Antrim School News Items

The second graders all had hundreds in spelling this week. The boys are leading in the defense stamp race.

The fifth and sixth grades are making a study of airplanes this month and in club period they are making models of planes. Jackie Lunhall and Charles Butterfield are tied in the spelling contest. Benny Pratt and Mary Ellen Thornton are leading in the book race. In the war stamp race the boys are two cities ahead of the girls. They are planning a skiing party in the near future.

The seventh and eighth grades are planning their second annual Carnival to be held February 4 at the Town Hall. This carnival is for the purpose of raising money for a bond. One of the features will be a dancing contest.

On January 10 Miss Blanchard, Mrs. Ross and Miss Arnell held a party for the Girl Reserves at their apartment. The games were based on school life and everyone had a good time.

The Girl Reserves were organized soon after school opened. The purpose of the group is to find and give the best. The Girl Reserves are an international organization being the younger girls group of the Y. W. C. A. The officers of the Antrim group are: President, Lois Black; vice president, Betty Whittemore; secretary, Rita Nazer; treasurer, Janice Brooks; social chairman, Dorothy Hutchinson.

The Dramatics Club is planning to put on a three-act play in April.

The high school is working on a school paper. George Edwards is Editor-in-Chief and Richard Brooks is Associate Editor.

A PROCLAMATION

Fourth WAR LOAN Drive

The Fourth War Loan Drive which opened on January 18 and closes on February 15 is a test of our will to win this war. We have set for ourselves the goal of victory and the unconditional surrender of our enemies. We cannot and we shall not retreat from that objective, or falter in the attack. Every American man and woman in our armed forces is committed to its attainment. And every American citizen, worthy of the service and sacrifice of those who fight, will in turn respond with their time, their labor and their money to the slogan of this drive:

"Let's All Back the Attack!"

The national goal in this drive is 14 billion dollars, and New Hampshire's quota of that amount is 41 million dollars. It is essential in the interest of a sound economy that 20 million dollars of the State's quota be raised by individual purchasers of war bonds. This can readily be done from savings at hand if earnings above the level of necessities are turned into bonds, rather than bidding for luxuries on a scanty market. It is significant that the first week of the drive falls in National Thrift Week. Thrift, which is important at all times, becomes imperative in time of war, and is more important in this conflict than in any other struggle in American history. It is necessary—critically necessary—to turn our total resources, and among them our fluid money into waging war. This means the purchase of War Bonds.

In cooperation, therefore, with the Defense Savings Staff of the Treasury Department of the United States, and the New Hampshire War Finance Committee, I, Robert O. Blood, Governor of New Hampshire, do hereby proclaim the period of January 18 to February 15, 1944, as that of the Fourth War Loan Drive in this State, and in regard thereto, reminding each and every citizen to consider and act upon the necessity of this call upon his voluntary contribution to victory.

ROBERT O. BLOOD, Governor.

ANTRIM LOCALS

Miss Margaret Clark is assisting in the care of Mrs. Julia Hastings.

William Ward is recovering from quite a serious attack of the prevalent distemper.

Ben Butterfield accompanied his brother Kenneth to Plattsburg, N. Y. for a two days' visit with their sister. Kenneth returned Saturday to his home in West Virginia.

In a list printed in Monday's papers of 12 New England Airmen receiving decorations from the War Department, was the name of Staff Sergeant Richard C. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Johnson, who received a Soldier's Medal for heroism at Rass El Djorf, Tunisia. While a passenger on a plane which crashed and burned, Staff Sergeant Johnson, although injured in the crash, leaped from the rear door and ran to the front escape door from which he extinguished two unconscious men, thereby saving them from being killed by the explosion which occurred a moment later.

ANTRIM LOCALS

The get-together of the Odd Fellows Lodges in Hillsboro, Antrim and Henniker will be held in Hillsboro Friday, Jan. 28. Tickets for the supper may be obtained from Guy Hollis. There will be a two-hour entertainment furnished by the Lodges.

A/C Guy R. Clark Writes To His Grandmother

Mrs. W. H. Clark of Antrim, who is spending the winter with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Hall at Winchendon, Mass., recently received the following letter from her grandson, A/C Guy R. Clark, who is a member of Squad A, AAFST, at Stamford, Texas. We quote from his letter as follows:

January 8, 1944

Dear Grammie:
At last I am approaching the realization of a dream. After ten months I'm getting ready to fly.

We arrived here about noon after a very cold and uncomfortable night on crowded day coaches, and walked a mile and a half in the cold in a couple inches of snow to get to the field. We ate! Wonderful food! Barracks are swell—with knotty pine walls. Three-quarter beds with millions of intricate spring work, which, it says here, promotes sound sleep. Our barracks is a large two-story building with a screened-in porch all around it. There are large rooms with five double deck beds and five desks in them. That gives plenty of room for the ten men. Each desk has an indirect lighting desk lamp on it. There is a row of closets along one side for our clothes. I have a lower bunk right beside the stove.

We drew complete flying clothes and started unpacking and settling. We have open post tonight (Saturday) until 12 o'clock, but we are all too busy to even think of going out. Our flying clothes are big and a little bulky, but warm. The helmets are leather with sheepskin lining. The flying jacket is nice heavy leather and lined. The pants are the same, and zip the whole length of the legs. Boots are like overshoes, but are sheepskin lined. In addition we got nice leather jackets to wear around when we are not flying.

The nearest runway is about 100 feet from the barracks, and there are planes coming in and out all the time. We are scheduled to start flying Monday. We cannot wear our cap wings, and have to wear our goggles around our necks until we solo. Right now it looks as though this place has everything that SAACC didn't, except that it is colder here. It is beautiful flat country—not even an ant hill for a hundred miles around. One could lose the engine and a wing and still land safely anywhere. The boys say these are swell ships and it is about impossible to crack them up. I have been watching them land right outside the window for two days now, and have not seen one bounce yet. They just bring them in a foot or so off the ground and then settle down, and stay down, very much unlike those planes we flew at CTD, which bounced all over Texas.

Incidentally there is no K. P. or guard duty. The mess hall is run cafeteria style by real live civilians. The food is the best—all the milk, etc., you want. We can even talk and smoke at the table.

There are some student officers here too. They are commissioned officers from Infantry, Tank Corps, and everywhere, who have decided they want to fly, so they go through the training as officers. They live at the other end of our barracks. The relationship between cadets and officers is very amazing. Instead of being "little tin Gods" like the officers at SOACC, they really "let their hair down" and are human. I went in the latrine yesterday and there was a fellow nearly breaking his neck showing us how he did an "over the top spin." After a while I noticed his right collar lapel and discovered that he was a lieutenant. I guess since we are supposed to be future officers, there is a difference in our treatment. The "book" says that "cadets may associate with officers." They say that the Post C. O. is a major and a "flying fool," who is not eager to give us the dear little "gigs" which make life unpleasant. A fellow here says "They keep you very busy, but it isn't hard."

We are bunking alphabetically here, so I could not get in with most of the boys in our barracks at SAACC, but did manage to stick with one of them. One of the boys who is leaving said that we have inspection only once a week. He called this a Country Club, and advised us to relax and enjoy it. Everything is close together here. The barracks, recreation hall, mess hall, administration building, class rooms and hangers are so close that nothing is more than a 3-minute walk away.

I hope it is not as cold there as it is here. There are just a few patches of powder snow, but the air and everything else is frozen.

Love,
GUY

What We See And Hear

From farmers to bankers, from workmen to business men, a majority of whom have heretofore been too preoccupied with making money to think about more fundamental matters, the people of the United States are awakening to a great danger. They are beginning to realize that freedom may be lost in this nation.

Evidence of the awakening is pouring in from every side. No one is more impressed with this new stirring of mass intelligence than are editors. Their desks are swamped with statements, opinions and warnings of a kind that in the past were uttered only by a handful of statesmen.

