Grand Event For U. S. O. Campaign

Despite the terrible disaster of fire and total loss of summer home, which befell Miss Doris Doe, leading mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, with the courage of a genius and true fortitude and inspiring patriotism, she is to favor the committee of the U. S. O. in Bennington by giving a concert in behalf of their campaign on August 30th. This will be a truly superb event in music, for all of our county and wider. Save the date. Are we not fortunate, and is not U. S. O. fortunate, and may we not raise a big sum for this cause? We can, if all help, and all come!

Don't forget the box at Butterfield's store for depositing gifts for our soldiers. The box is closed on Saturday night and each week gifts are sent to three boys whose names are selected alphabetically. This week the gifts are for Gerry Carmes James Cuddihy and Charles Eades.

William Cole To Run For Governor

The announcement of his candidacy for Governor by Sen. William M. Cole of Derry, president of the N. H. Senate, on July 30 came as no surprise to his many friends and supporters throughout the state. Rumors that he would seek the Republican nomination in the primary of 1942 have persisted ever since he became the presiding officer of the Senate, a position second only to that of the highest office in the state. A leader in the Republican party for many years, Cole is admittedly the strongest opponent whom the opposition can support against the present incumbent.

Successful Business Man

Sen. Cole has achieved outstanding success in business. For many years he has been a lumber merchant and a real estate dealer. His lumber operations have extended throughout the state. Under his direction many houses have been constructed on the shore of Beaver Lake in Derry and a large summer colony now visits this attractive spot.

Within the past ten years Sen. Cole has increased the valuation of property surrounding this lake by approximately $100,000. He is one of the largest individual taxpayers in Derry and has holdings in many other towns.

Recognizing his business ability and his sound judgment, the federal government has employed him to appraise land in several towns. He has also worked for the N. H. State Tax Commission as an appraiser. In this capacity he has served in nearly every county in the state. Sen. Cole would bring to the governorship a practical knowledge of business methods, a training and background achieved by working his own way to the top in the business world.

Veteran Lawmaker

Sen. Cole has a long and distinguished career in public life. He was selectman of Salem for four years. He was on the Budget Committee in Derry for several years; consequently he is familiar with town fiscal problems. He served as a Major on the staff of Gov. Bridges. In 1931, as a member of the N. H. House of Representatives, he was on the Ways and Means Committee and chairman of the Committee on Forestry. During his five terms in the Senate he has been a member of the following committees: banks, finance, fish and game, forestry, ways and means, joint rules, judiciary, public improvement, election committee, military affairs, and soldiers' home, insurance, state prison and industrial schools, State House.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Holloran has returned from Margaret Pillsbury Hospital where he has been for treatment.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor Fish and Game Conservation Officer

This week it is kind of quiet in the old 'burg. The youngest boy and girl are spending a week with an older sister in New York City. What a story they can tell when they get home.

Got quite a thrill the other night. It was about 11 p. m. when I met a young fellow coming down from a pond with a shotgun and a pall.

Now at that late hour, that gun was a puzzle to me. I stopped and asked him "How Come?" a shot gun and a pall." He replied that the 16 gauge was a protection against a big dog I gave a fellow two years ago. The dog had bit him twice and the police chief told him to defend himself. It was lucky for the big dog that he did not show up that night. The pall was for pout which he did not get. He was within his rights, had a license and when I saw him the gun was not loaded. He had just removed the shell.

The same night near a covered bridge in my district I saw a truck parked and standing up in said truck was a big chow dog and he was all business. Later the owners of said truck said they were taking no chances of losing any tire.

That dog was good tire insurance. Last week I ran out of stale bread to bait my horn pout traps so as a last resort I baited the traps with waste popcorn (Old Maids) so called and the next time I tended them I had 42 nice pout. This popcorn came from the Manager of the Milford Theatre. This waste-popcorn is a great favorite with the wild birds.

Many people have told me that they did not think the wild birds come to the winter feeding stations now. One woman started feeding again and she reports that nearly as many came again as in the winter time. So let's keep feeding them.

The domestic rabbit business has again started up with a big boom. With meat scarce this is going to be a standard meat in the markets and on the tables. Those who kept up in the Guinea pig or Cavy business are in the black column as there is a big demand for them.

Did you know the Govt. raises millions of canaries and Cavy's to be used in their "Subs"? You fishermen will get a big kick out of the "Flatfish" edited by Helen Tackie Co., Detroit, Mich.

Some one in Boston, name unknown, sends us a clipping from the "Bulletin" telling about the cancelled stamps. Thanks for the tip.

Speaking of guns, Miss Alice E. Chandler of Smithville, New Ipswich, has a gun which has been in her family over 100 years. I would hate to shoot it.

Here is a party who wants to know where there is anything in the laws about the use of box traps. Look on page 17 (Red Book) Chapter 241. Game shall be taken with a gun fired at arm's length or bow and arrow. So you can't take hares and rabbits with a box trap only on permission of the Director.

Louis Abrams the veteran guide took two striped bass in the salt water at Cuttyhunk Island off the Massachusetts coast that tipped the scales at 52 and 47 pounds. That's what we call real fishing.

In the mail a few days ago we received a bottle of "Sports Location" This to keep away bugs and to prevent sunburn. We are to give it a 30 days' trial and report back. It's from (Luxor Limited), Chicago, Ill. Here's hoping.

