Unrest in Nazi Dominated Nations Results in 'Front-Behind-Front'; Hitler's 'Victory' Speech Is Puzzle As Russia Claims Important Gains

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When epiniens are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Reichssnehrer Adolf Hitler is shown in the Sportspalast in Berlin as he made his speech to open the annual drive for winter relief. He used the opportunity to tell the German people that his armies on the eastern front have scored great victories and that Russia is "already broken and will never rise again." He again predicted complete Nazi victory. In the seats of honor at the gathering were a number of wounded, seen at the left front in the above picture.

The old cliche that "there is nothing new under the sun" was fairly routed by the oddest of all wars when the unrest which had been boiling for months in countries occupied by Nazi Germany had begun to flare into strange and more open warfare.

And it was a queer warfare, with ultimatums flying back and forth, and nations in exile passing decrees on conquered peoples with the threat of "death if we ever get back in our countries again."

It was no laughing matter, either, for the era of mass executions had been reached, with the possibility in some quarters that Germans would be slaughtered wholesale, just as the Nazis were slaughtering victims in other quarters.

In Jugoslavia

Guerilla bands operating in the Serbian mountain districts, swooping down by night, had been capturing small detachments of Nazi soldiers, spiriting them away as captives, until they had amassed somewhere between 600 and 1,000 men, whom they were reported holding prisoners.

Came an ultimatum from guerillas to the Nazi occupational officers to this effect: "Continue to shoot Jugoslav hostages, and we shall execute our prisoners."

The German answer (requiring the use of a considerable force which presumably had been taken from the Russian front) was the reported sending of a panzer division of 12,000 men and to head it toward Belgrade, the former capital of former Jugoslavia to deal summarily with these guerilla bands.

In Norway

King Haakon (in exile in London) signed a decree providing the death penalty for crimes against the Norwegian state.

A counter-attack against this move had come from Josef Terboven, the Reich's commissar in Norway, who said: "Accept Germany's new order and regard Germany's enemies as yours, or face obliteration as a national state, and perhaps starvation."

This ultimatum was backed up, it had been reported, by the fact that more than 2,000 Norwegians were in concentration camps, many of them held as hostages.

The "new order" was the Quisling government, against which an underground and sometimes open revolt had been going on for two menths or more.

And against this stood Haakon's decree, held a warning to any "tools" of the Nazis who might exert themselves to help the German authorities that if Norway regains its freedom they will face the death penalty.

In Bulgaria

While not occupied formally or as a result of warfare, Bulgaria was officially considered to be an Axis partner, and reports had emanated from Sofia, in the form of a victory dispatch, that Greek forces which had swooped over the borders into Bulgaria with rifles and machine guns seeking to organize a revolt among the Greek citizens of the country, had been "annihilated."

In Belgium

A bomb explosion, it had been reported, in Brussels, had killed Jean Oederkerke, secretary of the Rexist (Fascist) forces.

In Czecho Slovakia

The wholesale executions in Bohemia and Moravia (home of the Czechs) followed revelations that there had been operating there schools for saboteurs and for learning improved methods of slowing down factory production.

And these evidences of the widespread revolt were in addition to similar events which had resulted in executions in occupied and unoccupied France and in Holland.

NEUTRALITY:

Change Expected

Although it was recognized that President Roosevelt's request for changes in or repeal of the neutrality act would meet with determined opposition in senate and house, a poll of the chambers showed definitely that some modification, notably that of permitting arming of American merchant ships, would receive a congressional O. K.

This poll had been taken as Secretary of State Hull warned the Axis powers that American-owned ships (presumably wearing the Panamanian or other flag, were armed and had orders to defend themselves.

This statement itself had closely followed the sinking of a former American tanker 450 miles east of Recife, Brazil, with the loss of several American lives.

The tanker had originally been American, had been transferred to the British service, and was operating under the Panamanian flag with a crew largely composed of American citizens.

can citizens.

Between 12 and 20 such ships had already been armed, Mr. Hull said, and he characterized the sinkings of these vessels or of those of this type as a German effort at "frightfulness designed to drive us out of the Atlantic."

the Atlantic."

The senate poll showed 29 in favor of repeal or change; 20 opposed to any change, and most of the rest undecided, wanting more time to study, or out of the city and unavailable for comment.

HITLER:

Puzzle

The first formal address by Hitler in 103 days of warfare with Russia rather left the world puzzled for he claimed a total victory over the Reds at a time when Moscow was claiming the Leningrad push stopped, and continued advances in

Also, the favorable report of the chancellor on the war situation came at a time when unrest behind the lines was assuming the proportions of a front, and at least one whole division had to be sidetracked to take care of one small sector of conquered territory.

Even more puzzling was his statement that he had ordered production of war materials restricted, because the Russians were no longer able to be a menace and that the war was, in effect "in the bag."

This was followed up by a warning in the Berlin Press to British and American mission members in Moscow to get out of the Russian capital because a head-on attack upon Moscow was planned.

It came at a time when Moscow itself was informing the British and Americans that there no longer was doubt that Russia could hold out through the winter, but that quantities of munitions and the machinery of war would be needed next spring.

of war would be needed next spring.

It was hard to reconcile facts with speech or speech with facts.

Ît's All Over

Here is George Hopkins, with his parachute, in which he landed from an airplane atop Devil's Tower in Wyoming. After the better part of six days he was rescued by a crew of eight expert mountain climbers. His parachute drop was made to win a $50 wager and as a publicity stunt for a parachute jumping contest. Devil's Tower, a 1,280-foot peak, jutting straight up from the surrounding plain can be seen in the background.

DEATH: To a Liberal

Louis Dembitz Brandeis, noted liberal jurist, and former Supreme court justice, died in his Washington home just on the night before a new Supreme court was meeting for its first 1941-42 session. He was 84 and had retired from the Supreme court on February 13, 1939, because of ill health. It was suffering from a heart ailment that led him to retire and a severe attack of this trouble that resulted in his death. Named to the high bench by President Wilson in 1916, Brandeis had no experience as a judge before that time but he was widely known for his activity as a lawyer on behalf of labor unions and against "high finance."

SPENDING: Will Triple

During the first World war, American spending at the height of the struggle reached something like $50,000,000 a day. Great Britain is way past that point now, and the expectation in Washington had been that within this fiscal year America's spending will come to about two billions a month, or about $70,000,000 a day.