Numerous labor leaders have expressed growing fear of big government, and warn that labor's future depends on the maintenance of individual enterprise. Not far behind in similar expressions are the bankers, whose awakening is typically expressed in the remarks of Lee Wiggins, president of the American Bankers' Association, who happens to be a small town banker and is proud of it. He recently declared: "An equitable tax system that will make new business possible will do more to preserve our system of private enterprise than soldiers' bonuses..." In his opinion, bankers are always sounding off about private enterprise, but haven't done much about it, and he added: "Meanwhile, the government has moved into private banking to an extent that the public doesn't suspect. The banker is just beginning to discover that this is the road to socializing the banking system."

The farmers are also discovering the danger inherent in an expanding government of men rather than laws. A special House agriculture committee has charged that farm families have been held as virtual serfs on government rehabilitation projects. In Michigan, members of the State Farm Bureau have suggested that a plan be worked out whereby farmers can insure their own crops and dispense with government crop insurance. And farmers all over the country are hotly opposed to the freedom-destroying principle of subsidies.

In the front ranks of the New Awakening are the business men. The editor of a group of leading business publications bluntly strikes at provinciality in front offices with the words: "Thinking straight about problems that are beyond our personal and immediate status and our pocketbooks, thinking about problems that involve nation-wide buying power—in other words, the operation of our entire economic system—involves real self discipline. Yet there is no other way to safeguard our freedoms."

And finally, to those who foolishly rail at bureaucracy and plead for favors from government in the same breath, Hatton Summers of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has voiced a reminder that should be quoted from one end of the land to the other: "You people are the government. The government is not in Washington."

"In our system, the State provides the only machinery through which democracy can function. The Federal organization was never intended to do the job. It cannot do it, except as a bureaucracy. The people created the Federal organization to do a relatively small number of things: To be their agent, not their master."

Congressman Summers is to be congratulated. He is hastening the Awakening.

ODD FELLOWS-REBEKAHS TO HAVE GET-TOGETHER

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Antrim, Henniker and this town and invited guests will meet on Friday evening, January 28, for the first annual get-together of the lodges in the good neighbor policy. The supper will be served at 6 and the entertainment starts at 8, with each organization furnishing two or more numbers for the special program.

Norris Cotton will be the guest speaker. The affair will be held in Odd Fellows' hall, Hillsboro.

New Pursuit Ships

Latest of their type are the three Curtiss P-40 low-wing single seater pursuit ships. They are considerably faster than the Hawk 75A which has proved its mettle in European combat.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Red Army Forges Deeper Into Poland As Southwest Drive Perils Nazi Troops; Allied Bombers Plaster Western Europe; Strikes Show Marked Increase in 1943

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"War Is Hell"—Nowhere better is this expression indicated than in this Italian town of Castel Di Sangro, lying in rubble.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Jungle Fighting

Like the story of every other island in the South Pacific, U. S. troops have had to fight for every inch of ground on tropical New Guinea, where landings have placed doughboys in possession of the air strip on Cape Gloucester and a beachhead at Arawe. With the enemy dug well in the jungle, U. S. dive bombers and artillery helped clear the way for the infantry as it edged forward through the dense brush about Cape Gloucester. In similar terrain at Arawe, the enemy also fell back grudgingly. While doughboys clawed forward in New Britain, other elements of the U. S. Sixth army beat south-eastward along the New Guinea coastline toward a juncture with Australian troops driving northward. In this sector, the Allies aimed for the big Jap shipping base of Madang, supply point for their coastal positions.

Ace Lost

Only hours after a dispatch from Guadalcanal had announced that pudgy, 30-year-old Maj. Gregory ("Pappy") Boyington had shot down his 26th Jap to enter the selective list of U. S. air aces, his mother received word in Okanogan, Wash., that he was missing. With a mother's faith she said: "I am confident he is all right and he will show up somehow, somewhere."

Called "Pappy" because of his comparatively older age among the younger marine fliers, Boyington was a picturesque daredevil. Once, "Pappy" purposely led a squadron over a Jap airfield, circling the field slowly and daring the enemy to come up and fight. When they did, "Pappy" nailed three.

STRIKES: Increase in '43

Almost 14 million working days were lost through strikes in 1943 compared with 4 million in 1942, records of the bureau of labor statistics indicated. Approximately 3,337,091 workers were involved in the estimated 3,737 walkouts, which topped the 1942 total of 839,961 men idle because of 2,968 strikes.

Last year's strikes doubled the 1927-'41 average of 1,945, but it was pointed out that the depression prevailed during that period, and because of scarce employment walkouts were less frequent.

EUROPE: Plaster Defenses

Flying over an 800-mile front, Allied bombers rapped hard at German defenses and industries in western Europe preparatory to the heralded invasion. But in Italy, bad weather restricted Allied progress over the mountainous terrain, and equally bitter resistance in the future loomed with the discovery that the Germans were constructing another "Siegfried line" of concrete and steel several miles in depth, and just to the north of their present positions. Continuing the softening up process of western Europe, swarms of U. S. and British bombers and fighters lashed at German factories, the important naval base of Kiel, air fields strung over northern, and the channel coast, along which the Nazis reportedly have erected rocket guns.

PROHIBITION: Before Congress

Prohibitionists lined up in support of Rep. Joseph R. Bryson's bill for bidding sale or manufacture of all beverages containing more than 1/2 of 1 per cent of alcohol for the duration as a congressional committee prepared for hearings on the measure.

As prohibitionists organized support, Rep. Emmanuel Celler said it was rumored that they had raised $10,000,000 for lobbying in Washington.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the Anti-Saloon league would remain on the sidelines during consideration of the bill, devoting its efforts to persuading President Roosevelt to declare prohibition as a war measure under his present vast powers.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: No Deaths

For the second time in the 13 years he has compiled statistics on college football deaths, Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Purdue U. announced no fatalities due to football in 1943.

Possibly because of a lack of sufficient amounts and quality of equipment, nine deaths were recorded in high school football, Dr. Eastwood said.

Fatalities in the sport have gradually decreased since he started his survey in 1931, when 31 deaths were announced, Dr. Eastwood said. Since most deaths have been due to head injuries, he suggested that grid leaders look into possible use of new crash helmets designed for military use during the present war.

'44 CONVENTIONS: Chicago Bids

With 10,000 visitors expected at both the Democratic and Republican national conventions this year, Big Business in Chicago bid to have the conclaves held there, with New York also reportedly interested.

In Chicago alone, representatives of hotels, restaurants, realty and financial concerns, banks and utilities agreed to raise $75,000 to help defray hall expenses, etc., for either party, or $150,000 for both, if they met in the Windy City.

As the national committees under Frank Walker of the Democrats and Harrison Spangler of the Republicans studied convention sites, the Office of Defense Transportation declared Chicago was the city least likely to upset train schedules, since regular line sleeping cars with 11,368 beds terminate there, compared to 7,129 in New York.

Chairmen Spangler and Walker

CANADIAN WHEAT: To Increase Imports

With approximately 350,000,000 bushels of U. S. wheat expected to be fed to livestock during the current feeding season, an additional 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels will be imported from Canada, according to government sources.

Because U. S. railroad cars will be sent into the interior of Canada this winter, from 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 more bushels of wheat will be imported than otherwise possible, due to the freezing of the Great Lakes.

Although the heavy dairy and poultry producing areas of the Northeast have bettered their feed situation, feed grains are needed in the drouthy south central regions, and protein meals are scarce in the southwest range districts. The total supply of feed concentrates was estimated at 169,000,000 tons.

SOLDIERS' VOTE: Urge Uniformity

While congress wrangled over whether the federal government or the individual states should control soldier voting in 1944, the war and navy departments recommended that applications for absentee ballots be distributed by the services and local officials accept such applications any time before election.

Other recommendations made by the army and navy were that voting material be designed for air carriage, and that a servicemen's vote be acknowledged by an officer no lower in rank than sergeant.

Ballots must be distributed to the servicemen by mail, the departments said, and although it is the army and navy policy to assist soldiers and sailors in voting, "nothing must interfere with the primary obligation to wage a victorious war."

RAIL TRAFFIC

The nation's railroads broke all transportation records last year, both for passengers and freight. Volume of freight hauled was 14 per cent above 1942, the previous high, and passenger traffic shot up 58 per cent over the preceding year.

