7th-8th Grades Presents Play At Bennington

Undoubtedly by all of the audience, the play, "The Perkins Family," was as fine a piece of work as has been seen presented by young folks in this town for a long time. The parts played by George Weston and Barbara Griswold as Pop and Mom Perkins, called for a great deal of dramatic ability. The irascibility of Pop who was overburdened with work and so yelled it out on his family; "Mom" tried to run her house, her children and her "Clubs," and her nervous reactions were indeed extremely funny. The children, Vera Cashion as "Vangie" and Arthur Harrison as "Jerry," were examples of modern youngsters. They had their pals always running in and out of the house, Rena Paige as "Polly," and Maurice Wilson as "Dick." Just as kids do in your house, wanting to play tennis, wanting to know in general, "what's cooking?"

There were the usual troubles in the home, such as leaking pipes, tended to by the round the corner inefficient plumber, Mr. Umber, played by Daniel McKay. Then, of course there was a maid, a colored maid, Sara, played by Marguerite Smith. She had lots on her mind besides work such as being "Queen Esther" in a play. Her independence and indolence and colored humor was certainly played well.

Pop Perkins had an efficiency expert at his office and decides to have him in to organize and run his home, so Mr. Eflington, played by Bernard Grant, is called in by him and given absolute authority in the home. The troubles, trials and inconveniences resulting, are sure amusing. Not to be outdone, Ma brings in a young lady, Miss Worthington, plays by Anna Yakovakis, to study the family's sub-conscious mind, especially Pop's. Of course, you have guessed it, Miss Worthington and Mr. Eflington fall in love and the family falls back into their everyday way of living. The scenes were laid in the Perkins' living room. There was lots more to it, such as Pop flying an airplane, but it cannot be recorded here.

Pop decides he isn't as young as he used to be, and Mom decides that her place is in the home, and so the curtain falls on a hilarious human, modern household.

The stage managers were Louis Champney and Robert Cole, and business managers Peter Martel and Delbert Sargent. The coach and producer, Mrs. Paul Cody, who was presented a bouquet of flowers by the classes. Miss Mae Cashion assisted Mrs. Cody.

CARD PARTY

There was a card party given at Bennington Grange last week, and provided a good time for those who participated. There were a number of prizes provided by the members. First prize was won by Freeda Edwards; second by Edward French; third by Mae Cashion; fourth by Mary Sargent; consolation by Edith Lawrence, and the door prize by Edward French. Another party will be run in March.

The Grange received for their time and trouble in salvaging papers, twelve dollars when they sold it recently.

This week Thursday there is to be a farce; too late to record here this week.

BENNINGTON

Joan Cashion has recovered from her cold.

Leona Ellingwood, daughter of Mrs. Carl Swett, has been seriously ill at her home. She is recovering.

Dana Weston has been ill for some time at his home, Stony Brook Farm. His daughter, Mrs. L. Boutwell, of Concord came up to see him one day this week.

Prof. T. B. Charles, head of the Poultry Department of the University of New Hampshire, and C. O. Hollings, extension horticulturist, were speakers at the extension service meeting held for conference with farmers regarding production plans for the coming season. Bennington was represented also at the similar meeting that night in Hancock when a film was taken by USDA men for use in the film, "Farm Offensive of 1944."

Legion Letter, No. 12

To All Antrim Service Men and Women

There is no further word from Albert Poor. The last news received was carried in the December 23rd issue of "The Reporter," which stated that wreckage and empty life rafts were sighted in the vicinity of the crash, but in spite of an extensive search no survivors were found.

Roger Hill was reported seriously wounded on January 3rd. A letter from Washington said that any change in his condition would be reported immediately. It also said that he was getting the best possible care and would write as soon as possible. In the more recent letters that Roger wrote he gave the impression something was up and it looked as if he was trying to say that he was heading for the front. He had moved from Africa into Italy and he must have been wounded in the action that has been taking place there.