That was the figure which U. S. Budget Director Smith estimated, and the bill would be 24 billions in the year, with an income of close to 12 billions from taxes and a deficit of about the same amount.

In this amount was included the lend-lease aid, but not the direct purchases by Britain, Russia, China or other sources.

The difference between the American and British rate of spending, Smith pointed out, was this—that two billions a month is about $135 a year for all the citizens of the nation, whereas Britain's spending constitutes about 40 per cent of the national income.

Smith went on to state that considering better employment conditions and the busy state of the nation, probably more dollars would be left for civilian use than in predefense years.

CHURCH:

And the Reds

President Roosevelt had rammed himself into a hornet's nest with his discussion of Article 124 of the Russian constitution, which gave religious freedom guarantees to the people.

Churchmen of several faiths and congressmen took the President to task and later the President qualified his statement or explained it in the light of a hope that movements now on foot would bring religious freedom, under the constitution of Russia to her people.

This put a somewhat new light on

This put a somewhat new light on the controversy, and the head of the Russian Orthodox church came forward to give the President support and to reveal his opinion that the days of church repression and antagonism in Russia were numbered.

The people were "turning to God" he said, and the government was not planning to prevent this uprising of the spirit in the face of the danger of death in war.

Myron Taylor was back from his visit to the Pope, and more light on the subject of religious freedom was expected from this source.

RUSSIA:

Has 'Dunquerque'

Moscow had published the dramatic report that a large Red army unit reported trapped by the Finns on the shores of Lake Ladoga north of Leningrad had been saved by a "Dunquerque" retreat engineered by lake vessels.

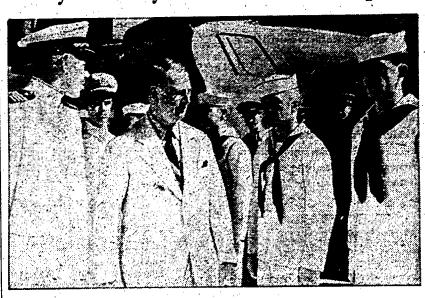

The hero of the escape from the trap was Colonel Bondarev, who, with his men, had been battling for 45 days.

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors

When Blaise had given the Indians the details of the trip to Matagami, Wabistan said in Montagnais: 'You are brave men but foolish to come back. Some night they will find you and you will die in your sleep. What can three do against so many?"

When Kinebik sets up his medicine tent in the round of the moon," Finlay said, "we shall be there to listen, you and I. When the thunder sounds in the skies and the plane comes from the north we shall still be there to see.

Blaise interpreted to the listening Indian.

"So you have heard of the flying canoe that comes from the North this moon?" said the old man.

"Yes, I have heard. Why does it come?

"Never in the 'Moon when the Birds fly after the Moult' will Isadore have Montagnais at the post. It is a great secret, the coming of this canoe of the skies."

"What do you think it brings?" demanded Finlay.

"How can I tell? When it comes only Isadore and Tete-Blanche go to it in a canoe."

"How many men come in this plane?" "Once we hid on the island and watched. One man comes and, in three sleeps, one man goes away Red's puzzled eyes met Finlay's.

"Well, the only way we'll solve this mystery will be to board her when she shows up," said Garry.

CHAPTER XV

It was soon evident that the big lake, more than sixty miles in length, with its deep bays and countless islands, was being searched from the mouth of the Waswanipi River to the Quiet Water, for the men who menaced Isadore's future.

Almost daily as they lay hidden in the willows and alders of some island or point of shore the man on guard sweeping the lake with his binoculars would pick up a canoe hunting for signs of the camp of the men Isadore and Tete-Blanche had sworn should never see August. Daring no longer to remain within reach of the post, with the chance of hearing from Lise, Finlay had left a letter under the quartz rock on the beach and moved up the lake.

By the time they returned from the medicine making, if they did return, Blondell would be at Isa-Brooding over the situation of the desperate girl Finlay drove his nails deep into his calloused hands. But he was helpless.

One day in early August they were camped in a maze of islands at the Red were asleep in a stand of young spruce with Flame beside them while Blaise kept watch on the shore.

By day they always slept, for they knew if their camp was located any attack would come on a black night when it would be easy to approach by water.

For hours through the long afternoon Blaise's binoculars had covered the lake beyond the islands but had picked up no tell-tale flash of a dripping paddle. At last he muttered, "I go back and see w'at dat lazy Red doin'. He got too moch sleep, already.'

Crawling back from the thick shore scrub Blaise found his friends snoring peacefully under their cheesecloth canopy. But the dog was missing.

"By gar, dat dog chew dat leash and go somewhere and navare make a sound. Now why he do dat? He is smart chien, dat Flame. He smell or hear somet'ing for sure."

Blaise reached for his Lee-Enfield which stood against a tree, glanced at the .45 he carried in a belt holster and left his two sleeping friends. Circling the camp he managed to pick up the dog's trail, lose it, and find it again. At last he came out on a mud beach. Over it the unmistakable tracks of Flame led straight to the water. Two hundred yards away lay another island heavily timbered with scrub spruce. birch and poplar.

Concealed inside the shore brush Blaise stopped to consider the situation. "Dat dog swim straight to dat island," he ruminated. "De air it move from dere to here and he smell somet'ing, for sure.

The airedale had followed no game into the water for the beach was unmarked except by Flame's feet. Something had led him to chew the raw-hide thong and investigate, without warning the sleeping men. Therefore, reasoned Blaise, the dog could not have been excited or thought them in danger. If he had caught the wind of Montagnais on the other island he would have waked the sleeping men at once, for the airedale could wind an Indian at a half mile.

Now what was the dog doing over there all this time to keep so quiet? The problem was too deep for Blaise to solve offhand. And he was worried. Something strange had happened.

INSTALLMENT FIFTEEN

to investigate. Murder is suspected. It is thought that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out. On the way to the Hudson's Bay post they visit Isadore in his palatial home, meet his wife and * * * *

Something so unusual that it called for action. It might involve their lives. Blaise Brassard determined to investigate. Retracing his steps he shouldered the Peterboro hidden near the camp and made his way through the scrub to the mud beach. Then with his rifle across a knee he paddled to the island and found the tracks of the airedale on a narrow beach. Caching the canoe in the brush Blaise started to follow the dog's trail into the heart of the timber.