Average load of freight per train was 1,116 tons, another record. Per car load was 41 tons. Average volume of passengers per car was greater than ever before. An increase of about 20 per cent in gross revenue is expected.

Pressure Groups Point Way To Mild Fascism in U. S.

Government by Majority Rule Ceases to Exist When Various 'Interests' Begin Trading Votes for Concessions.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

At a recent White House press and radio conference, the President was explaining his pre-Christmas remark—that it was time to discard the term "New Deal"—the remark that gave the cartoonists so much fun. He used a fable about "Old Dr. New Deal" who had healed the patient of "internal troubles" (the depressions). But when the patient had an accident and had broken his arms and legs, he had to call in his partner "Dr. Win-the-War" to heal him.

A correspondent asked: "Doesn't that add up to a fourth term declaration?" The President showed his irritation in his answer. He said that that hadn't been under discussion, that the question was picyune. Then he caught himself, leaned back, half smiled, half apologized, with the remark that the questioner would understand that he had to answer that way.

Two things came to my mind at once. First, that the President was thinking about the war and postwar problems, and to be brought back to earth with a bump was very much like being awakened by an alarm clock in the midst of an interesting dream. That was one thing I thought of.

Another was just what the United States, and the whole world for that matter, would be suffering from after the war and what the cure would be, if any.

Recently there have been several predictions that we were in "for a dose of mild fascism."

Background for Belief

I never took that so very seriously until three news items were called to my attention. One was the statement that the CIO committee of political action was planned as a nucleus of a labor party. That didn't smell of fascism but it had a slightly collectivist aroma.

The next item was in the London News Letter, a little pamphlet edited by Commander King-Hall, member of parliament, the contents of which are cabled to Toronto, Canada, where it is printed as an American edition. King-Hall is an independent in politics with slightly conservative leanings.

Here are the excerpts to which I refer:

"... There are many indications at what might be called the lower levels of domestic practice, that there are forces and tendencies at work in Britain which are going to produce great changes in our political system. Some of these changes were foreshadowed in a pamphlet entitled 'The Future of Party Politics' written by Commander King-Hall in 1937. It was there argued that a crisis, both domestic and international, was developing and demanding for its solution a high degree of national unity in Britain, and that the political expression of that unity, and the instrument for making it effective must be a national government..."

In other words, the writer means by a "national government" a coalition government such as England has now with no opposition—what amounts to a single party.

The Mood in Britain

And here is another excerpt, a quotation from a speech in the house of commons which the London News Letter says was given a "wide measure of assent."

"... Government must always be by majority but let it not be by party controversy and party majority. In this country at the present time, there seems to be coming into being a central body of opinion very well and adequately represented on all sides of this house. It is to that central body of opinion that I should like the government to appeal in a bolder and more forward-stepping policy..."

This speaker continues his appeal for a single "central body of opinion" and warns against "dividing a people (the British) who provide some bridge between the extreme capitalism of the United States and the extreme collectivism of Russia."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

'NEW DEAL' IS DEAD; HERE'S WHY:

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Roosevelt's dismissal of fourth term questions as "picyune" seems to me practically an avowal of his candidacy. No other conclusion is reasonably possible in the light of the facts.

Consider what he might have said as an alternative. He could have said "no," "yes," or "perhaps." Instead, he chose to shunt aside the question as too small for his consideration, a time-worn and obvious stratagem he employed four years ago when he told third term inquirers to go stand in a corner with a dunce cap.

But what seals this interpretation was his simultaneous announcement of a new program—apparently the beginnings of a change of political front forecast in this column last month.

He is dropping the phrase "New Deal" (but not any New Dealers), can thus forget the economic failures and unsuccessful policies of same, and can cover them over with a new world program based on an agreement with Russia to promote a revolutionary new world.

Mr. Roosevelt is not only dead right in consigning "New Deal" to the limbo of obsolete terms, but he could have gone much further. The terms "liberalism," "conservatism," "internationalism," and "isolationism" within the next year or two, will be smothered similarly by greater events which are at hand.

The orthodox, unimaginative policies of professional liberalism (directed economy, security, leisure, etc.) already have been overwhelmed by the greater events of the war. So have the stodgy doctrines of conservatism (get back to normalcy).

It is no longer a question of which road to take. But what road you can get, if any. Our thinking may have less to do with our future than events force us to do. Already, we see we cannot contrive a Utopia, but soon we may be forced to do what is necessary to prevent chaos, revolutions and a greater war.

People do not understand yet that the rise of Russia already decrees a revolutionary new world, although the statesmen dealing with the detailed conflicts and prospects (which cannot easily be discussed in public in wartimes for diplomatic and patriotic reasons) obviously can already see it.

'DEAD' FOR TWO YEARS

The New Deal, of course, has been dead for two years. It was knocked out by the war while dying on its feet. Its theories and its personnel were not sufficiently competent or efficient for the tremendous war job of production and marshalling of war forces.

But what we are coming into is not as easy to recognize, apparently not even to Mr. Roosevelt, as he did not attempt to define it very clearly. Indeed, it would be necessary to hear from Mr. Stalin and possibly also Mr. Churchill to find that out, if they yet are certain.

A Russian victory will place Stalin in at least indirect control, economically as well as politically, of Europe and no doubt Asia as well.

Our capitalist countries will come out of the war saddled with great debt for generations, but Russia has no debt and will emerge with greater productive capacity than when she started. She also will have the superior world army, we the navy (5 to 1 over Britain and more over Russia).

PUTTING AN END TO JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

The incontestable answer to all this juvenile delinquency in the news is one word—discipline. This is not old-fogeyism, but ultra modern psychiatric doctrine. The instinctive tendencies of children must be curbed by discipline until they have reached the age where self-restraint enables them to conform to social customs and to take advantage of social opportunities.

Too many parents and children themselves erroneously believe that modernism permits free expression of their instincts. This leads to the current savage eyesores of our vaunted civilization in which prostitution has been flaunted conspicuously in cities by grade school girls, thefts and crime before the age of reason has been reached, and murder of parents by children who find them troublesome.

I have seen, in Times square, New York, girls barely past puberty with soldiers and sailors, not in small groups; but in droves, while police look on shaking their heads in apparent helplessness. I could break that up in 15 minutes. And here is the method:

Everywhere that soldiers and sailors go, there are MPs. If the military police were ordered to detain and question every serviceman accompanying a girl of doubtful age, and terms in the guardhouse were provided, the practice would soon lose its current trend.

HIGHLIGHTS... in the week's news

RIVER: Vagaries of the White river in Indiana have shifted the boundary line between Decatur and Perry townships in Marion county. Two schools operated by the Decatur township authorities will have to be closed because of lack of funds. Property of the power company is no longer within the township's tax limits to provide revenue, it was pointed out.

FARM HANDS: Several organizations in New York state, working in collaboration, filled 210,000 farm jobs last year. Only 3 per cent of the workers were normally farm hands.

TYPHUS: Eleven "public" delousing stations have been set up in Naples, Italy, by Allied military health officers to combat typhus, which is spreading in the city.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The peak of tropical American rubber production, including guayule, was in 1912, when about 62,000 tons were produced in all countries. In 1940 the world's production of rubber was 1,389,695 tons, more than came out of the Amazon Valley in all the years from 1837 to 1939 inclusive.

By the use of bud-grafted trees, the yield of rubber on Far East plantations in some cases has been increased from 500 to 1,500 pounds per acre a year.

One type of four-motored bomber requires more than 2,000 pounds of rubber; pursuit planes require over 100 pounds each.

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an assignment for her father's paper. Also on the island are Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, now a U. S. Army intelligence officer; Miguel Valera, a Puerto Rican educated in the United States whose orders to report to an army camp were abruptly cancelled; Richard Tausig, an engineer whose identity as a German agent is suspected but not yet proved; and Russell Porter, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue, who believes Mr. Tausig can help Russell. Anne lets Tausig know she suspects him. He has gone to see Diego Gongaro, Valera's uncle.