$50,000 Fire Destroys Home In Bennington

Authorities today estimated the damage of nearly $50,000 from fire which Saturday noon completely destroyed the historic summer home on Cemetery road owned by Miss Doris Doe, Metropolitan Opera company member.

The two-story brick house was gutted and a large combination studio and barn and a connecting ell were leveled by the flames which were discovered about 11 a. m.

The contractor also counted as lost three grand pianos and nearly all the household furnishings.

The blaze started in the ell connecting the main house and the barn studio. It quickly spread to both house and barn and was completely out of control when firemen arrived.

Miss Doe, her mother, Mrs. Amy Doe, a brother, Dudley Doe, his wife and son Jerry, were in the house when the fire was discovered but the flames had gained such headway that only a few scattered personal effects could be rescued. None of the family was injured.

Members of the Bennington Fire Department were assisted by volunteers in fighting the blaze.

George H. Van Deusen, well known in Antrim and Bennington, has been promoted from Second to First Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps. Since November he has been training aviation cadets, first at Randolph Field, Texas, and now at the Waco Army Flying School in the same state.

There was a special service Sunday morning at the Congregational church with boys from Camp Sachem Council of Boy Scouts and from Camp Wildwood as guests. Special guests were three boys from Perkins Institute for the Blind who are at Camp Sachem. More than one hundred boys and several members of the staff were present.

At the time of the fire, arrangements were being made for a concert to be held in the studio at which Miss Doe planned to donate her services for the benefit of the local USO drive. It is not known whether the concert will be canceled or other plans will be made.

Members of the Doe family were taken into the homes of Bennington people following the fire.

Telling time in the Navy is on the 24-hour system. Morning hours are from one to twelve, but afternoon hours are from 1300 to 2400 (midnight). So if you ask a sailor the time and he says "seventeen," subtract 12 and you get five o'clock in the afternoon. It's simpler if you ask him what cigarette he smokes. Chances are he'll say: "Camel" for Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men as well as among men in the Army, Marines, Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) AT THE BICYCLE RATIONING BOARD

Q.—Why do you want a bicycle?
A.—It's the only card missing from my collection.

Q.—Do you want a high-wheel or a low-wheel machine?

A.—Low. Any idea you have that I am going into a revival of vaudeville is false.

Q.—Have you ever operated a bicycle before?

A.—No, but I come from an old family of bicycle people.

Q.—What do you mean by that?

A.—My dad could ride backwards. And I had an uncle who could stand on his head in the saddle.

Q.—Are there any bicycles in your family now?

A.—Those things I trip over in the dark every night can't be road rollers.

Q.—Give the board three reasons why you should be allowed to ride a bike?

A.—I can't get any gas. The other two don't matter.

Q.—Do you live near a bus line?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why not use the bus?

A.—When I coast down hill I want to do it on my own responsibility.

Q.—Are you aware that there is a shortage of bicycles?

A.—Up until the last year I thought they could only be found in antique shops.

Q.—What do you want to do on a bicycle that can't be done some other way?

A.—Go through a red light and park where I want to.

Q.—Do you regard your having a bicycle as essential to winning the war?

A.—Of course. It will keep up national morale.

Q.—How so?

A.—The people need entertainment and when they see me on a bicycle they will get it.

Q.—How far do you live from work?

A.—Twenty miles.

Q.—Our records show that it is only two miles.

A.—You forget that it's all uphill.

Q.—Have you thought of pooling bicycles?

A.—What do you mean?

Q.—You take a neighbor to work one day and he takes you the next.

A.—Who do you think I am, Joe Jackson Jr.?

The best laugh line of the month in this department's opinion is to be found in "The Crimson Tiger," a baseball story by Bugs Baer in Collier's. In a fantastic tale about a busher, there is an episode where a shotgun marriage takes place at the plate during a critical inning. The game is then resumed and the batter strikes out. "He is now in a fine spot," says Baer. "He is struck out and married on a wide outshoot."

Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

THESE soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen, and coast guardmen have all the work they can handle; but they still have time enough left for arguments, debates and rebuttals of one sort or another.

Here is a camp query that covers practically every detail of baseball:

"To help clear up a lot of arguments we've had in this camp would you mind answering the following: Who is Grantland Rice (1) the fastest pitcher ever; (2) the hardest hitter; (3) the best natural hitter; (4) the best base runner; (5) the best infielder, fielding and hitting?"

Here are the answers from this lookout:

1. Fastest ball pitcher—Walter Johnson, with Lefty Grove second.

2. Hardest hitter—Babe Ruth.

3. Best Natural hitter—Joe Jackson, with Nap Lajoie close.

4. Best base runner—Ty Cobb, going away. Max Carey next.

5. Best infielder—Honus Wagner, great infielder and greater hitter.

Ranking Golfers

Here's another barracks request, this time from a group of golfers:

"How would you rank the golfers from the viewpoint of stroke-making, all-around skill, winning or losing temperaments, putting? If we can get this settled it will shut off a lot of noise in this camp."

1. The best stroke-maker I ever saw, the straightest player, was Harry Vardon.

2. The best combination of stroke-making, hard work and putting belonged to Bobby Jones.

3. The best golfing temperaments I ever ran across were Johnny McDermott, Jerry Travers and Walter Hagen. McDermott and Travers were marvels at concentration. Hagen had less tension. He also had as much golf smartness.

