George McKay of Hartford was with his family for a few days. Webster Talmadge of West Orange, N. J. was at his home here for a short time.

Mrs. Drago of Milford, mother of Mrs. Donald Powers, is visiting her for awhile.

Glen Call, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Call, of Hartford, was with relatives for the weekend.

David Sylvester is another soldier home on leave. He is home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sylvester.

We have with us this week soldiers, sailors and a Sea Bee, home on furloughs and leaves. Soldiers are William Korkonis, who is visiting his father, Tony Korkonis; John Lindsay, who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lindsay; Donald Sweeney, who with his family were in town for a day. Sailors are Donald Powers, who is visiting his wife; Robert Wilson and a friend visited his mother, Mrs. Mary K. Wilson. The Sea Bee is Ivan Clough, who is visiting his wife and family.

ANTRIM LOCALS

Charles H. Brown, P. 1/c, U. S. N. R., has returned to Camp Peary in Williamsburg, Va., after having spent a ten-day furlough with his parents and friends in town. He was formerly employed by the Fellows Gear Shaper Co. in Springfield, Vt., and concluded his services there to enlist in the Seabees, being the first to enter that branch of the Navy from this town.

NOTICE

Beginning Saturday, November 20th, the Public Service Company office at Antrim will be closed Saturday afternoons until further notice.

ANNUAL ARMISTICE BALL AT HENNIKER FRIDAY NITE

Legion will sponsor annual event at Cogswell High School.

Henniker, Lawrence C. Davis Post American Legion, will conduct their annual ball in Cogswell Memorial hall Friday, Nov. 12. Music will be furnished by ZaZa Ludwig's orchestra for dancing from 8 to 1 o'clock. Commander Clements is in charge of events with Past State Commander Doon as floor marshal, the high school will have charge of refreshments and the check room. Men or women of the armed forces will be admitted free.

Antrim Couple Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary

On Nov. 2, Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Brown observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. They were married in New Boston Nov. 2, 1893 by Rev. Hartnell J. Bartlett of the Baptist church of that town. They were both born in New Boston and lived there until 1913 when they came to Antrim. They have three daughters, Mrs. Lillian Grant of Manchester, Mrs. Maud Foote who makes her home with them, and Mrs. Mildred Dufraim of Hancock. All three were at home for the day, which was passed quietly because of Mr. Brown's illness. Also present were several grandchildren and friends from Manchester, Wilton and Antrim. Dinner was served by the three daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Brown received many gifts besides flowers and cards. The best wishes of their friends for many more happy days were extended to them.

MOLLY AIKEN CHAP. D. A. R. OBSERVES GUEST NIGHT

About fifty members and guests gathered in the vestry of the Baptist church on Friday evening, Nov. 5th, for the annual guest night of Molly Aiken Chapter D. A. R.

The program opened with the presentation of the colors, the pledge of allegiance, and the singing of the national anthem.

Greetings were extended by the Regent, Mrs. Johnson, followed by brief remarks by officers and chapter chairman, during which they told of their work in the local chapter, as well as the work of the state and national organizations.

Two violin solos were played by Mr. William Nay, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Stanley Spencer.

The Bachelor's Reverie, a pantomime, was presented. Mrs. Alice Hurlin was the reader, Mr. Spencer accompanist, Mr. Donald Madden, bachelor, assisted by several young ladies.

During the social hour games were enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostesses.

THREE DAIRY MEETINGS FOR HILLSBOROUGH COUNTY

Three dairy meetings will be held in Hillsborough County during the week of Nov. 15 as follows: Monday evening, Nov. 15, Town Hall, Bedford; Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, Grange Hall, Bennington; Wednesday evening, Nov. 17, Community House, Milford. Each meeting will start at 7:45 p. m.

Prof. H. C. Moore of the Dairy Department, U. of N. H., and L. A. Johnson, Extension Dairyman, will attend each of these meetings. Talks will be given on the need for maintaining milk production, feed supplies and feeding adjustments, care of the herd under wartime conditions, and the newer method of milking.

Similar meetings are being held throughout the state. Dairymen have many problems these days on how to handle their herds with the short grain supplies, shortage of labor, etc. It should pay you to attend one of these meetings.

"THE CLOTHES LINE"

The postoffice is urging early mailing of Christmas packages on account of lack of employees to handle any rush. They should be sent at least 3 weeks ahead of time anyway, and earlier for distant points.

Early buying also will eliminate the store congestion which help shortage is making a serious problem. So, if you want to get any kind of goods and any kind of service and want your package delivered on time... better start shopping now.

Our Christmas lines are in stock although as yet we haven't had time to get them in the window display. Because these goods were ordered months ago, their delivery has been most complete. You will be pleasantly surprised at the large assortment which we have fortunately assembled in spite of prevailing shortages.

Please help us and yourself, too, by getting your gifts as early as possible. TASKER'S

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Prescott went to Grenier Field in Manchester, Saturday afternoon, to attend a memorial service held to honor seven young men from New Hampshire who gave their lives for this country, among them Staff Sergeant Paul Prescott. Mr. Prescott was presented with the air medal and oak leaf cluster awarded to his son. These medals were presented by a high ranking army officer. There was music by a military band and troops passed in review before the members of the seven families.

The Auxiliary met with Mrs. Marjorie Madden Monday evening. Miss Dorothy Nylander who will enter the WAVES on Nov. 18, was guest of honor, and a gift of money was presented to her. Pvt. Helen Auger, WAC, was also present, representing a second branch of the women's services. A dainty lunch was served by candlelight by the hostesses, Mrs. Madden and Mrs. Auger. During the business meeting five dollars was voted for the War Chest, and five dollars for the State Christmas Rehabilitation Fund. Gifts will also be sent to the Veterans' Hospital at White River Junction, Vermont.

What We See And Hear

ARMISTICE DAY

By Ruth Taylor

"Here lie we dead because we did not choose
To shame the land from which we sprung.

Life is perhaps no great thing to lose,
But young men think it is,
And we are young."

We, who remember the casualty lists of the last war, walk with ghosts today. Besides the soldiers on our streets, we see those other lads whose lives were far too short, who loved life too greatly to be miserly with it when their country called.

In the Armistice Day pause this year, there will be new heroes to remember. Pearl Harbor, Bataan, Corregidor, Wake Island, Guadalcanal, North Africa, Sicily—before this article appears there will be as many other places all over the globe hallowed by those who could say as did A. E. Housman in the "Epitaph for the Fallen"—"Here lie we dead because we did not choose to shame the land from which we sprung."

They have given their all—and it was so much! Who knows what great things they might have accomplished, what great good might have come to the world if they had been allowed to live, what things they might have created, discovered, invented, taught!

We have to face the fact that before this war is over, thousands upon thousands of these, our finest, will have died. They will be Americans—maybe rich, or poor, maybe Black or White, maybe Protestant, Catholic or Jew; but not German-American, Russian-American, Italian-American; not a "son of the American Revolution," not an immigrant—but just citizens of the United States—Americans who loved their country and its ideals of freedom and equality enough to offer their lives that these ideals of justice and democracy might not perish.

We, too, though we cannot fight, must not "shame the land from which we sprung." We have a duty as binding upon us as that of any soldier as long as this war lasts. Afterwards we have another duty, too—that of seeing to it that they did not die in vain, that the promises made in the Four Freedoms are at last fulfilled for all the people of all the earth, and that those who come after may live as free men, unafraid in a free world.

