Former Antrim Man Mayor-Elect Of New Bedford

Arthur N. Harriman, 62-year-old printing salesman who had tried seven times unsuccessfully to be elected mayor of New Bedford, Mass., won that office this week.

By unofficial count, Harriman received 18,073 votes and Mayor Matthew A. Glynn, seeking reelection, 15,035.

Mayor elect Harriman was born in Boston, but attended school and worked at the printing trade in Antrim in his early life. He also worked at the trade in Framingham some 35 years ago, where we knew him as a conscientious worker and a leader in labor.

His campaign was mainly by small groups of many of one and two from friends.

THE END OF THE BEGINNING

By Ruth Taylor

Watch out! Don't slacken! Don't let the dazzling rainbow of victories won blind us to the fact that the storm is not yet over, that the clouds are still dark above us. The end is not yet.

Winston Churchill warned us of that when he said this was the end of the beginning—not the beginning of the end. And we must take heed.

It is the end of the beginning—of the period of indecision, of the hour in which we woke from dreams of peace to the reality of war, of the days and nights in which we had to reorganize not only our lives but our manner of thought, to reorient ourselves to a world ruled by the exigencies of war.

But the end is not yet. We cannot win the war by over-confidence; we cannot assume the game is over when the play begins to run our way. The decision will come at the end of the game when the last play has been made and the last battle fought. We cannot leave the field until the final second of the game.

We want to win this war that we may return to what we had. We do not want anything from any other nation. We want only for other peoples that freedom which we claim for ourselves—the freedom of speech, expression and religion, the freedom from want and fear.

We cannot win this war by wishing. We have to win it by work. The quickest way to win the war is the best way to win it, and this means discarding everything that won't help in the all-out effort. To win the war we must have neither idle hours nor idle dollars. But money is not enough. Production is not enough. Men are not enough. We must add to these that extra effort, that all essential will to win. We must accept restrictions—willingly. We must do all we can—gladly.

We must not allow ourselves to be caught by Axis inspired propaganda. We must not be spreaders of rumor. We must not be disseminators of hatred toward any of our own people, regardless of class, race, creed or color. We must not be selfish hoarders. Conversely, we must work, we must sacrifice, we must fight for the common good. And we must have faith in the ultimate victory, while putting forth all our strength to win.

The beginning is ended. Now the road lies ahead. It will be rough in many places—it will go through valleys of depression, skirt dangerous precipices, descend perhaps into quagmires of temporary defeat—but at the end it will lead, we are confident, to victory and to ultimate peace for all the peoples of all the earth.

Weekly Letter by George Proctor Fish and Game Conservation Officer

Last Friday was the closing date on all waterfowl in this part of the state. This is the northern zone. It was a big season and everyone seemed to have got their fill of ducks and geese. The law is still off in the southern zones. Never have we had such a good season as the past one. More ducks than ever before.

You doggy fellows want to read the December number of N. H. Health News. There is an article on page two entitled Dog Bites and Rabies by Dr. Colby. Health News by Dr. Howard.

Now is the time to start your winter wild bird feeding. They are hungry.

The domestic rabbit is on the (INS) according to Ralph R. Trowbridge of Reeds Ferry. Owing to the meat shortage the general public is turning to domestic rabbit. Even the pelts have value. Over in the war countries they are using rabbit meat by the ton. Had a letter from my oldest daughter the other day from Calif., and they are being faced with the prospect of eating horsemeat within a few weeks time.

F. E. Homies of Dundee, Ill., sends me a copy of the State of Illinois Digest Game and Fish Code by the Illinois Dept. of Conservation. Their licenses are much higher than those in N. H. state. It's a very interesting booklet.

There are 42 licensed fur buyers in the state. If interested can give you the address of the ones nearest to you.

Russell E. White, scoutmaster in Rindge, writes to tell me that his troop No. 308 want to get all the deer hides they can for the benefit of the troop. They will go a reasonable distance and skin the deer for you for the hide.

Who has got collies, English or Irish setter and Boston Terrier puppies to sell. Want them before Christmas.

We are now on the second week of the deer season. Many deer have and permanent manner. That to other years. The conditions are all in favor of the deer. As one hunter expressed it. If you get a deer this year it's all bull luck. The woods are very noisy with a heavy crust. Two women in my district have got nice deer, Mrs. Etta Trow of Perham Corner, Lyndeboro and Mrs. William Webb of Wilton Center. A fall of nice light snow would be a great help to the hunters. We have still a few more days to go. The limit is sunset the night of Dec. 15th.

Yes, you can keep your deer till Dec. 25th. After that you must get a special permit from the Director to keep it. Be sure your deer is tagged and be sure to send in your deer coupon to the State Dept. within ten days of the kill.

You can still hunt hares and rabbits till Feb. 1st and Fox till March 1st.

Some of the deer hunters are all upset over the fact that some of the hare hunters persist in hunting their dogs in the woods and driving away the deer. In most states it's closed season on dogs in the woods during the deer season. We know that hunters have told us that in the north country a dog's life is not worth a nickel during the deer season. Hunters are going to see if they can't get a similar law in the state at the January Session of the Legislature.

Last Saturday we saw hundreds of blue jays. Wonder if they fear a hard winter and are going south. Usually they stay here all winter. I had plenty of them in my feeding stations last winter.

Dr. Hutchinson, the oldest doctor in the U. S. A. to be practicing at the age of 94 has gone to his reward. He was an authority on bird life and was a 100% outdoor man. He loved to fish, hunt and was an expert trapper. He will be greatly missed in his home town, Milford.

A loaded gun in a car will call for a fine and loss of your license to hunt and fish. Don't say we did not warn you. A loaded gun is a gun with a shell in the barrel or in the magazine.

As far as we can learn all Fish and Game Banquets are out for the duration. That's as it should be.

Two old land marks have gone never to reappear. The R. R. station at Fratt's in Mason and the one at South Lyndeboro. More to follow.

Here is a letter from a man complaining that he can't get dog food for his kennel. The food he has been buying has gone up double in price. Take a tip from me and buy some Granite State dog food made right in the Monadnock Region and the price is right. The Hopkins Grist mill have it for sale. I use it and know it's good. O yes, Greenfield, N. H., is the place.

Sunday was a great day for young America. Every pond and river where ice could form was filled with skaters. But take a tip from me, keep off the ice with your car. It's not thick enough for that yet.

A Gas station manager told me the other day that after Jan. 1 no more Gas courtesy cards.

The deer season brings out the guns and what guns. One man had an old Springfield and he said it was used in the Civil war and I believe him. Last year he got a deer with it. More shotguns in the woods than ever before, the reason being they can't get shells for their rifles.

