The Lawn Party held by St. Patrick's Parish on Friday and Saturday of this past week was a huge success. All sorts of games were played, fancy work sold, suppers and lunches served, candy and tonic sold, chances were taken on a lamb and a hooked rug, in fact the usual attractions abounded. Despite gas rationing a good crowd attended coming by bus, bicycle, on foot, some cars and among other things a hay rack full of people from Tall Pines Farm, who sang a particular Tall Pines song, much to the entertainment of those around.

Col. Howard A. Cheney Receives Decoration

Awarding of the Air Medal and Oak Leaf cluster to Col. Howard A. Cheney for meritorious and extraordinary achievement while participating in operational day and night flight missions over Caribbean waters was announced yesterday at Antilles air command headquarters.

Col. Cheney, who was promoted to his present rank recently, received the Air Medal for over 200 hours flying time on operational flight missions that involved long journeys over water, many having been accomplished when unfavorable weather conditions and the possibility of encountering enemy fire from enemy submarines made flying hazardous.

The Oak Leaf cluster was awarded to Col. Cheney for recording at least 200 hours in addition to the time required for the Air Medal, making a minimum of 400 hours of operational flight since Pearl Harbor.

Col. Cheney received his wings in 1933 and now holds a rating of senior pilot. He was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in 1939; to captain in 1941, to major in 1942, and to lieutenant-colonel December 13, 1942. He has been on foreign duty since November, 1940, and now is an operations officer on the staff of Brig-Gen. Edwin B. Lyon, commander of the Antilles air command.

Born May 6, 1910, in Bennington, N. H., Col. Cheney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cheney of 55 Gordon street, Springfield. His wife, Gretchen M. Cheney, now resides at 11 Windsor road, Baldwin, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Sawyer, residents of the town of Bennington are his grandparents, and a few years ago we would see a silver streak in the sky and flying low and dipping and turning would come the then Capt. Cheney to visit his grandparents. Some one would go to Concord and pick him up there. Col. Cheney's mother is one of a number of children born to Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer, Nellie Sawyer Cheney and Mr. and Mrs. Cheney have spent many summers here. Owing to the ill health of Mr. Cheney the parents of Col. Cheney have not been in town this summer.

Col. Cheney was graduated from the High School of Commerce in 1928, and received the bachelor of science degree upon graduation from the Massachusetts State college in Amherst in 1932.

Howard Cheney is flying high and we wish him all sorts of good luck.

GEORGE EDWARDS ANNOUNCES ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Natalie Edwards, daughter of George Edwards, is announced by her father. "Natalie" was born here and made her home in this town and went to local schools in nearby cities as well. She is our one lady in the armed forces, having joined the WACS some months ago. She completed her initial training at Des Moines, Iowa, and is now an instructor at the Army Administration Schools at Russellville, Arkansas. She is now Lt. Natalie Edwards, and we are very proud to know that one of our town's girls is making good.

No date has been set for the wedding of Lt. Edwards to Lt. Thomas O. Vail, who is now stationed at Denver, Col., and whose home is Plymouth, N. C.

School Calendar Supervisory Union Number 24

The following school calendar has been adopted for Hillsboro Special District and Deering. This is quite a change from previous years and was adopted to meet wartime conditions. Several vacations have been shortened but none have been left out. By this schedule all pupils will be released from school on May 29 and be available for victory garden and other essential work for three full months. This type of school calendar was tried in several other places last year and proved to be very satisfactory.

School opens Wednesday, Sept. 1.
Holiday Monday, Sept. 6.
Holiday Tuesday, Oct. 12.
Holiday Thursday, Nov. 11.
Thanksgiving Vacation Thursday and Friday, Nov. 25 and 26.
Christmas Vacation Thursday, Dec. 23 through Tuesday, Dec. 28 (inclusive.)
Washington's Birthday Vacation Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 21 and 22.

Spring Vacation Monday and Tuesday, April 10 and 11.
School closes Monday, May 29.
The school calendar for Bennington and Antrim is the same as that for Hillsboro Special with the exception that school will start on Monday, Sept. 7 and close on Friday, June 2, with Tuesday, May 30, as a holiday. The calendar for Washington and Hillsboro Town has not as yet been determined. Stoddard will operate on a calendar similar to the one in use for the year 1942-43.

In all the towns in Union No. 24 the following regulation is in effect in regard to pupils entering the first grade. "No child shall enter the first grade unless he is at least six years old on or before Jan. 1 of the current school year." This regulation is applied in nearly all school districts in New Hampshire. Also all pupils should be vaccinated before entering school.

Grades 7 and 8 of Hillsboro Special District will go to the high school building this year. This was done to give them the advantage of better equipment and instruction in Home Economics and Manual Training. Each boy and girl will receive a full four periods of work in their respective fields each week under teachers especially trained for this work. This should prove to be a great advantage to them. By meeting certain other requirements we expect to obtain state recognition as a qualified six year high school.

The following is a list of teachers for the towns of Supervisory Union No. 24:

Hillsboro Special—High school: John Bell, Headmaster; John Bolduc, Herbert Kyle, Miss Marjorie Greenwood, Mrs. Eva Doble, Mrs. Dorothy Vigue, Miss Ann Kenneally; (one more teacher to be hired). Grammar school: Mrs. Alice Hammond, Principal (grade 6); Miss Kate Brooks, (grade 5); Miss Estella Shedd, (grade 4); Miss Nina Stevens, (grade 3); Mrs. Athaleah Hutchinson, (grade 2); Mrs. Nellie Mellen, (grade 1).

Antrim—High school: Stanley Spencer, Headmaster; Miss Laura Rosebrooks, (as yet no Commerce teacher has been hired.) Grammar school: Miss Anna Arnell, Mrs. Phyllis Ross, Miss Alice Cuddihy, Miss Frances Batchelder. North Branch: Mrs. Irene Parker.

Bennington—Pierce school: Mrs. Ruth Cody, Principal; Miss Lulu Cille, Miss Mae Cashion.

Stoddard: Mrs. Bessie Whitcomb. Washington, Dole school: Mrs. Louise Murdough.

Deering—East Deering: Mrs. Ines Stevens. West Deering: Mrs. Lois Davis.

Hillsboro Town—Center: Miss Verna Crane. Flat: Miss Susan Pierce. Lower Village: Mrs. Georgianna Gile. Upper Village: Mrs. Grace Crane.