ANTRIM WOMAN'S CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon the Woman's Club meeting was opened with the flag salute and club collect, after which all joined in singing "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Mrs. Alwin Young was introduced as the new club treasurer, elected by the board, to take the place of Mrs. William Richardson, who has left town. Reports of various committees were given and Mrs. Archie Swett read an account of the call made by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, on the Queen of England. Mrs. Frank Quincy gave a brief report of the district meeting recently held in Troy. The year's budget, which it was voted to adopt, was explained by Mrs. Ross Roberts. Mrs. Quincy was elected to represent the club in the recreational program which is being planned for the town, the aim being to have a directing group made up of representatives from all the town organizations. It was announced that Guest Night will come on Friday, November 19.

Mrs. Henry C. Arwe, district chairman, and Mrs. Carl C. Pearson, district publicity chairman, both of Keene, were present and gave brief talks.

Stanley Spencer sang "Were You There?" having selected that particular number because of its close relationship to the book review which followed. Rev. Harrison L. Packard told something of the life of Lloyd Douglas, author of "The Robe," explaining how the book happened to be written and then giving a very fine review of the book itself.

Tea was served by Mrs. Frank E. Wheeler and her committee and a social hour enjoyed.

Terrific Air Attacks Spur Allied Drive Against Nazis on Central Italian Front; Moscow Conference Offers Blueprint For Lasting Peace in Postwar World

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

An Allied transport is shown rumbling over pontoon bridge thrown up by American engineers across the Volturno river in Italy.

EUROPE: Blast Communications

Roaring over France's once paradisaical Riviera, Flying Fortresses took pot-shots at communications lines shuttling troops between southern France and northern Italy.

As their heavy bombers smashed far back of German lines, Allied troops slowly drew up for their next assault on Nazi mountain positions in central Italy.

As the Allies edged forward, the Germans snuggled deeper into their new posts along the 2,500-foot high Massico ridge facing Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army on the west, and the rugged country confronting Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth Army to the east.

Italian King on Spot

Noted for his political tight-rope walking, King Victor Emmanuel of Italy now threads a very shaky line, with the new democratic forces in the country demanding his abdication.

Prince Vittorio

Led by former foreign minister and refugee Count Carlo Sforza, Italy's democratic elements have expressed approval for setting up King Victor's six-year-old grandson, Prince Vittorio Emmanuel, as the nominal monarch, with a regent like Marshal Badoglio to represent him until he comes of age.

Chief objection to King Victor is that he not only allowed Mussolini to come into power, but that he also supported him throughout his administration, renouncing him only when it appeared Italy would lose the war and the smart thing to do would be to jump onto the Allied bandwagon.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Last Step

Gen. Douglas MacArthur took the final step toward driving the Japanese from eastern Australasia with a massive attack designed to clear the enemy from the big air and sea base of Rabaul in New Britain.

Feeder point for Japanese forces in the Solomons and New Guinea, and nerve center for enemy resistance in the whole eastern Australasian area, Rabaul stood threatened as U. S. forces spilled over into the remaining Nipponese holdings in the Solomons, which flank the base and offer means for harassing any Allied force attempting to move against the big pivotal position.

Occupation of the Treasury Islands heralded MacArthur's drive in the Solomons to cut off Rabaul. Then, U. S. troops landed on the last two important Jap strongholds of Choiseul and Bougainville, with units of the enemy fleet and air force offering resistance.

SUBSIDIES: Asked by FDR

Declaring that government subsidies are comparatively cheap for (1) stimulating production of certain necessary and select crops; (2) preventing inflationary tendencies, and (3) encouraging sale of food through ordinary channels instead of black markets, President Roosevelt asked congressional approval for his food subsidy program.

By use of subsidies, the President said, food prices can be kept at lower levels than if processors, distributors and retailers were each permitted to mark up their margins. Failure to provide stabilization through subsidies, he said, would bring about justifiable demands for increased wages.

Use of subsidies to stabilize prices is presently costing the U. S. 800 million dollars a year, the President said. Of the sum, 450 million dollars is being used to maintain meat and butter prices by subsidizing the producer.

Mr. Roosevelt answered the demand for a food czar by asserting that the different duties of the War Food Administration and Office of Price Administration made consolidation of the two bureaus impractical.

What People Are Doing

When Ensign George Swiggart Miles appeared for duty at the navy department in Washington, D. C., he reported to his mother, Lieut. Amy Brown Miles, in charge of officer personnel.

A gold prospector from Leadville, Colo., bewhiskered F. E. Gimlett, broke into a meeting of the house ways and means committee study.

ing new taxation. "I want congress to put the WACs and WAVES back in the kitchen with pots and pans and babies," he stormed, before he was led from the room.

After calling every available non-father in LaPlata county, Colo., to service, draft board clerk John Craig put his name at the top of the induction list for fathers. Craig's job went to his wife, and no sooner was she sworn in, than she summoned him to report for induction. They have four children.

RUSSIA: Surge Into Crimea

Taking no time to catch their breath, Russia's marching Red legions stormed into the Crimea, the great body of land off the southern Ukraine commanding the Black sea routes.

Lost to Russia after the fall of Sevastopol in 1942, the Nazis primarily have used its former luxurious resorts as health havens for wounded soldiers. When it fell to Germany, 200,000 Russians were killed or captured, and the exact number of Nazis remaining is unknown, since that depends on the proportion that could be evacuated while rearwards fought bitter delaying actions at Melitopol.

Farther to the north, German rearwards battled fiercely in the Krivoi Rog area to hold off the Russians while the Nazis withdrew from the great bend of the Dnieper river.

CIO: 5 1/4 Million Members

Growth of the CIO to over 5 1/4 million members increased the ranks of organized labor to over 12 million, what with AFL strength estimated in excess of seven million.

Philip Murray

Announcement of CIO membership was made by its president, Philip Murray, at the opening of the CIO's sixth constitutional convention in Philadelphia, Pa. To the 5 1/4 million members, the CIO will add two million more in the coming year. Murray said.

As the CIO delegates convened, they heard a message from President Roosevelt, in which he said that although the movement of workers to new manufacturing centers was desirable during the early phases of the production program, stabilization of employees at their present occupations was now essential.

TOKENS: For Rationing

The tokens that will be substitutes for ration coupons for small purchases were described by the Office of Price Administration as being made of fiber, and between a nickel and a quarter in size. They are colored red or blue, with orange edges, it was said. Red tokens will be used for meat purchases, and blue for processed foods. The new system will go into effect in February.

Washington Digest

Politics Seen as Key in Farm Subsidy Problem

Acceptable Compromise Lacking; Presidential Veto Forecast for Any Bill Banning Use Of 'Economic Stimulant.'

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

The administration is in the midst of one of its fiercest contests to "hold the line" against stabilization. It is the old question of subsidies for farm products and it looks like a fight to the death. The house agriculture committee, with Representative Steagall and others swinging over to the Republican side, is backing the bill which would renew the appropriations for the Commodity Credit corporation and cut out the subsidies to processors, distributors and some direct cash aid to farmers. The present legislation expires in January. A presidential veto is taken for granted for any bill banning the use of subsidies. Administration supporters believe that such a veto can be sustained, but they see a tough, bitter fight ahead.

The key to the whole difficulty is violent partisanship. Successful politics is like successful living—in the family, in the community, in the world—it depends on the ability to compromise. In this fight, there seems to be no one able to work out an acceptable compromise. Already the feeling is bitter.