Here is a tip worth knowing. Don't use modern shells in an old gun. That is if you don't want a date with an undertaker. Even the people who make shells are sending out this warning.

If you want to see tires, tires and more tires just visit any American Express office. They sure did shell them out when Uncle Sam called for them. The local man was swamped one day.

In answer to A.B.R. will say that the State Dept. do issue free licenses to fish to a blind man. And when

SALVATION ARMY NEWS

Every year brings its sorrows and troubles and every year brings its Christmas. Sometimes it comes to a world of peace and often comes to a world of dissension and trouble. Yet, in all these varying fortunes through the centuries, it has always brought the same blessing to the world.

In the beginning just a handful of men had a great deal to do with perpetuating this day and now in nearly every town and city you see the handful of Salvation Army Lassies doing their part to keep this spirit alive.

This year "something new has been added" to The Salvation Army Christmas program. In addition to the hundreds of Christmas baskets that will be distributed to families, there is to be a Christmas "Sunshine Basket" to inmates in Hospitals, Sanitariums, Jails, County Farms, Old Ladies' Homes, Old Men's Homes, Veteran Hospitals, Nurseries and other types of "Shut Ins."

These people do not need turkey and the fixin's; they are not lacking in groceries; they do need thoughtful remembrance, a kindly visit and an encouraging word. The Christmas "Sunshine Basket" has been constructed to hold a few dainty things and with these will come the personal good wishes of The Salvation Army Lassies.

Officials of The Salvation Army, discussing the new basket, were convinced that the smaller gift would be welcomed by the people in these Institutions.

Prosperity does not postpone old age, accidents or sickness. Consequently, whatever decrease appears in the family basket field will be made up to those who for years have been overlooked.

Most of these people are simple, plain and peace loving, and have had nothing to do with the great catastrophe that has happened and is now going on in the world, and these will be remembered with the "Sunshine Basket."

Over 150 rural and urban communities in New England will be providing this additional service and it is estimated that about 30,000 Christmas and Sunshine baskets will be distributed.

For sixty years Salvation Army Lassies have carried out this traditional charity and again they will be found in scores of New England towns this Christmas time, seeking those that need to be remembered.

In addition to the two major activities of the family and sunshine baskets, some communities are providing money belts, knitted serviceable garments, Christmas boxes and literature, and mobile canteens will carry refreshments to servicemen on night and day guard duty.

Bennington Marks 100 Years As A Township

The 100th anniversary of the incorporation of this town was observed on Tuesday night.

There was a special public meeting at Grange Hall under direction of the Grange. The program included an address on the industries of the town, its chief business, by Judge Henry W. Wilson, who at 80, is the oldest man in town. A history of the schools and town was read by Mrs. J. P. Weston; a history of the J. E. P. Dodge Library by J. P. Weston, and a history of the Congregational Church, which observed its 100th anniversary two years ago.

Mrs. George Haslam, who has been at Dr. Haslam's for several months, has gone to Philadelphia to spend the winter with another son.

Ralph George and Richard White went Wednesday morning to Fort Devens and word has been received that they were leaving Saturday for an unknown destination.

The American Legion is endeavoring to keep all the Service men from town in touch with each other, through a letter which they are sending to each soldier, wherever he may be, with whatever news may be known about every other soldier. It is hoped they will each send a reply to the Legion and another news letter will be compiled. It's a fine idea and quite possibly the folks back home might add to its interest by supplying items of interest about their men. Donald Madden, vice commander of William M. Myers Post, is looking after the correspondence for the Legion.

Manpower Commission Rules Draft As FDR Halts All Service Enlistments; Wickard to Direct U. S. Food Program; New Front Threatens the Axis in Libya

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Above map shows the possible invasion of Europe by way of newly won bases in French North Africa. While the Allied drive had been stalled temporarily waiting for essential reinforcements, military men were certain that the last Axis strongholds would soon be in Allied hands.

U. S. FOOD SUPPLY: Under Control

When President Roosevelt appointed Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture, to be national food administrator, he set in motion a vast program that would eventually touch almost every pantry shelf in the United States. For Wickard was given specific control over food production, processing and distribution not only to U. S. civilians and the U. S. military but was also made responsible for such distribution to our fighting allies over the entire globe.

In the executive order creating the new food setup, the President directed Wickard to consult with Donald Nelson of the WPB and with Leon Henderson of the OPA in working out policies effecting price control and industrial use of foodstuffs. He was given direct charge of rationing scarce food items among U. S. civilians and for the allocation of food supplies between the civilian population and the military forces after consultation with military and naval heads.

Thus all government agencies charged with supplying food to civilians were placed in direct charge of a single head with the expectation that much of the confusion surrounding this problem would now disappear. This was the first time since World War I when Herbert Hoover was national food administrator that any single control had been placed on this exceedingly vital nationwide program.

Also streamlined in the same executive order was the department of agriculture, as Wickard was directed to consolidate into one division all agencies concerned with food production and into another division all those agencies concerned with food distribution.

Wickard was also made a member of the War Production board and was given direction of food imports through the Board of Economic Warfare. His new job will give him a greater voice in the allocation of farm machines, fertilizers and other farm aid which will be necessary to reach the high 1943 agricultural goals.

NO HIBERNATION: On Russian Steppes

When Russia's armies first struck back at the Germans in the opening round of the winter offensive on that front it looked as if the Nazis had decided to dig in and hibernate until spring would come and the going would be easier. But after these first thrusts by the Russians, the Hitler troops came to life and on every front "counterattacks" was the key word in even the Moscow reports of the fighting.

Despite this, the Russians said that in a single week they had destroyed 192 German planes and had succeeded in "repulsing" these strong Nazi counterattacks. The issue was far from settled.

In fact, on the first anniversary of last year's counter-offensive before Moscow, the Russians extended this year's winter campaign deep into the Caucasus. In this sector, as around Stalingrad, there was great loss of German life and the Russians claimed thousands of prisoners were taken.

ENLISTMENTS: Halted by FDR

In a move designed to tighten control over the manpower situation, President Roosevelt suspended enlistments in the army and navy, transferred selective service to the War Manpower commission and authorized priorities over civilian employment.

For the first time in the nation's history, physically qualified men are forbidden to enlist, and for the first time in history the navy and marine corps will take others than volunteers.

Meanwhile the war department ordered suspension of induction for all men 38 years of age and older. Arrangements were made to give honorable discharges to certain men in the upper age brackets who are already in service.

The presidential order expanded the powers of Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower commission so that he will have the power to determine not only who goes into the armed services but what civilian jobs the stay-at-homes can take. The office of director of selective service, held by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, will continue but Hershey is subject to McNutt's authority. All local draft boards were directed to continue functioning as in the past, except that future orders will come from the War Manpower commission.

