studios' technicians from the original plans of early Tucson.

"Running water is a luxury out here," Miss Arthur said, wiping the perspiration from her face. "To speak of hot water is heresy. There just isn't any. Not that a tub of water wouldn't reach the boiling point if placed in the sun, but there are so many horses, cows, dogs and pigs around here that a tub of water wouldn't have a chance to get warm."

She has turned her back on glamour these days. She is bent only on making "Phoebe Titus," who sold pies for a dollar apiece, believable and real. She is starred in "Arizona," with William Holden and Warren William backing her up, and she's going to give us a picture worth seeing and remembering, though the thermometer does register 126 degrees.

"Waterloo Bridge" is another picture that you'll remember. Vivian Leigh proves that, in "Gone with the Wind," she was no flash in the pan; in fact, she's as good or better in "Waterloo Bridge" as she was in that Civil war epic.

And the picture gives you a new Robert Taylor. His little moustache is tremendously becoming (even though his wife, Barbara Stanwyck, said "Thumbs down!" when he raised a real one). He puts real life into his role, that of a young British army officer in the last war.

The movies are doing very well indeed by Arizona these days. Two hundred and fifty members of the cast and crew of Edward Small's "Kit Carson" troupe landed in Flagstaff the other day; among the actors were Lynn Bari, Jon Hall, Dana Andrews, Raymond Hatton, Director George B. Seitz, and many others whose names are familiar to movie-goers.

From Flagstaff the entire troupe will go to the Indian trading post of Kayente, on the Navajo Indian reservation, where a special town has been built to accommodate the Hollywood folk for their month-long stay.

The mail response to Johnny Green's new Sunday evening "Rhyme-O" program seems to upset the common belief that writing poetry is the special province of a selected few. On this musical audience-participation program, Johnny uses four-line verses, and asks listeners to send them, $5 going to the writer of each verse used.

In one week Green received 10,000 individual letters containing rhymes—and there was an average of three rhymes in each letter.

The Andrews Sisters, famous "swing" trio formerly heard on Columbia Broadcasting company's networks with Glenn Miller and his orchestra, have journeyed to Hollywood; they're broadcasting nightly from a night club there, and preparing to be starred with the Ritz brothers in a Universal picture called, of all things, "Argentine Nights!"

ODDS AND ENDS
Lloyd Nolan scored such a personal triumph in "Johnny Apollo" that he's been given the leading role in 20th Century-Fox's "I Married a Nazi," replacing the bed-ridden Richard Greene, whose illness caused him to leave the cast.
Virginia Lee Corbin, the second greatest child star of her day, and Charlotte Henry, who starred in "Babes in Toyland" and "Alice in Wonderland" not so awfully long ago, are ten-dollar-a-day extras in "The Howards of Virginia."
"I Do" is announced as the final title for the Metro picture originally called "To Own the World," starring Lana Turner and John Shelton.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY OR FOR GUESTS
(See Recipes Below)

It takes little imagination to evolve a good meal in summer. Whether you are planning a menu for the family or for guests, there's all the wealth of the world from which to choose!

There is fresh asparagus and home-grown berries, new potatoes, tiny green onions, and all the other tender green things from the garden.

Remember that sunshine and warm weather and foods with zestful flavor go together, and plan your menus around fresh-tasting fruits and vegetables, for they have winning ways with jaded appetites. There's the minted pineapple cup pictured above, that's a grand first course for a summer lunch or dinner; it's as refreshing as a cool breeze off the lake! There are fruit salads, too—cool and colorful as summer gardens; and vegetable plates, which, well arranged, have appetite-appeal galore. And, by the way, your calorie-conscious friends will bless you if you serve them, when you entertain the club, these refreshing, filling, but not too fattening combinations.

Plan your menus around some of the fresh and tempting recipes below, and when you serve a salad or vegetable for the main dish of the meal, serve with it some unusual bread, a beverage, and the simplest kind of dessert.

You'll find tested recipes for unusual bread and rolls to serve with summer meals, in my cook book, "Better Baking."

June Fruit Appetizer or Dessert.
Fresh pineapple
Fresh strawberries
Confectioners' sugar

Cut pineapple in 1/2-inch slices, unpeeled. Then cut each slice in wedge-shaped pieces. Wash strawberries, leaving the stems on them. Chill the fruits thoroughly, then on individual dessert plates arrange the pineapple wedges and the strawberries, in a ring around the plate. Place a mound of confectioners' sugar in the center of each plate, and serve at once.

Minted Pineapple Gems.
(Serves 4)

1 14-ounce can pineapple (spoon-size chunks)
4 tablespoons lime juice
1 teaspoon fresh mint (minced)
Arrange pineapple in fruit cocktail glasses. Combine lime juice and mint, and pour over the pineapple. Chill thoroughly before serving.

Hot Weather Vegetable Plate.
New potatoes browned in butter
Small whole beets rolled in mint
Spinach with hard cooked eggs
Nuttid squash
Green onions.

Parboil small pared potatoes in butter. Cook small, whole beets in boiling water until tender. Drain and peel. Add melted butter. Then roll buttered beets in chopped green mint. Cook spinach in salted water, drain, and season with salt, pepper and butter. Garnish dish with hard cooked egg white rings and top with riced egg yolks. Steam small summer squash until tender. Cut in halves, scoop out centers, and mash. Season with melted butter, salt and pepper. Sprinkle chopped nut meats over top. Arrange vegetables on individual plates and garnish with a sprig of parsley.

Fresh Asparagus With Lemon Butter Sauce.
(4 servings)

2 small bunches fresh asparagus (or 1 large bunch)
5 cups boiling water
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Cut off lower parts of asparagus stalks as far down as they will snap. Discard, or use in soup. Tie stalks

If you're planning a club tea to bring the social season to a close, you'll want to read Eleanor Howe's column next week. She'll give you plans and recipes for a delightful summer tea. Be sure to watch for this column next week!

together loosely in a bundle and place upright in saucepan containing the boiling water to which salt has been added. Cook, uncovered, until ends of stalks begin to be tender, about 15 minutes; then lay bunch of asparagus flat in pan and continue cooking until tips are tender, 5 to 10 minutes, then drain. Cream butter and add lemon juice slowly. Pour this mixture over hot asparagus and serve at once.

Fruit Salad Dressing.
2 egg yolks
1/2 cup strained honey
Juice of 1 lemon
Dash of salt
1 cup whipping cream

Place egg yolks, honey, lemon juice and salt in top of double boiler, and cook 1/2 hour, stirring frequently. Remove from heat, beat with a Dover egg beater, and cool. Whip cream and then pour the chilled honey mixture into the whipped cream, beating with Dover beater.

Baked Eggs in Tomato Cup.
(Serves 5-6)

6 tomatoes
Salt
Pepper
6 eggs
Buttered bread crumbs
Soft cheese (grated)
Scoop out tomato centers and sprinkle with salt. Place tomatoes in muffin pans. Break an egg into each tomato. Season, and top with buttered crumbs and cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until tomatoes are tender and eggs are set.

Orange Ice Box Cookies.
(Makes 5 dozen)

1 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup white sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon orange rind (grated)
2 1/4 cups general purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup pecan nut meats (broken)
Cream shortening and add sugars slowly, while beating constantly. Add egg (well-beaten), orange juice and orange rind. Mix and sift flour, salt and soda together and add to the creamed mixture, together with the broken nut meats. Form in rolls in wax paper and chill overnight in refrigerator. Slice thin, place on greased baking sheet and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes.

Fruit Salad.
Toss together in a salad bowl 1 cup watermelon balls, 1 cup cantaloupe balls, 1 cup honey dew melon balls, 1 cup pitted red cherries. Add french dressing enough to coat all the fruits, and mix lightly. Serve on individual plates with two or three stalks of well-chilled french endive for garnish.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Standing on a heavy rug or rubber mat will go a long way toward preventing fatigue during long periods of ironing.