In the last letter we had 27 of you listed as overseas. The largest group is stationed in England, so if any of you over there get homesick remember there's quite a bunch of the old gang somewhere near you. Cecil Ayer, Fred Butler, Marvin Cuddihy, Robert Nylander, Frank Ordway, Francis Rokes, Wilbur Rockwell, Harry Rogers, Gordon Sudsbury, Jr., Rupert Wisell, and Earl Wallace are present, with Hank Stacy nearby in Ireland. Fred Butler, Harry Rogers and Robert Nylander are in touch by mail and are trying to arrange a meeting. Harry and Fred have the same A.P.O. number, so Roger watches every plane that lands to see if Fred will step out. Several months ago Cecil Ayer wrote that if you wanted to locate a buddy in England go to the Washington Club in London and they would make every effort to locate him. Suppose the catch in it for you boys is trying to get leave enough to get to London.

The next largest group is in Africa or somewhere around the Mediterranean, which isn't what you would call very specific. Anyway, Ralph Rokes, Lawrence Pratt, Roland Hutchinson, Norman Hildreth, George Nazer, Richard Johnson, Roger Hill and Arthur Hills are in that section.

In the S. W. Pacific area are James Nazer, Frank Dziengowski, Merrill Gordon and Bob Lang. Nearer Home are Bob Thomas and David Quincy in Hawaii and Fred Nazer down in Panama. Dick Ayer is still on his way from an eastern port.

Norman Hildreth writes on the anniversary of his first year in Africa and says he thinks it's safe to tell a few details. When his outfit landed they were under constant fire from snipers. (This must mean he was in the invasion force which came in from England. Things were pretty rugged for the first few months and the experience which impressed him most was trying to sleep in a pup tent in the mud. Since Norman weighs 230 pounds and had a bunk mate we would like to hear the other soldier's opinion before we decide who suffered most. In the Tunisian campaign he experienced his first bombings and he says it's some sensation to lie in a slit trench and hear a dive bomber start whining as it heads down straight for your back. Then come the bombs with shrapnel whistling along just above the ground. The first one is the worst and after a time you get used to them. The raids at night look like a 4th of July celebration with the ack ack and tracers lighting up the sky. Now it's quiet in his area and they have comfortable barracks with radios and electricity and even have a ball field. Italian laborers have taken the place of the Arabs and work hard, believing that their efforts will shorten the war.

Marvin Cuddihy's quarters in England are in an old castle. Bill Richardson is in New Orleans. Ralph George hasn't been able to get home since he entered the service, 14 months ago. And some of the boys get home so often they are more or less ashamed of it. A chronic appendix condition kept Ralph out of the paratroopers. Red Worden has completed his boot training in the Seebees and is on the West Coast. Wilbur Rockwell, who has moved from Italy to England, says it's the same old story; the storekeepers all try to gyp a dog face. He's been in London and seen all the points of interest. Alan Swett is out of the hospital and back at his station. George Nazer is in Africa, which means all five of the boys have been, or are, overseas.

You should hear Bobbie Whipple describing his sensations when he had to crawl along the ground with machine guns keeping a stream of bullets going over his head at a height of 20 inches. The officers must have a lot of confidence in the ammunition. Bob Nylander (Seebees) says they haven't handed out anything in the training line that he couldn't take only the 8-foot barrier. Said he couldn't get over that no matter how he tried. He is anxious to get through the preliminaries so he can get his hands on some of the big machines they have. Roland Hutchinson is expecting a transfer from his base in Africa. Boon Butterfield has passed his final exam and goes in in two weeks. It better be good, the way he has been looking forward to going. Hank Cutter applied for induction through his draft board but did not pass the exam.

Don Cram, Past Commander, has given the local post a piece of land in the west side of Jameson Ave. next to Reverend Packard's place. The lot is 100 by 100 feet and the Legion hopes to put up a building when the war is over and restrictions are lifted. Don's father was always a strong supporter of the Legion and the Post appreciated this gift from Don.

Howard Humphrey now has 75 pictures of you fellows in the Public Service window and is trying to get the rest. It is a nice looking display and practically everyone who passes stops and looks you over. Your folks have probably told you whether your picture is there or not, so make an effort to get a snapshot in if your family hasn't.

Dot Nylander of the Waves writes in from Oxford, Ohio, where she is in radio school. She will be there for a four months' course, taking up code, radio theory, procedure and typing. Ohio is much like N. H. as far as climate and appearance is concerned, but not so mountainous. She expects to get a 7-day delayed leave when her course is up.