TUNISIA: 'Holding Action'

Resistance had stiffened in northern Tunisia. The stalled British First army, with its American components, was fighting a bitter holding action in the face of daring German dive-bombing and tank attacks in the mountains while waiting for important re-inforcements with which to resume the offensive.

A new threat to the Axis in Libya was shaping up in the direction of the Sahara desert, more than 800 miles south of Tunis. The Morocco radio, broadcasting a report from the headquarters of French Gen. Henri Giraud said native companies had occupied heights on the Algeria-Tripolitania frontier east of Djanet. The latter place is in the southeastern corner of Algeria, about 30 miles from the Libyan border.

It is on the flank of a possible route of invasion by Fighting French forces who could advance from Fort Lamy in French Equatorial Africa through southern Libya.

An Allied communiqué said there was no change in the situation at the front, but that heavy aerial assaults were continuing on the docks and airfields at Bizerte and Tunis.

Naples Blasted

The Naples harbor, a major supply depot for Axis forces defending Bizerte, Tunis and Tripoli, felt the great weight of war when American four-engine Consolidated bombers hurled 100,000 pounds of explosives at Italian battleships, cruisers, destroyers and supply dumps. Reports from Allied headquarters in North Africa said that "it will take the Italians a long time to repair the damage done to Naples harbor." Huge fires were raging when the bombers, which had met no enemy planes, returned to their base.

Gibraltar, West Gate of Mediterranean, Helping U. S. in North African Invasion

Gun Bristled Port, Fort Has Been Hit Often From Air

Under the friendly protection of Gibraltar's guns on land, at sea and in the air, ships bearing American troops, tanks, aircraft and ammunition steamed through the historic corridor to invade the north coast of French Africa at the same time Yanks were landing on the African northwest coast.

Once again, the Strait of Gibraltar, one of the world's busiest bottlenecks, became a gateway to war. Now the western Mediterranean had joined the war-strafed eastern Mediterranean to make that sea one great battle arena.

Time and time again Axis air power had attacked Gibraltar. But to no avail. The "Rock" stood the air harassment. It can, and will stand further and greater attacks.

The Strait of Gibraltar is only nine miles wide. Here Europe and Africa come nearer meeting than at any other place. Britain's Rock of Gibraltar stronghold on the north side of the strait is not situated as is often supposed, at the narrowest stretch of the strait. It is more than 13 miles from the nearest point on the opposite coast.

Roughly three miles long and less than a mile wide, Gibraltar is surrounded on all but one side by Span-

A market scene in the Moorish city of Tangier which sweeps up the slopes of the southern or African side of the Strait of Gibraltar. Tangier is in the International Zone, a nick out of the Spanish Morocco which caps Africa's northwestern shoulder. These are rural folk who stream into Tangier on market days. Their stock in trade is pottery.

his observations to British soldiers who are everywhere, British "bobbies" who appear as if they had just emerged from a London police station, British flags that top the masts of municipal and government buildings, and British warships and commercial vessels that outnumber all others anchored in the harbor. But a peacetime sidewalk study reveals a strange mixture. In a short stroll you see Scotchmen in presents another picture—a Moorish picture that could be far removed from Gibraltar. From the harbor it resembles a white sheet spread from the seashore up the African slopes. Its spotless white walls, glistening in the sunlight, suggest that "clean up-paint up week" is perpetually observed there. Once inside the city walls the traveler is bewildered by the maze of lanes which the Tangierians call ish territory. In the north it is joined to Spain proper by a low, sandy isthmus. To the south its nearly 1,400-foot-high bulk looks across the strait toward its mountain mate in Africa soaring above the Spanish Moroccan port of Ceuta. Together the towering rocks were known to the ancients as the "Pillars of Hercules." One legend has it that they were united in a single mountain range until Hercules broke it apart in order to open a way between the Mediterranean and the Atlantic.

An air view of the Rock of Gibraltar. It rises in almost sheer cliffs out of the Mediterranean on the left, but sweeps more gently toward the Bay of Algeiras on the right where the ship basins are shown. The city of Gibraltar rises from the harbor in the center of the photograph. The Rock bristles with guns set in man-made tunnels and recesses.

Craglike Cliffs on East Side. On the eastern side looking toward the open Mediterranean where the craglike cliffs make an almost sheer drop into the sea, no direct attack on Gibraltar has ever been possible. On the western side, however, is the city of Gibraltar (normally 20,000 population) overlooking the British naval base with its man-made harbor through which most of the citadel's food and other supplies must come.

While the Rock is known to every school child as a symbol of strength, the city is known to few. It is a British city if the traveler confines kills brush past turbaned Moors from the other side of the strait; and Cadiz mingle with sturdy Spaniards from Madrid, Malaga, Greeks; brown-skinned Hindus and Egyptians jostle Levantine Jews; and dusky Senegal Negroes rub elbows with Chinese from Canton.

The city spreads up the side of the Rock from the shore of the broad Algeiras bay, to a height of 250 feet. Long flights of steps lead to the upper portion of the town, making wheeled traffic impossible on many streets.

Rain Water for Reservoirs. Above, the face of the Rock has frequently undergone "treatment,"

A visit to the market place is well worth a trip to Tangier. There city folk mingle with the rural folk. Men, women and children, camels, horses, donkeys, dogs and fowls, all are huddled together in the dust amid piles of vegetables, fruit, nuts, candies, kitchen utensils and homemade shoes.

Around the edge of the market place letter writers and fortune tellers ply their professions; black, portly Sudanese Negroes in tatters dance to the tune of metal cymbals and discs dangling about their bodies, and the fire eater and snake charmer fascinate throngs with their clever tricks.

Modern improvements have come to Tangier in a somewhat small way. The city has not, and for a long time will not, outgrow the East's special taxi—the single passenger donkey—because of the narrow streets; telephones are readily available and there is a modern hospital, built by the French.

The Difference

Between the cost of Good and Cheap Printing

It is so slight that he who is shopping from printer to printer to secure his printing at a few cents less than what it is really worth hardly ever makes day laborer wages at this unpleasant task.

HIGHLIGHTS in the week's news

ICE CREAM: User orders of the War Production board, the manufacture of ice cream has been curtailed about 20 per cent during December and January. The move was taken to provide more butter.

WAGER: An improved Allied position has brought a betting increase in London as to the war's duration, with some brokers wagering even money it would end by June, 1943.

TRANSPORTATION: A Swedish dispatch reports the Germans have directed that all freight cars in Norway be shipped to Germany, presumably because of a severe shortage of rolling stock in the region.

SUBMARINE: Germany has developed a submarine with surface speed great enough to overtake all but extremely fast merchant vessels, it is reported.