Ice cubes or desserts are frozen faster in a mechanical refrigerator if a quarter-cup of water is poured on the freezing surface before the trays are put in place.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

Cakes or cookies in which honey is used as a sweetening require a rather moderate temperature for baking. If the oven is too hot they will burn.

Don't bang porcelain or enameled kitchen equipment against stoves, tables or sinks. It will chip or crack if it is roughly handled. Many of the more modern, attractive pieces require special care.

IN THE midst of the recent Good-all round-robin struggle for mastery among 15 of the world's best golfers we began thinking again of the part that the mental side or mental attitude plays in this baffling game of golf.

The 15 contestants in this tourney were all fine golfers on the physical side. Most of them can hit the ball a long, long way and keep it straight, most of them are fine iron players, keen pitchers, and at least a few are consistent putters. The main answer is one's mental attitude for the day or for the tournament—his ability to concentrate along the right lines.

This, of course, is an old story. But how does one locate this phantom will-o'-the-wisp?

I had been watching Jimmy Demaret, winner of seven big tournaments, one of the main favorites at Fresh Meadow. I had seen him smile and laugh and appear care-free coming up to the ball—then suddenly focus perfectly on the next stroke. So I talked to Demaret, the Texas Tarantula of the ancient green.

Demaret's Angle

"I drew a fine break in the art of concentration when I was a young kid," Demaret said. "There were nine in our family. There was always a turmoil around. I had to learn how to study and concentrate with a football game or some other game going on all around me. There was always a din and a racket. I had to force myself to think of what I was reading or working over in spite of these outside distractions.

"So I had to develop the habit of quick concentration from an early age, when all lasting habits are usually formed—I mean the ones that usually stick with you.

"Here's a funny angle. I am supposed to be free from any nervous trouble. Yet I am one of the most nervous men you ever knew. I mean until a tournament starts. I'm even nervous in practice. But when the tournament gets under way I turn back to my kid days, forget everything else, all the outside distractions. I think of only one shot at a time and I think of a round after the fashion of one shot at a time."

What to Think About

"Bobby Jones once told me," I said to Demaret, "that he thought of at least three things before playing any shot."

"What were they?" Jimmy asked. "First, the pace of his backswing to be sure it wasn't hurried. Next, the full body or the needed body turn, and, last, cocking his left wrist at the top of the swing."

"I also think of about three things before playing a shot," the Texan said. "First, I want to be sure I have a firm, comfortable and correct grip. Next, I want to feel that I have an easy, comfortable stance. Last, I also want to be sure I don't hurry my backswing and that I also take the needed amount of body turn.

"Golf," Demaret said, "is a game you play largely with your hands, wrists and forearms. They swing the clubhead. The body should work together with the hands, but in most cases the body works against the hands. The average golfer lets the shoulders and body, or maybe the feet and legs, tie up the hands.

"Now, the average golfer has a hard time concentrating because he tries to think of too many things. It can't be done. He merely gets a blurred picture of what he is trying to accomplish. I believe in making golf as simple as possible."

"What should the average golfer try to think about?" I asked.

Comfort and Ease

"He or she should try to think first in terms of being comfortable and easy, and not to get all tight-ended up. After this, he should think about letting the hands and forearms swing the clubhead. He shouldn't start locking his feet and legs, or stiffening his body. He should have a picture of hands, of live hands, taking that clubhead back as smoothly as possible, letting his body turn naturally, and from the top of the swing he should be in no hurry to start any down-swing speed. That's where so much trouble comes from—hustling or hurrying the downswing, which will usually take care of itself if you just leave it alone.

"Golf isn't a left-handed game nor a right-handed game. It is a game in which both hands swing the clubhead. It isn't nearly as difficult as most players make it, if they would only think of the few necessary things one must do.

Let Yourself Go

"Watch any of these 15 players in this field. They all give you the impression they are using their hands more than anything else. And they are. They are not thinking about half as many things to do as the average golfer does. Never mind too many details. They just tie you up. Keep as relaxed as you can. When you begin to tighten up, step away, and take your stance again. And don't think of anything but the swing itself, of using the hands in the proper manner.

Texas Clouter Reminiscent of Benny Leonard

By ROBERT McSHANE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

LEW JENKINS, the tough little hombre from Sweetwater, Texas, is the hardest-hitting champion of the lightweight division has known since the days when Benny Leonard was belting 'em over with remarkable regularity.

Not long ago Lew was an unknown. The cowboy clouter got his title chance when he scored decisive wins over Billy Marquard and Tippy Larkin. Marquard lasted several rounds, looking even better than his opponent. But Lew rallied long enough to draw the curtain over Marquard.

There wasn't much to the Larkin fight. Tippy was considered one of the best boxers and fastest men in the lightweight ranks. But Jenkins jabbed a few times with his left and then let loose with a right early in the first round. That brought the end.

Even with these victories behind him Jenkins was considered the underdog when he signed up to meet Champion Lou Ambers. The thin man of Texas just wasn't scheduled to offer Ambers much competition. The experts had seen him fight. They knew he had a heart as big as himself, and a lethal punch, but they just couldn't visualize how he would stack up against Ambers.

Jenkins crossed them up. He walked out at the bell and rocked Ambers with a wicked right cross from which Lou never recovered. In the second round Jenkins floored him with a short right hook, and had him down twice before the fight was halted in the third round.

No Adonis of the Ring

Jenkins isn't an artist's ideal champion. He'll never pose for the Spirit of Pugilism. He resembles an animated rake handle and is far from a picture of power. His lean, hungry look comes naturally.

LEW JENKINS

Many's the day he has gone hungry, and though recent success has put money in the bank for him, he won't forget those thin days of his past.

He has legs of pipe stem proportions, and his knees look like the weak spot of an inflated inner tube. His arms are long and thin, his face is hatchet shaped. His hair is wiry and unruly, standing like the quills of an annoyed porcupine.

But he can fight—and his opponents will never forget it. His punches are as fast as a radio comedian's comeback, and they contain a crushing power. His force comes through perfect timing and leverage. His fighting style is reminiscent of the Dempsey of old. He parks courtesy outside the ring, ready to give and take as long as he can stand up. He hit Ambers once while Lou's head was bobbing outside the ropes, and he cuffed him twice after the bell had ended the second round.

Champ—the Hard Way

Jenkins' story is the old, old Cinderella-like tale. Two years ago he was a cavalry recruit in the army, serving as blacksmith. In need of a bit of change while on furlough in Fort Worth, Texas, Lew offered to fight for coffee money. He won the bout and quit the army. His next victories weren't as simple. In fact, he was ready to quit a year ago when his wife persuaded him to go to New York for one more chance.

Starting in the small clubs, Lew won a couple of fights for a starter. That gave him heart and he continued his string of victories. Finally his name became known and he was brought to Madison Square Garden, where he accounted for Marquard, Larkin, and eventually Ambers, the champ.

Sport Shorts

Taft Wright, White Sox outfielder, is the team's most superstitious player. Besides wearing the same shirt when he's in a hitting streak, he woos Lady Luck by collecting hairpins. . . . Grover Alexander pitched in 43 or more games a season during his first seven years in the National league. . . . Louisiana State university has won 94 of the eight S. E. conference track meets. . . . Connie Mack picked the Yankees to finish third this year. Remember?

THOSE RADIO TAXICABS

There's another revolt in the offing. This time it's against radios in taxicabs. No man can serve two masters and no taxicab driver can do justice to three traffic lights and four or five radio programs.

A public cab should be a conveyance and not a loud speaker with hot brakes and loose fenders.

There is no reason why a man who wants to cross town in a hurry should be obliged to ride with a swing orchestra, a cooking program or a couple of radio comedians.

The taxicab companies insist that the customers prefer radio hacks. They say the riders regard an outside aerial as more important to transportation than four-wheel brakes. But this correspondent doubts it. He thinks the ride is tough enough without the incidental static.

For every cab fare who wants to hear "Oh, Johnny," "Town Hall Tonight" or the United States Marine Band while taking sharp corners on two wheels, there are at least ten who prefer to do their rough riding unaccompanied by symphony orchestras, radio tenors and masters of ceremonies.