Wendell Ring wants to explain that a fire controlman has nothing to do with fire fighting. His duties are to figure the speed and course of the target, the speed and course of his own ship, the effect of the wind on the projectile, and the wavering of the guns in a heavy sea. This is done by means of instruments and complicated electrical apparatus. Wendell is an instructor and says it's not a bad setup. Many of the instructors are veterans of the Solomons and Coral Sea and are a great bunch to work with. His family is with him in Newport.

Paul Dunlap returned to California after spending a furlough here while his ankle was healing and there was Sydney Huntington still on the job. Sydney writes that he has been having Marine training and can go to town any time after five P. M. or weekends. He wants you to know he is a cook's helper and says it's the best job in the outfit. Never gets hungry and has every other day off. He expects to ship overseas any time and his gang is anxious to get at it and get it over with. San Diego is a pretty good town but there are too many sailors there and the Army and the Navy have quite a few arguments.

Wesley McClure was home for a week after 14 months' service. One time, during this wait, he flew over Antrim in a bomber which was on a training flight. His outfit has been assigned to a famous unit which saw action in the Pacific and has been brought to the U. S. to be built back to normal strength. Arthur Rockwell and his gun crew, aboard a ship, were all set for a swell turkey dinner on Christmas. Up came a storm and the ship rocked so it was impossible to serve anything but a cup of soup. By the time the storm abated the swell turkey dinner was so dried up nobody could eat it. Bub Proctor finished his boot training and is assigned to a storekeeper's school in Boston. The boys live in a hotel and the meals and service are furnished by civilian employees. All the sailors have to do is make their own beds. He has been in 10 weeks and drawn 14 dollars. The Navy keeps deducting for alterations and haircuts, etc., and now he has to buy a raincoat out of his next pay. Those aren't his exact words but the facts are the same.

Let's hear from you.

Molly Aiken Chapter, D.A.R. Meeting

Molly Aiken Chapter, D.A.R., met Friday afternoon, Feb. 4, at the home of Mrs. Archie M. Swett. Mrs. Carl Muzzey was the assisting hostess.

The meeting was opened with the ritual, pledge of allegiance and singing of the National Anthem. All members are urged to report number of hours spent in Red Cross work or National Defense, to the Chapter chairman before the end of the month.

The National Convention of D.A.R. will be held in New York City, April 17. The Regent, Mrs. Johnson, is the Chapter Delegate and Vice Regent, Mrs. Seaver and Mrs. Hurlin, were elected alternates.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Robinson and opened with an article on National Defense read by Mrs. Wheeler.

An especially fine paper, "Women of the White House," written by Mrs. Lang, was read by Mrs. Robinson. The first half of the paper gave many interesting and historical facts about the First Ladies and their families. For the second half, Mrs. Lang chose six outstanding wives of the Presidents, selected for their ability as hostesses and particularly for their influence in helping to make their husbands the political leaders of their day.

These ladies, impersonated by six members, dressed in the costumes of the time, were presented to the group and an account of their achievements read. The six women selected were Martha Washington, Abigail Adams, Jane Appleton Pierce, Mary Todd Lincoln, Eliza Johnson and Caroline Scott Harrison. As the women were presented, appropriate music was played by Mrs. Vera Butterfield.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wheeler and the State Officers will be guests. All Daughters are urged to be present. Refreshments were served by the hostesses during the social hour.

ANTRIM LOCALS

Winslow Caughey was at home from New Hampshire University over the weekend.

Pvt. David Hammond returned to Kentucky last Thursday, after spending several days of a furlough with his mother and sister, Mrs. Dalton Brooks.

A. M. and winds up at 10 P. M. Then they have from then until 10:30 to do what they want. Oh, well, maybe those reviews are on Saturday and Sundays.

John and Albert Nazer are back in Florida after their furlough. They had some time in Italy. For nine days they were anchored off the beach head while the Germans threw everything they had at the ships. They were in a position to see all the action and saw plenty but said not to say too much about it. We don't want to reveal anything that we shouldn't but we do hear a lot that would be interesting. When it comes in a letter, through a censor, why that is different.