Cost of Living

Complicating the problem is, as usual, labor's insistence that the cost of living has gone up higher than statistics show, that the Little Steel formula is no longer a fair yardstick for wage increases since decisions of the War Labor board, plus insistence of the director of stabilization, hold down wages while the administration has not carried out its promises to roll back the living costs.

The farm organizations and the processors and the distributors oppose the roll-back. They don't put it that way. They say they oppose subsidies for rolling back consumer prices. They argue that subsidies to increase production and support prices in a free market are all right—and are horses of another color. The President sees no difference. Subsidies which permit the government to buy up commodities or make loans at a minimum price when the market price dips below that figure are all right, say the farm bloc, but they claim, the "new" subsidies go further than that in that they mean payments direct to the processor and distributor and also buying and selling by the government. This, they claim, is in itself inflationary because it means payments out of the treasury. They say they don't believe that the money will get back to the farmer, that it means "grocery bills paid by the government," with very little real saving to the consumer, and finally, which is the real rub, it means too much government control.

Food Contribution

The other day when I stepped into the broadcasting studio just as the Farm and Home Hour had ended, I found some cookies, some Brown Betty and a meat loaf sandwich waiting. These samples had been saved from a more elaborate layout of good things made with soy beans which had been the subject of the F & H broadcast.

I ate them with pleasure. Although the meat loaf was 25 per cent soy grits, it tasted exactly like meat to me. The cookies and the Brown Betty were excellent.

Soy flour and soy grits—the bread had some soy flour in it—are both on the market ready to contribute vitamins, mineral, protein, vim and vigor to our food, reducing the consumption of scarcer and more expensive products. A saving of from 20 to 25 per cent in meat and still having almost identical food values is nothing to be sneezed at.

Soy, it is pointed out, is not a substitute but a supplement to other foods and you would be surprised how many tasty dishes can be produced with it. The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics has a handy little pamphlet containing recipes, and you can get one by writing to the bureau, care of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

There are recipes for mint loaf, chile con carne, suggestions for use of soy with vegetables when they are served as a main dish; soy in sauces and mixed with cereals to give a richer protein diet—many suggestions for making what you have go further and accomplish more.

A Letter

Frankly, when I get a letter that makes me real mad, I sometimes mention it on the air. I shouldn't ever do it, I suppose, because I usually get a flood of sympathy which perhaps I don't deserve but one of the best replies I ever had was from a man in Spearfish, S. D., who wrote to me as follows:

"Each morning at 11 a. m. MWT, I tune you in. Now, I may be mistaken, yes it seems to me that at times you think some of the letters you receive are 'hitting below the belt' which has always been considered cowardly and unjustified. But in a great many cases, if we don't hit below the belt, we just make a total miss as it seems that some of the stuff that is put out for us to follow shows that there is NOTHING above the belt to hit at."

BRIEFS... by Baukhage

Nazi occupation authorities in Holland have even cut the Dutch horse-meat ration one-third. The weekly meat ration coupons, which used to be good for 150 grams of horse-meat, now are good for only 100 grams, or about two ounces, according to a report published in a German language daily in Holland. The cut means a great deal to the Dutch, whose living standards have lowered.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS HAS PLENTY TO KEEP IT BUSY

WASHINGTON.—As this is written congressional leaders are planning to quit until January, allowing a six or eight-week mid-war vacation for themselves.

They have been saying (not very loudly, of course) there is little important legislation to be handled before the big appropriation bills come up in January, and that the trouble with the country now is, there are too many laws.

No more important work could be done than to have the members of each congressional committee assigned to meet daily from now until January solely in search of waste in expenditures. An earnest effort might save billions.

Example: The Breakers hotel at Palm Beach, huge, world-famous, was taken over by the war department a year ago at an annual rental of $350,000. The rent, of course, was not made public, nor has any mention been made of the detailed use to which the hotel has been put, excuse for its acquisition was that it would be used as a hospital. Now, nearly a year later, approximately $900,000 has been spent on it, I understand, but only three floors have been occupied and never has the place accommodated more than 150 patients.

The waste is obvious, colossal, inexcusable, every cent of that money could have been saved by using vacant civil hospital space in that area.

A week ago, the army site board had a meeting at the Breakers and decided to make this lavish, rich man's hotel into a permanent army hospital, although a few miles away at Boca Raton, the army already is paying $50,000 a year rent for a project which would make an inexpensive and ideal substitute. The Boca Raton club has about 400 rooms, spacious grounds on the ocean, low rental, and is quiet. The army, apparently, always does things the hard way.

This incident no doubt can be duplicated a million times in a million different phases of the war effort. The details of such waste naturally are not publicized by the army, in fact are covered by supposedly military censorship, although no military information is involved. Only if congressional committees start pursuing inept officials may the truth be known.

With taxes nearing the endurable limit and repeated bond drives necessary to raise money for the vast expenditures (amounting to $277,400,000 a day in September), the necessities of economy assume an importance beyond any other pending subject.

The appropriations committees have hired additional clerical help to sift expenditures for waste, but the drive for economy has lacked the energy necessary to make it mean something substantial. This is a job not for one committee or clerk, but for the whole congress represented on every committee, dealing with civilian as well as military expenditures.

Other duties will be shirked if congress slips away. Appearance of CIO's Philip Murray seems to have slowed down or stopped the movement for a sales tax, at least temporarily, but something should be done about the present incomprehensible tax system. Congress cannot just go away and let the tax complexities gather dust on the committee desk.

The question of food subsidies also must be straightened out. A compromise settlement between congress and the administration probably will have to be made.

The lend-lease investigation must be ardently pursued. Congress does not lack business, but rather the will to work out the business it should do.

INVASION OF BURMA

Our heavy bombings in Burma have caused a general expectation of invasion. True, the Indians and Chinese have been training and building armies for some time for the purpose. But invasion will require an enormous store of equipment which can be accumulated only gradually. Comments from India are apt to be more accurate. They suggest our air activity is directed mainly toward breaking up an expected Jap attack on India. The Japs recently moved a considerable force from east to west Burma, as if to threaten an attack.

Guiding fact to be remembered about the Stalin-Hull news from Moscow is that the Russian newspapers exist, not primarily for the purpose of giving out news, but to further the interests of the Soviet government. Commenting upon the trend of the talks, therefore, probably will remain quite useless until official announcements are issued afterward by the participants. Mr. Hull is primarily interested in trade, not in military matters, and Russia will need goods of every character after the war.

HIGHLIGHTS... in the week's news

ENEMY ALIENS: Since Pearl Harbor, 7,884 enemy aliens have been interned or paroled after a hearing. Attorney General Biddle reveals. That is more than half of the 14,738 persons seized as potentially dangerous. Biddle says that 3,771 aliens have been interned, of whom 1,863 are German, 1,798 Japanese, and 111 Italians. A few Hungarians and Rumanians are held.

GROUND GAINER: The Notre Dame football team is establishing a new mark for ground gaining. The average is now about 485 yards a game. The army team is close behind with 434 yards.

SLEEPERS: Soldiers will soon travel across country in new triple-deck sleeping cars, the Pullman company announces.

Appliance Trouble?

CALL YOUR REPAIRMAN

BUT

DON'T OVERLOAD YOUR WASHER

Don't try to rush through the family wash. Overloading strains the motor and mechanism. This strain leads to breakdowns.