It has sprung to the rescue of a long-suffering public with a demand that taxi driving by ear be forbidden, and that the hose be turned on the quaint notion that there isn't noise enough in a big city without radios in taxicabs.

The drivers won't give up without a battle, however. They contend that their lives are drab without music, wise cracks, hints on how to prepare a shrimp salad and a voice shouting from somewhere every five minutes, "Right, Miss Turney! 100 per cent right! Lincoln's first name was Abraham, and you win five silver dollars!"

They insist that, with or without passengers, they are entitled to the full companionship of the Radio Corporation of America. If that contention is sound then a paper hanger is entitled to use his portable radio while taping your living room and a doctor is justified in listening to the Bison City Quartet while discussing your symptoms.

This department is also mildly opposed to radios in private automobiles. Driving is hazardous enough in modern traffic without giving the driver three extra switches, another glass dial and a lot of additional noises to worry over.

WAR NOTE

The servants are listening to the broadcasts all night and both German and French cooking is in a severe slump—in fact, it's terrible. That's why you see so many familiar faces dining out en famille.

R. ROELOFS JR.

A telling commentary on the contrast in living on two continents came over the radio the other day. "The French commander," the voice said, "has called on all men to die at their posts rather than retreat. The fate of the world is at stake," he declared. "Warneke now rubs a new ball. The count is three and two."

Information, Please!

Speaking of Leap Year, Haven't I heard It's the early worm That catches the "bird"? Marjorie Lederer.

Roosevelt is still reported as considering Mayor LaGuardia of New York for vice president. Well, anyhow, the attempt to make Fiorello play second fiddle anywhere, any time would make one of the great radio features of all time.

A big airport recently went into bankruptcy. In selling stock for an airport is anybody ever offered a chance to get in on the ground floor?

Some candidates for the presidency are so full of intolerance, partisanship and bias that they could speak of them as tossing their "hates into the ring."

"Do you remember," asks Wallace Cox, "when 'German Lieder' meant a group of songs?"

Springtime Is Season of Joy And Zest for Wild Creatures

With Nature in Her Gayest Mood, Animals Enjoy Their Own Games and Frolics.

SPRINGTIME in the wilds is playtime. The majority of our mammals have their young in the early months of the year, and in April and May it is possible to watch the most delightful games among the puppies of the fields.

Badger, fox and otter cubs are very playful little creatures. The otter and badger appear to have a certain amount of method in their games, but fox cubs simply romp among themselves in a wild abandon.

On a sloping sand cliff near my home seven fox cubs came out of a large hole; on the ledge just outside they played with a round stone, pushing it with their feet, tossing it in the air and allowing it to run down the slope.

When tired of this they played a game which resembled "Follow the Leader." One would run forward, dodge and leap over all kinds of imaginary obstacles, and the others would follow in its tracks; then all would roll together in a rough and tumble, in which their small teeth would tug at the fur of their companions.

Bouncing Badgers.

Young badgers are among the most amusing cubs to watch at play. With their bold black and white markings they are quaint looking little creatures, and rather clumsy, but there is no doubt that they thoroughly enjoy life, and their play is exuberant and strenuous.

First they poke their noses in the ground, searching for hidden grubs; then, without any warning, all stiffen their fur, making it stand upright, and now they look twice their size. With their short legs also stiffened they bounce round one another like footballs, then leap in, grip a mouthful of fur, and roll over and over. They break apart, and again play the bouncing game, and just as suddenly as they started to play they cease, and the next moment all are diligently searching for more food.

Fun in the Water.

Many young otters are born at an awkward time, that is at the beginning of winter, but they are hardy little creatures and appear to be able to stand any amount of cold. Otters, more than any other wild creatures, show us that they thoroughly enjoy life; a plentiful supply of food makes them contented, and both parents and young play the most delightful games.

What appeared to be a large brown ball was floating gently down stream, hardly making a ripple as it swept along. Suddenly the ball seemed to burst open with a loud splash, and four excited otters with their bright, eager eyes well above the water, started swimming round one another. One leaped right out of the stream and over its companions to dive on the other side, and as they floated along this acrobat made circles around them, those below trying to grip it as it passed over. Then they all joined up again, and seemed to be having a struggle as to which could pull the others under the surface, a sort of spirited ducking game.

They continue to play until all are tired. Then the parents lead their young off to a well-hidden lair, where they all sleep until hunger and high spirits call again. —Oliver G. Pike in London Tit-Bits.

Antrim Quota For Red Cross Doubled

Concord Chapter
Concord, N. H., June 1, 1940
From Chairman Concord Chapter

To Branch Chairman
Subject: War Relief Fund
The following telegram has been received from National Chairman Norman H. Davis:

"WHEN AMERICAN RED CROSS ASKED MINIMUM WAR RELIEF FUND TEN MILLION DOLLARS NO ONE COULD FORESEE THAT IN TWO SHORT WEEKS GREATEST TRAGEDY IN ALL HISTORY WOULD BE UNFOLDED. IMPROBABLE TO DESCRIBE. PITIFUL FLIGHT MILLIONS REFUGEES IN FRANCE, SICK, WOUNDED, HUNGRY AND HOMELESS, THEY CRY OUT TO US FOR HELP. WE WILL NEED MUCH MORE THAN TEN MILLION DOLLARS, THEREFORE QUOTAS ORIGINALLY ASSIGNED SHOULD BE REGARDED ONLY AS MINIMUM IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVES. CHAPTERS SHOULD THEN GO ON AND WHERE POSSIBLE DOUBLE THEIR QUOTAS. IN FACT ONLY LIMITATION SHOULD BE THE MAXIMUM GENEROSITY OF AMERICAN PEOPLE. WE SHOULD COMPLETE THIS CAMPAIGN WITHIN SHORTEST POSSIBLE TIME."

Bradford and Dunbarton have already reached their original quotas. Other branches report splendid progress. Please do all within your power to complete drive as soon as possible. Twice your original quota should be your goal.

Stores, banks and industries should all be solicited. Church, grange and civic groups will gladly cooperate.

Please report progress weekly to Concord office.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES B. GODFREY,
Chairman, Concord Chapter

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

For quite a while we've been going through a session where our head men there on the windy Potomac keep telling us we gotta do this or do that or we cannot survive. Machinery is ruining us, they say—and our frontiers are gone—and we better pull back into our shell and just let the Govt. do everything to us.

We are a nation of suckers. Mr. Hitler says if you tell people something often enough, they will get to believing it.

We've been acting like the guy who lets his wife buy his hats for him.

The good lady went into the store and says, I want a new hat for my husband. And the clerk says, yes mam, and he got the hat and wrapped it up. But the lady was nonplussed, and she says, what size is the hat—you didn't ask what size I wanted. And the clerk says, it is a 6 and a quarter. All men, he says, who let their wife buy his hat, wear a 6 and one quarter.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA

Mrs. Minnie Cady entertained her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hudson, of Claremont N. H. on Sunday.

Rev. John Logan and Maurice C. Newton accompanied Mr. and Mrs. J. Prentiss Weston to Deering to a Presiding Masters' Night on Monday evening.

Stewart Thompson, headmaster of Pierce High School, is not to return here. He will take up duties in the high school in North Woodstock next fall.

The exercises of the Pierce High School will take place in the town hall on Friday evening at 8 p. m. The hall is being beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. Francis Davy and daughter Elaine have returned home from a week's visit in Boston where Mrs. Davy's two younger sisters took a prominent part in a Boston Stage Dance Recital.

The Bennington grange met in its hall on Tuesday evening. The program was in the hands of the Home and Community Welfare committee whose chairman, Miss Grace Taylor, presented the following program: Song, "America, the Beautiful," by the grange; essay, "Changes in the Community in the past 25 years," by Mary Knight; roll call by grangers; song, "Home Sweet Home," by grange; recitation, "The House by the Side of the Road," by Grace Taylor; quiz by those present; Song, "America."