He had traveled less than a hundred yards from the shore when he suddenly squatted while his narrowed eyes roved the thick forest growth about him. Lifting his head his nostrils caught a pungent odor in the air. Then his gaze fell to the birch shoots in front of him. Reaching, Blaise drew the shoots toward him and sniffed at the green, scalloped edged leaves which glistened as if smeared with oil.

"Beaver castor!" he muttered. "I bin smellin' dis all de way from de shore. Dat w'at make Flame swim to dis islan'-beaver castor."

"Beaver castor!" he repeated, rubbing his square chin, his swart face wrinkled in thought. "No bea-ver on dis islan'!" Slowly the slits of eyes widened as a solution of the mystery began to crystallize in Blaise's active brain. He moved on through the undergrowth and, shortly, found more birch shoots with leaves smeared with the pungent oil, from the glands of the beaver, widely used by Indians as a game lure at trap-sets and carrying an irresistible appeal to the furred and shaggy owners of fang and claw.

"Dey are here, on dis islan'!" he murmured. "Dey use dis castor to draw de dog ovair here and kill him. Den dey come tonight. He navare get dere wind, w'en he come, becuz dey smear de beaver castor on demself. All poor Flame smell is de beaver."

Blaise Brassard was doing some hard thinking. Lured by the scent scattered over the low sprouts Flame was already somewhere in the center of the island and probably dead. He would not give him up until he went in there and had a look.

Silently following the trail of beaver castor smeared at intervals on low bush, like a fox stalking woodmice, Blaise worked through the timber into the heart of the island.

At length the timber began to thin out and Blaise reached the edge of a natural clearing. What had become of the dog? Hidden in a clump of seedling spruce which commanded a view of the opening Blaise waited. Where were the Montagnais who had enticed the dog to his doom? Blaise had waited for some minutes in his "hide" when he chanced to glance at the sky and notice an eagle circling high above the break in the timber.

"W'at dat fallar see, down here?" Blaise muttered. "He got his eye on somet'ing. Is it de dog?"

Wings spread, the eagle drifted down in wide spirals while the man in the spruce watched, his heart sore with knowledge of what the bird's movements meant. So it was "a'voir" to poor Flame! The eagle was making his last circle preparatory to landing in the spagnum, when, with a thin whistle of fear, he wheeled in the air and flapped away over the spruce tops.

"Ah-hah!" The cocked Lee-Enfield covered the center of the clearing. 'Somet'ing scare dat eagle from landin' out dere! W'at was it?"

Convinced that Flame lay stiff in death out there in that spagnum moss, crushed in a trap or deadfall. Blaise started to circle the clearing. Shortly, as he crawled, he came upon the unmistakable trail of the dog leading into the moss, and moccasin tracks in soft soil leading away from it.

Lise, Isadore's stepdaughter. Answering an appeal from Lise, Finlay is ambushed. It develops that they are Mounted Police officers. When Chief Wabistan tries to help the disguised Mountles, is deserted by his tribe.

Reckless with wrath and grief walked boldly from cover into the er was China. patches of moss and Labrador tea. Halfway across the open space he found what he had dreaded. Under the heavy drop-log of a dead-fall lay Flame's limp body.

Lured by the irresistible scent of the beaver castor the gallant airedale had followed its trail directly to the dead-fall. With a groan Blaise dropped to his knees beside the dog he had loved from puppyhood.

"Flame!" he muttered "W'y you do dis, Flame? You poor chien! Blaise, he navare forget you. He navare-"

Brassard was lifting the drop-log of the dead-fall, easing the dog's body, when he suddenly caught his breath. "By gar! Dat dog is warm, yet!" His swiftly groping fingers sought the dog's breast ribs and explored his neck and spine. "Dat log not break his neck or back!" he gasped in his joy. "And his heart—it beat! He still live! De drop-log crack him on de head, by gar, and knock him out!" Blaise's ear pressed against the shaggy ribs. "For sure! For sure, Flame! Dat old heart, she Brassard's fingers go good!" Brassard's fingers touched the dog's skull. "Dere it is! Right on de head! Big lump dere! It hit you on head, not de back or by gar!" Because the builders of the trap of logs had been careless in removing the thick carpet of moss on which it stood, the dog's neck and back had not been crushed by the release of the drop-log when he reached the bait of moose meat smeared with beaver castor. Instead he had taken a glancing blow on the skull which had knocked him out, neck, and de t'ick moss save you,

Reaching, Blaise took the inert body of his friend into his arms and laid it on a soft bed of moss. Then the overjoyed man rubbed and kneaded the circulation back into the iron frame. At length the dog's legs twitched and his blood-shot eyes met those of the man for an instant of recognition. The stub of a tail lifted and fell. Shortly the airedale struggled to get to his feet, but sank back on the moss where Blaise's hand restrained him.

"Quiet, now! Take your time, boy! By gar, it is good to see you alive! Bad crack you take on de head. Blaise stay wid you right here ontil you not so dizzy, eh?"

After a space Flame again insisted on getting to his feet. Blaise watched the dog slowly regain his equilibrium, shaking his head in an attempt to clear the mists from his brain. At last Flame's strength began to return, for he no longer reeled as he walked about Brassard whose roving eyes covered the edges of the clearing. When Flame began to show interest in the smeared bait of the trap and his nostrils quivered as they caught the seductive aroma Blaise felt that the dog could make the trip back to the canoe. He picked up his rifle and, followed by Flame, left the clearing.

As they entered the thick timber there was a warning rumble from Flame. He leaped past the surprised Brassard, fell, recovered and roared his airedale challenge as two bodies catapulted into Blaise's back hurling him headlong to the ground. As he fell and instinctively rolled from the weight of the men on his back the halfbreed tore the .45 from its holster. A hand gripping a knife drove past his neck and buried its blade in the leaves. Blatse caught the Indian's wrist and with a wrench had the writhing body beneath him. Clubbing the .45 he bludgeoned the Montagnais into unconsciousness. Leaping to his feet he saw the injured airedale drive at the second Indian's legs, dodge a knife thrust as the Indian backed away, then leap again as the Montagnais reached for the rifle which had slipped from Brassard's hands when he was struck from the rear.