DON'T PULL CORDS

Take a firm grasp on the plug, and pull it out quickly. Never grab the wire and yank it out. . . your cord can stand so much, no more!

KEEP IRON CLEAN

After using your iron and it has cooled off, wipe the sole plate with a damp cloth. If, however, your iron shows signs of overheating, have it inspected by our repairman.

DON'T OVERLOOK REFRIGERATOR

Don't overstuff it. Keep it working properly by giving it air room. Never put hot food in it . . . defrost it regularly.

GRANGE CONFERS DEGREES

Wyoming Grange met in Osborne Memorial hall. Following a business meeting the third degree was conferred in charge of Mrs. Mildred Hall, and the fourth degree was conferred on two candidates. A program was presented under the direction of the master, Mrs. J. Arlene Porter, and the overseer, Mrs. Hazel Philbrick. Lunch was served. The next meeting will be held on Nov. 17, at which time officers for 1944 will be elected and a Thanksgiving program will be presented.

Juveniles Hold Meeting

Wyoming Juvenile grange met in Osborne hall. A program included singing by the Grange, a reading by Donald Smith, songs by Louise Philbrick and Eleanor Moody and vocal solos by Raeline and Janice Wood. A special feature in charge of the matron, Mrs. Hazel Philbrick, was won by Donald Smith. The next meeting will be held on the afternoon of Nov. 17, featuring election of officers.

Pfc. Wallace Wood, stationed in North Carolina, is spending a 10-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood here.

Cpl. Robert A. Eastman, stationed in California, was a weekend visitor of his father, A. D. Eastman. Cpl. Eastman is attached to the Army Air Forces.

A weekend party with about 15 in attendance was recently held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Regan in Riverdale. There was an observance of birthdays by five of the group. In attendance were friends from Belmont, Mass., Keene and Lacombe.

The third and fourth degrees were conferred on candidates at the meeting of Bear Hill Grange which was presided over by the master, Mrs. Joseph Fisher. The third degree was in charge of Mrs. Andrew Fowler and the fourth degree was in charge of Charles N. Flanders. Election of officers will be held at the next meeting. A lunch was served in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Leon O. Cooper.

The fire department was called out about 8 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon for a fire in the garage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jolly at Colby's Crossing. A passing car drove to Chase Village, Weare, to notify the fire department. Much time was also lost due to the difficulty in getting at a nearby brook behind the house. An explosion from the garage where a newly purchased coupe was kept, was the first indication of a fire. It is reported that the car had three tires which had just been retreaded. Everything, including the garage was a total loss. The property is owned by Gene Levesque. The rains during the day were a help in saving the house which was close by.

Class officers have been elected at school as follows: seniors, president, Richard McLeod; vice president, Harold Ayer, Jr.; secretary and treasurer, Durwood French; class advisor, C. Wayne Hancock. On The Street By Scruton Victory Minstrels to be presented in Child's Opera House on Thursday evening, Nov. 25, and at the Cogswell Memorial Auditorium in Henniker on Nov. 26, promises to eclipse anything of the kind seen in the two communities in recent years.

There is nothing quite like a minstrel show to attract a crowd of people and it appears that you will get your money's worth if you see and hear this show of shows.

Major Warren C. Brown is sparing neither time nor effort to put the show across in a manner which can not fail to please and every dollar taken in goes towards a fund for the boys and girls in the service, your sons and daughters, husbands, brothers, sisters and sweethearts, so when the high school boys and girls solicit you for a ticket won't you please assist a worthy cause. Plan to, so that nothing will interfere with your being present on one of the two nights or both.

You will see a really beautiful chorus and you will hear them sing just as beautifully, some of the newer songs and the older ones. You will see the black faced circle, hear new jokes, and appreciate the ten fine specialty numbers that are being provided for your entertainment. It is a two and a half hour show filled with fun and frolic and the director is certain that no jokes will offend even the most critical patron. It's clean, full of pep and the entire cast is working hard to put the show across and make you like it.

Bill Dumais, chairman of the committee, is working overtime trying to get everything shipshape and his job is not exactly a Sunday School picnic either. Deering of course will be included with the Hillsboro boys and girls in the pro rata pay off. As an example of the splendid cooperation Henniker sent up 20 young people for the first rehearsal and our local group consisted of only ten, but this week Wednesday we will have the entire group there if possible. Tell your friends about the show and come yourself. Remember the date, Thursday, Thanksgiving Day in Hillsboro and the following night in Henniker.

If your soldier or sailor boy is home bring him along as an honored guest. Next week more details and a resume of the program.

GRANITE STATE GARDENER

ARTIFICIAL MANURE

I have had a number of questions lately in regard to making artificial manure, especially with advertised preparations. If manure is made according to the directions given for these materials, it will probably be all right, but it is a lot easier for people to use materials which they have on hand, perhaps, than to buy patented products. Perhaps an explanation of how artificial manure is made might help you in picking your materials.

In the first place the highly carbonaceous materials such as corn stalks, dried hay, and leaves are broken down by bacterial action. Apparently the process of feeding bacteria is very similar to feeding hay to a cow and the end products very similar. The food they eat comprise forms of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. However, the bacteria cannot live on the small amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash which are in leaves, corn stalks, and other refuse matter of similar nature and they have to be added. A compost pile, therefore, might be built up with one pound of pure hen droppings to ten pounds of dried hay, or you might use a pound of horse manure to about three to five pounds of dried leaves or hay. If you would rather use chemicals, a mixture of a pound of nitrate of soda or some other high nitrogen fertilizer and superphosphate used at the rate of one pound of this mixture to about twenty-five pounds or so of dried leaves will furnish sufficient food for the bacteria and will cause the compost pile to rot down in a comparatively short time.

A Missouri bulletin suggests putting a bin on the blower of the thrashing machine which will feed 150 pounds of the following fertilizers to a ton of straw: 22½ pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 67½ pounds of superphosphate, 60 pounds of ground limestone. The straw is piled to a depth of about six or eight feet in the open in July. By December one ton of straw will have made two and a half tons of excellent manure according to this bulletin.

OPA Urges Immediate Endorsement of New A Coupons

Immediate endorsement of all coupons in the new gasoline A ration book is one way in which every New Hampshire motorist can protect himself against black market gasoline transactions, Russell B. Larmon, state director of OPA emphasized this week.

"The significant fact about the black market is how easily this drain on New Hampshire's gasoline supply can be prevented by the cooperation of honest motorists and honest dealers," Mr. Larmon emphasized.

"Cooperate with your dealer. If he takes only properly endorsed coupons from properly issued gasoline ration books, no counterfeit coupons will come into his possession. That is why he has been told by his supplier and by his government not to accept loose coupons.

"Endorse your coupons. Do it now. Don't make it harder for your filling station operator to do his duty. If you, the honest motorists and gasoline dealers of New Hampshire, will prevent violations caused by ignorance or indifference," the OPA chief insisted, "then our Enforcement Division can concentrate on protecting your gasoline from the few really dishonest black market racketeers."

George A. Peirce is OPA Rationing Attorney

George A. Peirce of Boscawen is the rationing attorney for the Office of Price Administration in New Hampshire, taking the place of Charles H. Barnard who was inducted into the army last summer, the OPA has announced.