CHAPTER VIII

Tausig put his green visored cap on the table and removed the dark lenses from his spectacles.

"I've been wasting my time being cautious," he said.

"Wasting—did you say?"

"I did. I'm afraid it's true."

He hesitated. He did not want to offend the man who was supposed to be his chief lieutenant. Nevertheless—

"Don't you think, Gongaro," he said, "that perhaps you regard women too highly?"

Diego Gongaro's face broke into a warm smile. He raised his hands and shoulders in an eloquent gesture of amused denial.

"On the contrary, my friend. It is you. I think women charming, but—shall we say?—somewhat stupid. They are controlled by emotion, not by intelligence."

"But the American girl," Tausig said curtly, "is not controlled by any of you."

Anne finished the last of the golden slip of papaya in front of her and pushed back her cup and saucer. She'd expected the coffee to be wonderful, but it was flat and tasteless as the worst of the common brews at home.

She picked up the pile of letters of introduction she'd brought, and looked them through for the dozenth time. It was always a question whether the people they were addressed to would think it ill-mannered if you didn't present them, or be delighted not to have to do anything about the transient daughter of a friend of a friend they'd probably forgotten they had.

She hesitated, took her letters and started for the door. As she opened it a bellboy came out of the service stairway. He smiled at her with an intent interest in his eyes that she didn't understand.

"Senorita Heywood," he said, "Don Alvaro say you come down right away."

It was so shockingly peremptory that Anne felt a warm flush spring to her cheeks. She was on the point of saying he could tell Don Alvaro Valera to go to blazes when the boy said anxiously,

"He say if you please, senorita. I do not put in English the way he said in Spanish."

Anne smiled. "Of course. Thank you." It was just that sort of difficulty in communication, she thought, that accounted for a lot of misunderstanding.

Don Alvaro rose from his seat and bowed.

"You give an old man a great deal of pleasure, senorita."

"Thank you," Anne said. She sat down, wondering. The waiter apparently wondered too; she noticed that he almost stumbled into the fountain when he saw her sitting down.

"I have taken the liberty of ordering you the coffee from our finest that they make for me here," Don Alvaro said. "But perhaps you prefer American coffee. Most of your people do. It has very little appeal for us."

"It's wonderful," Anne said, sniffing the full rich aroma. It must have been American coffee she'd had for breakfast. She tasted it. "It is wonderful!" she cried.

Don Alvaro looked pleased. "National tastes differ, of course," he said.

"I know," Anne said quickly. "And language and customs and traditions."

He looked at her a little puzzled. She smiled.

"I'm just quoting your son."

Don Alvaro looked silently out across the ocean for a moment. Then he said gravely, "I'm happy that he remembers. I was afraid he had forgotten."

"—This is why he asked me down," Anne thought. She felt her heart lighten. It could only mean . . . She dismissed that quickly.

Don Alvaro was looking at her with a kind of sadness and wisdom that was disturbing in spite of the sudden glow inside her.

Don Alvaro smiled faintly.

"I wanted to ask you if you would give us the pleasure of dining with us in our home some evening soon, Miss Heywood," he said.

"Thank you—I'd love to," Anne said simply.

"And my brother-in-law says you wish to see a sugar mill," Don Alvaro said. "Would you care to go tomorrow?"

"It would be wonderful."
"I believe his friend Mr. Tausig is to go along also—if that is agreeable to you."

For a moment Anne hesitated. A quick little banner of fear fluttered on some inner rampart. "Perfectly," she said. "Shall you go too?"

"I'm afraid not," Don Alvaro replied. "I have many things to go over with my son. My brother-in-law and his daughter will accompany you."

Anne stopped in the middle of the broad sun-baked Plaza Principal and looked around her in surprise. Five minutes before it had been crowded with people, teeming with motor cars, carts of all sorts, fruit vendors and flower sellers. Now it was as empty as if an inaudible air-raid warning had been sounded, and life of every kind had taken miraculously to invisible shelters. It had happened so quickly that she could hardly believe it. She looked at her watch. It was ten minutes past twelve. Then she remembered the siesta. Whatever changes the American occupation had made, it hadn't done away with that. For the next two hours everything stopped in its tracks, and nobody would venture out in the broiling midday sun. Nobody with any sense, anyway, she thought.

She looked around again. As a matter of fact it wasn't particularly hot, actually, and the contrast of the sudden silence with all the movement and noise and blaring of horns was very pleasant. She had set out to see the old city without realizing the way his gray eyes smiled slowly before his lips did, and the little habit he had of pulling down the cuff of his right coat sleeve. It was odd how many things she was aware of about him that she'd ordinarily never notice in people.

"I'm being crazy," she said to herself. There could be a dozen reasons why he mightn't want to see her just then.—Or be seen by her, she added with a vague sense of uneasiness. She glanced back at the door. A man was coming now who looked rather more as if he belonged there. He was small and dark, with a blue shirt open at the neck and cotton trousers and straw hat that had both seen better days. He was coming down the hill.

Anne moved out to the sentry box and wandered aimlessly along, looking up at the blackened time-stained wall. The man came through the gate and went down the ramp to the long pier stretching out into the shallow dirty water of the bay. The pier was empty except for a man at the far end leaning over the barrier, watching the harbor.

Anne went back to the stone battlement in front of the pilastered gate, watching the two of them. The man at the end of the pier had turned and was coming back, stopping once to level his camera at the seawall with the gardens and white round towers of Fortaleza shining above it. Anne leaned forward. It was Mr. Richard Tausig in his yachting cap, with the breeze flapping his white linen trousers around his ankles the way it had on the promenade deck of the ship.

She stepped quickly down from the ledge and slipped into the sentry box. Through the narrow slit in its circular wall she could see Tausig shade his eyes with his hand and look along the ramp.

The man from the house in Caleta San Juan stopped from time to time to look down into the muddy water. In a minute or two they would pass each other. Or would they? Anne waited. The Puerto Rican stopped again. Mr. Tausig was on the other side of the narrow pier taking another picture of La Fortaleza. Then, as casually as an ordinary tourist, he crossed over within a couple of feet of the other man, and to all intents and purposes devoted himself to taking snapshots of the unlovely expanse of beach and wall under the Casa Blanca.

Anne glanced at her watch. Eleven minutes dragged slowly by on its tiny face before either of the two men below her moved—the tourist or the native. It was a long time for anybody to stand in the broiling midday sun looking down into the mud. Then quite abruptly Mr. Tausig moved away and was coming up from the pier.

Anne slipped quickly out of the sentry box and through the gate. The hill up under the wall to La Fortaleza was shorter than the other. At the top, in front of the palace, she glanced back. Mr. Tausig was crossing the street headed up toward the Cathedral. Anne looked at her watch again and waited, ostensibly interested in the simple elegance of the palace facade and the handsome field blue-uniformed policeman on duty at the entrance. It was less than three minutes before the Puerto Rican came slowly through the gate and disappeared up the hill.

"You can come in and see the palace if you want to, miss," the policeman said.

"Some other time," she smiled and turned across the tiny plaza into Fortaleza Street. Richard Tausig had certainly been waiting for the other man. If there was nothing illicit in their meeting, why had they gone to such elaborate trouble about it? And what did Miguel have to do with it?

She walked slowly along the narrow street. At the corner, as she waited to cross, she felt a light touch on her elbow.

"What are you doing out at this hour, Miss Heywood?"

Her heart gave an excited little leap as she turned. It was Miguel Valera. He flashed through her mind that he had been waiting there for her . . . to find out if she'd seen him, maybe. But that didn't matter, not really.

"I've been seeing the city—foot tour Number One," she answered gaily. "I like to do things the hard way. What you're doing out at this hour is more to the point?"

He looked down at her, smiling.

"I'm taking you to lunch," he said. "Don't you know you'll be ill, wandering around in the sun and not eating?"

He hadn't answered her, but that didn't matter either. The sun had made her a little dizzy . . . unless it was the light touch of his hand on her arm as he took it to guide her across the street.

"I'm so glad I'm here!" she said impulsively.