The Old 'Pincer Play' In Action Once Again

Having passed through Gibraltar, the Yanks landed in Algeria and headed east toward Tunisia, Libya. The British tanks shown are heading west through Libya to put the pressure on the Axis from the east side, while the Yanks, assisted by the French, will put the force on from the west side.

Your local dealer is featuring gift-wrapped cartons of Camels, and Camels in special packages of four "flat fifties." (Both contain 200 cigarettes.) Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS

W.N.U. RELEASE

"Well, so we have a countess in the family," Mrs. Marshbanks said grimly.

"Pitiful little fool!" Fran said in a whisper. "Of course he's a complete rotter. Jud would have killed him. Old lady know?" she asked, with a jerk of her head in the direction of Mrs. Marshbanks' room.

"Amy just told her."

"I imagine so. I believe she said that there was a curse on the family."

"I believe there is!" Fran said gloomily, staring into space. "They'll never find out who murdered Jud. But," she added, "you can be pretty sure that the police are keeping an eye on that precious Gogo."

"Gogo had a motive," Cherry said. "Not only was the judge violently opposed to Amy's marrying him, but what he was discussing that very night with her and with his mother and with me was—you knew something about that, Fran?"

"I couldn't be in this house without knowing something about it. It was some claim that your aunt made—something she said about Fred Marshbanks' will? Of course, that was all long before I came into the family, but Jud did tell me—did tell me about his brother Fred, and that—you don't mind my mentioning it?"

"That Fred Marshbanks was my father? Oh, no. I seem to have known that for a long, long time. But there was more to it than that. There was a will, drawn up by Judge Thomas Comstock. Nobody knew what was in that. But Mrs. Marshbanks burned it. She wouldn't risk Amy's being hurt or any of her money taken away."

"So," Fran said musingly, "Amy and Gogo had their motives for getting rid of Jud, and certainly old Mrs. Marshbanks had. If you believe what some old dodo of an English judge once said, I had. He said that between married couples there might always be motive. I don't see that you had."

There was a pause, then Fran said suddenly, "Kelly might have had a motive."

"Kelly?" Cherry echoed, her voice suddenly failing.

"Well, if you're searching for motives. And that wasn't quite what I meant anyway," Fran said. "What I meant was that Kelly didn't have an alibi."

"But, Fran—you certainly don't think—you certainly can't think that Kelly..."

"No, I don't," Fran interrupted promptly. "The police didn't hold him; just took his statement and let it go at that. You can tell by the way he acts that Kelly doesn't know anything about it. And at the same time—that's what's bothering me," she added.

"What's bothering you?" Cherry asked apprehensively.

"Oh, it's making me sick! I don't know whether to tell you or not."

"Tell me what?" Cherry managed to ask, with a sinking heart.

"You might as well know. After you went out this morning the man named Mullins asked me to step into the library. He had a flat little packet of letters in his hand; he asked me if I recognized them. I said yes, certainly. They were the letters Kelly Coates wrote me last year. About a dozen of them. Love letters."

Cherry felt faint.

"How'd they get them?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," Fran said. "I hid them two weeks ago, the day after Jud was killed. I slipped them into the lining of my dressing case. It had come loose, and that morning I complained to Molly about it, and while she was right here in the room I pasted it with glue."

"What sort of letters are they?" Cherry asked, with the world gone suddenly black.

"Love letters. Letters that will look bad if they're given to the newspapers, I can tell you that. What he and I could do if we were free, frantic sort of letters. He said—Mullins said—that they were very incriminating."

Cherry went in and shut the window, and coming back, picked up the negligee that had fallen and restored it to its hanger. She hated the sight of it; that was what Fran had worn on the night of the tragedy; she had had on this negligee as she ran downstairs ahead of them all.

Cherry stopped short, stood with a suddenly arrested breath, with icy fear touching her spine. The negligee was slightly rumpled in one of its folds. It had been squeezed together, loosened again. It had wiped something oily and dark, something metallic, something thick and liquid that was stained with black.

A trifling discoloration, the size of a woman's finger possibly. Not noticeable at all, unless one happened to look straight at it as Cherry was looking now. A crumpled tiny circle, as if the cloth had been forced into a small tube, a tube as small as a pistol barrel, a finger-sized smudge that might have been made by the oil from that barrel, by the blackness of gunpowder.

When Cherry went downstairs old Mrs. Marshbanks had had breakfast and was sitting by the fire reading the papers that announced the marriage of Amy Marshbanks to Count Constantino the day before. Greg was reading the sports news.

"Well, so we have a countess in the family," Mrs. Marshbanks said grimly.

"She had said she would," Cherry said. "And I suppose that under the circumstances she wouldn't have wanted a big wedding."

"He wouldn't have wanted a big wedding," the old woman said darkly; "the less publicity the better for him!"

"He may really be in love with Amy," Cherry offered, feeling that now the mischief was done there was no particular object in maligning him.

"It'll cost Amy just about a hundred grand," said Greg, from behind the paper. "Fran says he's asked her for money already."

"No, he didn't ask her, really; she made him take it. She told me so. She had a balance at the bank, and she split it with him."

"The most generous little heart in the world," mourned Amy's grandmother.

Unbelievable as it might appear, Cherry and old Mrs. Marshbanks were amicably conversing.

Only yesterday Cherry had learned of the existence of those love letters from Kelly to Fran. Cherry was heart-sick. He had told her that he loved her, but only a few months ago he had loved Fran, too; how could matters ever be straightened out now, so that her trust in him could be restored?

Yesterday's second shock had been the discovery that the gown Fran had been wearing upon the fatal night of the murder had been stained with unmistakable marks of gunpowder and gun oil. Fran must have been living in terror of its discovery.

Lying awake in the night, Cherry had seen that fatal little stain in her mind's eyes, had remembered detail by detail the horrors of that dark night when the judge's shout had rung through the house.

Had Fran had on that negligee then? Cherry asked herself. Yes, she thought she had. Certainly she had not had it on a short while afterward, when the police arrived.

This morning Fran came downstairs while Cherry was finishing her breakfast. Like the rest of the household Fran was showing the strain. She sat down and looked at her grapefruit, pushed it restfully away. "Those letters worry me," she said.

"What letters?" asked Mrs. Marshbanks, eyeing the younger woman over her glasses.

"Some letters Kelly Coates wrote me—silly, perfectly harmless letters, but wait until you see what the papers make of them!" Fran answered, impatiently.

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

BLANKETS are worth their weight in uniforms, so let's protect them from unnecessary wear and from extra cleanings by covering the upper edges. A strip of muslin would do but why not use a pretty material? They will cost no more when made of attractive material, and a set of matching pillow cases may be made to go with each blanket protector.