Mr. Peirce joined the OPA in New Hampshire last January as associate enforcement attorney. In recent weeks he has been acting rationing attorney, assisted by Richard M. Ryan of Nashua, rationing attorney with the Regional Office of OPA in Boston. In his new position Mr. Peirce will advise the rationing division of OPA on legal requirements, standards and procedures, and will give advice to the specialists in the State Office charged with particular branches of the program.

Rationing Grows Stiffer as Supplies Decline

Evidence that some aspects of rationing are increasing in severity was shown this week by reductions in the November quotas of tires, automobiles and bicycles, according to Paul E. Sargeant, state rationing executive of the OPA.

Thirty per cent fewer new tires for trucks will be available in November, and drivers will receive 14 per cent fewer tires for passenger cars this month. Automobile quotas are at the lowest figure since rationing began. New Hampshire motorists may buy 56 cars during November. The October quota was 80. Bicycles are particularly scarce and only about one-third of the October quota is available.

"These are the realistic figures upon which three of our rationing programs are based," Mr. Sargeant pointed out. "They indicate difficult times ahead, when more than ever rationing will be necessary to prevent a breakdown in essential transportation."

Filling Stations Penalized, Meat Stores Warned

Owners of five New Hampshire filling stations have consented to suspensions of their right to sell gasoline for periods ranging from one week to six months, after being charged with violations of the gasoline rationing regulations, the N. H. OPA has announced. The gasoline dealers were charged by OPA with accepting invalid and unendorsed gasoline coupons, and with transferring gasoline without accepting coupons.

Meanwhile two dozen New Hampshire meat dealers were warned against further price ceiling violations as the result of a recent check of meat prices throughout the state by OPA investigators. Most of the stores to which warnings were sent were found to have up-graded their meat, according to OPA, and to be offering for sale meat of a poor quality at the ceiling price permitted for meat of a higher quality.

"This is contrary to both the regulations and the purpose of price control," State Director Russell R. Larmon pointed out, "although because many of the violations appeared to be unintentional no rigorous enforcement action is being taken. The stores have been warned and know that our investigators will watch them to assure compliance in the future."

How Would You Like to Pack 735 Christmas Boxes?

As requested by Uncle Sam these were mailed early last month in the hope that most would arrive before Christmas. Last year, in spite of early mailing at least one box was not received until August, demonstrating the Mill's sound judgment in selecting articles that would keep.

Letters of thanks already are coming in. One man writes: "I had a lot of friends the day this box arrived." Another says: "I hope the Mill is still making herringbone twill. We wear it and it reminds us of home. If I had known how badly a guy needs it, I'd have done much more than I did. We sure wear it out fast—this life is hard on uniforms."

These letters come from all parts of this country, from all the fronts and all the services. A few come from hospitals and these are among the most appreciative.

In addition to describing the country and living conditions where they are, many speak of buying bonds, of the improvement of their own health—one says: "I have gained 14 pounds and we certainly are grateful for the fine food which you civilians provide by your sacrifices." Many voice the feelings of the man who writes: "I feel great when I tell the fellows, the mills I worked in sent me this."

Neighbors—

We're Asking You To Help

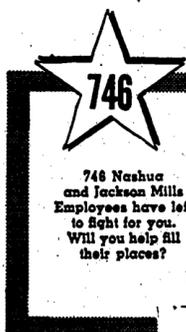

Whenever there's an emergency—a sick child, a bad accident, a new baby—you women have always gotten together and helped out. Today, we're facing the greatest emergency in our existence, and we're calling on you for help! 746 men and women have left our mills to enter the armed forces, and unless they are quickly replaced the production of Herringbone Twill for uniforms for our soldiers will slow down seriously.

The work is clean and interesting; so you can easily find a job to suit you. The wages are good, and we pay you while you're learning.

Why don't you get together with 2 or 3 of your neighbors and see if you can't work something out. Perhaps one of you can get supper for a couple of families while the others work on the 3-11 shift. Maybe two of you could share one 8-hr. shift.

If you're still in school, your classes can be arranged so a couple of you can team up on two 4-hour shifts.

Come in tomorrow and talk it over with us. We need your help, and we're sure that once you understand how much you'll help your country you'll be glad to pitch in and do your bit.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Is It Love or Restlessness?

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

He gave abstracted, sympathetic attention to Helen and the needs of his forlorn brood.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE Millers have one son, Quentin, aged 22. When Quentin was drafted into the army the Millers' hearts broke; they wept, they told their agonized fears to everyone; they might have been the only parents of the only boy who ever was drawn into a war.

Quentin was sent to Maine; presently had two weeks leave. The Millers went to Boston from California at a cost of about a thousand dollars and Quentin came down there and they had ten days together. They saw shows and movies and went to restaurant dinners; Quentin was bored, of course, for he knew no girls of his own age and had no friends in Boston. The Miller parents were bored, too; they couldn't talk camp all the time, prices staggered them, they missed the comfortableness of home and the nearness of friends.

On the train coming home they had a section in a packed car. The chairs in the lounge and club car were rented to weary soldiers. The dressing rooms were cluttered with women filling nursing bottles and setting their hair and even sleeping on the floor. Two meals a day were served, but not to the Millers, for they couldn't get near the dining room. Once they bought some sandwiches and once a box of crackers. At Omaha they managed to get some coffee.

Traveling with them were many soldiers and many women. The soldiers had some reason to be there; the women none. No, the women had neither reason nor right to be there, any more than the Millers had.

Crowds of Sentimental Travelers.
Most of these women were bound on sentimental journeys, as the Millers were. Spurred by the unanswerable thought; "I may not see him again," they were trailing their warriors to the camps, air fields, docks, railway centers. They were making of their emotional crises an excuse to clutter up the travel resources of the entire nation; prevent service men from making necessary journeys; complicate everything for every official along the whole way.

One of these traveling wives landed in a western town a few days ago; I talked to her. She was a weak, pretty creature of about 30; she had come from a town in Iowa, "to see Harry. He's going overseas, I haven't seen him since June and this is September, and of course the children and I may not ever see him again," she said. The children were small, pale boys of five and three, and a baby girl of seven months. All three were dirty, bewildered, hungry, hot, uncomfortable beyond any dream of child torture. They had sat up nights, they had gone without food, they hadn't had baths or quiet beds for a week. They had seen their mother crying and frightened and lost more than once. They had no place to go; anything like provision for her visit, or arrangements, or reservations hadn't ever entered Helen's head. She didn't know how they were to get back to Iowa; she was running out of money.

Well, Harry did come up from San Diego and she saw him for 24 hours. He was absorbed in his great adventure; interested in nothing but his fellow soldiers, his orders, his regiment, his trip. But he gave abstracted, sympathetic attention to Helen and the needs of his forlorn little brood. Charity was called in;

VISITING SOLDIERS AT BUSY CAMPS

Wives who travel via crowded trains to busy army camps to visit their soldier husbands are not displaying true devotion, according to Kathleen Norris. It is not fair to children to carry them on stuffy, overloaded trains that are needed for military men. Meals will not be regular, sleep is lost, and after a long dusty trip, only the dingiest of lodging facilities are usually available. Also, visiting wives and children complicate matters for a busy soldier. He probably would appreciate a long letter much more.

Helen, dirty, tired, all but penniless, smiled appealingly at charity's agent. "I had to see Harry," she said simply. "He mightn't come home."