Indian and airedale rolled over and over in the brush, the dog slashing with his long fangs as the other tried to use his knife. With a leap Blaise reached them and the clubbed .45 struck again. Holding the maddened dog off the stunned Indian Blaise swiftly bound his hands and feet with strips of his shirt, and repeated the operation on his companion lying unconscious a few yards away. A quick examination proved that the raging Flame had escaped with a surface cut. Picking up his rifle Blaise and the dog started for the canoe. "You t'ink I am crazee not to shoot dose fallar, Flame?" the man said to the dog at his side. "If I shoot dat old .45 we have t'ree-four, mebbe ten-twenty on our heel before we reach de cano'. Dere are plenty Montagnais across de islan' waitin' for night. You and Blaise now go wake up Red and Garry and start up de lake, tout suite, w'en dark comes."

Crossing the strait with the dog Blaise carried the canoe to the camp and waked his sleeping friends. "Wal, you fallar sleep pretty hard w'ile Flame and me make a little troubl' for ourself."

Washington, D. C. DELAYS TO RUSSIA

There were two inside reasons for the slowness of the U.S. mission to Moscow in sitting down at the conference table with Joe Stalin. One was the technical difficulty of for his friend Brassard rose and the flight across Germany. The othalso had to fly in sections—three different planes, flown on different days, with the time of departure kept a dark secret. And the last sections were delayed in London. The Chinese delay of the mission to Moscow occurred before Averill Harriman left Washington, when it was proposed that China, nearest friendly neighbor to Russia, should sit in with Harriman, Stalin and the others.

But the state department objected -and for a highly unexpected rea-Appeasement-minded diploson. mats inside the state department claimed that a Chinese mission to Moscow would offend Japan. The United States was trying to woo Japan away from the Axis, they argued, and so nothing must be done to rub the Japanese fur the wrong

In the end, Japan reaffirmed its partnership in the Axis; but only after the U.S. mission to Moscow already had started, also after Nazi victories in Russia seemed on the upgrade once again. So the appeasement policy of the state department got nowhere.

NOTE—Key to Japanese policy of friendship for the United States or allegiance to Germany always is the barometer of Nazi military success, If Hitler is winning, Japan will stick by him; and if the U.S.A. looks stronger, it is vice versa.

U. S. MILITARY ATTACHE

Gen. John Magruder was recently appointed head of the U.S. military mission to China in order to heal the slight to Chiang Kai-shek when he was not permitted to send an envoy to the Harriman conference in Moscow. But General Magruder is more famous for another chapter in his life.

When he was U. S. military attache to Switzerland in 1938. Magruder sent a report to the war department on the march of Hitler's mechanized forces to conquer Austria. In this report he said that Nazi tanks and trucks were of poor quality and that many of them had

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S JOB

A friend of Mrs. Roosevelt came to see her at the White House, to talk about the First Lady's new job in the Office of Civilian Defense. She was much impressed at Mrs. Roosevelt's grasp of the problems, but a little disturbed at the boldness of some of her plans.

So thinking of Director LaGuardia, the friend remonstrated: "If you introduce such bold ideas, what will the mayor say?"

The First Lady smiled. "My dear," she said, "I don't think the mayor will say "No" to me."

NOTE - Mrs. Roosevelt cannot spend full time at her desk in the O.C.D., and during her absences, the job will be held down by her good friend Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the secretary of the treasury.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

What the army needs for men in southern areas is short pants. The long trousers are too hot and difficult to keep clean. British officers observing the maneuvers wore shorts and looked cool and swagger.

Observed one second army wit anent the fact that the war games were held in the "Cajun" (Arcadian) section of Louisiana, "450,000 soldiers and all looking for Evangeline."

Attention, Mr. Tom Dewey: The U.S.O. did not show up very helpfully in the maneuver area. In some of the towns the local organizations did make an effort to provide the soldiers with bathing and laundry facilities, but in general the U.S.O. fell down on the job. It should have made special arrangements for the Camp Cavalcade SHADOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such are the men behind the names of the great army cantonments scattered all over the United States, where young Americans are learning to be soldiers in order to defend their country when the need arises.

Camp Toombs, near Toccoa, Ga., is named for one of the most remarkable men ever produced by that state-Robert Toombs (1810-1885), soldier and statesman. His first military experience was as a captain of volunteers against the Alabama Indians in the 30s. followed by a political career that took him to the United States senate from which he was expelled in 1861 because of his advocacy of secession. He could have been president of the new Confederate States of America, but he declined that honor, just as he had declined the offer of cabinet offices under President Taylor and Fillmore. He did consent to serve briefly as secretary of state under President Jefferson Davis, then was commissioned a brigadier-general in the Confederate army in which he served throughout the war. At the close of the conflict he fled to Cuba, lived for a time in England, France and Canada before returning to the United States. His last years were spent near his birthplace, Washington, Ga. Not long after David Sloan Stan-

was sent to the Western Plains as a lieutenant of dragoons and started on the career which made him one of the best - known Indian fighters of his day. But before that, there were four years of service in the Union army during which he rose from captain to major-general, and rendered conspicuous service at the battles of New Madrid, Island No. 10, Corinth, Iuka, Jonesboro, Nashville, Spring Hill, Stone River, Resaca, Ruffs Station and Franklin, where he was desperately wounded but refused to leave the field until the battle was won. After the war, he served against the Indians in the Dakotas, led the famous Yellowstone expedition of 1873, fought the redskins in Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and brought peace to the Texas frontier by suppressing Indian raids in the Lone Star state. That's why he is remembered gratefully in Texas and why the camp near Leon Springs bears his name.

The name of another great cavalry leader is preserved in the name of Camp Wheeler, near Franklinton, Ga. It honors the memory of Joseph T. ("Fighting Joe") Wheeler (1836-1906) the "Georgamecock' who was assigned to the dragoons immediately after his graduation from West Point in 1859. When he entered the Confederate army he was first made colonel of an infantry regiment and commanded a brigade at the Battle of Shiloh. But the next year he was transferred to the cavalry and from that time on he was one of the South's most daring and successful raiders. After the death of "Jeb" Stuart in 1864, he was the senior cavalry general of the Confederate armies and rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. After the war, he studied law and was repeatedly reelected to congress. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, "Fighting Joe" was again in the saddle as a general of cavalry sent to Cuba to fight the Spaniards. Camp Haan near Riverside, Calif., is also named for a veteran of the Cuban and Philippine campaigns-Brig. Gen. William George Haan, a native of Indiana and a West Point graduate in the class of 1889, who was three times recommended for brevets for "conspicuous conduct in action" from 1898 to 1901.