Miss Katherine Shea will be Music Supervisor in Hillsboro Special, Hillsboro Town, Washington, Antrim and Bennington.

Supt. Howard F. Mason will be very glad to consult with any parents in regard to their school's problems. Call Hillsboro 190 for an appointment.

All persons interested in transporting school pupils should contact the chairman of their respective school boards as soon as possible. Several formalities have to be carried out before a contract can be awarded this year.

WHY

We Had and Still Have Goods
Other Stores Were Out Of

Two years ago with the United States furnishing vast quantities of war goods to England, and the certainty that we would shortly be in the war, we went to Souhegan Bank and borrowed all the money, and it was a substantial sum, that we thought they would let us have without asking too many questions, some of which we might not like to answer. We put all that, together with our own money, into goods. Five times as many Canners, Garbage Pails, Water Pails, Tea Kettles, Percolators as we have ever sold in any year.

If people from Boston, Springfield and all the nearer cities had let us alone we would still have all these articles.

If we could have procured delivery on half the Spring Beds, Baby Carriages, Sofas and other articles we ordered, we still might have all of them in stock.

WE STILL HAVE

Prewar Chairs with Springs, Cribs, Highchairs, Baby Yards, "Weaver" Aluminum Utensils, but unfortunately not in the best sellers, "Fiesta" and other dinnerware, Window Rods, Window Shades with brackets, and other articles not found in other stores. We are carefully selecting "VICTORY" articles putting on sale such as we think will give satisfactory service.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

FDR Favors Higher Taxes to Restrict Size of Public Debt, Defeat Inflation; Russia Continues Steam Roller Attack; 'Unconditional Surrender': Allied Terms

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

TAXES: More in War Economy

Higher taxes—that, in short, is President Roosevelt's recipe for offsetting the tremendous federal wartime expenditure and at the same time heading off inflation. Said the President: The government will spend 106 billion dollars during the next year. The public debt is expected to increase by 69 billion to 206 billion dollars by June, 1944.

The national income should approximate 150 billion dollars for the year. But the manufacture of civilian goods has been sharply reduced, thus leaving the public with large amounts of surplus money with which to bid up prices for smaller supplies.

Hence the President's conclusion: More taxes with which to meet current expenditure and restrict the size of the mounting public debt, and with which to mop up excess inflationary buying power.

6 Billion at Most

President Roosevelt's call for increased taxes was met by Sen. Walter F. George's prediction that the most that could be expected to be raised was 5 or 6 billion dollars.

The influential chairman of the senate finance committee, Senator George, said of the 5 or 6 billion dollars, about 60 per cent will have to be obtained from individual taxpayers. The rest could be gotten by raising the corporate normal and surtax rate and broadening the federal tax on goods.

Declaring the U. S. stands to collect 35 billion dollars under present rates, George said any increases in individual rates would bear most with low or moderate fixed incomes.

RUSSIA: At the City's Gates

Russia's steam-rolling attack on Orel continued to meet heavy resistance even as the Red columns bore into the suburbs of the big Nazi base. As the Russians' pressure increased, long lines of German troops were seen withdrawing westward toward the secondary Nazi hub of Bryansk.

Slugging matches raged all along the winding 1,200 mile front. The Reds attacked heavily south of Leningrad in an effort to widen the corridor leading to the besieged city; both sides fought to a standstill in the Donets basin, and the Russians stabbed stiffly at the Nazis' foothold along the Black sea at Novorossisk.

Principal action of the summer centered at Orel. Here, the Russians, with masses of infantry following in the echo of thunderous artillery fire and chugging tank attacks, jabbed deeper and deeper into German defenses, until they stood at the gates of the city itself.

RIOTS: Sweep Harlem

Allegedly interfering with the arrest of a Negro woman in the lobby of a New York hotel, a colored soldier was shot by a police officer. While the wounded man was being removed to a hospital, a crowd collected. Wild rumors began to circulate, a pop bottle was thrown, and the worst riot since 1935 in America's largest city was set off.

Negroes stormed through Harlem's business districts. Plate glass windows were smashed; stores were looted; crumpled merchandise littered the streets. Six thousand policemen aided by 1,500 wartime auxiliaries were called to restore order. In imposing a 10:30 p. m. curfew, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia moaned: "Shame has come to our city." Five Negroes were killed and 543 persons were injured. More than 500 arrests were made. Property damage was estimated at 5 million dollars.

Fiorello LaGuardia

ITALY: Allied Terms

When Benito Mussolini's government fell, one of the requisite conditions for an Allied treatment with Italy for peace was established. To Marshall Pietro Badoglio, Italy's first soldier, was given the charge of a new military regime.

The hectic days following Mussolini's fall saw a diplomatic stew. Axis sources declared that Badoglio's assumption of power was a perfectly natural evolution since what was more appropriate for a country faced with invasion than to concentrate all action in the hands of a military commander? Meanwhile diplomatic skirmishing indicated proposals from the Allies.

The Allies laid down these terms for peace: 1. Cessation of resistance; 2. An end of collaboration with Germany; 3. Withdrawal of Italian troops from Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia; 4. Surrender of war materials undamaged; 5. Establishment of an Anglo-American-Soviet military government of occupation; 6. Arrest of war criminals; and 7. Release of all Allied prisoners of war in Italy.

Decisive Action

Viewing the campaign in Sicily, military authorities might well credit the Americans of Gen. George S. Patton's command and the Canadians under Gen. Bernard Montgomery with decisive action in the final phase of the fighting.

With Montgomery's British forces stalled before strong Axis positions in the Catanian plains to the southeast of the defensive triangle, roaring artillery covered General Patton's Seventh Army's cautious advance over barren hills in the face of mortar fire from enemy sheltered in trenches and caves. Capturing Maj.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, commanding the First Canadian division, wades ashore during operations in Sicily.

Troina, the Americans cut the supply road linking the Axis' right flank with their left and bending the whole enemy line in this sector toward the sea.

Farther to the south, Canadians broke through the Axis stronghold of Regaluto, thus menacing the enemy's whole Catanian line from the rear. The advance also put the Canadians within sight of the supply road rimming Jowering Mt. Etna, along whose slopes the Axis have entrenched themselves.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Tanks in Jungles

Brought into the fight after aircraft had failed to reduce sufficiently strongholds the Japs had hewed in the jungle, 13-ton tanks led the Americans' drive on Munda in the Solomons.