Try to find a flower print with pastel tones and then bind the protector in bias tape that will repeat one of the flower tones. For blankets 72 inches wide, two yards of 36-inch material will make two protectors or one, plus trimming bands for a pair of pillow cases and a sheet. Five yards of bias tape will be needed to bind the edges of each protector. The sketch shows how material is basted in place with slip-stitching through the bindings. In this way they are easily removed for washing.

PROCTOR'S COLUMN

you tell me a blind man can't fish you would be surprised. His fingers have a delicate touch and he knows when he has a bite. One year I was on a big lake up in the central part of the state and we ran across four men in a boat and three of them were blind and they had a nice string of fish.

A story got around that the deer season this year would be the whole month, but that's not so. It's to be the same as last year, 15 days.

Here we have it again "Can Willie who is 14 go hunting with his brother 17 who has a license to hunt?" Sorry, but Willie will have to pick on some one who is over 21 and has a license. That's the law. See page 57 red law book.

Remember that all licenses and permits of all kinds expire Dec. 31. Don't get caught. Fur buyers' price lists at hand look much better in prices.

There may be an open season on Beaver in February or March if the coming legislature see fit to have one to stop the damage done by flooding roads. Bills will be introduced but how far they get remains to be seen.

Believe it or not but Sunday I found a garage man out hunting and he was out of gas on a back road. We helped him out. O, no we would not tell the name as cigars are high now.

In answer to a letter from R. I. M. Yes, a trapper must visit his traps every calendar day and it must be in daylight.

This of course is the trapping season and everyone that misses a cat now blames it onto the trapper. Let me tell you that the red fox is getting more cats than the trapper. A man from one of my towns has lost six half grown kittens and he knows that a fox gets them all as he saw one of them go that way.

Sure there is a $50 fine if you dig out or smoke out a den or burrow of any wild fur bearer. Also another man asks how to mark a trap. The law says that a trap shall be marked, stamped or engraved the name of the trapper in a legible means we are not expected to put our glasses on to read the name. It must be plain.

There is also a $50 fine for the use of snares, poison, chemicals, explosives of any kind.

Raccoon are now protected as the season closed Dec. 1. The open season on otter, mink, skunk, and muskrat to Feb. 1 and fox to March 1.

F. H. Bulfinch of the Shriners of Manchester was over one day and I gave him 200 pounds of tinfoil for the crippled children. This makes almost a ton this year I have given to him.

A Nashua man wants to know what about pigeons. Homing pigeons are protected. $50 fine. Common pigeons are not protected. A homing has a leg band.

Do you know of any one who would be interested in buying some young raccoon born last June and July, the price is right.

Stephen Sherman and his son, age 14, both got a nice deer Sunday on Pinnacle Mountain. This is the first experience of the younger Sherman.

It was Hancock day the other day and I got about 30 pounds of tinfoil in that town. C. A. Upton, Charles Sheldon, Wayne L. Fisher and Mrs. Todd. Thanks for same.

Never in all my driving the back roads have I found them in such bad shape as now. Slippery with or without chains. But I could go where some of the other fellows could not. Some of the best hunting grounds for deer the hunter had to park his car and walk four miles and that's no joke.

More people have lost their licenses this year than ever before. If you pinch that little catch with a pair of pliers you won't lose the license. Get the number of your old license from the Agent and send to the Concord office for a duplicate which costs you 60 cents.

That heavy wind of last week did a great deal of damage to shade trees and to old glory on many a flag pole.

As usual A. A. Doherty of the home town has a display of winter greens that's worth a five gallon of gas trip to see. It's better than ever and that's saying something. It's right on route 101 in the West village. Mr. and Mrs. are experts and if you doubt my word come over and see for yourself.

There is a great demand for minnow shiners for ice fishing. If you know of any one having a supply to sell get in touch with me as I am having calls every day for them. Most of the old dealers have gone out for the duration.

In my travels last week I noticed that most of the boat owners took my advice and pulled them out of the water before the freeze came. Good dope.

The other day I was parked in front of a store in one of my towns when a man came out and this is what he said. "For a Game Warden I should think you would have a he man's dog with you instead of that little thing." "Mike," the little Peke was on the seat. Well I told him if you take that rifle off the back seat you can have it. Did he get the rifle? I will say not. Because he is small it does not mean little. Little but oh my.

Had a letter from the boy down in Sebring, Fla., the other day. It was that bitter cold day here and there said the water was fine down here and peeled right down to business. It was hotter that day because he caught (K.P.)

Funny how things work out. Lt. Philip Cummings of Lyndeboro ran across my boy, they both being in the same camp and then Kenneth Holt of Lyndeboro is stationed only a few miles away. The three men are to get together soon for a talk over.

Lots of burning the past week. Farmers are taking advantage of the snow to burn brush.

James Sheldon the well known deer hunter said that before the open season he saw deer every day and they never seemed so tame as this year. Jim always gets his deer. He says that the hunting conditions are the worst he has seen for a long time.

It won't be quite the same this year without a community tree and the brilliant street decorations but cheer up we will make up for it in December 1943.

A well known man high up in Govt. matters told me the other day that Wall street, N. Y., was betting even money that the war would be over in May 1943. I hope they are right.

A woman in one of my towns had a canary given to her for a birthday present. Well cats and canaries don't usually agree and it was the same in this case. To make a long story brief I had eight cats brought to me for the gas box. She has less canary and cats too. Never again cats for her.

Just a few don'ts. Don't forget to walk facing traffic. Don't forget to write to that boy in the service and don't drive over 35 miles an hour. Save gas and tires.

BENNINGTON

Next Sunday there will be a special Christmas anthem as part of the Sunday morning service of the Congregational church, where Rev. George Hibbert Driver is the pastor.

The desire to have the observance of the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Bennington take place on the actual Centennial date, Dec. 15, was the reason for changing the special public meeting to Tuesday instead of later in the spring.

Mrs. Ella F. Perry of Hancock spent a day with her granddaughter, Mrs. George McGrath here. Mrs. McGrath's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Martha Allen of Contoocook, is with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry in Peterboro for the winter. Mrs. Allen has been in Bennington several winters, when Mr. and Mrs. Perry resided here.

AMOSKEAG SAVINGS BANK

SERVICE — — — STRENGTH

A LOYAL FRIEND OF THE PUBLIC SINCE 1852

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES

WAR BONDS AND STAMPS MAKE GOOD XMAS GIFTS

IN MUSIC, ART, SCIENCE and in BANKING, that which is GOOD ENDURES.

This is indeed a truism when mention is made of the Amoskeag Savings Bank located at 875 Elm St., Manchester, for we would have to turn the pages of time back to the year of 1852 which marked the beginning of this institution which has played an honorable part in the up-building of this section of the state.

Intelligent, progressive banking based on experience and knowledge of sound banking principles is the record of the Amoskeag Savings Bank. It quite naturally follows that a strong institution of this character would be a good place to put your savings.