Taps "Taps" was originally a signal for rettring in military camps and was played on the drums. Later it was sounded on the bugle, the commonest tune, "The Last Post," being introduced into this country by the British army during the Revolution. The melody of the present "Taps" was composed by Daniel Butterworth, a brigadier-general in the Union army. It was first sounded on the bugle by Oliver W. Norton, brigade bugler, at Harrison's Landing. Va., in July, 1862.

Widows No Longer Burned

One hundred and fifty years ago it was an Indian custom to burn the widow of a deceased husband. She would have died when her husband died—perishing in the flames that would have consumed his body on a ceremonial funeral pyre along the banks of the sacred river Ganges. This custom went out 125 years ago when a great, enlightened Indian leader, Ram Mohan Roy, succeeded ieader, kam Monan koy, succeeded in obtaining passage of a law making the practice illegal. Today, instead of being burned to death with their husbands' bodies, widows are serving in the political life of their cities and taking an active part in the movement for Indian independence. Emancipated as they are, the middle class of India still clings to some ancient customs, as wearing small diamonds in their nostrils and wearing a red dot, like a crimson "beauty spot" in the center of their forehead. But where once they were worn as a mark of caste, today it is merely ornamental.

WENDY BARRIE and George Sanders were sort of rocked back on their heels recently on the set of RKO's "A Date With the Falcon." They were introduced to Michele Morgan, the French actress who makes her screen debut here in "Joan of Paris," and promptly acknowledged the introduction in fluent French. Then they went on from there. But Miss Morgan shut up like a clam; not even a "Oui, oui" did she utter.

Finally, when they'd about decided that their French was all wrong, she explained that she was trying so hard to be completely American that she wasn't even thinking in French!

NEW DESIGNS FOR YOUR COOKIE JAR (See Recipes Below)

COOKIE SURPRISES

All crisp, crunchy, and some are so fashioned as to send you on a real cookie-baking spree. Fill that lovely cookie jar of yours until the sides are fairly bulging with goodies so you can have cookies a-plenty to put in the children's lunch boxes, to serve as afternoon snacks, and as a pickup for mealtime.

If you're doing some baking for a bazaar, there's nothing quite like plates of yummy cookies to put over the sales. Remember, you can sell a lot more, if you give out some samples. These can be set on plates with white paper doilies, for sampling, and those to be sold put in boxes already fixed. Cookies can be sold by the dozen if they're fancy and somewhat elaborate, by the pound if they're small drop cookies or squares.

Here's an interesting variation of the filled cookie, both dainty and de-

Corn Flake Filled Cookies. (Makes 36 medium-sized cookies)

1 cup shortening 1 cup brown sugar 3½ cups flour 2 teaspoons baking powder

1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup water 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

2 cups cornflakes Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add alternately with water and flavoring to first mixture. Stir in coarsely rolled corn flakes. Chill. Roll dough to 1/8 inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutter. gether with a fork. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a hot (425 degrees) oven about 12 minutes.

Filling. 11/2 cups chopped dates 1/2 cup sugar 2 tablespoons water 2 tablespoons orange juice 1 tablespoon orange rind

Combine all ingredients together and cook until soft paste is formed. Cool before filling cookies. These little butter balls make good nibbling and smart additions to your teatime table. Made with butter, their flavor will be something you'll long cherish and remember. *Butter Rolls.

(Makes 7 dozen small cookies) 34 cup butter cup brown sugar egg 2 cups sifted flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla

1/4 cup granulated sugar

1/2 cup finely chopped nuts Cream brown sugar and shortening. Add beaten eggs and vanilla. Add flour and baking powder. Roll into balls the size of marbles. Mix the granulated sugar and nuts and roll the balls in the mixture. Place on a greased baking sheet and bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 10 minutes. These cookies will flatten slightly.

LYNN SAYS:

An assortment of cookies, freshly baked and packed in tins with waxed paper between layers makes a delightful present for youngsters away at school and for friends you seldom see. When your own cookie jar has been filled to bulging, pack a few boxes from what you have and spread cheer to others, too.

Careful packing in tins with waxed paper will keep even small dainty cookies fresh for a long time. Some flavors like chocolate improve after they stand for some time. Chewy, nutty cookies are the more chewy and delicious after several days. Spicy cookies become moist and well flavored after standing.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

*Meat-Macaroni Casserole Jellied Cole Slaw Salad Watermelon Pickles Hot Rolls Spiced Pears *Butter Balls Baked Apple Beverage *Recipe Given

Your cookie jar problem can be solved very neatly with toothsome oatmeal cookies with flecks of chocolate in them:

Oatmeal Cookies. (Makes 4 dozen)

1/2 cup butter or shortening 1 cup brown sugar Grated rind of 1 orange 1 egg, unbeaten 1 teaspoon vanilla 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup sifted flour 11/2 cups fine rolled oats 7 ounces chocolate pieces

Cream butter and sugar. Add orange rind, egg, vanilla and beat well. Add salt and flour which has been mixed with the cats. Add chocolate pieces and work into batter. Drop by spoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a moderate (375 degrees) oven. Recommendations are in for the old favorites of which you never to make a pretty and at the same time, a very successful platter, you might try alternate rows of both these Ginger Cookies and tire. If you want

Soft Ginger Cookies. (Makes 5 dozen) 1 cup shortening

1 cup sugar 1 egg 1/2 cup molasses 34 cup evaporated milk 3 cups flour

2 teaspoons soda

1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon each, ginger, cinnamon Cream sugar and shortening, add egg and molasses. Beat well, add milk and blend well. Mix dry ingredients and add to batter. Last add soda, dissolved in 2 tablespoons warm water. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes in a hot (375 degrees) oven. Brownies. (Makes 2 dozen)

% cup butter or shortening 1 cup sugar 2 eggs, well beaten 2 squares unsweetened chocolate. melted

34 cup flour 1/2 teaspoon baking powder 1/2 cup chopped nuts 1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs and sugar together. Add to this melted butter and chocolate and blend. Add flour, baking powder, nuts, and beat well. Pour into a greased pan and bake 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Cool and cut in squares.

For a delicious variation of the brownie recipe, you'll like the addition of 34 cup of bran cereal in place of the chopped nutmeats. They'll give you a slightly different flavored cookie, but guaranteed to please you, just as well. *Meat-Macaroni Casserole.