The two best putters I ever saw were Walter Travis and Jerry Travers. In modern play this distinction goes to Horton Smith. Paul Runyan is close.

I've seen Harry Vardon play many rounds of championship golf and I can't recall ever seeing him play a shot from the rough or from a bunker. He was a bad putter, with a nervous stab. It was nothing unusual to see him take three putts from 10 or 12 feet.

I've seen Gene Sarazen play a number of championship golf and I can't recall ever seeing him play a shot from the rough or from a bunker. He was a bad putter, with a nervous stab. It was nothing unusual to see him take three putts from 10 or 12 feet.

About Bobby Jones

Capt. Bobby Jones, taking his training at Mitchel Field before being stationed in a southern sector, believes he worked harder around a course in championship play than anyone else. He was supposed to be "The Machine."

"I was far from this," he said recently. "Machines don't take sevens. Gene Sarazen used to say you can't take a seven on any hole and win. I had three sevens in my last round at Winged Foot in the National Open of 1929. I've had a flock of sevens, which meant I had to work my head off on the other holes."

"The oddest seven I ever took was at Hoylake in the 1930 British Open. I was only 20 yards off the green in two, got into no trouble, actually didn't miss a shot, and yet took five strokes to get down for my seven here. How could this happen? The cup was on a mound. My first chip shot ran up fairly close, stopped, and then rolled back. My second one slipped by the cup, caught a deep slant and trickled 30 feet on beyond. Then I took three putts.

Time to Come

Leo would do well to remember that writers have good memories. Right now he's at the top of the heap. He piloted the Dodgers to the National league pennant last year, and has a fairly comfortable lead in the 1942 race. But there probably will come a time when Durocher's lamp doesn't burn so brightly. Like all managers, he will make his share of errors. If they come too close together—and if the scribes feel unkindly toward him—then Leo's life will not be such a rambunctiously happy affair.

The diamond Boswells of New York have faced such a situation more times than those of other major league cities. About the turn of the century, when Andrew Freedman owned the Giants, he not only kept slightly antagonistic reporters out of the clubhouse, but barred them from the park.

For many years John J. McGraw allowed the writers free run. But then came a time in which John failed to persuade a reporter to hold back on an interview which the Giant manager had given him in a burst of anger. From then on McGraw didn't like reporters in the clubhouse. But Mac always was available after every game, and was of the greatest possible assistance.

About Bill Terry

Bill Terry barred reporters from the clubhouse, and thereby broke down the public relations of the club. It was last winter that Horace Stoneham and Terry agreed to promote Ott to the management. With Ott's regime came a renewal of friendly relations with the press.

"I believe the hardest-working golfer I ever saw is Ben Hogan. Ben works over every type of shot, even the ones that look simple. He takes nothing for granted.

Hogan has made no attempt to master any variety of shots. He sticks to a few simple ones, concentrates on these, and never gets discouraged. Byron Nelson is another hard worker, although Byron can play more shots. But no one works quite as hard, round after round, month after month, as Hogan works.

"I have 18 years of tournament golf, from 12 to 38, and I know the nerve and mental beating one has to take if you are out to win. Just one lapse is enough to cost two strokes. There never was a golfer that played itself."

LEO DUROCHER, not-so-genial boss man of the Brooklyn Dodgers, muffed one recently when, in a fit of temper at stories written about him, he barred all except two baseball writers from the Dodger's dressing room.

Leo's vituperative feud with Brooklyn and New York baseball writers started late in June when "the Lip" heaved a wet towel into Umpire Tom Dunn's face at Ebbets Field. The local press gave Leo a very thorough going over for his actions. This angered Mr. Durocher, who retaliated with the decree that none of the offending writers should enter the dressing room.

It might well be explained that one of the writers who may enter the sacred portals was off the day after the towel throwing, and so failed to get a chance to crack down on Leo. The other writer represents a newspaper which does not permit its reporters to editorialize in their presentation of the news.

Little Difference

Being barred from the dressing room doesn't really make a great deal of difference to the authors in their work. It means merely that they are unable to sit around with

Pioneering of a Pioneer

WHEN death claimed William Henry Jackson recently at the age of 90, it not only ended the career of a remarkable American but it also snapped one of the few remaining links between the present and the historic past—the past of the Old Frontier. For Jackson, pioneer photographer and painter and often called the "first news photographer," was the first to make a pictorial record of some of the scenic wonders of the West, it was his camera which recorded for future generations the likenesses of some of the most famous Indian chieftains of the Plains wars, and it was his views of the unexplored Yellowstone, taken back in the seventies, which were instrumental in causing congress to declare that region a national park.

His life-span of nearly a century corresponds almost exactly with the history of photography. The son of an amateur daguerreotypist in New York, where he was born April 4, 1843, he experimented with that newly discovered "art," then did some of his most important work with the cumbersome wet-plate methods of photography and ended his career in this modern era of candid cameras, color film and television.

His right to the title of "first news photographer" is based on the fact that in 1896 he made a round-the-world trip for Harper's Weekly and sent back to that publication the photographic results of his 18 months' journey.