Trouble for Busy Soldier.
Harry was embarrassed and apologetic. After all, he wasn't in the begging class, and here were four human beings, belonging to him, asking for food, beds, baths, shelter. Crowded temporary quarters were found somehow for the children, although soldiers at that time were sleeping on the marble floors of hotels, and Helen sat up all night in an armchair. Harry sailed the next day; anxious, ashamed, and annoyed. Yes, annoyed. He knew that women and babies have no right to be on trains in wartime, and his last impression of his family was that of an exhausted wife, who had barely enough money to get home, even if all train and bus connections were made promptly, and of three crying, dragged, miserable children.

Now, the railways make other regulations to which we all have to bow. Why don't they make one more? Why don't they prohibit the conveyance of small children for the duration, except of course in cases where families are moving to other jobs or making permanent changes? Thousands of wives, bored by the lonesomeness and dullness of wartime living, get the sudden notion to take the boys and go to Bill's camp and just see him. It isn't devotion, for it gives Bill only an anxious, self-conscious and uncomfortable sort of pleasure at best, if indeed it gives him pleasure at all. Visiting wives and parents complicate matters terribly; there's a war on, Bill is involved in it, and the things of home seem very far away. Nine times out of ten Bill would much more appreciate a long, cheerful letter, accompanied by cigarettes, books, snap-shots or candy.

Family at Camp a Problem.
"Hello, darling, Buster and I had to come to see our Daddy!" says Mabel, all freshened up in a comfort station, suddenly appearing in all the excitement of camp. She is fascinated by everything, but Bill, shouldering Buster, doesn't see it all in the same glamorous light.

"Where are you staying, dear?"
"Well, we don't know. We thought we'd have lunch in the cafeteria, and then find some nice quiet place for Buster's nap. He's fretful because the train was so hot."

Bill reflects that the major's wife, after a three weeks' hunt, has just found four rooms over a garage and is thankfully paying two hundred a month for them.

"Don't you think you've got a smart little wife to come 17 hundred miles in this heat to see you?" Mabel asks happily, walking along beside him.

And what can Bill say, but "yes"?

A fragrant pot of coffee and a few tasty cookies can do the job of entertaining that a dinner once did if there's a spirit of friendliness and plenty of good conversation.

Keep Up Morale, Entertain Simply Even in Wartime

Even if all foods were rationed I'd still say, don't ration hospitality for we need friendly get-togethers, the refreshment and relaxation that being with one's friends gives.

Dinners or entertainments with stupendous foods are out of style at least for the present, but that doesn't mean you can't invite people over for a steaming cup of hot coffee and a few simple but tasty cookies. And, if you want to do things more elaborately, why, it's quite the thing to ask Mrs. Jones to bring over an extra supply of sugar or butter or canned goods if she has them—and is willing to share.

Some time ago progressive diners were quite the fashion. Now again they can become fun. The plan is to serve, let's say three courses, and have each course at a separate home. It's a good idea to have the homes within short walking distance of each other. Serve soup or fruit cocktail at first home, the main course at the next home, and then have dessert and entertainment at the third home. Or, after dessert, the group can plan to go to a movie or concert or to attend some sport in season.

And now for the business of food—with a few points or none at all. Here are cake and cookie recipes which are the cream of the current crop:

Applesauce Cake.
(No icing needed!)
1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 cup applesauce
1 egg
1 teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
1½ cups cake flour

Cream shortening and sugar. Add applesauce and well-beaten egg. Add soda dissolved in water. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Fold in raisins and bake in a greased square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour.

Honey Oatmeal Wafers.
(Makes 16 wafers)
1 egg
½ cup honey
1 cup oatmeal
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Beat egg until light. Add honey, continuing to beat. Then fold in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls, about 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly with a knife dipped in cold water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 10 minutes or until a delicate brown.

Lynn Says:
Hospitality Unrationed: Even if you're doing your entertaining in the kitchen you can do it up right! Use a gay checkered cloth as the background for your table, and a wooden chopping bowl as the centerpiece for fall flowers or highly polished fruits. Set candles in small squashes.

Have everyone help with the dishes after supper and then play old-fashioned games such as slogan contests, food favorites of famous people, food favorites of the family, scramble names of kitchen utensils and have guests unscramble them.

For children's parties, have Mother Goose theme. Children can come dressed as a Mother Goose character and for entertainment have the child read the rhyme he represents.

degree) oven about 10 minutes or until a delicate brown.

A nice type of cookie to have on hand during these times is this one for old-fashioned gingersnaps. The recipe makes 10 to 12 dozen "snaps" and the dough keeps indefinitely in the refrigerator so that it can be used and made up into cookies as needed:

Gingersnaps.
(Makes 10 to 12 dozen)
1 cup molasses
½ cup shortening
¾ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon ginger

Heat the molasses over low heat to the boiling point. Put the shortening in a large mixing bowl, pour the hot molasses over the shortening. Stir until shortening is melted. Sift the flour, ginger, soda and salt together and add to molasses mixture. Mix thoroughly. Form into rolls on slightly floured waxed paper and chill in refrigerator. Slice very thin and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a hot (425-degree) oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Having friends over for dinner? They'll enjoy this light soufflé put together quickly and easily with mushroom soup and chicken.

Chocolate Pinwheels.
(Makes 3½ dozen)
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk, unbeaten
3 tablespoons milk
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again.

Cream butter until light, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough into two parts. To one part, add chocolate and blend. Chill dough until firm enough to roll. Roll each half into a rectangular sheet, ½ inch thick, and place chocolate sheet on top. Then roll as for jelly roll. Chill overnight or until firm enough to slice. Cut into eight-inch slices. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400 degrees) 5 minutes or until done.

A delicious soufflé with a few piping hot biscuits and honey makes a lovely dinner for a chilly night. Simple though it is, it will satisfy your company well.

Thrifty Souffles.
(Serves 6)
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
1 can mushroom soup
1 cup chopped chicken
3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Combine tapioca, salt and mushroom soup, of consistency to serve, in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and stir until mixed. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (250-degree) oven 50 minutes or until soufflé is formed.

American Battle Planes Must Be World's Best, Is Pledge of Designers and Manufacturers

U. S. Air Superiority Result of Constantly Improved Machines

The test of battle—the only valid test of the performance of combat aircraft—has by now resulted in a number of box scores which reveal the pattern of accomplishment of American combat planes.

"In every theater of operations, American airmen and American planes have met the challenge of our enemies and out fought them by scores never worse than two to one in our favor," said Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces. "All types of American fighter planes have shot out of the skies the best interceptors both Germany and Japan have put against them." This has been true since January, 1942, when our planes were outnumbered on practically all fronts.

While much of this favorable fighting ratio is attributable to the excellent training, versatility and courage of our pilots, a good part is traceable to the mechanical superiority of our planes. Constant improvement is the watchword. Even though production schedules must be delayed, our aircraft must be the best possible, say army and navy air corps officers.

Here is a summary of the chief combat planes which have run up the high scores in our favor from a report just released by the Office of War Information:

Fighters

V-type liquid-cooled engines are found in most fighter models because the long, slender shape of a liquid-cooled engine is more adaptable to streamlined fighter design. It allows better vision, and has a smaller frontal area for the same horsepower. But it will be noted that in the P-47, where 2,000 horsepower was desired, an air-cooled engine was used. The same is true of the navy's Vought F4U (Corsair) and the new Grumman F6F Hellcat. The navy uses no liquid-cooled engines.

The navy's fighter program is large. An airplane carrier carries torpedo planes, bombers and fighters, and of these the fighters are needed to protect the other planes and the carrier itself. Fighters also protect land bases. In the South Pacific, army P-39's are doing this latter job along with navy fighters.