We have voted to invite the Junior high and all high school students to a good time in grange hall on July 9 to meet a group of young folks from Nashua and Hudson. At the next meeting we are to entertain the grangers and their children, the children to furnish one number each for the program.

GRANITE STATE GARDENER

By J. R. Hepler, Associate Horticulturist, Durham, New Hampshire

While I am not greatly in sympathy with many of the "eat more of this and eat more of that" slogans that we have had in recent years, nevertheless I do think that the campaign to increase the use of greens and roughage is a very worthwhile one. There is no doubt about the high mineral and vitamin contents of the various greens and leafy vegetables. Then comes the question of which ones to grow.

It seems to me that the cabbage family produces more food per acre than any other group of green vegetables. There are various kinds of cabbages—green cabbage, red cabbage, Savoy cabbage; also sprouting broccoli, cauliflower, kohlrabi, brussels sprouts, and certain green vegetables like kale and collards can be grown in the average New Hampshire garden. Yet when I mention cabbage culture to many people they say they can buy cabbage cheaper than they can grow it. This I think is a poor idea. When you grow cabbage or broccoli in your garden you use it, if you have to buy it you are likely not to use it. In any event, it is never quite as good as when freshly harvested.

All of these crops of the cabbage family are easy to grow. You can plant the seed now and thin it to the proper distance. Some plants like Chinese cabbage or kohlrabi should be thinned to 5 or 6 inches between plants, others like brussels sprouts, fall cabbage and broccoli should be thinned to 24 inches between plants from a neighbor and set them out.

Cabbage crops like a fairly rich soil, quite a lot of manure and some additional fertilizer like superphosphate in addition to the manure. And they have several insect and disease enemies. If club foot gets in your garden it practically prevents you from producing these crops and new land must be used in order to grow this crop again. The cabbage worm may be quite bad in the summer but can be easily killed by spraying or dusting once every two weeks with rotenone dust. The maggot which sometimes kills cabbage early in the spring is easily controlled by putting a cupful of a solution of mercuric bichloride water on the plants. This mercuric bichloride or corrosive sublimate solution is made by dissolving an ounce of this chemical in ten gallons of water. Two treatments are usually sufficient to prevent radishes, cauliflower, cabbage, broccoli and other plants of similar nature from being infested with maggots.

Those youngsters who graduate this year are as follows: Pauline Shea, Arthur Diamond, Willard Perry and John Warren from Hillsboro High School; Phyllis Clymer from Antrim high school and Esther Perry from Keene Teachers' College.

Twenty-five members of the Molly Aiken Chapter, D. A. R., of Antrim met at the home of Mrs. J. Prentiss Weston at Stony Brook Farm on Friday, June 7th, for their annual meeting. Mrs. Byron Butterfield and Mrs. Walter Hills served as hostesses with Mrs. Weston.

Friends and parents were invited to visit Miss Cilley's room, grades 4-5 and 6, on Monday afternoon to attend the prize speaking contest which the teacher had arranged. All the pupils took part and each did very well. The judges for the afternoon were Mrs. Frank Young, Mrs. M. E. Sargent and Mrs. Stewart Thompson. The results of their findings were as follows: Grade 4, first prize, George Weston; second prize, Barbara Griswold. Grade 5, first prize, Robert Brown; second prize, Elsie McInnis. Grade 6, first prize, Ann Burns; second prize, Christine DeBernado. The first prizes were $1 each and second prizes 50c each. Punch and cookies were served by the pupils. The prizes and refreshments were all furnished from the Class Club Funds, which made the pupils feel that it was indeed their own special contest.

Rev. Joseph Moulton, recently of Rahuri, India, spoke to an audience of about 40 persons in the Congregational Church on Friday evening. The program was as follows: Call to worship and scripture by Rev. Harrison Packard; duet, Mary Korkonis and Margaret Edmunds, "In my heart there rings a melody;" offering; solo, Velma Newton; introduction of the speaker by the president of the Missionary Society; address, Rev. Joseph Moulton, who took us on an imaginary journey along the road about four miles outside the village in which they are located as Missionaries. His talk was very good and he very willingly answered questions of all sorts. Mr. Moulton was entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Newton and Rev. John Logan motored him to Wilton on Saturday where he spoke the following day.

The Corner Club meeting, which was held at Smithholm, was in the form of a farewell supper for Mrs. M. I. Valentine, Friday, May 31. One of the members, Mrs. L. B. Grant, made a cake which was beautifully decorated to fit the occasion. She also received two lovely gifts from the club. It was a well-planned supper and everyone enjoyed it immensely. Mrs. Valentine left the following Monday for New York to live with her daughter. We shall all miss her.

WILLIAM M. MYERS POST HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The William M. Myers Unit No. 50 met at the home of Mrs. Arline White Monday June 10, 1940.

The Unit is donating $5 to the Red Cross. Mrs. Mae Mallette was initiated. The Memorial Day Committee did a splendid job planning our parade and services. The school teachers should receive a thank you for their splendid Memorial Day Program. Also the Unit appreciated the efforts of the Selectmen in detouring the traffic during the services and parade, and hoped this can be carried out next year. Thanks, also goes to Boy Scouts for getting the evergreen for the Unit.

The Unit decided to put a float in the July 4th Parade. The float committee consists of Mrs. Mary Doyle, Mrs. Louise Anger and Mrs. Edna Humphrey.

The following delegates to the convention were elected: Mrs. Louise Anger and Mrs. Mildred Zabriskie, Alternates, Mrs. Mary Doyle and Mrs. Rachelle Day.

Poppy chairman, Mrs. Mildred Zabriskie reported $44.21. At the close of the meeting a Colonial American program was given. Many of the members attended the meeting dressed in colonial costumes. Refreshments were served by hostess Mrs. Arline White and Edna Humphrey.

of the state along the highways where this can be done. This place is on Moos brook in the town of Hancock. Public spirited people got together and made this place for the public. There are many places on route 202, 101, 13 and 31 where these places could be made at small cost. I contacted "Ed" Ellingwood at Peterboro and he said it was up to local people to do this. We have many organizations in our town. Who will start this idea a rolling? Here is a chance for the Garden clubs to blossom out and make a name for your club. These small grills are very inexpensive and would be a great boom to any region. Let's hear what you think about it.

Is the spirit of Memorial Day fading? What would become of our cemeteries but for that sacred day. Every year the organizations are fewer and fewer. One well known man told me that the younger generations were not a joining generation and every year the lodges are losing many members and no new ones to take their place. That's very true with the Grand Army Veterans. My home town has no more veterans of the Civil War. The Cities seem to hold their own and have mammoth parades but is the country town losing its grip? We hope not.

There is one thing that the towns are doing and that's giving much better care to its cemeteries. I visited quite a few in the past few weeks and all of them are in fine shape. Much money is spent by the towns and many perpetual care lots. This is as it should be.

pail from the first planting there were just 23 people on the bridge. Where they came from I don't know. That is usually the case, always someone around to see you put them in. Well just to show you that you don't have to go way up in the north country to catch 'em, Noel Sweeney of Peterboro reports that in the past week there were 43 lake trout taken from Nubanusit lake in Hancock, and the average was about 3 1/2 pounds. His brother Roy caught a salmon that was 28 inches long and tipped the scales at 5 1/2 lbs. They also caught 1 Chinook 6 1/4, one landlocked salmon 6 1/2, and one laker 4 1/2 lbs. Fitchburg, Mass., fishermen report good luck at this lake. One of the salmon caught had a five inch smelt in his mouth when caught. We have at hand a letter from a former resident of Dublin, now in some western state. He writes that he is very much put out to hear that old Dublin Lake in the town of Dublin has been changed to Mo-nadnock lake. But no matter what other people call it it will always be Dublin lake to me.

GENERAL JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C. GESTURE WITH GOOD SELECTIONS

The Knudsen-Stettinius-etcetera board is not a council of national defense. It is an advisory commission to the statutory council which is composed of Secretaries Woodring, Edison, Ickes, Wallace, Hopkins, and Perkins.