Unable to detect the Japs' positions through the dense brush and foliage, aircraft were compelled to drop their bombs over a wide area, hoping that a heavy tonnage would land on some defenses. But whenever the infantry attempted to advance after the barrage, it met stiff enemy machine gun and mortar fire from the concealed pill-boxes.

Then the tanks were flung into the battle. Grinding their way through the thick growth, they drew the fire of the hidden enemy. Following the course of the gun-fire, the tank crews discovered the Japs' strong points and then blasted them at point blank range. By such tactics, they gradually overran stubborn centers of resistance as the drive approached the encircled Jap base.

WOOLENS: Army Buys Less

The army quartermaster corps will purchase about 50 per cent less wool and worsted products for the remainder of the year, and will defer buying these goods until the first four months of next year, according to the War Production board.

This change in plans will immediately release about 10 million yards of material for civilian needs to be made into blankets, coats, mackinaws and winter clothing.

DRAFT: Call Dads Oct. 1

Fathers 18 to 37 years of age who are not "key" men in agriculture and industry will be inducted into service starting October 1. According to the War Manpower commission, they will be called in their draft order numbers, regardless of the number of their children.

Burton K. Wheeler

The WMC's announcement of the forthcoming draft of dads drew an immediate promise from Sen. Burton K. Wheeler that he would press for passage of his bill postponing the induction of fathers until January 1 when congress reconvenes September 14.

According to the WMC, fathers will be called only when draft boards run out of men in the other classifications. Some boards are expected to be faced with that predicament by October 1, others are not, thus delaying the induction of dads in their districts beyond the date. Approximately 875,000 childless married men are to be called by October 1.

780 Miles Per Hour!

Last September, 36-year-old Lieut. Col. Cass S. Hough of Plymouth, Mich., took his P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighter plane 43,000 feet in the air.

Then Colonel Hough cooly nosed the plane into a power dive, and down it roared, cutting through the wind before it, at 780 miles per hour before being leveled off at 18,000 feet.

But last February, Colonel Hough decided to crowd two thrills into a lifetime. This time, he took a P-47 Thunderbolt 39,000 feet up and again plunged it into a whirling power-dive, straightening out once more at 18,000 feet.

Technical director of the 8th American fighter command, Colonel Hough undertook the two flights to obtain scientific information for assisting fighter pilots. For his services the European commander of fighter planes decorated him with the Distinguished Flying Cross. In private life vice president of the Daisy Air Rifle Manufacturing company, Colonel Hough is married and has two children.

PRODUCTION: 7,000 Planes a Month

Thirty-four years ago, congress appropriated $25,000 for the army to purchase its first airplane—a Wright brothers 1909 model CI craft, with a wing span of 48 feet 6 1/2 inches and a four-cylinder, 28-horsepower motor. Capable of flying 32 miles per hour, the plane could stay in the air 2 hours and 19 minutes.

Today, American aircraft production averages 7,000 planes a month, with the army air forces receiving 4,500 of the total of sleek, high-powered craft. Since the attack on Pearl Harbor, 73,132 planes have been delivered to the army, and up to June 30, 1943, 40 billion dollars was allotted to the air forces.

Against America's record production, it was estimated that the Axis puts out 4,000 planes monthly. Of this total, Germany makes 2,200, Japan 1,200 and Italy 600.

BERLIN: Ordered Evacuated

With Germany's great industrial port of Hamburg laying in ruins, with 8,000 of its people killed and 259 of its factories demolished, Paul Joseph Goebbels ordered all residents of Berlin not engaged in essential work to leave the city.

The Nazis made no effort to minimize the destruction in Hamburg. Besides the vast number killed, it was reported an additional 4,000 were missing and 18,000 were injured. Along with industrial installations, large residential areas were wiped out, it was said, and others were badly mauled.

In ordering the evacuation of Berlin, Goebbels instructed residents with relations in other parts of Germany to make use of such accommodations, while those who could not were told to apply to the government for housing facilities. According to reports, the Nazis prepared for mass evacuation several months ago, laying up stores at central points throughout inner Germany.

SHIPS: U. S. Transfers Vessels

Speaking before the house of commons, Prime Minister Winston Churchill revealed that the United States was turning over from 15 to 20 cargo vessels a month to the British merchant marine.

In making the announcement, Churchill quoted from a letter of President Roosevelt's, in which he said the transfers were being made in order to employ Britain's surplus of trained seamen.

Washington Digest

Geography Is Factor in Determining War's End

Road to Tokyo Both Long and Rough; Pacific Remains Studded With Well-Fortified Japanese Strongholds.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

No victory over Japan before 1949?

When that sentiment was broadcast from Washington by Vice Admiral Horne under the aegis of Secretary Knox, a good many eyebrows were raised here in the capital. Of course, it is fully realized here that once the American people think the war is in the bag, they will be ready to resume the plowshare and the pen as simple citizens again, not as dollar-a-year men or munitions workers or victory gardeners or rationers or any of the other things we don't like. So Washington can't afford to be overoptimistic. But 1949 is a long, long way off.

When Admiral Halsey finally admitted that the capture of the important air base of Munda was "within reach," it looked like another easy victory scored and that Tokyo ought to tremble.

About Distances

But how much nearer are we to Tokyo? Get a map of Asia, including the Solomon Islands and if you can identify the little specks which are Guadalcanal where our main base lies, and Rabaul, our objective, note the distance between, and then see how much farther it is to Tokyo. It's as far as from New York to Casablanca.

And there is a lot of difference between the two roads. When we sent our troops over the Atlantic to Africa, it was pretty nearly our pond—there wasn't an Axis base en route. The Pacific is studded with Japanese bases.

There are two powerful Jap strongholds, much better protected than Munda right in the Solomon Islands, on Bougainville island and Rabaul, the hub of the Japs' empire in the Southwest. Beyond, over a long stretch of water, is the little island of Truk, said to be the main Jap naval base in the Pacific.

From New Britain, where Rabaul is located, it is 890 miles to Tokyo—further than from Tunisia to the northern tip of Norway.

In order to realize why we are still so far away from our objective in the Pacific war, we have to consider what it took to get as far as we have already gone. It took six months, some terribly gruelling fighting, and many lives, to capture the little island of Guadalcanal. It took another five months before the Allies were ready to start their second offensive movement with the final capture of Rabaul as the objective. Progress at this rate and with this type of island-to-island advance is taken for granted by those who put 1949 as the date when Japan will be vanquished.