But it was for his activities in the West that he was most noted in the fields of photography and exploration. After serving in the Union army, he went west—to St. Joseph, Mo., then the end of the transcontinental railroad. There he got a job as a bullwhacker, driving ox teams to Montana. After a year of this, Jackson decided to start up in the business he knew best. So he went to Omaha and there in 1868 he and

Sandwiches Plus

Your swing with summer isn't quite complete without one or a dozen picnics with those sandwiches that taste so good, bubbling hot coffee and fresh juicy fruit to top off that outdoor meal. You'll have fun with these simple things, even if you don't make a long trip in the family car to some far-away, favorite picnic grounds. Try the back yard, the parks, the beach or even that shady spot down the road a mile or so for this year's picnic.

Scrub your favorite picnic hamper clean and sun-dry it to assure your food freshness and cleanliness. Fill it to the brim with exciting sandwich combinations that your family will get such a surprise when they begin digging into the pleasant recesses of the big basket. Remember the salt for the tomatoes, paper napkins, paper plates, plenty of glasses or paper cups and, yes, a gay checked cloth to add atmosphere to the affair.

Are you in a quandary as to what sandwiches to make? Well, glance over the following combinations for some really tasty ideas in fillings:

Chopped Bacon (broiled until crisp) and hard-cooked egg, moistened with mayonnaise or softened butter.

Sliced ham and American cheese, lettuce, sandwich spread.

Cream cheese, finely minced onion, chopped stuffed olives.

Chipped beef, ground fine, mixed with crumbled Roquefort cheese, seasoned with Worcestershire sauce.

Liver sausage, mashed, seasoned with chili sauce.

Summer sausage, ground with sweet or bread and butter pickles, moistened with mayonnaise.

Cucumber, chopped fine, excess moisture drained off, mixed with cream cheese, salt and pepper.

Peanut butter mixed with honey.

Tuna or salmon, flaked, mixed with lemon juice, finely chopped celery and mayonnaise to moisten.

Filings combined generously with butter are often known as spreads. This facilitates the handling of sandwiches. Just spread the "butter" thickly between slices of bread and your sandwich is made, ready to be wrapped in waxed paper for picnicking.

Cheese Spread.

Cream 2 tablespoons lemon juice with $\frac{1}{2}$ pound sweet butter. Spread this on toast or plain whole wheat bread. On top of this place tiny sardines, sprinkle with lemon juice and top with slice of toast or plain whole wheat bread.

"Make-your-own" sandwiches are loads of fun for picnics. Just pack your lunch box with meat loaf or ham loaf already baked at home. Provide the crowd with bread and butter, and let them slice the meat for their own sandwiches:

SWEATING OF COLD WATER PIPE CAN BE STOPPED BY JACKETING

ONE of the troubles which come with warm weather is the dripping from pipes carrying cool water. This is likely to be the case in a cellar. One remedy is to cover the pipes with jackets which will keep warm and damp air out of contact with the cool metal. Pipe-jacketing is on sale at hardware stores, and can be had from plumbers and steamfitters. If appearance need not be considered, the same effect can be obtained by wrapping the pipe with tightly-twisted newspaper tied on with string. Corrugated board also can be used. The same principal can be applied to tanks which are chilled by the low temperature of the water within. Sometimes these can be enclosed in boxes made of insulating board, or with insulating cement of the kind used on steam boilers. The most difficult problem of the sort is with porcelain flues tanks. Manufacturers of plumbing fixtures are aware of the situation, but have provided no method which would avoid it. There seems little else to do except to keep the floor under the tank covered with bath towels which from time to time are wrung out and replaced.

Broken Marble Table Top

Question: I have a small marble-top table, of which the marble is cracked and broken right through the middle. Is there any way I could repair it at home?

Answer: A marble table-top is so thin that in mending it a support must be placed underneath. You should cut a piece of plasterboard to fit inside the frame of the table as a support for the pieces of marble. With this support secured in position, it should be covered with a layer of patching plaster to act as a cement. The pieces of marble are placed on this and forced tightly together before the plaster dries. If any holes remain in the marble, they can be filled with ceiling wax of the correct color. If repolishing is needed, this can be done with putty powder, to be had at a local monument yard.

Cracked Paint

Question: When we built our home two years ago we painted the woodwork ourselves with two coats of flat white and one of enamel. In two months it began to check, and now has checks and cracks all over. We would like to repaint this spring, but are afraid that the same thing will happen. How can we prevent it?

Answer: The paint that you used was evidently too hard and brittle to follow the movement of the wood as it dried out and seasoned. In preparing for repainting, ask the advice of the paint manufacturers on the correct method of thinning paint of the first and second coats for the kind of wood that is used.

Metal Roof Paint

Question: What kind of paint should I use on a metal roof that has never been painted, and that has a few rusty places?

Answer: The roof is apparently of tin; for you say that it shows rusty places. These should be cleaned off to the bare metal, using steel wool or a wire brush. Wash with turpentine and then finish with red lead paint. After at least a week for drying, finish with any good quality house paint.

Hot Water Radiators

Question: I have a hot water heating system with a circulator. I understand that with the radiators completely shut off, water would be drawn from the radiator, and a vacuum would eventually be formed. Is this so?

Answer: No; for the shutoff valves of hot water radiators are made with small openings to provide for circulation when the valve is shut. The idea of this is to prevent the freezing of a shut off radiator.

Stoker Problem

Question: I have a two-story building, including stores and six-room flats. Heating is by hot water. I am considering putting in a stoker. Where can I get information on the different kinds and on their operation?

Answer: Consult the Committee of Ten of the Heating Industries, at 307 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

A New Flat Roof

Question: Will you advise me what kind of roofing is best to use in replacing a tin roof on a flat surface?