His hand tightened for an instant. Then he dropped it abruptly.

"I'm glad I came back home, now," he said—rather quietly, it seemed to Anne, so that she looked up at him quickly.

"Weren't you always?"

"Of course," he laughed. "Let's go to the Mallorquina. Or have you been?"

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE film critics of New York's newspapers voted Paul Lukas the best actor of 1943 for his performance in "Watch on the Rhine" (at the same time voting the picture the year's best), but they were a little late. Warner Bros. had handed Lukas a tribute of their own some two weeks earlier for the same performance; theirs was a long-term contract. His first picture under the new contract will be "Night Action." It is based on an original story by Norman Krasna, with George Sklar doing the screen story.

The Warners came out very well in those film critics' voting sessions—Ida Lupino was voted the year's best actress for her work in "The Hard Way," with Katina Paxinou as runner-up for her performance in "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

IDA LUPINO

Jean Pierre Aumont, Metro star whose last film before joining the Fighting French was "The Cross of Lorraine," relays the following letter from General De Gaulle concerning the film: "I congratulate you for having shown such a beautiful picture, the active participation in the resistance of all Frenchmen under the cross of Lorraine. It is fitting that this silent and bloody war be put before the eyes of our true friends, particularly those of the United States of America." There's a laurel wreath worth having.

War's effect on Cupid: there's a scene in "Riding High" where Dorothy Lamour and Dick Powell are shown standing on a boatlanding in Technicolor moonlight. Dick tries a tentative kiss. "I can't make out," says Dottie, "whether you are careful, indifferent, or just plain dumb." "Oh," replies Dick, "those were just tracer kisses. I think I have the range now."

This year starts promisingly for Marjorie Riordan, who has the coveted role of Bette Davis' daughter in "Mr. Skeffington." Her contract was purchased from Sol Lesser by Jack Warner following her hit in "Stage Door Canteen."

Euline Martin was only three weeks old when her mother took her to the RKO studio to play Ginger Rogers' baby in "Tender Comrade." Producer David Hempstead asked her mother to get the infant a social security card. "Euline already has a card," was the reply. "This is her second picture. When 18 days old she played in 'Buffalo Bill.'"

Greta Christensen, Chicago high school girl, got her contract with RKO through posing for department store advertisements. Dare Harris, 17, was striking pins in a bowling alley when he was seen by the talent scout for Vanguard Films; he makes his screen debut in Selznick's "Since You Went Away." Looks as if all roads lead to the movies nowadays.

The greatest radio scoop of the war, according to the Associated Press, was made by marine Sgt. Roy O. Maypole, when he made his radio recording of the historic landing at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville Island. The recorded broadcast will be released to the public through marine corps headquarters in Washington. Maypole's the former producer of CBS' wacky "Missus Goes A-Shopping."

Resemblance to Frank Sinatra brought good luck to ex-marine Harry Landers. Discharged from the service after being wounded in action, he got a job as a studio laborer. His next job was as stand-in for Sinatra in "Higher and Higher." When the singer left the troupe he asked that Landers be kept on as a dress extra—Producer Tim Whelan then gave him a minor role in the musical.

ODDS AND ENDS—Vox Pop is soliciting listeners over the air for opinions on the outstanding interview and personalities heard on the show. Edward Arnold lost 27 pounds just prior to the start of "Standing Room Only," due to an infection caused by an injury to his shin.

Betty Grable rose from eighth place in 1942 to lead the ten best box-office film stars in 1943. . . . Wally Brown, comedy star on Dinah Shore's radio program, has been completing his sequences in his new RKO picture, "Seven Days Ashore." . . . Walter Pidgeon was the first of 600 persons to reach the courtroom in Los Angeles where he became an American citizen.

Mrs. Allison White is now in Fayetteville, N. C., to be near her husband. Her sister, Laura Nudd went with her.

There continues to be much sickness around. Whether it is the flu, grippe or just a cold, we don't know, but it is not very pleasant.

Irving Hicks is a patient at the Margaret Pillsbury hospital, Concord. Mrs. Hicks is with Mr. and Mrs. Alva Bunnell of Contoocook.

Miss Margaret Squibb, assistant 4-H leader, was present at the meeting at the home of Mrs. Hervey Patch on Thursday afternoon and gave the requirements for a good club and the awards for work when completed.

Mrs. Ben Cram was high scorer at the whist party held by Bear Hill Grange in their hall Monday evening. Other prize winners were Elton R. Matthews, Mrs. A. J. Fowler, J. W. Cobb, Jr., Leon O. Cooper and G. A. Waterman.

Vital statistics are less the past year with only eight marriages compared to 15 the year before. Births were only 41 compared to 48 the previous year. Of these 41, 19 were born to residents. Deaths were 39 as against 43 of the previous year. However deaths of residents rose from 20 in 1942 to 25 this year. The remainder were brought here for burial.

Mrs. Ella Cleaveland, 87, fell on Saturday and broke her hip. She is at the Margaret Pillsbury hospital, Concord, for the time being. She was combing her hair at the time and as she threw her head back she apparently lost her balance. She managed to crawl to the telephone to summon help. She was all packed to go to her son's for the rest of the winter.

One of the balloons released by the weather bureau in New York was found on Monday, Jan. 10 by Harold Clement and the State Highway crew between here and Hopkinton. It was sent up at 11 p. m. on Jan. 8. It was of the broadcasting type and consisted of a small box containing some radio apparatus, a parachute and a balloon. It is reported that it went up 12 miles before it broke and started to fall. Anyone finding one of these should mail it. $1 is paid for this service.

While on his way to a Grange meeting in Weare Monday evening, Jan. 10, Willis Munsey was unfortunate in having a fire break out under the hood of his car. The lower hose from his radiator started to leak, spraying hot fluid containing alcohol onto a hot engine. This caught fire, burning the covering from wiring and doing some other damage. Fortunately he was handy to a garage where temporary repairs were made and the party was able to continue. They attended a joint meeting of Union Pomona and Derryfield Granges where Mr. Munsey retired as Master of the Pomona Grange and was installed as assistant steward. Attending the meeting with him were Mrs. Alice Farley, Mrs. Ercei Durgin and Miss Maude Brown.

Deering

Miss Eva Putnam of Peterboro spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam at their home on the Franconstown road.

Mrs. Marie H. Wells has recently been awarded a citation for Meritorious Service for outstanding assistance to the 1943 National War Fund Campaign.

Bridge was enjoyed after which refreshments of chicken sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream were served and group singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. Tighe at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Wells attended the tenth wedding anniversary celebration of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Liberty at Wilton Saturday evening.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Carol of Belmont, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tighe, Mr. and Mrs. Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. LeDuc and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broderick of Wilton.

Mrs. Carroll and Lawrence Tighe attended Mr. and Mrs. Liberty at their wedding ten years ago. The couple received some very nice gifts from their friends who left at a late hour wishing them many more happy years.

Mrs. Ruth M. Bent, Mrs. Lillian Marcotte, Mrs. Marie H. Wells, Mrs. Melvina Whitney, Miss Cecelia Wilt and Mrs. Mary J. Willard, members of Wolf Hill Grange No. 41, attended the regular meeting and installation of officers of Hillsboro Grange last Wednesday evening. Deputy Lester E. Connor and suite of Henniker installed the officers and Miss Kate Brooks, lecturer, had charge of a beautiful candle-light service, which impressed every one present. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a social hour was enjoyed.

Floyd Harvey has purchased a new car.

Donald Hutchinson of Wilton was a caller at Pinehurst Farm one day last week.

Mrs. William O. Kimball was confined to her home in the Manselville district several days last week by illness.

Mrs. Marie H. Wells and Mrs. Helen G. Taylor were on duty at the Observation Post last Wednesday afternoon.

Richard B. Taylor, Signalman 1/c, who was stationed at Norfolk, Va., for six weeks, is now stationed at Newport, R. I.

Mrs. Edith Craig has been ill and under the care of a physician.