In the opinion of the materiel command, the Curtiss P-40, or Warhawk, has reached the limit of its developmental possibilities. It has gone through numerous type changes, the most basic being the P-40F when the engine was changed from Allison to Merlin.

Although the latest model P-39 ceiling and general performance have been improved, the P-39 has shared the climb-deficiency of the P-40. It is being supplanted by a new model now under construction, with a low drag wing and a two-stage Allison supercharged engine which will make it an efficient plane at any altitude up to 38,000 or 40,000 feet. The greatest efficiency of the P-39 models has been below 15,000 feet. Like the P-39, the new plane will be equipped with cannon.

Low Altitude Fighter.
Although superior to the P-40 and P-39, the original P-51 or Mustang is also only a low and medium-altitude fighter. Now in production is a new P-51 with a highly supercharged, Packard-built, Rolls-Royce Merlin engine, similar to the Merlin 61 engine in the newest Spitfires. Its performance is reported as even better than that famous ship's.

The new engine gives the plane the highest ceiling (up to 40,000 feet) and the highest speed (well over 400 miles an hour) of any fighter in existence.

The A-36 (Invader), the fighter-bomber version of the P-51, has seen heavy service in the Mediterranean theater, and its best features are being incorporated in the new P-51, which will replace both the A-36 and the old P-51.

The latest model of the Lockheed P-38 or Lightning is a fast, powerful fighter that has been given greatly increased horsepower in its Allison engine, improved pilot's vision, and improved intercooling for better high-altitude performance. It outperforms the Zero and later Jap fighters at all altitudes.

The P-38 has always possessed the versatility that is coming increasingly to characterize all combat aircraft. It has excelled at low-altitude strafing, high-altitude fighting, and as a particularly long-range bomber escort. Its distinctive silhouette, with its twin tail booms, has been seen over four major fighting fronts. The newest fighter at present in combat, the P-47 or Thunderbolt, has been currently rolling up a score of approximately four to one in its contests with Messerschmitts and high-flying Focke-Wulfs over England, France and the Low Countries. Armed with eight .50 caliber machine-guns, and heavily armor-plated, it is capable of flying over 400 miles an hour and of reaching an altitude of 40,000 feet.

High Scorer for Navy.
The Grumman Wildcat or F4F, a navy fighter, with Pratt & Whitney Twin Wasp air-cooled engine and with folding wings for compact stowage on aircraft carriers, has run up many high scores in Mediterranean. Although the F4F will continue to be manufactured for use on auxiliary carriers and for training, it is now being supplemented by a new plane, the Grumman F6F (Hellcat).

This newest member of the navy's fighter family is described by the navy as "an answer to the prayers of our pilots!"

A big brother of the famous Grumman Wildcat, the Hellcat has better range, speed, climb, maneuverability and altitude. It has a 2,000 horsepower engine as compared with the Wildcat's 1,200. It has a low wing, improved armor, and a new flexible type gasoline tank which is an improvement over the ordinary puncture-proof type. It carries .50 caliber machine guns.

The Corsair or F4U also has a 2,000 horsepower Pratt & Whitney engine and is easily distinguishable by its inverted gull wing. The Corsair has until recently been the chief navy fighter in the South Pacific. Now Hellcats are beginning to join it in large numbers.

Heavy, Four-Engine Bombers.
The newest models of both the Boeing B-17 (Flying Fortress) and the Consolidated B-24 (Liberator) bombers are equipped with new defensive armament in the form of nose turrets with machine gun installations. External bomb-racks can increase the potential bomb capacity of the B-17 to 17,600 pounds. Nevertheless, this plane has a smaller bomb capacity at long range than the B-24. The most accurate comparison, perhaps, is to say that load-

HELLCAT—Successor to the famous Grumman "Wildcat" is the new "Hellcat." It has folding wings, as shown in the picture below, so that it will take up a minimum of space on the deck of a carrier. The Hellcat is a standard fighter now in both the U. S. and British navies. It has more power and climbs faster than the Wildcat.

ed with 2,800 gallons of gasoline the B-17 can carry 6,000 pounds of bombs (the usual load carried over targets in western Europe), whereas the B-24, with 2,900 gallons, can carry 8,000 pounds of bombs. Consequently the B-17 is being concentrated in the western European theater and the B-24 is being used chiefly elsewhere—in the Middle East, in India, China and Australia—for longer range operations. B-24's have made round-trip flights up to 2,600 miles; the raid on the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania from bases in Egypt; the raid on the Messerschmitt works at Wiener-Neustadt, and raids in the Pacific on Wake, Paramushiru and Surabaya. The B-24 is used by the navy under the designation PB4Y-1. Medium, Light and Dive Bombers.

New models of the two-engine Tokyo raider, the North American B-25 (Mitchell), are equipped with heavier armament and possess increased speed and range. The B-25 is the chief medium bomber in the present program, production of the Martin B-26 (Marauder) being tapered off. B-25's, powered with Wright Cyclone engines, are flying on 11 fronts, are used by both army and navy for anti-submarine patrol service, and have scored particular successes with skip-bombing.

The Douglas A-20 (Havoc) is the principal light army bomber in the program until the totally new, advanced light bomber mentioned above comes into production. The newest Havoc, used by the army for low-level bombing, is fitted with a power turret and with armament for ground strafing.

The A-24, army version of the Douglas SBD (Dauntless) dive-bomber, is now being produced in decreasing numbers, chiefly for training purposes.

Grumman Avenger.
The Grumman Avenger, the navy's carrier-based torpedo-bomber, has completely supplanted the Douglas TBD (Devastator). It carries machine guns as well as torpedo or bombs, and has destroyed many Japanese vessels in the Pacific.

Chief among the navy's patrol bombers are three flying boats and two land planes. The land planes are the Consolidated PB4Y-1 and the Vega PV-1. The flying boats are the Consolidated PB2Y (Catalina), Consolidated PB2Y (Coronado), and Martin PBM (Mariner). All three flying boats are used for transport purposes as well as for patrol and bombing operations. The two-engine PB2Y, the oldest, slowest and smallest, the ship which first spotted the Jap forces on the Aleutians, is still being built, still dive-bombing and strafing enemy shipping and rescuing pilots who have been downed at sea.

The four-engine PB2Y has double the horsepower of the PB2Y. The PBM does good work in anti-submarine coastal patrol and long-range reconnaissance. Not even the newest navy flying boats have speeds much above 200 miles an hour, but all are required to be able to land in a choppy sea.

The Vega PV-1 (a navy adaptation of the twin-engine Vega B-34 "Ventura" bomber) is the navy's chief land-based anti-submarine patrol plane. It carries depth charges or a torpedo, is heavily armored, and is now often used in preference to flying boats in anti-submarine operations because of its greater speed.

The Consolidated PB4Y-1 is a four-engine land-based bomber and, as previously mentioned, is used for long-range bombing missions and for anti-submarine patrol work.

Design and Technical Improvements
Aeronautical engineering demands experimentation with numerous designs in order to obtain several high-performance aircraft of the required types.

But on the other hand, the constant improvements being made on models already in use, and the continuing addition of totally new airplanes to our forces, slow down the rate of production. Nevertheless, even at this stage in the war, when clear-cut air superiority over the enemy has been achieved, there is no assurance that the planes which have achieved it are superior to planes which the enemy may produce tomorrow. Changes in strategic and tactical problems, too, and changes of terrain over which fighting takes place, bring with them new demands for aircraft design and equipment. Even planes which have run up high box-scores must be constantly improved and replaced. The make-up of our air fleet has never been static, and is not to become so.