Answer: Use what is known as a built-up roofing; this consists of several layers of heavy roofing felt cemented to a solid roof sheathing. Use a good quality heavy weight felt, and have the work done by a reliable roofer.

Uncle Jed always used to say, "Thing'd be a whole lot pleasanter if folks would just live so's they'd never be ashamed to sell the family parrot to the town gossip."

An' speakin' of parrots, reckon I must sound like one, the way I'm always talkin' about vitamins an' KELLOGG'S PEPSI! But it's mighty important to get your vitamins—all of 'em! And KELLOGG'S PEPSI is extra-strong in the two vitamins, B, and D, that are most likely to be short in ordinary meals. An', PEPSI's plumb delicious too!

Kellogg's Pep

HOW TO GET THE MOST FROM YOUR ELECTRIC TOASTER

Be careful about cleaning your toaster! Do not put it in water. Use a damp—not wet—cloth to wipe off the inside. The heating element cleans itself when you turn on the current. The base of many automatic toasters is removable for easy cleaning. A small paint brush, kept exclusively for this purpose, is effective for removing stubborn crumbs if your toaster does not have a removable crumb tray.

TO PRESERVE YOUR ELECTRIC RANGE

1. Use Thrift Cooker more . . . it uses less current.
2. Turn down top burners when foods come to a boil.
3. Keep range clean.

Today, in the words of President Roosevelt, is one of the war's most stirring episodes—a demonstration of how, with one man killed, another man's hand shot off, and a third man injured, our American boys stuck to the fight, bombed their objective, and brought their plane home.

RUSSIA: Nazi Steamroller

Inexorably the Nazi war machine had forced the Russians back mile by mile from Kiev to beyond Rostov in the reaches of the Don basin.

Throughout the cruel retreat 250 miles Red Marshal Semyon Timoshenko had shrewdly played string out. His formula: Fall before the superior Nazi onslaught; contest every inch stubbornly; inflict maximum damage on the Germans.

By thus staying his hand he kept his own army intact and forced the Germans to extend themselves. But the Nazi resources and men and machines had seemed without limit, for it was reported that 12 fresh divisions and tanks had been poured into the conflict after the fall of Rostov.

Hitler was said to be willing to gamble the lives of a million Germans to gain control of the Asian oil fields of the Caucasus turn aside the onrushing Axis. General Timoshenko had thrown Red army reserves into the struggle for the preservation of sia.

The grimness of the situation underscored by Premier Stalin's sharp order to his armies: one step back! Every officer man must stand his ground and to the bitter end."

Inspired by Stalin's appeal, forces defending the approach to Stalingrad hurled the German back. The Russians made a determined stand on the Don river of Tsimlyansk, while on the flank at Voronezh they dislodged the enemy from strong posi-

4,000,000 MEN: In U. S. Service

President Roosevelt told the nation that with 4,000,000 men in arms, the slack in America's supplies is being rapidly taken up and shortages may be expected specific things to eat. He emphasized, however, that there would be no shortage of food and that America will have enough to eat.

To illustrate his point, the president cited temporary shortages in several sections of the country. A number of similar shortages are likely to occur, he said, listed these reasons for the scarcity: 1.—The usual off-season for beef; 2.—People with more money than ever before trying to buy expensive cuts; 3.—Greater assumption of meat by the armed forces than they ever ate in civilian life; 4.—The necessity of buying advance for the services, which tightens the shortages.

The problem of shortages President declared, lies in disposing with the scrap salvage campaign now under way—iron and scrap, waste fats, tin cans and paper.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was appealing to every householder, every keeper, every citizen "to dig into his attic, cellar, barn and yard and turn in every ounce of scrap useful to war production.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

CHAPTER XIX

The other men stayed at the gate. Joan saw that they had pistols and two machine guns. She and Sybil climbed into the car, followed by Paul and Thomas.

"Won't someone hear the car?" Sybil asked.

"It won't matter. The place is surrounded," Paul told her.

Joan was surprised to find that there were three planes instead of one. Paul put the girls and Thomas into one of them.

"Happy landing!" he called. "I'll be in San Francisco tomorrow night."

"You're not coming with us?" Joan cried in alarm.

"My job here isn't done yet," he reminded her. "Don't worry, honey," he added as tears filled her eyes. "We'll round up the whole bunch and it will be all over for good." He thrust some papers into her hand. "Give these to Scot Reynolds. He'll meet you at the airport and take care of everything. Good-by, darling!"

The plane gathered speed and rose into the air.

"We're safe!" Thomas cried. "Do you know what that means to me? I'm safe from Karl Miller! I can live again. I'm free!"

There were tears in his sad, blue eyes.

The three of them were weak from fatigue and the reaction from tense anxiety when they reached San Francisco six hours later. At the airport they were met by Scot Reynolds. Joan gave him the papers. "I have orders from Mr. O'Malley," he said pleasantly. "I'll take Thomas to a hotel and you girls are to go back to your apartment."

He drove them there himself.

"Imagine still having our apartment!" Sybil said as they went into the familiar rooms. "Who paid the rent?"

Joan remembered Pat. "Paul's sister was living with me. She probably took care of it. I wonder where she is now." She ran into the bedroom but none of Pat's clothes were there. Paul had suspected Mrs. Murdock, but Scot Reynolds had said nothing about Pat. Surely, if she were in trouble, he would have known it.