Only these New Dealers have authority. They, added to the New Dealers, on the commission—Leon Henderson, Sidney Hillman, Chester Davis, William McReynolds and perhaps Harriet Elliott—make a total of 10 or 11 New Dealers.

There are only three non-New Dealers, Knudsen, Stettinius and Budd, and only the New Dealers have any power. Yet the setup is being widely represented as "non-political"—several commentators insisting that Knudsen was "nominated" by Republicans.

I don't know about that but I do know that this column—which is not Republican—began before anybody plugging to have him brought in months ago, and has frequently urged it since.

I fear the thing is just a gesture which won't work and perhaps wasn't intended to work. It starts just where we started in 1916 before we knew how and began two years blundering before we learned how. It includes not one single veteran of that effort. It studiously avoids every lesson of the past and stupidly repeats every blunder.

Yet it must in fairness be said that the selections are excellent. If World War experience is any indication and these men should be given any authority, the metal pieces may howl at having their industries headed by the head of U. S. Steel and the other automobile companies may not care to be rounded up by the head of General Motors.

The New Dealers who like to scream: "Wall Street! Du Pont! Morgan!" at every patriotic effort by a business man, will find material for all three cries of anguish. In view of the splendid personalities here none of these objections is valid.

Subject to these qualifications these selections are so good that it will be a pleasure to find at least something to support in the defense effort which has been so fumbling and inefficient to date. Sometimes men can be so good that they can make even a bad plan and organization work.

A war psychology is growing in which much can be done by the three industrialists by mere suggestions and agreements among business men. Stettinius, Knudsen and Budd can do that as well as any three Americans alive—if Thurman Arnold will let them do it. This is a point of real importance.

Since the Supreme court decision in the hot-oil case it is dangerous to do anything by agreements in industry at the suggestion of the government. We need a statute validating such agreements for national defense when made at the demand of the President.

Because of the rift in the ranks of the New Dealers, there was no other possible choice but Sidney Hillman. He is the only man in the commission and has the confidence of the President.

I don't know the lady who is going to protect the consumers. It is a tough and almost impossible job. I do know all the rest of these selections, most of them intimately and well. From my experience from working with them under high pressure they are the cream of the current crop.

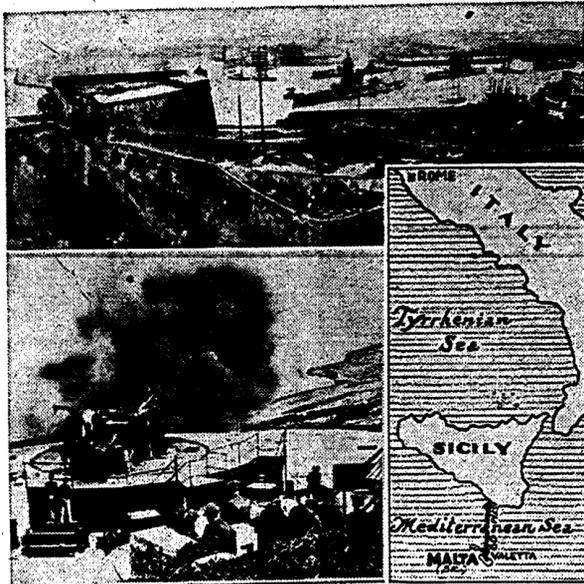

Whether we think this curious and illogical organizational contraption, which failed so dangerously in 1917, will work or not, it is at least a faltering step in the right direction. Everybody will wish it well.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Fighting Shifts From Flanders As Nazi Air Force Bombs Paris; Malta Looms as Trouble Spot

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

If Italy should move against Great Britain in the Mediterranean she might very likely direct an attack at the great British naval base at Malta. Malta has been on a war footing since the beginning of the European crisis. Map at the right shows the relationship of Malta to Italy. Vulnerable perhaps to bombing attacks it would be a tough nut for Mussolini to crack by sea. Top left is a view of the harbor at Valetta with British man of war at anchor. Below, one of the big coastal guns that ring Malta is blazing away during gunnery practice.

II GERMAN WAR: Flanders Battle

The Dutch-Belgian-Flanders-Artois battle came virtually to an end, save for up-moppings and kitty-corner operations here and there. The Dutch and Belgian armies had been surrendered or finished, and the First, Seventh, and Ninth French armies were destroyed. Nobody came out of it with any laurels save the British navy, which somehow succeeded in ferrying perhaps two-thirds of the British army out of Dunkirk by means of warships, transports, yachts, barges, and lifeboats—and under heavy aerial fire.

It seemed that the German air force fell down on this debarkation operation, for British losses, in retreat, were smaller than might have been expected. Somehow, the allies secured a temporary air supremacy in the Dunkirk sector, and the British Spitfire machines showed a slight superiority to the German Messerschmitt combat craft. British morale, strangely enough, was reported as excellent, but French morale did not appear in quite so favorable a light. The German general headquarters was strangely restrained in its moment of triumph. Lille, fourth city of France and its "Pittsburgh," was in German hands, along with Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Brussels, Antwerp, Ostend, Calais, Boulogne, The Hague, Liege, etc. Would refugee-choked, hysterical Paris be next, wondered the railbirds?

NAMES in the news

Even as these railbirds wondered, Hitler's warbirds came out of the skies and rained showers of bombs upon southern France and later upon Paris itself. In the first attacks about 150 German bombers swept over the city, dropping their cargoes of high explosives, setting many fires, inflicting huge property losses and killing at least 45 persons in Paris and its suburbs. The allies promised to repay Germany bomb for bomb in the new air offensive they were launching.

Italic Notes

All private motoring stopped in Italy, due to government conservation of gas and oil. Italy has no native petroleum, iron or coal. Pro-Italians were jailed in England's Mediterranean naval base, Malta. Possession of this strategic island is a leading Italian objective. The English suspended Italian papers read by the Italian-speaking Maltese. A minority of Maltese talk the ancient Carthaginian tongue of Hannibal and his elephants. Mussolini said he was too busy to see U. S. Ambassador Phillips, who was totting a message from Roosevelt. Mussolini also broke off a shipping deal with the English, in the matter of illegal contraband control, which put the shivers into London. Italian journalists left Paris.

D. of C. AND—White Housings

President Roosevelt made another request for money. This time it was for more than a billion, for the army, navy and civilian training program, coupled with a fear that all continents may become involved in the II German war (he did not mention Germany by name). Roosevelt asked for specific authority to call up the national guard and army reservists—if and when needed to "safeguard" and "defend." And Roosevelt asked for a corps of dollar-a-year men, to expedite national defense preparations. Also, there came a request for a million dollars, to expand the navy department and munitions buildings in the capital. Talkative young Elliott Roosevelt assailed so-called fifth columns in Mexico. Elliott is a radio executive.

War department plans called for immediate orders to get 2,800 planes, 1,700 tanks, 500 heavy artillery units, and big consignments of anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

The senate voted, 55-4, for a new alien control resolution, already passed by the house.

The immigration-naturalization bureau would be transferred from the department of justice to the department of justice. Senators Norris and Wheeler, Wheeler, Ribicoff, opposed to the transfer, assailed J. Edgar Hoover and the G-men, while Wheeler censured the current American "system." Archibald MacLachlan, "radical" librarian of the Congressional Library at Washington, said that the II German war was not a revolt of the masses. He said that, instead, it was the revolt of a gang.

$65,000,000: Battleship

The $65,000,000 battleship, Washington, was launched at the Philadelphia navy yard. It is a 35,000-tonner—1,600 tons bigger than any American battleship now in operation. The Washington is our first new capital ship in 19 years. It is 750 feet long. Fifteen-year-old Virginia Marshall of Spokane, great-great-granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall, was the Washingtonian christener. The boat was named after her home state.

'Sixth Column'

It just had to happen! With all the news of "fifth column" activities working in other lands to aid the German cause, somebody had to come through with news of a sixth column. And, it was Dr. Herbert Gezork, (pictured above) professor of social ethics at Andover-Newton theological school in Boston who reported that within Germany herself there is a group of persons seeking to bring about Hitler's downfall. He bases his news of this "sixth column" activity on connections with the anti-Hitler movement in Germany.