Defensive Action

It took MacArthur approximately as long to turn back the Japs on New Guinea, fighting to reach Port Moresby, and to capture their key point of Buna, so they could move on Salamaua and Lae driving the enemy out foot by foot from these pretty much isolated points.

The fighting, up until the drive beginning with the capture of Rendova on June 30, has been nothing more than offensive-defensive. Before that the effort, and a successful one, was to keep the Japs from attacking Australia from Port Moresby, from seizing the Solomons and making the Australian east coast vulnerable and to save the life line of men and supplies moving from America to Australia.

Only now, summer 1943, are we really taking offensive action in the Southwest Pacific and, as I said, if you look at a map of Asia which shows all of the territory held by the Japanese, you will see that what we have won since our offensive really began is a very thin sliver, geographically speaking. In enemy effectiveness destroyed, it has been larger in proportion, but the navy men in Washington who talk about 1949 speak with a conservative geographical accent.

Diary of a Broadcaster

Isn't it awfully dull in Washington with congress gone home and everything closed up?

If you think so, you are dreaming a midsummer night's dream.

When I arise and start down toward Pennsylvania avenue, I note the little spring cat which has joined its maltese mother and its tiger (perhaps) father. Is it going limp with boredom? It is not. It prepares its toilet with the same tongue-wearying energy that it did when congress was in session.

That is just an example. The buses are just as crowded. Telephone numbers as hard to get. Laundry lingers as long among the laundress. Pants pant for pressing.

Recently I tried four leading hotels before I could reserve places for lunch. One of them was not air cooled. "I am ordinarily a two-suit guy," said a newspaper man to me the other day when Donald Nelson was complaining about the heavy buying of clothes, "but if I didn't have four suits now, I'd go to work unpressed and uncleaned or in a barrel."

'The Little Prince'

You recall I reviewed "The Little Prince" by Antoine de Saint-Exupery in this column some time ago. I have had many letters concerning the author whom I said was at the front.

Recently Leonard Lyons, New York columnist, reported that the aviator-author, who is back on the fighting line again although he is 43 years old, wrote to his American translator:

"After seeing the fighting men and the mighty armaments, I realize that I must come to Africa to appreciate America."

He was spared, after the fall of France, "to fight again."

Let us hope he will be spared, when she rises, to write again.

Food Program

It was a cooler and more peaceful day than many which had preceded it in Washington. The President was in a genial mood when he met the press and radio representatives. The administration, he said, is working on a new food program.

A few days before, I talked with a member of the administration who said to me: "Frankly, if we have a food program, I can't find it." And he was very anxious to locate it because a lot of his friends had been asking.

The President, at the conference I referred to, explained that he'd be tickled to death if anyone would explain to him how he could reduce prices in accordance with the stabilization under the present limitations set by congress.

A little bit later, I heard it said flatly: "We've got to increase prices if we expect the farmers to raise enough food to meet the present goals."

Now, Howard Tolley, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, (whose business it is to figure out what is needed, not how we'll get it) says this:

Increased Consumption

"If the United States carries out its proposed international pledge to do all that is needed to provide better diets for its own people, the consumption of dairy products here would have to be increased 40 per cent."

That is just one product—representing, of course, milk, butter, cheese.

In order to bring the national diet up to the standard set, truck crops would also have to be increased about 80 per cent, eggs more than 20 per cent, fruit about 20 per cent, according to Mr. Tolley, and to raise crops for such a market would take about 40 million additional acres of cropland or about one-eighth more than is now cultivated.

With the present full employment, Tolley says that this extra output of the farmer's product could be absorbed. And this leaves out what would be sold abroad.

Right now, industry is working on plans to maintain this "full employment" by converting war plants to peace plants. Industry is trying to compete with the government in post-war planning in this field.

How many farmers are interested enough to get up and say "their say" in favor of a plan that will keep enough people at work so that they can buy this extra 40 million acres' worth of food they need to be healthy?

Pacific, he says, and he knows plenty about the Far East, and Tokyo in particular. He was in Japan all the time the United States was in the last war. He went out there as naval attache to the American embassy in January, 1915, and stayed four years. His government handed him the Navy Cross for what he accomplished, and Japan, being one of the Allies in those days, passed him a decoration, too, the Third Order of the Sacred Treasure.

This is the third war in which this native New Yorker, now 63, has had a hand. He had entered the Naval academy in 1895 at the ripe young age of 15, and while still a middle he served in the North Atlantic aboard the USS Texas in the scrap with Spain. When the war was over, he went back to Annapolis, graduating in 1899. Since returning from Tokyo, he attended the Naval War college. What's more he went to the Army War college, too.

Back in the mid-Twenties some of his flying officers got his sea dog dander up when they tried to tell him that the orders he gave couldn't be carried out. He promptly had himself assigned for training with the air arm at Pensacola, and in 1926 he was qualified as a naval aviation observer. Later he commanded the aircraft carrier Saratoga. Since March, 1942, he has been one of Admiral King's right bowmen in planning sea operations. Planes are his specialty.

IF Katharine F. Lenroot were setting upon a prayer for children, and who would be more likely to pray for them, she might easily cull from the athenaeum of those loosely phrased hymns from India's old, old scripture:

"Old Age! This child shall grow to meet thee only; None of the hundred other deaths shall harm him."

Children have been Miss Lenroot's concern for 30 years and on, and though progress must seem slow she probably would agree that in her time some of those hundred other deaths have been scotched.

Just back from South America she notes that there also at least a few have been; underprivileged children receive low-priced, even free food; medical care spreads. It is 13 years since she was last in South America and she found a change so great "I could hardly believe my eyes."

Ever since she went into the children's bureau of the department of labor, Miss Lenroot has had a strong interest in South America. She is well known there, and speaks Spanish fluently enough to make an easy way from the plateau cities of New Granada to low-lying and windy Punta Arenas, though she might be more comfortable if she stopped at Buenos Aires.

Children everywhere have been Miss Lenroot's strongest interest ever since she came out of the University of Wisconsin. Even earlier she was badgering that state's legislature in their behalf.

After graduation, a novice lawyer, she hired out as a deputy industrial commissioner, but after a couple of years found her life work with the federal bureau at Washington. She has been its chief for ten years, and is an authority on its multitude of problems.

She is a systematic chief and calm, but if the objective is big enough she can make a final drive as headlong as this fellow Patton.

She Exposed the Sicily Statistics once led her to declare in distress that mothers were this country's cheapest commodity, so many of them die in childbirth. If she were saying that now she might put it ironically that they are as expendable as P-T boat crews at Corregidor. Her arsenal of facts and figures is inexhaustible. It would stretch from here to there and back again.