Mrs. W. H. Manahan, Jr., was called to West Roxbury last week by the death of Fred E. Jones who for many years spent his summers at his home known as the Stephen Brown place.

The committee in charge of the whist party at Union Chapel Jan. 22 for the benefit of the Upper and Lower Village men in the service, have made preparations for a large crowd and it is hoped that many will take advantage of the opportunity to spend a pleasant evening where the heating, lighting and seating facilities are of the best. This is the first card party to be held in this edifice since the dedication 47 years ago. Also in the bell tower hangs the historic bell that has rung the notes of victory at the close of three wars; in 1865 at Lee's surrender, when the Spanish American war ended and in November 1918.

GRANITE STATE GARDENER

SWEET CORN

America gave the world many wonderful vegetables. In fact, the bulk of vegetables served on the table are of American origin, but of all of these, the most important is corn.

Corn has really many uses. In its green stage it is cut and put into silos for cattle feed. The immature ears form the succulent sweet corn for the table. Popcorn is liked by adults and children as a confection, and a between-meal lunch. The ripened grain of corn is the most important cereal food for animals. When ground up into meal or flour, corn is the basis of many dishes. It would probably be the most important bread flour if our ancestors had been brought up on corn bread instead of wheat bread. Primitive people in America and Africa use soft corn almost entirely for flour because it is so easy grinding. Sweet corn as a vegetable is highly prized and in its green form as corn on the cob or cut off and canned or frozen is a most welcome addition to the table.

Its culture is easy. It takes from 60 to 100 days to mature, depending upon variety and the season of the year in which it is planted. It is a warm season crop and should therefore not be planted much before May 15. Succession plantings may be made of early, mid-season, and late varieties which will extend the season from the time the first corn matures early in August to frost. Corn should be planted in rows 2½ to 3 feet apart and thinned to at least 12 inches between plants.

The hybrid varieties of sweet corn are really wonderful. Among the earliest of these is Seneca 60. This may be followed by Northern Star, Bancross, or Carmel Cross, and for late corn there is nothing better than Golden Cross Bantam. Seed from hybrid varieties must not be saved since it does not come true.

LETTERS FROM SOLDIER BOYS

Somewhere in England,
December 25, 1943.

Dear Mr. Tucker:

Just a line to say "hello" to you and hope this letter finds you in the best of health. I really don't know what to write about, but will try to give you an idea of my duties over here in the E. T. O. I am flying on a combat crew and have been on quite a few raids over enemy occupied territory and find it quite thrilling. I have seen enemy fighters and a lot of flak and have plenty of respect for both. I was awarded the "Air Medal" quite some time ago and at present have two Oak Leaf Clusters added to it. I'm going after the D. F. C. now and it shouldn't be long before I get it. (I hope.)

I go to London on nearly all my days off and have seen nearly all the sights there. The English people are very nice to us and do everything possible to make us feel at home. Well, Mr Tucker, space is running short, so will close for now.

Sincerely yours,
Sgt. Maurice R. Page

Desert Training Center,
January 2, 1944.

Dear Sir:

I haven't got much to write about only to let you know about the little change in my address.

It is very nice to get the home town paper. It keeps us up on the news in town and the towns around. I have noticed a lot of changes that have been made there and that new people have moved into town and a lot of them that I have forgotten their names. A lot of the young girls and boys that were going to school when I was home are in the Service now.

I didn't have a very happy Christmas or a very good New Year. Christmas the Battery was on guard for 24 hours and New Year's Eve we went out on the firing range and fired the big guns most of the night until morning. We had a G. H. Q. test, and we got good marks in all the tests we went on. We had very good maneuvers on the desert. It was tough but we don't mind it much. After all there is a war going on and we've got to be ready to go when we are called.

I still hope that the people in town enjoyed themselves on Christmas day and New Year's. I am
J. Wardeniski.

P. S. And thanks a lot for the paper. It has been a big help.

CAMERA CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Hillsboro Camera Club was held at Manahan's Studio Thursday evening, Jan. 13, with nine members present.

Cyrus Phelps led a discussion on "Moonlight Pictures," illustrating his talk with pictures taken by some of the club members.

An added attraction to the evening's enjoyment were some lantern slides of Hillsboro and vicinity, taken by Mr. Charles Brockway about 50 years ago.

The next meeting is to be held at Mr. Phelps' home when "Silhouette Pictures" will be discussed and taken.

Antrim Branch

Liuwood Grant had the misfortune to cut his foot, necessitating several stitches.

Curtis Pecker is taking a leave of absence from his work as engineer at the Manchester railroad yard.

Miss Edna Linton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Linton and Miss Margaret Linton will be a week-end guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Loomis of Newton, Mass., with their son and wife, are expected to be at the Flint farm, which Mr. Loomis recently purchased.

Washington

Don't forget the Fourth War Loan Bond drive started Tuesday, the 18th. If you purchase bonds in any way other than through the town committee please be sure to give your home address so that the town will receive the credit. Harold Newman is the local chairman and will either call when notified or arrange otherwise.

Frank Peasley of Henniker was a business visitor in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Fowler are spending the winter in Arlington, Mass.

Mrs. W. D. Otterson returned from Keene this week after a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Rolfe and daughter of Penacook were in town last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Barker and family visited Mrs. Barker's mother, Mrs. Charles Roberts in Winchester last Saturday.

Corp. Gerald Leeds, Jr., made a short visit to his home here before leaving for New Mexico.

P. M. Young has set the pace for the men of the town by chopping ten cords of wood on his farm, called the Sleeper place.

The selectmen will meet with the town clerk on Saturday, Jan. 22, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of drawing the jury for the February term of court.

A family from Waltham, Mass., have bought what was known as the George Blanchard farm on the back Windsor road. They have already taken possession.

Corp. Clifford Cram and his wife from New Mexico were with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cram the first of the week. The trip required 60 hours via train so their time with a 15-day furlough was short.

Word has just been received that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mungall of Schenectady, N. Y., expect to move to California where Mr. Mungall has been transferred by the General Electric Co. Mrs. Mungall was Miss Mildred Morey before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Tucker, the new owners of what was known as the Hiram Young property, expect to occupy about May 1. Jimmie Benway, the recent owner, and his family plan to vacate about April 1. Much as we all like to have Mr. and Mrs. Tucker choose this town for their home, we all would like to have the Benways continue as residents.

VITAL WAR WORK for YOU!

Short of joining the Wacs or the Waves, we don't know of more important war work for a woman than the jobs we have to offer here at Nashua. The fabrics we make are vital war material—as much as bombs or bullets—absolutely necessary to keep our boys fit to fight and to speed their recovery in hospitals. Unless you help us make these, production will slow down seriously!

If you are not now working at essential war work and can take an 8-hour a day job or work 3 full days each week and find a friend to work the other 3—or get a friend to split an 8-hour shift with you, 4 hours each, you will be doing a very real job for Victory. The work is easy, the wages good, and you're paid while you learn.

Come in today to either of our employment offices, and talk it over.

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Wayward Daughter

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

The girl who survived in a party of five sat in the dark with her dead chum in her arms, waiting for dawn and help to come.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

FIRST, keep your young sons and daughters away from dangerous amusements and associations; and Second, provide them with occupations and entertainment enough to prevent their wanting to enjoy forbidden things.

This sounds simple. But it is actually the great and terrible problem of parenthood in these days. If it could be solved we should hear less of juvenile delinquency and youthful immorality than we do.

It has always been a problem. But it is more than ever one now, with war confusions, war changes, war irresponsibility upsetting every town and city and village and social group in the entire nation.

Even when children have a good devoted father and mother, a good home, church influences, proper schooling, they sometimes break away. The forces of independence and rebellion are too strong. They take chances with their eyes open; they want to take chances. This story is of a girl who took chances and had her fun and wasn't to be run by any old-fashioned rules of decency or decorum. Her predicament isn't a typical one; its very unusualness makes it interesting.

Daughter Got Out of Control.