U. S. REDS: Don't Love Nazis

The American Communist party, in the last six months, has sent $5,000 to German reds, to help them in their underground struggle against Hitler. This fact was announced at the C. P.'s national convention in New York, which gathering appeared to be unabashed by the Russo-German pact of last August. (This anti-Hitlerism, however, did not make things any easier for the Finns early in the year.) There were visiting reds at New York from Mexico, Chile, Haiti, Iceland, Puerto Rico, and Cuba. A Mexican delegate condemned Congressman Martin Dies and his committee. The convention opposed participation in the national advisory defense commission "and any subordinate boards."

ANTI-ROOSEVELT: On Campaign

Wendell Willkie said, out in Denver, "I'd love to go to the people against that fellow." "That fellow" meant Roosevelt. To get rid of Roosevelt, Willkie felt, was the only way to unite the nation against the totalitarian threat. Willkie was equally hard on Hitler. He called the Fuehrer a "mad man."

Planes and guns, said Willkie, are not built by emotional appeals over the radio. "We have confused liberty with license," added the Republicans' dusky equine.

But Candidate Dewey, in New York, characterized certain of Roosevelt's defense measures as "progress in the right direction." He added, in sorrow, that much remained to be done. Dewey had not yet selected a nominator (for himself), to boost him at the Republicans' Philadelphia convention this month. Dewey, on the whole, tends to be more kid-glove and velvet than the rugged quipster, Willkie. Liberals, for some reason, much prefer western Wendell to the "O. A."

ART DEPT.: On P. P. Rubens

Hitler's Vienna paper, on the 300th anniversary of Rubens' death, said that Flemish artist was a "Germanic pagan" who painted Christian sagas with a fleshy relish. This seemed fairly obvious to art critics, some of whom call him the Falstaff of the Palette. Rubens liked to depict "mountains of flesh," said the Vienna journal. Rubens, too, added the paper, was fond of "Christian Venuses" and "Nazarene wretches." He was "without the blinds of churchly virtue, and fearless in the face of nature." It will be remembered that many of Rubens' themes were religious.

BILLY PHELPS: And the 1.100

Prof. Billy Phelps of Yale, bookman of renown, said he'd rather lose the war with the allies than win with Hitler. Billy said Hitler had changed "Athens into Sparta." But some 1,400 Yale students thought otherwise. They signed a petition asking that America's isolation continue. They were of draft age!

COUP IN CANADA: 'Mosley of Montreal'

The Canadian mounted police, turning into a local Gestapo or OGPU, seized eight members of the National Unity party in Montreal, the British empire's great French city. Most important of the victims was Adrian Arcand, French Canadian Fascist leader, important in Quebec provincial politics, and opposed to the war. There were simultaneous coups in at least three other Canadian cities including Ottawa, Toronto and Windsor.

FRENCH DESPERATE FOR PLANES

WASHINGTON.—The French have been too proud to let the public know it, but they have been almost down on their knees before U. S. officials to beg, borrow, or buy more airplanes.

The French aviation situation is desperate. How many planes have been smashed is not definitely known—perhaps not even by the French themselves. But most of their air force on the western front has been put out of business. It is estimated that at least an equal number of Nazi planes have also crashed, but Germany started with about 18,000 planes, the French with about 2,000.

One big handicap to the French is that they were counting upon British air support. The original tactics were for the French to do the bulk of the land fighting, with the British reinforcing in the air. But this was before anyone realized that Hitler was going to break through the French lines and head straight for the channel.

Now Britain needs every plane she has for the home defense. So desperate was the French plight that they wanted to buy any kind of plane, even those considered too old for the U. S. army. The war department estimates it has more than 1,500 out of date planes. However, the secretary of war issued an order no later than March 14 prohibiting the sale of surplus army material even to third parties who might conceivably sell them to France and England.

Latest Plane Purchases. Meanwhile the delivery of airplanes already ordered by the French and British proceeds with tragic slowness. Here are the inside figures, illustrating how long it may take the United States to turn out 50,000 planes for itself:

	Ordered by Allies through May 27	Delivered to Allies	Undelivered
Airplanes	7,588	1,888	5,700
Motors	20,820	4,022	16,798

BRAZIL, U. S. CONFER

Some of the most important state department conversations in Monroe Doctrine history are now progressing secretly with the Brazilian government.

They are aimed at protecting South America from Nazi invasion, particularly at preventing surprise air attacks against the Panama canal.

The discussions contemplate an air base in northern Brazil, and also probably a naval base. Actually these will not be called American air and naval bases. They will be called "co-operation" between the U. S. army air corps and the Brazilian army, also between the navies of the two countries.

Although not publicly announced, the air corps already is arranging to send a group of army airmen to Brazil to help train Brazilian aviators. In addition, they will also help to improve Brazilian airports, especially in north Brazil, and make them available to U. S. army planes—when and if.

All this goes back to the President's defense message to congress in which he pointed to the nearness of the African coast to Brazil—with hopping distance for big bombers.

A glance at the map shows how close Brazil is to the Canary islands, owned by Fascist Spain, and reported to have been used as bases by German warships. Should the Nazis take over French and British possessions in Africa, Brazil would be extremely close to them. As a matter of fact, Germany does not have to take the allied colonies to be near Brazil; already she has titular right to the Belgian Congo.

Northern Brazil is sparsely populated and extremely wealthy. In it are vast rubber forests, iron ore deposits, cotton fields. It contains just what Germany needs.

Should Hitler shatter the United Kingdom, U. S. strategists believe northern Brazil would be his first objective in the Western hemisphere. Hence the hurried negotiations between the state department and the Brazilian embassy.

WAR SECRETARY WOODRING

If the President wants to get rid of War Secretary Harry Woodring, it looks as if he would have to blast. The nobby little Kansan is refusing any ordinary sops to vacate.

"Harry," Roosevelt propositioned recently, "how'd you like to be minister to Canada? That's a very important post and will become more so as things develop." "No, thank you, Mr. President," was the quiet but firm reply. "The only diplomatic post I would consider is St. James."

POLITICAL CHAFF

The Republican National committee is making vigorous efforts to line up the Scandinavian vote, important in a dozen states. The John Ericsson Republican league, founded 30 years ago in honor of the inventor of the Monitor, first Union ironclad warship, is being rejuvenated. Principal speaker at the recent Ericsson league convention in Chicago was Senator Bob Taft. The A. F. of L. is boiling with resentment because of Thurman Arnold's anti-trust prosecutions.

"The Name Is Familiar"

BY FELIX B. STRECHMANS and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Grog

PEOPLE say a man "likes his grog" today but when the word first came into use early in the Eighteenth century it was because those who drank it didn't like it. Here's why: Admiral Edward Vernon of the British navy was called "Old Grog" because, at sea he always wore a cape of cloth called "grog"—water-resistant material of either mohair or wool mixed with silk.

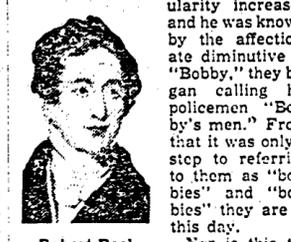

The seaman under his command were served a half-pint of rum or brandy each noon and drank all of it at once—probably so no one else would get it. To prevent their stomachs from receiving too hearty a jolt, the admiral ordered the daily allowance diluted with a quart of water and six hours of time—serving it in two installments, one at 11 in the morning and the other at four in the afternoon.

Although the stomachs may have appreciated this change, the sailors didn't and they referred contemptuously to their daily ration of liquor as "grog," after "Old Grog" who had ordered it. So widely was the term used that inns became known as grog shops in England—and still are.

This British admiral had something else more familiar to Americans named after him. Among his many friends and admirers in the American colonies was Lawrence Washington, who gave his estate on the banks of the Potomac in Virginia the name of Mt. Vernon. When he died Mt. Vernon became the property of his half-brother, George Washington.