This is not to say that she is dull. Her sense of humor is keen and catholic and her public utterances can amuse as well as devastate, and her voice can charm. She comes from northern Wisconsin where those cold winds off bleak Lake Superior, or something, all too often put an edge on native voices, but hers is low and agreeable.

The figure that encloses the voice is on the stocky side, topped by loosely dressed hair that used to be blonde, about half way between a Harlow platinum and Bette Davis' middling locks.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. The battle for the Philippines was nearly over when the Japs invaded Cebu. Separated from his squadron, Lieut. Kelly had spent the night at the home of an American civilian. When the Japs began their invasion he fought his way back to the dock where Lieut. Bulkeley's boat was tied to learn that he had been reported dead.

CHAPTER XV

"After Cebu fell," explained Cox, "an Army aviator arrived—he'd left Cebu that morning. He said he'd talked to a Catholic priest who had said burial mass over you and another sailor, killed in an engagement."

"And I was very glad to hear it," said Kelly. "Because then I knew that Harris and Reynolds had gotten decent burial at the American cemetery in Cebu before the Japs arrived. But then I asked, 'Where's Bulkeley?' You see, the last I saw of him he was tearing around the other side of that Japanese cruiser, trying to draw its fire away from me, so I could get in to polish it off. I thought they'd probably got him. I heard he'd turned up later in Mindanao, but it was just a rumor."

"What actually happened was this," said Bulkeley. "They didn't get me, but three destroyers chased me until dawn, when I pulled away into shallow water, and we tied up under a pier to get some sleep—as I think I said."

"When night came I went on up to Iligan, where I intended to get gas and go on up to Cebu to see what had happened to Kelly, although I was pretty sure he hadn't got out alive. But at Iligan I was met by a radioed order from Wainwright; there were no more torpedoes for the MTB's, so he couldn't let us have any gas. They were needing it all for the planes out to Australia."

"So there we were—stuck at Iligan. I went on over to headquarters at Del Monte to report the battle with the cruiser to General Sharp—certain that the end was before us on the island. We'd be fighting here on Mindanao with rifles to the end. But that morning—it was April 13—General Sharp called me in to say he'd just got orders from Melbourne that I was ordered to report to MacArthur immediately on the plane leaving Del Monte that night. For a while I felt rotten."

"Then I figured it another way. If I could get to Australia, I might be able to persuade MacArthur to bring out the rest of the squadron. It looked like it was their only chance. I'm going to try to get out all your officers and key men," he had said. "I'm not going to let you die in a fox hole with a rifle. I knew he had believed the MTB's had a great future in the war."

"So I sent word to the rest I would get them flown out if possible, and got aboard the bomber that night. As we left the field, the Japs divebombed it and put one motor out, but we got through."

"He left me in charge," said Akers, "and presently General Sharp sent me up to Lake Lanao in the middle of Mindanao Island on a peculiar mission. They were afraid the Japs might land seaplanes on it and I was to set up defenses there. I was to teach the army how to run the machine guns."

"Cox told me Bulkeley had gone home," said Kelly, "and, thinking I was dead, had made him squadron commander. And I didn't know what to do. There I was—no crew, no boat, no job, while they were busy dismantling the 41 boat, to take it up to Lake Lanao and end the war fighting with the Moros. So I decided I'd better get up to Del Monte and report to Sharp so he could tell Bulkeley I was alive, and send in my report by radio to the States on the scrap with the cruiser and what happened to my boat."

"The General was amazed to see me. 'Bulkeley said you'd been killed in action,' he said. He listened to my report on the battle. 'I'll send you to Kalasungay,' he said, 'near the airfield where the planes come in. But I warn you, there's not too much hope of getting out. There's almost no more gas to refuel the planes at this end, so I doubt that they'll send any more.' I said I was sure we were getting out—MacArthur had told Bulkeley he would do it if it was humanly possible."

"The town was forty-five miles away, and I reported to the army colonel there at noon. He asked me why I was here. 'Waiting transportation to Australia,' I said."

"'No use getting your hopes up,' he said. 'And since I've had no instructions, I assume you're here on a duty status and am going to put you to work.'"

"'That's okay,' I said, 'if I don't have to leave the vicinity.'"

"'I can't even guarantee that,' he said. 'I'm organizing a carabao pack train to Lake Lanao. They're cutting the trail now. I have another man rounding up fifty carabao and drivers. When he gets them, you'll be in charge of leading the pack train.'"

"I didn't say much. I figured he and I were in for a showdown. I didn't intend to miss a plane being off herding a bunch of milk cows through a jungle, but I thought there was no use being unreasonable now. After all, fifty carabao was a lot to round up. It would take several days."

"Back at the quarters I found an old navy captain who'd arrived the day before—used to be in charge of the industrial department at Cavite. He listened to my story, and MacArthur's promise, and then said, 'The way it looks, I don't think I'm getting out.' Then he talked about the thirty years he'd spent in the navy, all of them training so he would be useful in case of war, and you could see it was discouraging for him to end like this—apparently forgotten by the country he had wanted to serve. What had his life been for?"

"On the night of April 22 my hopes were down. I was fiddling with the radio and cut in on a news broadcast from the States—a short-wave station in San Francisco. It was the navy news release on our fight with the cruiser!

"Tell him the end here is drawing near."

"I went to bed sick as the silky-voiced commentator again repeated his account of our victory, when all out here knew we had only expended ourselves in the hope that it might slow down a Japanese victory, and we had failed even in this."

"Next morning the army colonel sent for me. He'd had a plane-less aviator hard at work who had collected thirty-nine of the fifty carabao. Soon the others would be here, so I was to start work today—a trail-blazing expedition to inspect the jungle path up to Lake Lanao. But suppose a plane came while I was away? I didn't even bring it up; it seemed so hopeless now. I went back to my quarters and had just packed to go when the phone rang. I was to report to General Sharp at the landing field at once, and bring everything I had with me."

"It was grim waiting at the airport. The priority list was made up in Melbourne and each man had a number. A plane would not hold more than thirty, they knew, but more than a hundred were waiting there. Because perhaps two, maybe even three, planes might come. Or perhaps someone whose name was called would not show up, and your number might be high enough on the list to claim his seat. So they waited—all young technicians, most of them aviators, for this last chance to get out, so they could fight again. General Sharp had told me he had telephoned Cox and Akers that they were on tonight's list; why weren't they here?"