Daily this institution teaches the lesson of thrift. Consistent saving plays a larger part than large earnings in enabling you to create an estate and a competence for the twilight of life. It is the first and most important step on the road to financial independence—everyone should have a savings account.

Time has demonstrated the soundness and wisdom of the policies on which the Amoskeag Savings Bank was founded and which have continued throughout its existence. Religiously the affairs of this institution are conducted in a sane, conservative and businesslike manner.

In making this review we take pleasure in complimenting the Officers and Trustees of the Amoskeag Savings Bank and to say that the same spirit of friendly service that was a very part of their predecessors, continues in them. It has ever been fostered, and by virtue of a record of NINETEEN years of progress and efficient service, the Amoskeag Savings Bank has attained a high standing in the banking circles of these parts with pardonable pride it may well be pointed to.

Santa's Pack to Weigh Less But Toys Will Be as Numerous

News from "somewhere at the North Pole": Santa Claus' load will be definitely lighter this Christmas—but that won't mean that his pack won't be as chuck-full of toys as ever.

It's because the cars, trains, ships and other such items usually made of metal are being replaced by wood this year. With metals on priorities list, American manufacturers have displayed their ingenuity in designing new toys to replace the old, resulting in toys aplenty for all of Young America.

Already, in the toys being received for the holiday season by the toy department of one of the country's largest stores on Chicago's State street, pulse-center of the Midwest's retail trade, wooden toys to replace toys made of metal now essential in other fields predominate. Instead of the fire-engines and automobiles for runabout sports for the nation's young men, miniature M-3s and PT-4s—made entirely of wood—are being suggested for gift-seeking parents.

Every conceivable mobile unit of Uncle Sam's armed forces is being duplicated in the offerings found among the thousands of toys in this department. Junior will even be able to tour his neighborhood in a carriage mounting an anti-aircraft gun.

Typical of American ingenuity at work to find substitutes for metal parts in toys, is the wooden handle and springs which replace metal parts for little sister's doll carriage.

That America is capable of producing its own products—even to fine bisque dolls once made only abroad—is indicated in the tea sets, duplicates of adult-sized sets, being made in this country by well-known china firms.

Large-sized dolls, not held in favor for the young for the past several years, once more dot the doll collections for Christmas, with a 27-inch doll one of the prizes in the group. A trousseau for the doll, complete to tiny knitted mittens, can be assembled for sister's little chum.

Doll furniture shows the influence of better styling being stressed in homes today. Furniture for the little ones is exact duplicates of fine 18th century English pieces, and includes breakfasts, divans, commodes, and even chaise longues.

With an eye toward recurring blackout tests, one manufacturer has produced a blackout kit, with games to be played during such times. One item of the kit is a badge which glows in the dark, suggested for use while walking the family dog.

Very little men and women will play with toys that are assembled from carts attached to miniature army lorries and ambulances, while such items as "flag sticks," colored bits of wood from which flags can be assembled, teach the young to recognize their own and other countries' flags.

Likewise bowing to present conditions, the manufacturers of toys and airplanes have introduced new models in Messerschmitts, Flying Tigers and Kittyhawks, either ready-made, or ready to be assembled, and in submarines, airplane carriers and destroyers.

A Bit on the Humorous Side

Prime Condition
"You haven't looked so well for years, old man!"
"Ah, it's the exercise I get, tossing about in bed at night worrying about the business."

Curious Lad
Golfer—Dear, dear, I'm certainly not playing the game I used to play!
Caddie (disgustedly)—What game was that?

The way some secretaries type the boss' letters is a triumph of mind over matter.

Caught Him
"MacPherson's a cheat, and I'm not going to play golf with him again."
"How's that?"
"Well, how could he have lost his ball a yard from the green when it was in my pocket?"

In Duplicate
Barber—Well, my little man, how do you wish to have your hair cut?

Little Man—I'd like it cut just like my daddy's, and please don't forget to leave that little round hole on the top where his head comes through.

Asking for Trouble
The door of the ladies' hairdressing shop opened and in came a meek-looking little man.
One of the assistants approached him.
"What can I have the pleasure—" she cooed.
"Er—could you spare me a blonde hair for my shoulder?" he stammered.
"I want to make my wife jealous."

Fell for Her
"Fortune knocks at least once at every man's door."
"That may be. But it was her daughter, Miss Fortune, who called on me."

Orson Welles Introduces Many of Him to a Few

Orson Welles, of "Citizen Kane" fame, once gave a small town lecture. There were but few listeners and no chairman present. So he up and introduced himself in the following fashion:

"I am a director of plays," he said. "I am a producer of plays. I am an actor on the legitimate stage. I am a writer of motion pictures. I am a producer of motion pictures. I write, direct, and act for the radio. I am a magician. I also paint and sketch. I am a publisher. I am a violinist and a pianist. Isn't it a shame that there are so many of me and so few of you?"

Our Telephones

In this country today, the 25 associated Bell telephone companies serve 7,128 communities having 18,841,000 telephones, while 6,350 independent companies serve 12,072 communities having 4,600,000 telephones, reports Collier's. In addition, there are more than 60,000 connecting rural lines owned by groups of farmers.

Uncle Phil Says:

We Offer the 23rd Psalm

Our language, used by an artist, can produce something as grand as anything heard at a symphony concert. An example: Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Well-bred people are a delight, and often an object of envy.

We delight to indulgently smile over the peculiarities of the friends we love.

The only fun worth having is the kind that is still funny when you get up the next morning.

It's So Exciting, Too!

Since millions enjoy headlines more than any other part of the newspaper, why not try one that is mostly headlines?

It is often easier for a woman to hold a strong man than her own tongue.

Beauty is only skin deep, and often the look of wisdom, alas.

Usually a narrow-minded man doesn't care if he is, and you can't shame him in that.

Proper Care of Greenery Today Insures Future Yule Decorations

Many homes throughout the nation keep their Christmas greens until 12th Night, January the sixth. But most people take out the green, including the Christmas decoration, the day after New Year's day.

It has been asked by some, though, that why is it such beautiful decorations of green should be thrown out when they are suitable for the whole month of January. For instance, the bittersweet—bare branches terminating with terminal points of bright orange-reddish hued semi-opened buds—are pretty, and attractive enough to keep for a month or two before a window. There their picturesque outline is seen against the light.

There is the Douglas fir, with its cones hanging from the evergreen tips, and which is always an indoor winter decoration. Likewise, ivy, so common we think little of it, has an unsurpassable decorative effect.

Another suggestion for wintertime indoor decoration with green is to use a silver or pewter bowl in which to arrange holly berry clusters that have been shorn of their leaves.