1 package macaroni 14 cup salad oil 1 pound hamburger 1 dry onion, minced 1 green pepper, minced 1 clove garlic, if desired 1 can tomato soup 2 cups peas 2 cups corn

Salt and pepper

Cook the macaroni in plenty of boiling salted water and when tender, put in a sieve and rinse with cold water. Meanwhile fry the hamburger in the heated oil, stirring it occasionally to separate it. Skim out the meat and in the same fat cook onion, pepper and garlic tili tender, but not browned. Gariic may be omitted entirely, and it is usually removed after the onion and pepper are cooked. Combine all ingredients and simmer 20 to 30 minutes to heat thoroughly and blend flavors, then serve. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

first-aid to the ailing house

by Roger B. Whitman (O Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

Sunlight on Furniture UESTION: What are the effects of sunlight and steam heat on furniture? Does a steam radiator standing one foot away from the side of a chest of drawers, and giving off heat, have any adverse effects on the furniture?

Answer: Sunlight on some varnished surfaces may cause them to turn white. In other cases the heat of the sun may cause hair-line cracks in the varnish. It is best to protect the furniture from direct sunlight, whether it be through glass or an open window. Furniture placed close to a steam radiator may become very dry, causing the joints to loosen. It may also damage the finish by drying out the oils in the varnish. Eighteen inches or more between the furniture and the radiator would be more advisable. Too Much Heat

Question: My living-room radiator is too large for the apartment. Can you suggest a method of cutting down radiation without taking out any of the sections? Would cardboard or any other material inserted in the air spaces cut heat radiation by blocking free air circulation?

Answer: A radiator cover with all sides solid except the front, will do it. I would not advise cardboard. If a radiator cover is out of the question, go to your local tinsmith shop and get a man to bend the ends of a piece of sheet metal for you so that it will enclose the back and sides of the radiator. The sheet metal can be painted to match the walls. An open window near the radiator will also temper the heat of the radiator.

Hot Water Heat

Question: My house has hot water heat, with a single loop in the cellar supplying all radiators. Something seems wrong with the insulation, for on a cold day with the temperature of 165 degrees at the boiler, our living rooms were only 65 degrees. What do you suggest?

Answer: For one thing, a boiler temperature of 165 is too low; it should be 180 degrees, or even higher. This is especially necessary because of the long cellar main. You will find it a great advantage to put in an electric pump of the kind called an impeller or booster to force hot water through the radiators, instead of depending only gravity. Any good plumber or steamfitter will know how to do the

Frostproofing a Leader

Question: My recollection is that last year you described a gadget that could be placed in leaders to prevent freezing. Could you describe it again and inform me where it may be purchased?

Answer: The gadget is a metal ball containing a chemical, with a wire support. The ball is installed just above the opening in the top of the leader pipe, the purpose being to prevent the formation of ice around the pipe opening. The name and address of the manufacturer can be furnished by the Architects Samples Exhibit, 101 Park avenue,

Water Heaters
Question: I have a choice of either a tankless water heater with my oil burner unit, or a regular boiler-burner unit with a storage tank. In your experience, which have you found to give greater satisfaction?

Answer: The tankless type of water heater might have a slight preference over the storage type, but you must make sure the boiler is plenty large enough to furnish the necessary amount of heat for the house as well as sufficient capacity to heat water for your household

Crusting Kettle

Question: Noting an inquiry on hard water crusting in a kettle, "An Old Cape Codder" recommends keeping a small clamshell in the kettle. "The crusts form on this, and the kettle remains white and clean. A new shell can be put in when the other is discolored." Many thanks for that. Another remedy is to cut a piece of linen to fit the size of the bottom of the kettle; the crust will deposit on the linen, which can be renewed when stiffened.

Hiding Scratches

Question: I am looking for a compound in stick form to hide scratches on maple and mahogany before waxing. Do you know of any such thing?

Answer: Dealers in radio supplies use a stick for taking out scratches on radio cabinets, which is what you are looking for. You may be able to get it at one of the 25-50-75 chains. Your radio dealer should be willing to get one for you if he does not carry the sticks in stock.

CITY OR COUNTRY?

A KANSAS CITY friend told me recently that he had bought a small farm within an hour's drive of the city. My friend is, and has been, a city worker. He is the father of a family of children of from 5 to 16 years of age. He has been fearful of the financial future of America.

The man from whom the farm was purchased had become enamored of what he considered the opportunities, the conveniences, the attractions, of the city and wished the privilege of enjoying these for himself and his family.

What my Kansas City friend has purchased is an assurance of health, shelter, warmth and food for his family and for himself. Chickens, a cow, pigs, a garden, a wood lot from which to cut fuel, provide these things, if nothing more, and he was wise to secure a place where he can keep his feet on the ground and has an insurance against hunger.

At the end of five years, the man who sold may have realized his expectation of enjoyment of opportunity, convenience and attraction of the city, but the chances are 100 to 1 against him. The vast majority in any large city evidence more of failure than of success.

WHERE GLAMOUR AND ROMANCE WAS KING

MAJOR "JERRY" REED was a cowboy on the King ranch in Texas before he became a major. When he entered the World war, Jerry quit bronco-busting and cow-punching to enter the aviation service, in which he rose to the rank of major. As a sideline he taught prize fighting to the fistically inclined young bloods of the army. With the close of the war he entered the concrete contracting field.

But Jerry has dreamed of the glamour and romance of that great baronial estate of more than a million acres, the King ranch. To Jerry the ruler of that domain was greater than any king or potentate.

After years of contention the state of Texas has built a public highway straight through the center of those million and more acres. To Jerry the ruler of that domain is now but an ordinary individual, and spearing old papers and picking up the romance and glamour of the general rubbish. And I certainly do Lone Star state is gone.

'SLIM' ON DIET
"SLIM" WILLIAMS, an old Alaskan sourdough, prefers cream puffs to blubber as a steady diet. A few years ago, "Slim" drove a dog team from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Washington, D. C. A later exploit was an attempt to ride a motorcycle from Fairbanks to New York to prove the practicability of a highway from Alaska to the American "Slim" and his motorcycle did not get to New York, but he did get through the Alaska and British Columbia mountains to the American line and so claims to have proved his contention about a highway. "Slim" regrets he has passed soldiering age because cream puffs are now a part of army rations.