"At 10:30 the list was called—thirty names, mine and theirs among them, but only I answered present. So they put an army tank major and an air-corps captain in as substitutes, if they failed to arrive. But at 10:35 here they came on the run, so the captain and the major were turned aside. They were to go on the next plane—if there was a next."

"Just before we got aboard, General Sharp came over to tell me good-by. He is a grand old man, all six feet of him, a commanding person and every inch a soldier, as his father and grandfather were before him."

"He said this was probably the last plane out, and he wanted me to take a message to MacArthur. 'Tell him the end here is drawing near, and if help can't be sent, in a few days Mindanao will fall. Of course, probably he understands this, and maybe nothing can be done.'"

"Then he talked about us. 'Everybody left here in the islands should realize,' he said, 'that those who are called to Australia are the ones who will be most useful for the work ahead. Those who leave are the men for the job, regardless of rank and years of service. The rest of us,' he said, 'consider ourselves as being expendable, which is something that may come to any soldier. We are ready for it, and I think they will see that we will meet it squarely when it comes.'"

"Then they called my name, we shook hands, and I climbed aboard. Each of us who were leaving unstrapped our 45's and handed them out through the plane's windows to the fellows who were staying behind. They'd be needing them badly and we wouldn't."

"And Peggy?" someone asked. "There were three seaplanes sent out from Australia to Corregidor at the very last," said Kelly, "which, among other people, were to bring out the nurses. One of them was shot down off Corregidor, but the other two landed and got back to Lake Lanao, where they gassed up for the big homeward hop while Sharp held the Japs back from the lake. One of these two got safely away; the plane Peggy was in cracked up on the take-off. So now we won't ever know."

"But as our big ferry-command bomber swung wide out over the field after the take-off, you could see the island and then the path of moonlight glistening over the water, just as we used to watch it glisten from the tunnel entrance at Corregidor. And suddenly I remembered the last thing she said to me—her voice was just as clear as if it had been two seconds ago, instead of many weeks, over that signal-corps telephone in the army hut on Bataan, after I had told her this was good-by. 'Well,' she said, 'it's been awfully nice, hasn't it?' And her voice had sounded clear and brave, but seemed to come from far away."

THERE is no reason that you should do without smart looking upholstered chairs while you are awaiting the day that you will have the living room furniture that you have always dreamed about. Scraps of lumber and plywood or even old packing boxes may be used to make simple chair frames and there are no priorities on cotton padding and sturdy cotton covering materials.

A simple frame for a chair of this type is shown here. It is padded with cotton batting basted to pieces of unbleached muslin cut to fit the back and well over the sides of the seat. A separate cushion filled with cotton, down or feathers is then made for the seat. Either plain or figured material with contrasting seam wetting may be used for covering.

Pvt. Russell Wadleigh of Greenville, S. C., has been at his home on a ten day furlough.

Miss Evelyn Twiss of Keene Teachers' College spent the week-end at her home here.

Mrs. Joseph Mallett, district nurse, is having a vacation from her duties this month.

Miss Anna Childs has been visiting Prof. and Mrs. Francis Childs of Hanover the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kilburn of Providence, R. I., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kilburn.

Prof. and Mrs. C. Wayne Hancock who are spending the summer in Lancaster are in town for the week.

Dr. Merritt Garland of Bradford, Mass., Miss Agnes Garland and Miss Marion Garland are in town this week.

Mrs. Doris Fallon and daughter, Francis, of Hartford, Conn., are visiting Mrs. Dora Carnes and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Small of Granby, Conn., have been visiting relatives in town. Mrs. Small was Irene Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Pillsbury and children of Weymouth, Mass., spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rosen of West Roxbury, Mass., have been visiting Mrs. Otto Schacht and other relatives in town.

Eugene M. Beck, Mrs. Lillian Maysilles and Mrs. Frank Constantine have been spending several days at Mrs. Constantine's home in Contoocook.

Herbert F. Boutelle was high scorer at the whist party held by Bear Hill Grange on Monday evening. Other prizes were won by Charles J. Burnham, George A. Waterman, Harry A. Tucker, Mrs. Clayson Pike and Mrs. Albert Rush.

The August monthly meeting of the Friends Society was held on Thursday at the Quaker church in charge of Rev. Wilbur Kamp of North Weare. A devotional meeting was held, with the Queries being read, following which business was transacted. A picnic lunch was held in Vincent grove at noon.

Edward Rand, 85, old time violinist and W. C. Carpenter, 90, as pianist, entertained several guests of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Rowen at the Henniker Inn on Thursday evening with such old time pieces as "Chorus Jig," "The Irish Washerwoman," "Darkey's Dream," etc. Mr. Rand keeps in practice every day, but although Mr. Carpenter admitted he hadn't played the piano since playing with Mr. Rand last summer he was able to keep up with Mr. Rand and his fingers flew over the keys in the old familiar pieces.

The Ladies' Aid held an interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Josephine Fuller, Wednesday afternoon. The program included readings by Mrs. I. E. Jones and Mrs. F. J. Gibson and the admission of one new member.

Mrs. A. C. A. Perk has had as guests at Hillside, her son, C. M. Dubay, and wife and three sons, Peter, John and Stephen, of Lexington and Miss Mary Wurth of Cranford, N. J. Mrs. Dubay was formerly Miss Catherine Shultis of Newbury.

The Bruce Phalens of Malden, who purchased Pleasant View on Barden hill of Morris White and made extensive alterations, have rechristened the place, "Dunrovia." This is one of the old houses with a history that includes a cache of hidden counterfeit money, the stigma of which is offset by the immense stone steps at the big double front door that for many years paved the entrance to the first church in Hillsboro.

A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE

"Nearly four hundred delegates, representing the churches co-operating in the Federal Council met in Delaware, Ohio, in March, 1942, in the National Study Conference of the Churches on a Just and Durable Peace." These delegates had spent months and some of them years in study on this subject, and now church groups all over the country are reading and discussing the constructive program worked out there. The Deering Women's Guild is to conduct such a discussion at the September meeting.

Here is the outline of the Christian Principles underlying this program: I, Human Interdependence; II, Moral Laws in the Everyday World; III, The Search for a World Community; IV, The Six Freedoms: Freedom to choose one's occupation; Freedom from want and fear; Freedom of worship, of speech and assembly, of the press, of scientific inquiry and teaching; V, The Development of Self-government in Colonies; IV, International Control of Armaments.