With a little ingenuity, homes in the wintertime, when there is a scarcity of greens for decoration, can be given a happy touch of color throughout the year. Especially in the early months of the year when the color of Christmas has gone, and the delicate touch of nature in spring has not yet arrived.

Search for Star
Last Christmas eve, as shepherds did nearly 2,000 years ago, wise men, schooled in augury, searched the skies for a sign. But the modern magi searched not for the bright star that heralded peace on earth, good will to men. They not only looked but listened, with ears alertly tuned. For a gleam against the zenith and the zoom of distant motors might herald the vanguard of winged hordes of death.

Pre-Communist Russia Visited on Christmas By Evil Old Woman

An evil but penitent old woman brought Christmas presents to children in pre-Communist Russia. According to an old Russian legend Baboushka misdirected the Wise Men when they asked her the way to Bethlehem. She even refused to shelter the Holy Family on its flight into Egypt.

Baboushka later realized that she had done wrong and left her home to find the Babe of Bethlehem. Ever since that day she journeys throughout Russia every Christmas searching for the infant Jesus.

At every house she knocks with her staff, then enters to study the face of each child as it lies sleeping peacefully. Disappointed, Baboushka slips a toy under the pillow, then hastens away.

Christmas Special—On Time

This Christmas Special is "Luella," an old World War I donkey engine and caboose used as a shuttle for men and munitions between camp and the firing ranges at Fort Dix, N. J. Luella, like the Old Gray Mare, ain't what she used to be, but she has more than her share of memories.

Indians Brewed Drink From Southern Holly

Making Christmas decorations is only one of several roles played by the familiar southern holly.

Long before the plant was used by white settlers, Indians of North Carolina brewed the "yaupon" as it was called, to make a drink. They drank this before going into battle and also at some tribal feasts. It was a laxative for certain physical ailments.

YES—It's true! If your present tires cannot be recapped, you are eligible to apply for a certificate to buy the new Firestone War Tire no matter whether you hold an "A," "B" or "C" gasoline ration book.

The new Firestone War Tire is now on sale at Firestone Dealers and Firestone Stores. Its construction has been tested and proved by more than two years of service. Naturally, you'd expect Firestone to build the best War Tire that can be built, because Firestone has always been a pioneer in developing new processes and creating new products made from rubber. And with its unequalled background of experience in building tires that successfully withstand the most gruelling tests of durability and safety, it is not surprising that Firestone is building a War Tire with such exclusive features as:

Safty-Lock, Gum-Dipped Cord Body—same construction that has made Firestone Tires so strong, so safe, so durable on the road as well as on the Speedway. The body of the new Firestone War Tire is built to outwear several treads and can be recapped for thousands of miles of extra service.

Firestone Non-Skid Tread—famous for performance and protection against skidding.

Vitamic Rubber—made by adding a new wear-resisting rubber vitamin, called "Vitalin."

If your present tires can be recapped—be sure to have them recapped by the Firestone Factory Controlled Method. Firestone has the largest system of recapping shops in America, strategically located to give you better service. This nation-wide system is strictly supervised and uniform in workmanship. For longer mileage, bring your tires to us for recapping.

COME IN AND SEE IT! The new Firestone War Tire is now ready for the car owners of America. Your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Store will be glad to help you make out an application for a tire rationing certificate.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Do not use a wet or damp cloth for taking overglass dishes from a hot oven.

When laying down new linoleum, allow it time to flatten out before tacking it down.

Try rolling sausages in coarse oatmeal before frying or grilling. It prevents them breaking and they will taste extra good.

A few drops of ammonia will help wonderfully in the dish water if the dishes are unusually greasy.

A teaspoon of vinegar in starch will prevent the iron from sticking on the garments.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Wife May Be Cause of Tightwad Husband

Reel Syndicate—WNU Features.

My husband grudges me spending money, criticizes my buying of clothes, and makes terrible scenes at the first of every month when the bills come in.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

KATHRYN says she has a tightwad husband. She sends me seven scribbled pages on heavily monogrammed paper, to explain to me exactly how penurious Geoff is. She says he has Scotch ancestry and she thinks that explains a good deal.

"When we were married I did my best on practically no money at all," writes Kathryn, "and Geoff often says that those were among the happiest days of his life. He then gave me $10 a week for table expenses and my own pocket money, and though I had not had much experience in keeping house I got on very well. By the time our daughter, Patricia, now 11 years old, was born, things were easier, and for the last five or six years we have had a nice home, two good servants, and my household expenses must run sometimes between one hundred and fifty dollars a month; I have a fine maid, and as much extra assistance as I like; in short, we are a typical American small-town prosperous family. I belong to the Woman's Club and the Music Society, and we are both active in Country Club amusements. Also, may I say, Geoff is in contributory defense work and I am vice president of the Red Cross.

"But my husband grudges me spending money, criticizes my buying of clothes, and makes terrible scenes at the first of every month when the bills come in. Pat is naturally at an expensive age, when schooling, gym, dentist all cost money; there is scarcely a week when a child that age does not need some new garment, or else it is a tennis racquet, ski shoes, skates.

Rages Over Bills.
"Geoff this morning raged about the telephone bill, which was large last month because my mother is sick in a hospital in a town 400 miles away and I have frequently called her, feeling that this is cheaper by far than going to see her. He also raved over the florist's bill, my shoe bill, and the grocer's bill. These last items were large because in both cases I had attended sales, feeling that we may be glad some day to have a good deal of canned stuff in the house and I will now need shoes for at least two years.

"What especially angers me is that I have discovered through a friend, whose husband told her, that Geoff is making extra money these days, money of which he has said nothing to me. When we were married we talked things over honestly, and promised always to be frank with each other, and in those days we would pool our money together, and make plans. Now he gives me $25 a month pocket money, and by the last week of the month I can assure you that I am often embarrassed before my friends for taxi-fares, lunch money, tips, telegrams, the purchase of bridge prizes or the thousand other trifles that women need. Some years ago, and again last year, he threatened to stop my credit at the shops if I did not buy less, and rather than risk that I don't know what I wouldn't do!

"After this, you will perhaps be surprised that I don't leave him, and think of us as a quarrelsome and unhappy couple. But such is not the case. I am proud of Geoff, I never think of any life away from him, Pat is devoted to her father,

COST OF LIVING

The cost of living isn't going down, you know, and it may go up and up if you don't think twice before you spend your money. The money you spent today for that extra pair of shoes ("just in case," you told yourself) may make the difference between a balanced budget and one of those tearful scenes in which you protest that you didn't buy a single thing you could have gotten along without. Are you sure? You may have needed everything you bought, but that doesn't mean that you had to buy it. And if you do keep within your budget, why not put the extra money into something really worth while? Buy war bonds and stamps!

and more than that, I have no money, and Geoff and my brother support my mother and have for years. Ours is a very happy and harmonious household, except for this one subject, which unfortunately comes up about the first of every month. Can you advise me as to some way of persuading him that a woman of 35 does not like to be treated like an irresponsible child?