Sylvia was about 16 when she began to worry her father and mother out of their senses. They are quiet people; they didn't feel equal to entertaining systematically for Sylvia, seeing that she got to know a comfortable little group of friends, keeping her safely busy with her own group. When they awakened to what was going on it was too late, by that time Sylvia was running with a dangerous crowd, and not to be controlled. She was drinking and smoking too much, she was out late nights, asleep half the morning; she was never quite a sane, clean, sober girl, always sleepy or hysterical or intoxicated, always dashing from one date to another, or rolled in blankets sound asleep.

Some time ago she announced that she was married. To whom? Well, to a man her parents didn't know. Violet and Bill had dared her into it; it was sort of a "joke." They'd all been drinking.

This was about four years ago. After a few weeks of marriage, Sylvia and her husband quarreled; he enlisted in the army, disappeared from the scene, and Sylvia returned to her night-club life, more independent than ever. She has regularly received money from Leo.

About two years ago Sylvia met a fine man, whose friendship and admiration had upon her the immediate effect of developing the finer side of her character. Everything her father and mother ever had hoped for her was realized; she seemed at last to grow up. She wrote at once to Leo asking for a divorce, but there was no answer, and when Paul was sent to a defense plant in another city Sylvia went with him as his wife. A beautiful girl was born to them, now a fascinating little creature.

Last month, Leo came home, lamed but not disqualified for any work. But while agreeing to divorce Sylvia, he claims the child, Maureen, as his, born while Sylvia was legally his wife.

First Husband Demands Child.

This has staggered Paul and Sylvia. They adore their child. They shudder at the idea of handing her over to Leo, who professes no affection for her, naturally resenting her very existence. He is perfectly willing that Sylvia shall return to him as his wife, but otherwise he will take Maureen to his sister, who has two older children.

CHARACTER BUILDING BEGINS AT HOME

Just as a child's body needs balanced feeding to grow in size and strength, so does its character need idealism and guidance which is food to the personality. Children do not just grow. They must be raised. If their parents fail to realize this and do not exercise constant vigilance regarding their offspring's activities and choice of friends, that youth may very likely develop into a man or woman who is not wanted in circles where culture and refinement are innate. Far worse, the youth who gets into the wrong kind of company may ruin his or her life. Kathleen Norris discusses this vital issue.

Sylvia, at 25, writes me that an overdose of sleeping pills will be her way out if Leo insists, and I don't know what to advise.

Not every girl who is going the night-club route will find herself in such a predicament, but hundreds of them have gotten into different sorts of trouble, causing their families infinite anxiety and distress, and sometimes getting into the hands of authorities and finding themselves trying tearfully to explain in court just how it all came about. One case here some years ago was of returning merry-makers whose intoxicated young driver sent the car over a bank. The one girl who survived, in a party of five, sat for three hours in the dark with her dead chum in her arms, waiting for dawn and help to come.

Another case, quoted in this column before, was that of the mother who was trying to tell a bandaged 17-year-old, in a hospital, that she—the young daughter, victim of a drunk-driver accident, would always be blind. Last week's case was of the social-register beauty who was cut about the eyes with a broken plate in a night club, when she got between two quarrelsome boys. They have saved her sight; she will see. But when she looks in the mirror, she won't like what she sees.

But even these young tragedies don't seem to me as sad as the mental and moral scars that these reckless youngsters carry all their lives. Girls who really want to become fine women some day, to be cultured and admired human beings, are busy in the precious years between 15 and 25, coarsening and destroying everything they hope to save.

Debauchery Leaves Scars.

No girl, no matter how smart she is, can touch that sort of pitch and not be defiled. To lounge in smoke-filled, liquor-scented places, night after night, laughing vacuously, dancing and drinking herself into disorder and incoherence, to keep bad hours, to waste money she does not earn, to listen to vulgar talk and indecent jokes—all this is poor preparation for a responsible, respectable life to follow. It must be evident even to the most self-willed girl that these things leave their mark. They are not to be picked up for awhile and then dropped again, permitting her to transform herself overnight from a rowdy into a gentlewoman.

Fine women instantly perceive the difference. Sylvia may have her fun now, for a few years, but she pays for it all her life. Over and over again, considering some entertainment, some distinction, some club honor or social event, the men and women in charge of arrangements find themselves faced with the difficult problem of coarse personalities.

JUST THE WAY

The Rub
The tired-looking man sat facing the divorce lawyer. "So you want a divorce from your wife," said the attorney. "Aren't your relations pleasant?"
"Mine are," came the answer, "but hers are simply terrible!"

Her car stalled at the corner and the traffic light changed, red, yellow, green; red, yellow, green. The polite policeman stepped up beside her car and asked: "What's the matter, lady, ain't we got any colors you like?"

On Guard
Gushing Hostess—You know, I've heard a great deal about you. Absent-minded Politician—Possibly, but you can't prove a thing.

The Goal
Pop—Now be good while I'm out. Offspring—I'll be good for a nickel. Pop (reprovingly)—Son, you'll never be a real son of mine until you're good for nothing.

Handicapped
"My papa got an invitation to be the judge at the spring flower show."
"What does your papa know about flowers?"
"That's just the point. A judge is supposed to be neutral, and everybody says my papa doesn't smell so very good."

If you were to say the first bugle call of the day in the Army is "Reveille"—you'd be wrong. It's "First Call." But you probably know what cigarette gets first call with Army men—it's Camel. And Camel is the favorite with men in all branches of the service—Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, too. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Get EXTRA TRACTION AT No Extra Cost

and BETTER CLEANING, LONGER LIFE and EXTRA QUALITY TOO!

WITH food production one of our most important war production programs, you need the tractor tire which gives—Extra Pulling Power In All Soil Conditions.

That tire is the Firestone Ground Grip. Here's why!

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has a patented tread design which provides up to 215 extra inches of traction bar length per tractor, providing a full traction bite, greater drawbar pull—and less fuel is used.

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has the triple-braced tread design. There are no broken bars in the tread to cause traction leaks which make the tire slip and spin.

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has a scientifically designed tread with tapered bars at just the right angle for the tread to clean automatically as it pulls. And Vitamic Rubber provides longer life by resisting the action of the sun and the weather.

No wonder Firestone Ground Grip tires are first choice of farmers everywhere! No other tire has these exclusive extra values—and they cost no more than ordinary tires. See your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Store today and get the tires that give you most for your money.

'FREEDOM FROM REGULATION' IS WHAT PAXTON, ILL., WANTS

Dislike of Government Rulings and Redtape Evidenced By Citizens of Midwest Community.

By BARROW LYONS

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of articles written for this paper by Barrow Lyons, staff correspondent of Western Newspaper Union. He has just completed an extended trip through the nation and in these reports gives his first-hand impressions of what rural America is thinking as we enter the third year of war and the first weeks of a presidential election year. Any opinions expressed are the writer's and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

PAXTON, ILL.—Dislike of Washington and all its works could hardly be found in more concentrated form than in Paxton, Illinois, a town of 3,200 persons in the heart of the corn belt. Only a few citizens will admit there is anything the New Deal has done that has helped this county seat.

But Ford county holds one of the most prosperous rural communities in Midwestern United States. Before the war, in January, 1939, the deposits in Paxton's two banks totaled $1,631,000; but today they sum up to $4,532,000, an increase of 178 per cent in four years. Paxton is one of the most conservative places in conservative Illinois, which Wendell Willkie has called "the blackest spot on my map." Paxton spurns Willkie as "nothing but a New Dealer."

Clothing merchants in Paxton are making more money than at any time since the boom days of the '20s. A farmer recently calculating his income tax figured he had made a clear profit before taxes of more than $20,000 in this crop year on a gross income of $27,000—and he hadn't sold his 1943 corn crop yet. Most of his income was realized on last year's corn he had held.

So easy is it for shops to sell what merchandise they can get that advertising is at a minimum. Nevertheless, Paxton boasts both a daily and weekly newspaper. The Paxton Daily Record, a four-page paper, sells enough advertising space to break about even; but the Paxton Record, a weekly, makes money in spite of the fact that national automotive advertising has virtually disappeared, and the oil companies buy only about one-tenth of the space they used to take.