The Delaware Conference believes that "the church is now in reality a world community, and may be used of God to develop his spirit of righteousness and love in every race and nation, and thus to make possible a just and durable peace." The conference then calls upon Christians "to dedicate themselves to this service, to seek forgiveness for their sins and the constant guidance and help of God."

THIS COMMUNITY HAS A SPECIAL WAR JOB

THIS COMMUNITY is on the spot!
We are in a pulpwood growing section and there is now a pulpwood shortage. The country needs vast quantities of pulpwood for explosives, rayon parachutes, gas mask filters, shipping containers and a thousand other uses — yet some of the mills that make these things are actually shutting down for lack of wood.

This is a desperate situation — a war emergency. Something must be done QUICKLY!

And only we who live in the pulpwood cutting areas can do anything about it.

This is OUR responsibility.

CHAIRMAN, NEWSPAPER PULPWOOD CAMPAIGN
THE ANTRIM REPORTER

I pledge myself to work at least 3 EXTRA days during the balance of 1943 cutting pulpwood. Please send me the campaign badge which this pledge entitles me to wear.

Name _____

Address _____

How the problem can be solved

Mr. Donald M. Nelson, Chairman of the War Production Board, gave the key to the solution in the following statement:

"If every one of the more than 3,800,000 farmers in the 27 pulpwood producing states were to devote 3 EXTRA days in 1943 to cutting pulpwood, we could overcome the threatened 2,500,000 cord shortage with wood to spare."

Will you enlist for 3 EXTRA days?

If you are now cutting pulpwood part time; if you have cut it in the past; or if you have never cut it but know how to use an axe and saw, will you pledge 3 EXTRA days (at regular pay) to meet Mr. Nelson's challenge?

Fill in the coupon. Mail it to this newspaper and you will receive the pledge badge which identifies you as a Victory Pulpwood Cutter.

This is a war emergency.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Afternoon Tea

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

The spirit of your home is what you make it, war or no war. It is for you to give courage to your own people, and take courage from them.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

DON'T overlook the civilized old custom of afternoon tea, while you are trying to adapt yourself to the needs of this new wartime, busier world. Tea in the late afternoon is a tried and true soother of human nerves; for long generations it has served its purpose in the homes of gentle people. In fact, I once heard a scientist say that we were the only nation in the world that served only three meals in the twenty-four hours, and that we were none the better for the difference.

The spirit of your home is what you make it, war or no war. It is for you to give courage to your own people, and take courage from them. The crisis of a war CAN be a means of disuniting and disorganizing a family, or it can increase interest and affection in the home circle and bring its members closer together.

Nowadays Mother, Dad, sons and daughters are keeping odd hours, busy with tiring pursuits. Nowadays shopping is a nuisance, tiring and discouraging, and planning meals is too much for any one person to handle. Unless everyone understands the changed conditions, and will cooperate, there is household chaos. No meat in the markets, no maid in the kitchen, nobody's business to answer the telephone and put away the laundry—life has grown just a little too difficult and everyone is cross.

Afternoon Tea Solves Problem.

"I helped solve this problem with afternoon tea," writes Erna White of St. Louis.

"My family," her letter goes on, "consists of six members, all of different ages and occupations. My daughter Jean, 27, works in a munitions plant from midnight to eight. Her daughter Sonia, six, goes to school. Doretta, my son's young wife, is with us, expecting a baby. Both son and son-in-law get home occasionally from their respective services for leave. Also there is my younger son, 15, in high school, my husband and myself. My husband works from nine to five in a department store; little Frank, who is six feet two, has a magazine route, and takes main charge of one of the finest little victory gardens you ever saw.

"Some months ago I realized that we were gradually growing uncomfortable at home, and I sat down and faced the situation squarely. The trouble was that we weren't ORGANIZED.

"Well, I began with Jean, who gets home oily, tired, hungry, just as we others are sitting down to breakfast. I persuaded her, instead of dropping wearily into a chair and hurrying her meal, to get upstairs, take a hot bath, get into nightgown and wrapper and come down again. Her room was always ready and darkened, with the bed turned down, and she slept, after breakfast, until one or two o'clock.

Busy Day in White Home.

"Young Frank is instructed to air his room and hang up his things; Doretta, my son's wife, and I get Sonia and Frank off to school with their lunches, and put the bedrooms into perfect order. Then we descend to the kitchen and dining room and start on breakfast dishes and meal planning. We find that to have the upstairs rooms in order is more restful than leaving them until the kitchen work is done. Often I can lie flat for an hour before going to the hospital at 12. I get home at six;

ORGANIZATION ON THE HOME FRONT

Conflicting hours which bring members of the family home at different times, housekeeping tasks not finished because mother is at war work, and the general restlessness caused by a war—these and other factors can easily cause discord within a family unless they are overcome by intelligent organization. The unity of all family members in an effort to keep up morale is necessary in these days. This week a mother relates how she got her family running smoothly despite wartime problems and how afternoon tea has played a big part in her planning.

as do both Franks; Sonia and the girls have set the table nicely and perhaps started supper. But we have tea first and dine at eight.

"Tea in this case doesn't always mean real tea; it means 'light refreshment.' Orange or tomato juice, fruit, a cup of jellied or hot soup according to the season, a plate of sandwiches or cookies with milk, crackers and cocoa on a bitter cold afternoon—these are set out on the sitting room table, and we all sit down and rest for half an hour, nibbling, drinking and chatting. Then everyone scatters to freshen up, and an hour later we all dine together.

"Other rules are the placing of things for the cleaner on the hall table on a certain morning, or else they simply don't go. Nobody has to hunt up Doretta's sweater or Frank's white trousers. Young Frank must do his homework between seven and eight, little Sonia sweeps the steps and sidewalks every morning of her life. And every night, at ten, we listen to radio or recorded music, and catch up on mending. This last was hard to establish. Everyone was sleepy, stupid, lazily busy with books or card games. But I insisted, and now everyone looks forward to this peaceful closing hour, when buttons and tapes are replaced, rips in sheets and hanging hems are put in order, and the precious stockings are darned. There is something domestic and reassuring about women sewing and talking together under the evening lamps, and the men like it as much as we do. The kitchen is quiet and dark, the dining table set for breakfast, the fresh vegetables stored in a cool laundry tub, letters from the absent sons are cheerful, and the approaching arrival of a new little member of the family keeps our thoughts on the happier future.