"LITTLE ELBERT"—A DRAMA OF ANY HOME

"I want you to see Elbert; he's a dear. Just five years old next week," said Mrs. Twitchell, as her old friend, Grace Tooker, called. "Elbert!" yelled Mrs. Twitchell. "Oh, El-bert-t!"

There was no answer, beyond something strangely like Choctaw screams among the shrubs. Mrs. Twitchell called again, and after a while Elbert appeared. He was immediately preceded by a crash of glass, as an old tin can full of stones came through the window and landed at Miss Tooker's feet.

"Hand grenade!" exclaimed Little Elbert, as he rushed in, grinning triumphantly.

"Elbert, this is Miss Tooker," began Mrs. Twitchell. "You're dead!" declared the child, addressing that lady and pointing to what he had explained was a deadly weapon.

"Isn't he cute!" said the visitor. "Bang! Bang!" barked Elbert. "I got you right between the eyes."

"Now, Elbert, where are your manners?" asked Mrs. Twitchell. "Boom!" yelled the child, pointing some curious contraption at his mother. "Watch out! It's a bazooka! You're both dead now. Boom! Boom!"

"Stop it, child! Miss Tooker isn't dead and neither am I." "You'd better get back into those foxholes," insisted Elbert. "Brrrr-buzz-z-z-z-whr-rr-rr! Bombers away!"

"Elbert Twitchell, stop that nonsense this minute!" ordered Mrs. Twitchell sternly. "You're in the house now."

"Wham-m-m! Bam-m! House is gone. Direct hit," said Elbert.

Mrs. Twitchell finally got him by an ear and made the child shake hands with Miss Tooker. "Isn't he a fine little man!" said Miss Tooker, unconvincedly.

"Whish-sh-sh!" hissed the child, pulling a piece of hose from his belt and pointing it at both women. "Fall down! It's liquid fish-b! You'll all burn up. Whish-sh-sh!"

"He goes on like that all the time," sighed Mrs. Twitchell. "I know how it is," said Miss Tooker, who felt somewhat battle worn. "There are three little boys next door to our house, and they took Naples 48 hours ahead of the army. One of them broke a leg last week jumping off the barn with a tablecloth for a parachute."

"All they think of is Commando stuff," said Mrs. Twitchell. "Elbert tells us he isn't Elbert Twitchell, he's Elbert Mountbatten."

Just five years old this week, eh? mused Miss Tooker. "On Tuesday."

"I must send him a birthday present."

"I bought him two lovely children's books, 'Triumph Through Fire Power' and 'Skill With the Bayonet.'"

"I saw one in the bookstore window he'll love," said Miss Tooker. "What was it?"

"How to Cripple an Adversary at Close Range," said Miss Tooker. "Ack-ack-ack! Bang! Bang!" came echoing from the back yard, "Ack-ack-ack!"

LINES ON AN OVERWORKED TEAM

"We're working on it" used to be an explanation pat; And "we are looking into it" Was simple, straight and flat; But now a new word's all the rage And swivel chairers purr, To any sort of inquiry, "It's being PROCESSED, sir."

You ask about your fuel-oil book, And seek a "yes" or "no"; "That's being processed" is the gag That ever seems to flow; You cannot get the bare facts on Your milk, gas, coal or meat; "The office is processing it," Comes through the summer heat.

"Hey, what about my two boiled eggs?" You ask a waiter, and "They're being processed," he replies. "I trust you understand;" A phone call takes a half a day—"I'm waiting," you complain; "It's being processed," is the way That central will explain.

One day you kick the bucket and you reach St. Peter's gate; But no one knows about you and you have to stand and wait; But finally it's all explained, As all the angels sing, "We have your application, but We're processing the thing!"

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strains on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body wastes. They're made in a clean, scientific laboratory of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Keeping an Old Cake
 A cake, several days old, will retain its youth if you give it a filling and new frosting. Put a creamy, caramel, nut, or fruit filling in white, yellow, or spice cake and frost with white icing. If the old frosting on cake becomes hard, remove it and freshen up the cake with a new icing.

West Deering School Notes
 We have had perfect attendance for six weeks.

All of us helped out in the War Fund Drive.

Louis Normandin has made a vegetable border for our black-board.

Jean McAlister put on a new Thanksgiving calendar for November on our blackboard.

Mrs. Davis bought us a jigsaw puzzle of South America and one of the United States. She also bought us a World Atlas.

The following pupils received one hundred in their spelling tests on Friday: Lorraine and Gordon Clark and Roland Despres.

On desk inspection day Cecille Despres, Jean McAlister, Lorraine Clark and Louis Normandin had the neatest desks.

Card of Thanks

It is with a feeling of sincere appreciation that I thank all the friends and neighbors who remembered me with cards, flowers and gifts of money on my 81st birthday, November 6th. Their kindness to me will never be forgotten.
 Mrs. Harry Travis

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to sincerely thank all the friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses extended to us during the illness and death of our loved one. Also for the beautiful floral tributes, to the bearers, donors of cars and the expressions of sympathy, and assure them that we greatly appreciate their thoughtfulness.

Miss Jean Beard and friend, Miss Paula Gray, both student nurses at the Margaret Pillsbury hospital, Concord, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beard.

Mrs. Bessie Hearty has joined the W. A. C. She has passed all her tests and been sworn in and is now waiting for her call which she expects will come about December 1st.

Mrs. Hattie Travis was 81 years on November 6. On Sunday her older sister, Mrs. Herbert Brown, cooked a birthday dinner, then she and Mr. Brown took it up to Mrs. Travis and helped her eat it.

Mrs. Paul Felt of Middletown, Conn., was pleased to receive recently a chevron in recognition of her Red Cross service. For four years she has met three half days weekly with her Red Cross unit, for which she has done all the cutting of the many garments they have made.

One day the last of the week I saw a top buggy drawn by a well groomed white horse. Such a sight at the beginning of the century was too common to cause any comment. We thought the first covered buggy my father bought was very stylish and it was not used every day. Years later when I was driving to Antrim in it, I caught one of the wheels in the railroad track at the crossing and smashed it just before the train was due. Somehow we got out of the way, but I never had much use for that buggy afterward.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Storrs much enjoyed their two day visit in town. They were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rickard, where they received callers and they also made some calls. Both Mr. and Mrs. Storrs talked Friday evening at the church about their experiences in China, which they left in a hurry, having been given eight minutes to get ready to board the plane. They had nothing to pack as their belongings were either burned or stolen during a fire. Mr. Storrs preached at the morning service at Smith Memorial church and Mrs. Storrs talked to the Sunday School children. They left for Boston on the mid-day bus.

CONG. STEARNS DENIES RUMOR THAT HE IS NOT CANDIDATE

Rep. Foster Stearns today issued the following statement:

During my recent visit to New Hampshire, I found that a rumor was being circulated to the effect that I was going to withdraw my candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Many of my fellow-citizens had expressed a desire that I should seek this office, and my decision to do so was reached after long and careful consideration. Since my announcement, I have visited every county; and I am satisfied that the reception I have met with throughout the State fully justifies that decision. In the near future I shall have further announcements to make regarding my plans for a vigorous and aggressive campaign.