WORTH KNOWING

TEACHING ORIENTAL politics to American college youth is the vocation of Dr. William M. McGovern, a member of the faculty of Northwestern university. There are more people who know Dr. McGovern as "Bill" than as "Doctor." Those who know him as "Bill" know his avocation, that of seeking the out-of-theway places of the world and seeing and experiencing the unusual.

"Bill" is a member of a headhunting tribe of Ecuador. He has visited Lhasa in Tibet. He is an intimate friend of the Shah of Persia. Yes, he has been places and done things, but on the campus he is Dr. William M. McGovern, professor of Oriental politics. I doubt if the students and other professors at Northwestern actually know "Bill,' but "Bill" is worth knowing.

AMERICAN WEALTH

THE TOTAL WEALTH of America, including everything that has a value, is estimated at 375 billion dollars. To divide that equally among all the people of the nation would give each of us about $2,885. With such an amount no one could accomplish anything. We could not buy and operate a farm, we could not build a factory or a railroad. Wealth becomes productive and of value to each and all of us only when it is consolidated. That is just what we Americans have done with our mites.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

I am inclosing a clipping witch has gave me the biggest lift since I was drafted. It is from Camp Stewart down in Georgia and it says that a colonel named Ralph Tobin of the 207th Coast Artillery came out against potato pealing in the army. He said he didn't think a soldier should ever wash a dish neither as both take time that could be used in learning how to fight. Well this man Tobin is my choice for top general in the U. S. A. If this clipping gets read much he will be the hero of the army in no time.

This colonel says the German army used a separate organization of kitchen workers to peel potatus and wash dishes and, ma, that is the key to the way them Nazis fight I gess. With a guaranty that they won't never never have to do no work as kitchen canaries no wonder there morale is so good. He gave a hint that the American army wood organize a trained division of kitchen help soon and I hope he is right. It wood improve the spirit of the whole army and me so much that you wood never no we was the same fellows.

I do not no if there is anything except talk behind this idea but I wish you would mention it in your prayers every night as I am sure the army wood be in better shape to win a war if it could get potatoes, dishes, cooking and general housework off its mind.

I also wish ma that the army wood organize a division of street cleaners and bath room attendants two on account of that is no work for a soldier neither. It is awful hard for me to feel like a 100 per cent fighting man when I am walking up and down a camp

They call this fatigue duty in the army and the man who first thought up this name for it had a great sense of word values. It fatigues me to even think of army housework. I do not get half so tired on an all day hike as I do just thinking of peeling another barrel of potatus or washing dishes.

If I was not a private I wood write a letter to Colonel Tobin saying he is the first smart general the army ever had and that I was for him for President, Secretary of War and the hero of the next Sergeant York picture, but it might get me into trouble like most of my letters do. I wish you and pop wood write him and get all the neighbors to do it. Believe me it has puzzled me how the Heinies could take all those Maggienot lines and forts so quick but the hole secret is out. They could concentrate on it instead of on potato peeling.

Well, this will half to be all for now now.

Lots of love, Oscar.

P.S.-Could you find out the address of Myrtle Atwood for me.

_K. I. M

THERE are three major factors in competitive sport—apart from such superior physical assets as speed and power.

As some sporting philosopher once remarked-"the race may not be to the swift-nor the battle to the strong but that is where to look." Usually—but not always. For the three major factors referred to play a big part in naming the winner, no matter what the sport. These three leading elements are Form — Technique Grantland Rice and Tactics. They are the big winners, where so many are so well matched on the physical side. They write most of the headlines. And they are the least understood by the vast majority of those who play various games.

What They Are Just what is Form—what is Technique and what are Tactics? I put the matter up to P. Hal Sims, bridge player and golfer, who has put in much careful thought along these lines through 40 years of competitive effort.

"Form," says Mr. Sims, "is really style—the correct physical way of doing things. It is the popular current style, which often changes as new champions come along with different ways of playing games.

"Technique is the best mathematical execution of form. I should say that technique is eliminating as much as you can the margin of error. It demands that you give more consideration to the percentage

"Tactics is the handling or direction of form and technique together. "Many times the failure to observe technique puts on added pressure. All the mistakes you make increase pressure. In bridge for example the first mistake you make in bidding or playing the hand will Dempsey took a three-year rest beincrease the pressure enormously. The same is true in golf, which opens with the tee shot. If you miss this stroke, you wade right out in the middle of increasing pressure.

The Many Angles

"I have always thought," P. Hal continued, "that Walter Hagen was always a master of technique and tactics. Hagen's angle is this—a golfer plants his tee shot into the rough, partially stymied by a tree. In place of accepting the penalty he has incurred by a bad shot, he tries to save himself by some miracle attempt. The odds against this attempt may be 10 or 15 to 1. If he would play out safely and then gamble on one pitch and one putt, the odds would be much less. And the nenalty much lighter.

"How many average golfers will you see trying to play a wooden club from the rough. You'll see it often. They merely move from one trouble to deeper trouble, as a rule. By using the right technique they might still get a 4 on the hole or almost surely a 5. But overlooking the percentage matter completely, they wind up with a 6 or a 7. Most golfers could take away 8 or strokes from their average rounds by using better technique.

The Case of Conn

"When Billy Conn met Joe Louis, Conn's boxing form was brilliant.
"His foot action and his hand action was all that any one could ask. He made you think of style-just as Jim Corbett once did.

"But Conn's technique in the thirteenth round suddenly blew up. He had taken the lead because he kept moving around, giving Louis a shifting target. But in the thirteenth round he suddenly turned flat-footed and began exchanging punches with a much better puncher.

"Many will tell you Conn became flat-footed through the body punishment he had taken in earlier rounds. I don't agree with this for the simple reason in the 'twelfth round Conn was at his best, swarming all over Louis. It was this round that made him so badly overconfident that he forgot all about technique and tactics. He overlooked Old Man Mathematics or Old Man Percentage completely. You couldn't blame him too much for this. It was the first time he had ever been within two or three rounds of a heavyweight championship. He lacked at this point the coolness and the experience needed to carry along a winning plan, which he actually had.

He Had the Odds

"There are those who say that Louis would have caught Conn anyway. Perhaps. But against much greater odds. Louis was almost sure to beat Conn in a toe to toe slugging match. The odds at slugging were 4 to 1 on Louis. The odds at longer range boxing were 3 to 1 on Conn. See what difference this makes? Things like this happen in sport every day-in every game. Better form can't win alone. It must have help from technique and tactics."