Too tired to think or even speculate, the girls undressed and went to bed. The first rays of the cold winter sun were just creeping over the city.

It was four in the afternoon when Joan awoke. She sat up in bed and yawned luxuriously. How good it was to be home. To go into the little kitchen and prepare coffee. To see Sybil's blonde head on its usual place on the pillow. And tonight Paul would come!

It was a real thrill to discard the black wool dress she had worn ever since the night Karl surprised her and Paul in the beauty shop's secret room—to put on a soft gray crepe with matching turban—to take a taxi to the nearest beauty shop—to have her hair set in fresh shining waves—to have her fingernails shaped back into brightly polished ovals. She had a facial, too, delighting in the efficient massage that made her skin glow.

It was seven-thirty when she got back to the apartment.

"You look like a new woman," Sybil commented.

"I see you've been at it too," Joan replied with a smile, noticing that each of Sybil's blonde curls was in its proper place and that a fresh coat of rosy polish covered her long nails. "I hope you didn't go to the Ritz."

"It's closed," Sybil said. "I went by there. That proves that they must have caught up with Mrs. Murdock. By the way, Scot Reynolds was here. He's going to take us all out to dinner. Wants us to meet him downtown and afterward we'll go to the airport. Paul's plane is due at nine-thirty."

They smiled at each other affectionately and after a moment Sybil said, "Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Why, Syb! What are you talking about? You don't mean Thomas?"

"Of course not. It's Scot Reynolds, Paul's friend."

Joan remembered his laughing blue eyes and crisp blond hair.

"I think he likes me too," Sybil continued self-consciously. "You'll probably think I'm crazy, Joan. You know I haven't had any faith in love since my divorce . . ."

"Maybe it's time you started to believe in things again," Joan said as she drew her arm through her sister's. "And now we'd better call a taxi. Scot will be waiting!"

Dinner was a happy occasion. Even Thomas seemed gay and care-free, and Joan, carefully scrutinizing Scot Reynolds, noticed that his eyes were fastened upon Sybil. As for Joan, her happiness knew no bounds.

It was just nine-thirty when they reached the airport. Paul's plane, right on schedule, was landing. Joan broke away from the little group to run across the flying field just as Paul appeared.

"Oh darling!" Joan cried, burying her head against the warmth of Paul's overcoat. "Are you all right?"

"Of course I am, honey!"

"Where's Karl?" she asked, looking around.

"All the prisoners are in the other plane."

"Tell me about it. Did you get all of them?"

"Everyone," Paul said with satisfaction. "That's one spy ring that will never operate again. But let's not talk about it dear. We've had enough of that in the last few months. From now on it's going to be Mr. and Mrs. O'Malley."

The next week was the happiest Joan had ever known. Paul planned to take a month's vacation so they would have plenty of time for a honeymoon before they went back to Washington for his new assignment. They applied for their marriage license, and planned to be married the following Saturday. Meanwhile Joan shopped for clothes and household objects which she could take to her new home with her. She bought monogrammed crystal ash trays, glasses, luncheon sets, bath towels, and an alabaster lamp. It was the lamp that finally brought an inquiry from Paul:

"What are we going to do with all this stuff?" he asked.

"Sybil will send them after we've found an apartment in Washington," Joan told him happily. "Darling, you don't know how much fun it is to shop, especially for your own home! Women are funny about things like that."

"Evidently I don't understand the feminine mind," Paul laughed.

For an instant Joan remembered Karl Miller, who had seemed to understand everything about the feminine mind. She ran to Paul and put her arms about his neck. "I'm glad you don't!" she cried, kissing him. "Paul, we will be happy, won't we?"

"You bet we will," Paul said tenderly.

"Just think! A whole month before we have to be back in Washington."

"We still haven't decided where to go for our honeymoon," he reminded her. "Where shall it be? Honolulu? New York? Or," he added smiling, "how about Mexico?"

Joan shuddered. "Never again, thank you! Let's make it Honolulu, darling!"

She related their plans to Sybil, adding, "Isn't it wonderful, Sybil? I never dreamed I could be so happy."

Sybil was looking rather happy herself these days. She had spent every single evening since their return in the company of Scot Reynolds.

"You know, Joan—I don't think I'll look for another job."

"But Sybil! What will you live on?" Joan asked in surprise.

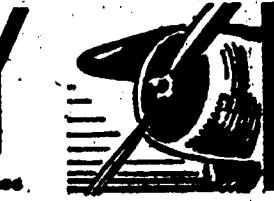

"I still have some money in the bank that I saved when I was working before, and Scot and I . . . Well, we just seem to be in love," she finished, blushing.

"I think that's wonderful."

"Of course, we've known each other only a week," Sybil continued uncertainly. "And we wouldn't want to be married right away. But I have enough money to last a couple of months and if we both feel the same way then . . ." Her blue eyes were shining and the bitter look was gone from her face.

Thomas was happier too. Paul had found a job for him and though the salary was not large he could manage well enough and, most important of all, he was free from the tyranny of Karl Miller.

There was only one unsolved problem—the whereabouts of Paul's sister. Paul had refused to discuss Patricia with Joan, saying, "I don't want to talk about it, honey! When things are straightened out I'll tell you."

Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

U. S. FOREIGN LEGION

Most people don't realize it, but there are many enemy aliens who are officers in the U. S. army. In fact the army, true to the American tradition of the melting pot, is made up of American citizens of almost every national and racial background, including 2,720 German aliens, not to mention 2,700 Germans who are naturalized citizens.