Confusion Under Earlier Plans.

"A year ago nerves were beginning to crack. Housework was everyone's job and nobody's job. Dust and dishes were everywhere; clean clothes weren't put away; dirty clothes didn't get to the laundry. Doretta and Jean and I floundered helplessly in the accumulating disorder.

"Sonia loitered about 'to see Mummy' until she was late for school, and big Frank and I came home so tired and ravenous that dinner made us feel wakeful and uncomfortable half the night. Our afternoon tea solves this problem. It is a break between the weariness of the day and the dinner and evening hours, and we consider it a great innovation. Anyway," the letter concludes, "things are running very smoothly in our house now, and as I consulted you a year ago about my troubles it seems only fair to let you know that they have disappeared."

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS

Ripe Cherries Make Sweet Jams (See Recipe Below)

Jelly Season's Here!

Think of the good cheer in a sparkling, quivery dish of jelly to go with your golden brown biscuits or rolls in the cold of winter. Do you need more than that to start you on a spree of jelly-making? My guess is no.

There's a great interest in jelly-making in spite of sugar rationing, for many is the smart homemaker who realizes what a spark and zest those little bits of bright-colored jelly can lend to wartime meals. So, go out into the berry patch, and let's get started on a batch of jelly.

Cherries, plums and blackberries are coming into season and make splendid jellies. They're all easy to handle and make nice, rich, luscious jellies:

*Ripe Sweet Cherry Jam. (Makes 7 6-ounce glasses)

3½ cups prepared fruit

4 cups sugar

1 box powdered fruit pectin
To prepare fruit, pit about 2½ pounds fully ripe cherries. Crush thoroughly or grind. If a stronger cherry flavor is desired, add a few crushed cherry pits to fruit during cooking.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure fruit into a 5- or 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary.

Place over a hot test fire. Add powdered fruit pectin. Mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bringing to a full, rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire. Skim. Pour at once into sterilized jelly glasses and paraffin at once.

*Ripe Plum Jelly.

(Makes 7 medium glasses)

3 cups juice

4 cups sugar

1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, crush about 3 pounds fully ripe plums. Do not peel or pit them. Add ¼ cup water, bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag or cloth, and squeeze out juice. Add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again, if there is a slight shortage of juice.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside. Measure juice into saucepan. Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly.

Lynn Says:

Jelly Forum: Pectin is the magic ingredient that makes jam "jam" and jelly "jelly." There must be a just right amount of it. Pectin is a natural jellifying substance found in fruits and berries, but when the fruit or berry is shy on it, a liquid or powdered form of pectin may be added.

Jams and jellies may be kept for various lengths of time, but for best practical purposes it is best not to try to keep them for over a year.

Melt paraffin for jelly in a small pot over boiling water. Paraffin should not be smoking hot because it might lend a disagreeable odor to the jelly or jam.

It's possible to put up fruit juice to be made into jelly later if you do not have enough sugar to do it during the summer. Prepare fruit according to directions given in the jelly recipes but do not add water to the recipe. Squeeze the juice in a jelly bag if it is for jelly. Fill hot sterile jars with juice and process in a boiling water bath for 20 minutes.

Blackberry and Sour Cherry Jam. (Makes 8 medium glasses)

3½ cups prepared fruit

4½ cups sugar

1 box powdered fruit pectin
To prepare fruit, crush thoroughly about 1 quart fully ripe blackberries. Pit 1 pound fully ripe cherries. Crush thoroughly or grind. Combine fruits. Measure fruit into a kettle, filling last fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour sugar in at once, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

You'll enjoy pickles, too, for your winter menu pickups. I've found some perfectly delightful recipes for you which will not take too much sugar—just in case you want to use most of the sugar on jams and jellies. Remember that you must use a pure apple cider vinegar and good, firm, fresh cucumbers to get nice, crisp pickles:

*Cucumber-Raisin Pickles

4 cups sliced cucumbers

1 cup salt

1 cup white vinegar

1 cup sugar

6 tablespoons raisins

1 tablespoon celery seed

1 tablespoon mustard seed

Soak cucumbers overnight in salt solution made of 1 cup salt to 1 gallon water. Drain. Combine remaining ingredients and heat to boiling. Add cucumbers. Boil 10 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal at once.

*Ripe Cucumber Sweet Pickles.

8 large ripe cucumbers

½ pound stick cinnamon or oil of cinnamon

1 ounce cloves (or oil of cloves)

1½ pints vinegar

3 pounds sugar

Paraffin the cucumbers, quarter. Take out seeds and cut quarters into medium-sized pieces. Scald in salted water (2 tablespoons salt to 1 quart water). Drain and simmer in clear water until they are tender but firm. Drain well. Tie the spices in a bag and boil them with vinegar and sugar for 5 minutes. Pour this mixture over cucumbers, cover jar and set away. Next day pour off syrup and boil for 10 minutes, then pour over cucumbers again. Flavor is improved by repeating the process several times.

With last heating, place pickles in clean, sterilized jars, cover with hot solution and seal at once.

Like fruit drinks for winter? You can make delicious nectars out of fruits easily and use them when fresh fruit juices are no longer available:

*Peach Nectar.

Select sound, ripe fruit. Peel and crush. Combine 4 cups fruit with 3 cups water and heat slowly to simmering. Press through colander, then through fine sieve. To each pound of fruit pulp and juice, add ¼ pound of sugar. Bring to simmering temperature. Stir until sugar is well dissolved. Pour into clean, sterile jars. Put on cap. Process 30 minutes in a water bath at simmering temperature (180 degrees F).

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When washing out glass or pressed glass articles, apply the sudsy water with a small hand brush. It gets the soapy water into the crevices and removes dust which dulls the brilliancy of the glass.

Tomatoes canned with the pulp and seeds contain food value not saved in tomato juice.

For longer service wash cotton garments according to the instructions on the label.

If you buy wool material that isn't preshrunk, it's wise to steam-press it to shrink it before cutting out a garment.

Mending a small snag or rip before an article goes into the washing machine may save a larger patch later on.

A little starch added to the water with which mirrors are washed will remove soil and give a polish to the glass.

Save colored bottles that beverages come in and use them for holding trailing vines, sprays or other greenery. They add a note of color to glass shelves in windows or in flower racks.

Have you ever tried drying the dishes with twin dish towels? A fresh dry towel in each hand disposes of them in the proverbial twinkling of an eye.