London Bobby

IN AMERICA a policeman may be a "cop" or a "bull" but in London, he's a "bobby." And he's that because in 1829 Sir Robert Peel, home secretary in the duke of Wellington's cabinet, created the London metropolitan police force. At first these officers of the law were referred to by Londoners as "Sir Robert's men." Then as Peel's popularity increased and he was known by the affectionate diminutive of "Bobby," they began calling his policemen "Bobby's men." From that it was only a step to referring to them as "bobbies" and "bobbies" they are to this day.

Robert Peel

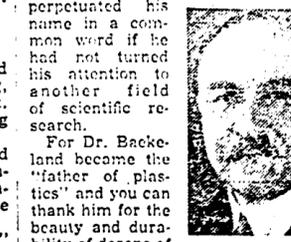

Nor is this the only common word in which the fame of this Briton, who twice served as prime minister (1834-35 and 1841-46), has been perpetuated. While serving as secretary for Ireland in Lord Liverpool's cabinet, Sir Robert established the Irish constabulary. Naturally they weren't especially popular with the "fightin' Irish" who referred to them as "peelers," i.e., Sir Robert Peel's men. That word crossed the Atlantic with Irish emigrants to America and since so many of that race became policemen in our cities you'll find some old-fashioned folk who still call policemen "peelers" rather than "cops" or "bulls."

Bakelite

IN 1829 a 36-year-old Belgian chemist professor named Dr. Leo Hendrik Baekeland came to the United States and a few years later his research in the chemistry of photography brought about the development of certain very sensitive photographic papers. Important as these were to the art of picture-taking, they probably would not have perpetuated his name in a common word if he had not turned his attention to another field of scientific research.

For Dr. Baekeland became the "father of plastics" and you can thank him for the beauty and durability of dozens of articles made of bakelite, named in his honor. Bakelite is a synthetic resin resulting from the action of formaldehyde and phenol (carbolic acid) when it is subjected to a special heat treatment under pressure which makes it hard and tough.

It is widely used as a substitute for hard rubber, amber and celluloid, for the manufacture of certain machinery gears, phonograph records, buttons, billiard balls, pipe-stems, umbrella handles and a great variety of other things. Being a non-conductor it is especially useful for insulating and protecting electrical apparatus. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Two keys to a cabin

BY LIDA LARRIMORE

© MACRAE SMITH CO. WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Charming, wealthy Gabriella (Gay for short) Graham engaged to Todd Janeway, returns to a cabin in the Maine woods accompanied by a friend, Kate Oliver. The idea of a stay at the cabin occurred to her when she received a key to it following the death of her godfather, Uncle John Lawrence. The two girls notice immediately that someone has been and probably is living in the cabin. Kate suspects that Gay knows the identity of the mysterious occupant. While the girls talk, the mystery man returns.

"Impetuous," Kate murmured. "He seems to be in a hurry."

He appeared almost before she had completed the thought, a tall, rangy young man in corduroys and a leather coat, the brim of a dark felt hat pulled down over his eyes. He halted abruptly in the doorway, stood surveying the brightly lit room with an expression which changed, as Kate watched, from brusque inquiry to blank amazement. His face, lean and brown, with prominent cheek-bones and jaw line, was vaguely familiar. She had seen him somewhere, in a quite different setting. Somewhere—

"Hello, John," Gay's voice sounded completely natural, neither very cordial nor very aloof, certainly not at all surprised. Kate heard her rise from the chair. The young man in the doorway slowly removed his hat. His hair was thick and dark and cut short to thwart, Kate suspected, a tendency toward waves. She doubted whether, after the first quick glance, he was aware of her presence in the room. His eyes remained fixed upon Gay.

"Gay—" he said slowly, incredulously.

He had a beautiful mouth. "Beautiful" wasn't a word you used to describe a man, Kate told herself. It was beautiful, though, generous, sensitive, expressive. Wondering recognition kindled in his dark eyes. For an unguarded moment some strong emotion gave his dark, rather grave face a glancing brilliance. Kate found herself, in that moment of silence, almost holding her breath.

"I have the advantage, John," Gay said. "I knew it was you who was here."

The brilliance faded out of his face. Kate saw his mouth set a little grimly.

"You usually have, haven't you?" he asked quietly.

"Not always." The question seemed to have shaken Gay's composure. She turned to Kate. "Kate," she said, "Miss Oliver, may I present—Is it—Doctor Houghton now?" she asked, turning again to the tall young man in the doorway.

"Doctor Houghton," he affirmed. He smiled at Kate a little diffidently. "I've met Miss Oliver," he said.

"Certainly. How do you do?" Kate remembered now. She had the answer. This was Dr. Lawrence's nephew, John, who'd come with him to Gay's debutante party. This was the young man with whom Gay had stolen away from the party that night. She, Kate, had seen them returning. She remembered now. Gay's face, soft and bright, framed in the collar of a white fur coat, upturned to the tall young man bending to speak to her in the dimly lit passage that led to a side-door of the ball-room.

She had the answer but it did not relieve her concern. There was something between Gay and this young man. Kate felt it vibrating in the air of the room though the words they spoke were casual. This was the motive, then, whether she'd known he was here or the meeting was a coincidence. This, he was why she had wanted to come.

Kate gave a distracted thought to Gay's family, to a blond young man with charming manners whom she liked very much.

"Heaven help us!" she said silently, the shadow of events to come lying darkly across her mind. And then, because her rectory past would pop up now and then, "The prayers of the congregation are requested," she added.

"Of course you've met Kate." The singing vibration was in Gay's voice. "I'm sorry, I had forgotten."

"I hadn't." He took a few steps forward into the room. "Miss Oliver rescued me, on one occasion, from a fate worse than death."

"I remember," Kate said. Gay glanced at her quickly. Kate was lighting a cigarette. Her eyes in the spurt of flame from the match were twinkling under the frown that knotted her brows. "You had," she added, speaking to John, "a tendency to bolt into empty rooms."

"It was my first debutante party," he said. His diffident half-smile widening into an engaging grin, excluded Gay. That studied indifference enraged her now as it had when she was fifteen. She had, she discovered, exactly the same impulse to do something, anything, to attract and hold his attention.

"You're looking well, too," His eyes, regarding her steadily across the space which separated them, held a faintly ironical expression which she remembered very well. "I'm relieved." The engaging grin slanted side-wise. "Your photographs have given me the impression that you'd been skipping your vitamins and losing too much sleep."

"My photographs—?" Gay questioned.

"The press has been giving you considerable space recently," he said in reply.

The press! Had they done something stupid at home? Gay's eyes flew to meet Kate's startled glance. Kate's expression was not reassuring. She looked as though she was resigning herself to some inevitable disaster. Gay turned again to John.

"This time you have the advantage," she said. "We haven't seen the papers for two days."

She fancied, for a moment, that he, as well as Kate, knew the thought which had flashed into her mind. His expression was wholly ironical. But—

"I was referring to the rotogravure sections," he said, "and the fifty-cent magazines."

He hesitated, then, "May I wish you happiness?" he asked.

"Why not?"

"I do wish that for you." He continued to regard her steadily but the slanting smile had vanished and his eyes were very grave.

"Thank you, John."

His steady gaze presently altered. He glanced around the room.

"I'm a very poor host," he said.

"You've had to bring in your luggage and get your supper. I've been talking politics up at the village store. Why didn't you let me know you were coming?"

The question had, for Gay, only one implication. Resentment, like a fresh breeze blowing through a room too warm and perfumed, cleared the confusion from her mind.

"Did you think I knew you were here?" she asked quietly but with warmth kindling in her voice.

He turned to look at her in surprise.

"But if you didn't, why did you come?"

Resentment flamed into anger. But anger was stupid. She returned his glance directly, her chin unconsciously lifting, her eyes bright and scornful.

"You haven't become less-fatuous, have you?" she asked.

"I didn't mean that the way it sounded," he said quickly. "I'm not that fatuous. I meant, how did you expect to get in unless someone was here?"

Her level glance did not waver. His momentary confusion gave her the advantage. She pressed it resolutely, still smarting from humiliating pride.