The Italian total is 2,472 aliens and 3,781 naturalized. In addition, there are 644 Japanese in the army, plus 3,000 Japanese-Americans, formerly of the Hawaiian national guard, most of whom are assigned to the 100th battalion at Fort McCoy, Wis.

The army goes on the assumption that any man who wants to fight can be a good soldier. Of course, the "enemy aliens" are checked and double-checked before they are admitted for enlistment. The men who pass these tests are found to be even more zealous for the defeat of the dictators than the average American.

Latin-American Battalions.

To make the melting pot more complex, the army has a Filipino infantry battalion, and is forming a battalion for Norwegians in the U. S. and Norwegian-Americans. Instruction and conversation in this unit will be in the Norwegian language.

Equally eager to fight are thousands of Latin-Americans, especially from the nearer countries, such as Cuba and Mexico. The office of the U. S. military attaché in Havana is flooded with applications from young Cubans who want to wear the uniform of Uncle Sam. Most of them would renounce Cuban citizenship if necessary.

But what they do not realize is that if they come to the United States, they are likely to be swept into the U. S. army, whether they like it or not. Within five days after entering this country, aliens must register for the draft, and they had better leave the country pronto if they don't want to be inducted.

Not yet arranged, but highly desirable, is a Latin-American battalion. There are now ten Latin-American countries which have declared war on the Axis, and thousands of their young men want to follow up that declaration with something more than police duty at home.

BACK-BREAKERS

An American diplomat returning from Italy tells this revealing story about the true sentiments of the Italian people.

In his office at the U. S. embassy in Rome he found a clerk, an Italian girl, crying. When he inquired what was wrong, she replied: "Oh, I'm ashamed to be an Italian. You remember what boasting the Fascists did about the Greek campaign? They said: 'We will break their kidneys.' But everybody knows who really beat the Greeks; it was not our army; it was the Germans. But now—have you seen the poster on the streets this morning?" And the girl broke into tears again.

The diplomat looked outside at the poster, which that day was appearing all over Italy. It showed a Greek soldier lying on his face, with a steel bar across his back. On top of the bar was the Fascist insignia, and on the side, the swastika.

The caption read: "We said we would break their kidneys. Mussolini is always right."

Note: All reports from Italy tell of a growing disgust with the Mussolini government, and a growing hatred of the Germans. But the people are too cowed to revolt.

NO-CHAUFFEUR ARNOLD

Trustbuster Thurman Arnold hails from the small town of Laramie, Wyo., and he doesn't see any reason why he should hire a chauffeur to drive his car. So he drives it himself.

One evening, after he and Mrs. Arnold had been dinner guests of Mrs. Evelyn (Hope Diamond) McLean, they were going out the front door when the doorman said, in his most elegant manner, "Shall I call your car, Mr. Arnold?"

With a dour expression on his face, Arnold said, "You can call it, but I don't think it will come."

CAPITAL CHAFF

¶ The Thurman Arnolds are mourning over the fact that Angelica has eaten Henry Wallace's corn. When the vice president heard about it, he having given the Arnolds a present Iowa hybrid corn, he remarked: "I hope the corn did Angelica some good." Angelica is the Thurman Arnolds' cow.

¶ Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator "No-X-Card" Pepper of Florida, walks to social engagements or takes the street car.

¶ There may be a gasoline shortage, but you would never know it at Washington's Congressional Country club. On a recent Sunday there were so many golfers that caddies had to double up and carry two or three bags each . . . On the same Sunday, motorists so jammed the highways between Washington and Eastern Shore beaches that cars were lined up for three hours waiting for the Chesapeake ferry.

DISTRIBUTION PROBLEM IS OUR GREATEST

THE WAR has added to our knowledge of production, but production is but a portion of the answer to our peace-time, as well as our war-time problem. The greater problem is that of distribution. If the war can show us a solution to the problem of distribution, all the world will profit from that knowledge in the peace time that is to come.

Since World War I, America has produced great surpluses of food products that have gone to waste during years when millions were starving—all because we lacked a knowledge of distribution. We could ship to China, for example, but did not know how to find a market in China. Finding or creating a market, with methods that will arrange for a purchase price, are all a part of distribution.

The world needs not less production, but more consumption. There is no reason for the destruction of American wheat or Brazilian coffee when they are needed by millions who are hungry. The need is for men, statesmen and economists, with the brains necessary for the solution of the distribution problem.

America has such men. When they have been used and have solved the problem that comes to us as the greatest creditor nation, they will have provided a use for all the vast production of this nation and of the world, and the best assurance of maintaining world peace.

ARMY HOUR IS SOLDIER'S BOON

Science has added greatly to the frightfulness of war, but science has also offered some compensations. I well remember in 1918 how our boys in France were hungry for a word, a voice from the homeland. They would listen intently to the lightest, most inconsequential chatter if expressed in the English they liked, the American kind. I thought of that hunger of 1918 as I listened to the army hour on the radio. It included many typical American songs rendered by feminine or mixed choruses. That hour goes to our soldier boys wherever they may be on the far-flung fronts throughout the world. It is but one of the compensations science has offered to ameliorate the frightfulness of war to those who fight the battles. It provides each day the word, the voice, from the homeland.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

If it ever seemed to you that the walls and ceiling of an attic room were coming down on your head you know how the owner of this room felt before she began to experiment a bit with wallpaper and furnishings.