SPEAKING OF

Fighting Man

JOLTING JOE LOUIS may not be the greatest fighter who ever stepped into the ring, but there's one thing on which boxing experts agree. He is the greatest fighting man of our time.

The "greatest in history" label has been pinned on just about every heavyweight champion of the past. John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, James J. Jeffries, Jack Johnson, Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney—all have been granted this en-thusiastic honor. No one can say who is truly deserving of it-

One thing is certain, however. Louis has been the most active of all champions. He has defended his title 19 times-an almost unbelievable figure when compared to the "frequent" fighters of a past era. Johnson and Dempsey each went to the post seven times in defense of ther title.

Since 1934, Louis, a Golden Glove champion, has had 55 professional fights. Of those opponents, 47 were unable to go the route. Louis was forced to go all the way in only seven matches. He was beaten once during that time, when Max Schmeling knocked him out in 1936.

Quantity Over Quality

Even the most ardent Louis supporter will concede that many of his challengers were far from dangerous. Indeed, many of them would have had to improve considerably before they could climb into the ham and egg division. But Joe wasn't responsible for this sorry lack of worthwhile competition. He fought the best men available. Pretenders to the throne made up in quantity what they lacked in quality-which was slightly colossal.

Joe's willingness to stand the grind of training for such long periods of time is perhaps the major reason for his long reign. Few champions in history would submit to such a routine. That is why most of the other title holders fought so seldom after reaching the top. Even tween the Firpo and Tunney fights. Most fighters hate to train. They dislike the road work, the dullness of camp life, the absence of bright lights and the unvarying routine. Louis has been extraordinary in this respect. He trained as thoroughly for one fight as for another, regardless of his opponent.

Louis' willingness to work hard for victory will remain one of the high spots of his career. He deserves his triumphs. With something like a million dollars on hand, it's not easy to turn away from the places where at least part of it can be spent.

Bowling—the Right Way

Bobby-A He-Man

By ALICE DUANE (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

IT WAS an exciting day for Bobby Boynton when his father came home. Bobby was standing in the middle of the roadway in front of Grandmother's house, lifting with the sturdy strength of an eight-yearold the frail body of little Mary Lou, and swinging her high over his head, while she shrieked with delighted yells. A breath-taking man in a khaki uniform with a shiny wide brown belt and a hat with a shining visor and something silver on the front swooped him up in strong arms and called loudly: "Louise! Lou-

Then Mother came running out with a funny crying sound, and Bobby jumped up and down, yelling, "My Father's a captain in the army. He's just come home."

After that they went to the Fort to live. Mary Lou, who was a sort of second cousin of Bobby's and whose Daddy was only a lieutenant, went there to live, too. One night, when he was lying awake, Bobby heard his Father mentioning his name to his Mother.

"It's a shame; Louise," Father was saying, "the way you've been bringing that boy up to be such a sissy! Why, he doesn't know how to swim, or play football, or anything a boy his age should be able to do! He just plays hour after hour with a three-year-old babyand a girl, at that!"

Mother's voice was low, and Bobby couldn't hear her answer, but Father said, "Well, I'll take hold of him and teach him to be a regular

It was the next Saturday that Bobby's father took him to the riding hall and began to give him lessons in horseback riding. Bobby went without question or comment, but he understood that this was the beginning of his training to become a "regular he-man." He watched wistfully for every sign of approval from his hero, his sober face breaking out into a delightful smile when Father would look down from his horse, Fetter, and say briefly, 'Good!''

All summer Bobby worked hard at his riding. And finally, he was allowed to ride Jerry, and to learn to jump. And only when Father had gone away from the Fort, did he swing Mary Lou over his head, or play tag with her.

He felt a little guilty about his actions toward Mary Lou. She was such a plucky little sport about it. When he saw her playing all alone on her front porch (she was the only child at the Fort under seven) he felt like a deserter. But he hardened his heart. He knew his Father wanted him to ignore girls to become a "regular he-man."

At the end of the summer there was a big horse show. Bobby's father's eyes shone as he told Bobby about it. "Look here, Son," he said, "if you get to be a really good horseman. I'll let you ride with me in the Pair Jumping!' it came time for the entries there were their names posted together: 'Pair Jumping: Captain Folwell; Lieutenant Vicker, Miss Flandreau; CAPTAIN BOYN TON, ROBERT BOYNTON.'

Day after day they put Fetter and Jerry over the fences, over the post and rail. And it was up to Bobby to win, really, for of course, Father would easily be the best! Up to Bobby to win, for his Father!

Everyone at the Fort came out to the Horse Show. When the six horses in the Pair Jumping came into the ring, everyone applauded and shouted, especially when they saw Fetter and Jerry up. Bobby sat proud and intent.

They had to take four jumps, two going away from the wide open door that led to the street, two going back toward it. Riding easily side by side, they cleared the first! The second! It was just as they turned to face the door that Bobby, his eyes for a moment lifted from the course, saw through the open door Mary Lou come dashing down the street, clinging wildly to the mane of a running pony! Just as they came opposite the door, the pony gave a lurch, and Mary Lou spilled in a little white heap on the Bobby's mind was working wildly. He would lose the race for Father! He would be a sissy to stop being a he-man to pick up a baby! The crowd gasped to see Bobby Boynton's horse make a sudden smooth dash for the door.

Without pausing in his stride, Jerry reached the still figure in the road, hesitated just long enough for Bobby to dismount and gather the limp Mary Lou in his arms, mount again. Then Jerry went off at a smooth canter toward the Fort hospital.

Twenty minutes later Bobby Boynton came slowly out on to the hospital steps to face his Father. He had not heard the Doctor say: "Five minutes later, Captain Boynton, and it would have been too late to operate. Your son . . ." raising his brown eyes bravely to face the consequences, he was surprised to see tears in his Father's eyes, and to hear an unsteady tremble in his Father's voice, as he grasped his hand, and said, "I'm proud of you, Bobby. You won a

MEN WANTED

There's more than one way that advertising brings men to work.

The most important way is when advertising is used to increase sales.

Instead of "men wanted," it says, "customers wanted."

And more customers mean more jobs in the stores and factories that keep busy by using advertising.