Irresponsible in Money Matters.
It all depends, my dear Kathryn, upon the question as to whether the woman of 35 really is or is not an irresponsible child. Most husbands in these days are proud to trust their wives with their financial responsibilities, and proud to boast of their wives' thriftiness, and good wives rejoice in their ability to keep well within the household budget and still take good care of the family.

Kathryn is evidently entirely unacquainted with the budget. My advice to her is to meet it. Let her take a pencil and paper this very night and write down, with Geoff's help, exactly what her expenditures every month OUGHT to be. Rent on an income of $5,000 a year ought to be well under a hundred; food, including milk and ice, another hundred, and so on. These figures could be cut in half without leaving the Browns homeless and starving.

Then let Geoff add his inescapable expenses; taxes, insurance, valet service, transportation, car maintenance, lunches, club dues. These with telephone, light, gas, cooking and furnace fuel, outdoor man once a week and Annie's wages will come to a sum that will amaze Kathryn. She will say in consternation, "but then the doctor and the dentist and flowers and symphony seats and church and what you send Mother all have to come out of less than a hundred!"

Patriotic to Cut Down Expenses.
Poor, on five thousand a year! But Kathryn still has a lot to learn. Personally, I can't blame a husband who refuses to trust a woman who isn't sure within $50 what her grocery bill is, and who buys everything she needs or fancies, just when she sees it, with no reference at all to the state of the family bank account.

It is a very serious patriotic duty for every wife now to keep her man and herself from worrying, by cutting down expenses, by living in cheaper quarters, dispensing with kitchen help, impressing her friends rather with the money she doesn't spend than the money she does. Make that first-of-the-month-bill-crisis a time of pleasant surprises rather than angry consternation.

IMAGINARY DIALOGUES—THE TAX MAN AND THE CITIZEN

("Twenty million Americans who never paid income taxes before will have to pay them March 15 next, and considerable difficulty is expected in getting the money. A poll has indicated that many who now come under the income tax do not even know it yet.")—News Item.)

Tax Man—What are you planning to do about your tax?

Citizen—Me? I always pay it when I buy the cigarettes!

Tax Man—Not that tax; I mean the income tax.

Citizen—Oh, that one! The rich pay that. It's none of my concern.

Tax Man—It is from now on. Everybody getting over twenty dollars a week has to fork over.

Citizen—Quit your kidding, mister. Tax Man—I'm not kidding. Don't you read the papers?

Citizen—Yeah, but they don't put any tax news on them sports pages.

Tax Man—What do you get a week?

Citizen—About $30.

Tax Man—You'll have to pay $181.

Citizen—I never get ahead that much.

Tax Man—You'll have to dig it up this time.

Citizen—How?

Tax Man—That's your headache. Don't you ever save anything?

Citizen—No. The government will have to wait. I got too many bills in ahead of it.

Tax Man—You realize that the government comes first?

Citizen—Sure. First in war, first in peace, last on the list of bill collectors.

Tax Man—You realize, of course, that a war has to be paid for; don't you understand that Uncle Sam has to get the money somewhere?

Citizen—I haven't been bothered so far. Why worry me now?

Tax Man—The expense is greater than ever. Isn't it up to every citizen to come across?

Citizen—It's a great idea. All I'm saying is that I haven't got a dime ahead. They'll have to get it from those guys who have saved a little.

Tax Man—Do you realize that there are twenty million being asked for the first time to pay this tax?

Citizen—They ain't all got my expenses.

Tax Man—Don't you want to do your part to pay for the war?

Citizen—Sure, but they can't get blood out of a turnip.

Tax Man—Do you want 'em around trying that kind of a vegetable test on you?

Citizen—No, but listen; if I ain't got $181 I ain't got it.

Tax Man—Maybe so, but you'll have to come across some way.

Citizen—Can't my ward boss fix it up?

Tax Man—Nobody can fix it so you don't pay your income tax. But the treasury has announced that it will lend you the money to pay the tax.

Citizen (quite startled)—You mean that if it's got to have money from me it will lend me the dough to pay it? Then where does it gain anything?

Tax Man—It charges you six per cent interest on the loan.

Citizen—If I ain't got enough to pay the original tax how am I going to pay back the loan with interest?

TO LADIES TO MAKE MUCH OF TIME

Dear Ladies, you're warlike, and talk with a punch.

Of Axis and Flackses and Taxes, But WHY do you stay in so long after lunch,

Discussing the WAVES and the WAACSES?

I believe that you're saving the world, as you say.

As long as you're sipping and munching,

But O, like the snow wraiths, my faith melts away.

As the hours slip by after lunching.

Fair ladies are blessings in peace and in war,

I am sure, but I still have a hunch, ma'am,

That the peerless, the priceless, the pearl and the star,

Is the one that goes home after lunch, ma'am!

S. S. J.'s Christmas Party

The last meeting of the S. S. J.'s was held at the home of Catherine Hill of Whittemore street. The new president, Lanny Hutchinson, presided at the devotional and business session. After the meeting the Christmas tree prettily decorated was enjoyed as it bore a gift for each one and all joined in singing Christmas carols. Several contest games were played and an impromptu program given. Lanny and Peggy Jameson played piano solos, Elsie Wing recited the American Creed, Melita Whitcomb sang A White Christmas, Joan Vigue performed the alphabet stunt. Miss Ryley gave a poem and Catherine Hill sang Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition. Refreshments of ice cream and cup cakes were served also hot cocoa.

What Is Your Idea?

Just before reading the item in last week's Messenger in regard to sending the paper to Hillsboro boys in the service, I received a letter from one of them who said the thing he would like most was the Messenger regularly. He is especially interested in the High School notes and other special features but he reads every bit of it even the ads. He is only one of around 150.

Now what can we do about it? Some send their own papers to their boys but what about these others whose subscriptions may soon run out and the new ones just entering the service? One small town paper I read publishes each week a list of names, ranks and addresses of their boys. Another paper does the same and papers are sent to each of their boys. The answering letters published show how much their home town paper means to them.

Our Editor asked for addresses of Hillsboro boys in service sometime ago. They would be kept on file, if not published, for convenience of friends. There was no response whatever. However the point now is how can we find the means to get each boy and a Messenger together each week wherever they are, scattered all over the globe. Donations from the churches, schools, organizations, individuals and may be a slice of the scrap fund might answer the question. Please rise up and say something or send your ideas to me or the Editor. Altogether we ought to be able to do something. We can't disappoint the boys now by depriving them of their home town news.