Large samples of wallpaper were thumbtacked in place to test them. Stripes only accented the slant of the walls. Plain papers brought out angles with sharp edges. Wall paper with broad borders makes angles less distinct. Frieze clinging to floors heightens the height of room.

shadows. Large designs made the room seem smaller. Wide borders made the ceiling appear to be even lower. But when a paper with tiny evenly spaced pattern and narrow border was tried all these defects seemed to melt away. The long curtains with ruffles on three sides also helped to make the ceiling seem higher. Pink and white striped material to repeat the wallpaper color was used for the chair cover and dressing table skirt. The chair is a remodeled rocker and the orange crate dressing table has hinged arms. Directions for them may be found on pages 4 and 19 of SEWING, Book 5.

NOTE: Book 5, in the series which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers, is now ready for mailing. There are 32 pages of these new ideas for homemakers with complete working drawings. Also a description of the first seven books of the series. Send your order to:

That Naging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, tensions, habits—increased eating and drinking—is a risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become overtaxed and fail to filter out acids and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer naging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly swollen, all without pain.

The family of Herbert Werden are at Will Kidder's this week.

Mrs. William L. Ferguson of Nashua is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whipple.

There was a demonstration and entertainment Thursday evening in the Presbyterian vestry by the youngest group who have been attending vacation school. The group from the ages of 9 to 12 started classes Monday in the Baptist vestry.

Mr. and Mrs. William Butcher are entertaining their granddaughter, Miss Nita Rokes of Keene.

Miss Frances Tibbals of Boston was a guest of her parents at the Baptist parsonage over the weekend.

Ensign Richard Winslow and wife of Washington, D. C. are guests for a few days of his grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Smith at Alabama Farm.

Miss Mildred Bailey is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey for the month of August. She is entertaining a friend, Miss Kate Moore of New Bedford, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amiott have recently entertained Mrs. Amiott's father, Eli LeBlanc, also her brother, Mr. Joseph L. LeBlanc, wife and son, all from Woodside, Long Island.

Ten boys from Antrim Boy Scouts, Troop 2, left Sunday for a week at Camp Manning in Laconia. They were Robert Lowell, George Edwards, Robert Allison, Frederick Roberts, Harold Roberts, Robert Warren, Donald Madden, George Defoe, Howard Humphrey and Donald Bryer. Edward Robinson and Theodore Allison are on the Camp Manning staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amiott have recently entertained Mrs. Amiott's father, Eli LeBlanc, also her brother, Mr. Joseph L. LeBlanc, wife and son, all from Woodside, Long Island.

Miss Dorothy Scott of Ardmore, Pa., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Favor this week and Earl Scott of Concord visited Mrs. Favor one evening recently.

Mrs. Patrick Shea is now able to walk without her crutch. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Call and Pauline Shea, her daughters, brought Mrs. Shea home from Connecticut.

The only available road to the lake has been closed to residents of this town who wish to fish and swim. It seems too bad as the children love the water and now that pleasure is denied them.

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Wm. McN. Kittredge, Pastor
Thursday, August 6—At 7:30 in the Vestry, the Mission Circle and Unity Guild will sponsor a play. An offering will be taken.

Sunday, August 9—Morning Worship at 10:30 with sermon by the Pastor, on "The Salt of the Earth." The Church-School meets at 11:45. No evening service.

Antrim Center Congregational Church

Service of Worship Sunday morning at 9:45

Bennington Congregational Church

George H. Driver, Pastor
Bennington, N. H.

Sunday August 9—11:00 A. M., Morning worship. Sermon: "Choice," by the pastor.

Of the prayers being used by the pastor in Sunday worship, from the "Prayers in Wartime," as prepared by William T. Ellis and appearing in the July number of "Church Management" the following is one, offered here as others may care to share in its expression of what we desire at this time of crisis: "Prayer for a Lasting peace: We pause at the high tide of a busy day to lift our hearts to Thee, O God, our Maker, Preserver and Friend. We worship Thee and adore Thee. We look to Thee for all that we desire from this war—the safety of our men in service, victory over the enemy, spiritual illumination for ourselves and our nation, and a peace that will endure forever, because founded on the will of God. We make war that peace may be: a beautiful peace, crowned with righteousness and liberty and goodwill, and all the other qualities of Him "who is our peace." Let no mean or sordid or vengeful aims creep into our hearts; we would be satisfied with nothing less than the peace that makes men free and friendly and faithful in a new world ruled by Thy will. Be pleased to grant our petitions, in the name of Him who died to set men free. Amen."

Mrs. Charles Fulshaw of New York has returned home, having spent some time with her sister, Mrs. Mary K. Wilson.

Mrs. George McGrath is still away in Connecticut and her boys are visiting relatives: Francis is in East Jaffrey and Dennis is in Peterboro.

The Misses Barbara and Shirley Griswold spent a few days with their brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Griswold of Antrim, last week.

Miss Dorothy Scott of Ardmore, Pa., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Favor this week and Earl Scott of Concord visited Mrs. Favor one evening recently.

Named After Apostles

Many years ago each of the 12 trees standing in a Plymouth, N. C., churchyard was named after one of the 12 Apostles. Eleven are in good condition, but several years ago the tree called "Judas" was struck by lightning.