Publisher Looks Ahead To Postwar Years

Herbert N. Stevens, joint owner with his brother, Harold H. Stevens, of the Paxton newspapers and printing shop, says they are running their plant now with 13 employees instead of the customary 20. But Mr. Stevens is certain that after the war good times for the printer will return, because there will be sales advertising as never seen before. No depression is in sight for the immediate postwar years, Mr. Stevens is sure—so he has just ordered a new press to be delivered when peace arrives. He also feels confident that the New Deal regime will be a thing of the past then. He explained:

Large share of farmers' income around Paxton comes from corn.

"Ford County has had about as much of Washington as it can stand. I wouldn't say Paxton was just Republican. There are some Republicans around here who have voted for Roosevelt, you know. Party designations are losing significance. We are just as anti-Willkie as we are anti-Roosevelt. We think he's nothing but a New Dealer."

"When the boys come back from the war you're going to find the greatest bunch of rugged individualists you ever saw. We talk to every boy who comes back on furlough. They can't understand why the government tolerates this strike and slow-down business."

Mr. Stevens can't understand why the government should want 35 million dollars to advertise to get people back on the farm, while the United States Employment Service is advertising in his newspapers for men on the farm to work in war industries. Nor can he see why the soy bean processing factory in Gibson City, 15 miles away, can't get all the soy beans it can handle, because the Commodity Credit corporation directs locally grown beans to cotton ginning mills in Tennessee, despite the fact that the soy bean cake left after pressing out the oil is shipped back to Paxton for cattle feed. These are the things that have turned Paxton people against the New Deal. Mr. Stevens expresses vocally what many others feel.

Incidentally, it should be noted that there is not a labor union office in Ford county and the farmers are strongly anti-labor. In the last election the Republicans scored about five votes to every two Democratic votes, the latter coming mostly from railway workers, a few craftsmen and some tenant farmers.

Carl Shelby, Paxton's grain dealer, gave the clearest summary to Paxton's viewpoint. He is a business man, but his trade concerns the farmer's welfare most closely.

'Too Much Regulation' From Washington

"The thing that bothers us most is that there is too much regulation. The farm program has a tendency to tell the farmer exactly what he can do—and that applies pretty much to the business man too. These regulations were put on when times were hard and prices low, and conditions were benefited by regulation. There seems to be no tendency to drop them when times show improvement. The men in Washington made their program so that a man was penalized if he didn't go along with it. He was almost forced to follow to be in good standing with his neighbors."

"In the grain business we were forced to take whatever the Commodity Credit corporation allowed us to handle, do what they ordered us to do and wait until they got good and ready to pay us for that service. When a fellow is used to doing what he likes, and then someone comes along and tells him what he has to do—well, that gets under the skin."

"What we liked about the old free competition system was that foresight and intelligence were worth something. You might lose money in hard times, but you were allowed to make it in good times, and if you didn't waste it you generally came out all right in the long run. Now they don't let us make money when times are good, and they can't give us any assurance that times will always be good. If they could do that we wouldn't mind giving up some freedom."

"When you once start trying to control economic conditions you have to slap on more and more controls to cover the situations you couldn't foresee, and the thing grows and grows. That's the direction the New Deal seems to be headed in now, and most of us around here think it's time to call a halt and go in the other direction for a while."

As Paxton, Illinois, Views It . . .

Let T. M. Brady, manager, explain Paxton's REA cooperative: "We have paid all interest and principal when due, and have made advance payments on principal. Our kilowatt-hour consumption is growing steadily with increased use of electricity on the farm. War has given an additional impetus to the introduction of electrical labor-saving devices. Farmers are now installing batteries of chick brooders and pig brooders, and poultry lighting is increasing. Farmers around here say this is the greatest service they have received through the government, although they organized this co-operative themselves, provide the control of management and pay for all the service they get. There is not a subsidy of any kind in it.

THE FUEHRER AND AMERICAN MOVIES

Adolf Hitler, it develops, is a rabid movie fan and especially likes to get American films for some strange reason, and have them run off for him at Berchtesgaden. When the Drottningholm, prisoner ship, was returning from Scotland, the Nazis confiscated a batch of them for the Fuehrer. They included Disney's "Bambi," Betty Grable in "Coney Island" and the films "Crash Dive" and "Cairo."

He had better be careful how far he goes. If he goes in for our double-features he will get that breakdown, after all.

Of course it is just possible that Hitler doesn't really like American films. He may merely take them to Berchtesgaden so he can spend an evening boozing.

Still, Adolf is the type who would be a movie fanatic. He likes darkness, bad air, blatant credit lines, Donald Duck, Popeye, the Dracula sort of thing and a chance to argue with ushers.

Scene in the Chancellery.

Adolf (to Goering)—Well, did we seize any American films this week? Goering—Fuehrer, our forces to the north won another tremendous victory. They seized "I Dood It," "Lassie Comes Home" and "The Gang's All Here." On the west, we took "Buffalo Bill," "Looney Toons" and "Wintertime."

Adolf (shuddering)—Ach, give 'em back that last one! It gives me the creeps. Any word from Rommel?

Goering—He almost got "Always a Bridesmaid" and "For Whom the Bell Tolls" but had to retreat at the last moment.

Adolf—How is Kesselring doing? Goering—I have a wire from him that he has brought up reserves and is within ten miles of a new Carmen Miranda vehicle.

Adolf—Anything new on the Russian front?

Goering—The situation there is pretty clouded.

Adolf—I remember when everything on that front was in technical.

Goering—There are reports that in the Minsk sector we are threatening "Mission to Moscow" and "North Star."

Adolf (fiercely)—They don't even exist any more. The Warner Brothers have been exterminated, not to rise again for a thousand years.

Goering—Here's a message from our U-boats.

Adolf—Yes, yes, what is it?

Goering—They have torpedoed "Yankee Doodle," "Victory Through Air Power" and "Salute to the Marines."

The radio program of the year is the one just put on the air by Variety, the show-world magazine. What an ideal it takes outstanding performances of the week in the amusement business and puts on a Sunday night program. To us the best thing about it is that it introduces new talent, picking up able entertainers who haven't had the breaks and sweeping them into national fame overnight.

Prepared Although my husband's gone to war, he's just as safe now as before. He had some first-rate inside tips To make fast work of nasty "Nips." He's just as safe as he can be, FOR HE'S LEARNED SELF-DEFENSE FROM ME!

A new weather forecaster has been named for New York and promises an improvement in general conditions.

Ina Dodo went to see "Sahara" last night and says she coughed all day from the sand in her nose and throat.

Baseball is to get a livelier ball next season. One thing the Teheran and Cairo conferees have just realized is that more home runs, say what you may, are one of the main essentials to a bright new world.

Elmer Twitchell hears that the revolt in Bolivia was caused by the fact that President Penaranda forgot to send a Christmas card to Major Villarroel.

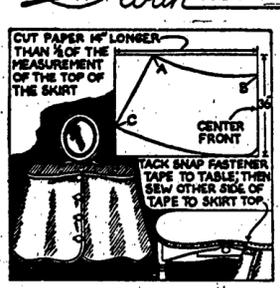

What this country needs is a cigar maker with a good five-cent conscience.

Can You Remember—Away back when you could dispose of many Christmas problems by merely going to the bank and saying: "Ten $5 gold pieces, please?"

Away back in prohibition days when prices were reasonable? And when you said, "Oh, I'm not asking for liquor back, I'd be satisfied with light wines and beers?"

When you could say, "I'll take a cigar this time" and get it?

Ships Go Over Bridge

A military bridge built recently across the Shatt-al-Arab river in Iraq acquired a unique feature through a change in design which had to be made after construction began, says Collier's. Although a lift-type drawbridge, its 92-foot span is lowered instead of raised, so vessels pass over instead of under it.

Peterboro
Tuesday night, January 11, Hillsboro High played host to the boys' and girls' teams of Peterboro High. Excitement reigned over the whole evening. The beginning of the girls' game proved moderate compared to the spectacular ending when Tex made several baskets from all parts of the floor. The good passing from guards to forwards made victory possible once again.