"Why should I have had the faintest idea that you, especially, should be here?" she asked.

"But who else would be?" His expression was frankly puzzled. "I've never rented it. My kid sister had a house-party here this summer. Otherwise it hasn't been occupied except when I've been here."

She pressed her advantage stubbornly, incensed by the possessive tone in which he spoke of her property. "Who gave you permission to use the cabin at any time?" she asked.

"Permission—?" He stared at her in perplexity.

"Didn't you know that Uncle John left the cabin to me?"

"To you?"

"Yes." It was the granddaughter of David Graham speaking, the granddaughter of Peter Schuyler, secure in her inherited assurance, quite obviously taking pleasure in the routing of an intruder.

"But that's impossible," he said crisply.

"His lawyer sent me a key three years ago nearly," Gay said, "just after Uncle John died."

She watched him intently, expecting some attempt at justification, explanations, an apology, perhaps. She did not expect the smile of somewhat incredulous amusement which crept slowly upward from his lips into his eyes.

"Does that impress you as being amusing?" she asked with dignity.

"Uncle John was my god-father. There's no particular reason, is there, why he shouldn't have left the cabin to me?"

"I suppose there isn't," he said, as though that point was of small importance. The smile deepened. "I was just wondering how many other people are likely to pop in here with keys. You see," he continued in reply to her questioning glance, "Uncle John's lawyer sent one to me. I naturally assumed that the cabin was mine and have used it whenever I've had a chance."

She had not considered that possibility. It was true, of course. It was the only logical explanation. She felt, for a moment, in sympathy with John, who, as well as she, was the victim of some sentimentality or eccentricity contrived by a member of an older generation. But Uncle John, as she remembered him, had been neither sentimental nor eccentric. The lawyer had made a mistake, perhaps. At any rate, it wasn't John's fault any more than it was hers.

"I understand that," she said, "because I assumed that it belonged to me." Neither pride nor resentment was entirely proof against the humor in the situation, against the charm of his rare slow smile. Her eyes met John's in laughter and sympathy. Then—

"So you can't turn me out after all, can you?" he asked.

"No," she said slowly, considering. "But I can ask you to go."

His smile faded a little.

"Are you planning to stay— indefinitely?" he asked.

"Not longer than a week, perhaps."

"I have another week." She knew that he, too, was considering, choosing chair, watching the movements of his hands in the yellow cone of lamp-light. She remembered them, brown and strong, against a canoe paddle, brown in lamplight as she saw them now, moving chess-men across a waxed apple-wood board, lean and brown but unsteady as they were now, on the sleeve of a white fur coat. Hands had an identity of their own. She would have recognized them anywhere. Strange and very disquieting. Her throat ached and, suddenly, humiliatingly, she felt the hot sting of tears behind her eyelids.

"I must make my—experiment here."

Kate broke the silence. "Well, certainly no one is leaving tonight," she said practically. "It's after ten o'clock now."

Gay glanced at her in gratitude which held, as well, an element of surprise.

"You can draw straws in the morning," Kate continued. "Or perhaps one or the other of these—experiments will be completed by then."

"Of course," he said, after only a slight hesitation. "There are, unfortunately, no hotel accommodations nearer than Machias."

"And that," Kate said cheerfully, "would, I think, be carrying matters much too far."

"I agree with you." He smiled appreciatively at Kate. "There's a cot in the room I work in. You can have the larger room, there. I see you've brought blankets and there is linen, I think." He started toward the door. "I'll get my things out of the way."

"Don't bother," Kate said, starting with her tray toward the kitchen. "We can manage just for tonight."

They were ignoring her, Gay thought, making plans in which she had no voice. He was friendly enough with Kate. Gay resented that friendliness from which she was excluded. "She felt, again, a compelling urge to attract and hold his attention."

"John—" she said.

He stopped at the door, turned, stood waiting for her to continue. Kate, at the kitchen door, glanced back over her shoulder.

Gay held herself very erect. "I will not be leaving tomorrow," she said, conscious of and regretting the arrogance in her voice. She would have liked to reach him through friendliness. Arrogance was too obvious and too petty an approach. But whatever he felt for her it was not friendliness. The glance he exchanged, now, with Kate impelled her to add, "Kate can do as she likes, of course. I shall stay."

"Which means—?" he asked.

"That I will appreciate it if you'll remove your things from the room."

He was silent for a moment. Then, "Certainly," he said civilly.

"Now, Gay—" Kate began with some asperity, paused, rolled her eyes upward, compressed her lips and went out into the kitchen. John remained standing in the opposite doorway. The slanting smile appeared as her eyes met his.

"The long arm of coincidence," he said.

"It is—incredible." You might have found me here any one of a number of times during the past three years."

U. S. Families on Relief Buy 'Protective' Foods

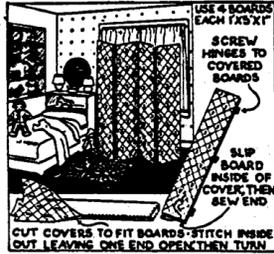

What do families on relief actually buy with blue stamps issued free as a practical method for distributing foods of which there is a surplus supply? What foods do they choose when they have opportunity to select as they please from a limited list of surplus foods?

It is too early to draw general conclusions, says Milo Perkins, in charge of the United States department of agriculture food-stamp program. But for a six-week period the stamp holders spent a little more than 80 per cent of their blue stamps for "protective" foods and a little less than 20 per cent for flour, corn meal, rice and beans.

For this period the stamp plan was effective in five cities. There were minor differences in administrative methods to discover which variations of the basic plan seemed to work best. In general, orange-colored stamps, which were bought by the relief family, could be used to buy any foods, and half as many blue stamps given free could be spent only for foods on the official surplus list. At that time the surplus list included butter, eggs, oranges, grapefruit, peaches, pears, cabbages, peas, tomatoes, onions, dried prunes, white flour, graham flour, corn meal and rice.

Under the capable proprietorship of Mr. H. E. Wilson, this firm has gained a well deserved reputation for honest and straightforward business methods as well as for the quality and dependability of its manufactured goods.

The Wilson plant has been equipped with the best of modern machinery for the most effective production. Efficient machinery, high grade materials and specially trained skilled workmen all contribute to the reason why this firm has been progressing from the day 19 years ago that Mr. Wilson started making the mill supplies that are now being distributed throughout New England and the Southern States.

Mr. Wilson is distributor for Zenith Oil Burner. The installation work is handled by a skilled mechanic. Licensed as expert installation operator.

A lawn mower repair and sharpening service is maintained at this plant. The charges are reasonable and you will find it profitable both in labor and money to let this concern service your mower and put it in shape for the season.

In conclusion, we wish to state that the management of this plant has always been progressive and wholeheartedly in support of any project for community betterment, willing and anxious to aid in the expansion and growth of the community and merits the popularity and liberal support it receives.

Verdi's Last Opera

"Falstaff," written during his eightieth year, was Verdi's last opera. It is based mainly on Shakespeare's play, "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Woman of 72 Takes to

Skis and Praises Sport

FRANCONIA, N. H. — Skiing seems to have no age limit.

As 72-year-old Mrs. Maybelle Miles of St. Johnsbury, Vt., gingerly tested her new skis on Cannon mountain, at Hanover, a ski school for children of eight years and up observed its fifth anniversary.

Believed the oldest novice in the country, Mrs. Miles became interested in skiing while watching her son and other young people.

"I thought I would like to try to ski," she said, "and I asked my son for what I needed."

Mrs. Miles' first workout lasted only 10 minutes and she reported she "liked it fine, but the first time it should be taken slow."

The ski school for youngsters has been growing steadily since it was founded by Peggy and Ford Sayre of Hanover. So fast do the children progress that one of the instructors says that after several days, "they teach me things about skiing, and I have to think fast to stay ahead of them."

Electrifying America

One million men and women working 4 1/2 years would be required to fill the potential demand for electrical appliances in this country, which, according to a recent estimate, amounts to $18,000,000,000.