Frank Jellerson got home for a week after 14 months' service. One time, during this wait, he flew over Antrim in a bomber which was on a training flight. His outfit has been assigned to a famous unit which saw action in the Pacific and has been brought to the U. S. to be built back to normal strength.

Funeral Services Held for Lawrence Mulhall

Lawrence Mulhall passed away at his home in Hancock on Thursday morning, February 3rd.

He was a native and lifelong resident of Hancock and was the son of Edward and Mary E. (Welch) Mulhall. Survivors are two brothers, Harry W. and Robert N. Mulhall of Hancock; and a sister, Mrs. Louise Casey of Hillsboro, and several nieces and nephews.

Services were from the Woodbury Funeral Home at Hillsboro on Monday, February 7th, at 9 a. m., with mass at St. Patrick's church in Bennington, with Rev. Frederick J. Sweeney officiating. The bearers were Edward and Robert Mulhall, John Mulhall and Walter Cleary. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery at Bennington, under the direction of Philip J. Woodbury, mortician.

Among those attending the services were Miss Alice N. Mulhall and Mrs. Elsie Smith of Boston, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. William O'Malley and Exara O'Malley of Lynn, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Malley and James O'Malley of Worcester, Mass., Gus and Walter Cleary and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knight of Bennington, Edward Caughlin, Mary Mulhall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mulhall and Mr. and Mrs. John Mulhall of Antrim, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Genier and Mrs. Louise C. Casey of Hillsboro and Maurice Muzzey of Peterboro.

LOIS BLACK CHOSEN "GOOD CITIZEN" BY SENIOR CLASS

Miss Lois Black has been chosen as the "Good Citizen" from the senior class of the high school, who will compete with other high school girls throughout the state in an essay contest on the subject "Is Good Citizenship Essential to a Democratic Government?" Contestants are chosen by a vote of the class and of its teachers on the qualifications of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism. The winner, who will be the "Good Citizen of New Hampshire" will be awarded a $100 war bond by the National Society, D. A. R., and with a Good Citizen certificate from Molly Aiken chapter, D. A. R.

ANTRIM LOCALS

Tom Leonard is on furlough and is at home for a few days.

Mrs. Harold Proctor is visiting this week with her sister in Newton, Mass.

Reports from Roger Hill, coming from Washington, state that he is making normal improvement.

Frank Blood of Gardner, Mass. visited over the weekend with his brother, Harry Blood, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cleveland of Framingham, Mass. were guests Wednesday of his mother, Mrs. Lottie Cleveland.

Mrs. Henry Pratt and Ben were in Durham Saturday to attend commencement exercises at which her daughter, Judith Pratt, R.N., was awarded a B.S. degree. Miss Pratt is a teacher in the New London, Conn. hospital.

Mrs. Ralph Smith and two children from Jamaica Plain, Mass., Miss Alice Mulhall from Boston and William Mulhall from Connecticut have been guests of relatives, called here by the death of their uncle in Hancock.

Mrs. Thomas Chaffee died at her home in Gardiner, Maine, Saturday, Jan. 29th. Mrs. Chaffee came to Antrim in 1925 when her husband became Headmaster at the High School, and during their fourteen years' residence here won the high esteem of everyone.

Antrim Garden Club met Monday evening with Mrs. Guy Tibbetts, with an attendance of sixteen. It was voted to put an article in the town warrant in regard to caring for the shade trees on Main street. Also voted to secure tickets to the Boston Flower Show which is to be held on March 18-25. Tickets will be available to club members for 85 cents. Mr. Packard led an interesting discussion on seeds for the vegetable garden. Year books have been printed by Mr. Spencer and were distributed to the members.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

History's Biggest Naval Bombardment
Prelude to Major Action on Marshalls;
Russians Surge Onward Toward Baltic;
Civilian Fat, Oil Allotments Decreased

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Solomons—Marines plod through heavy mud during operations against last big Jap base of Bougainville in Solomons.

MID-PACIFIC:
Japs Crumbling

With stalwart U. S. doughboys pounding at other positions in the Marshalls from beachheads they established in the very heart of the islands, Jap forces slowly relinquished their grip on these mid-Pacific strongholds menacing Allied supply lines to the Philippines.

In attacking the Marshalls after the greatest naval bombardment in U. S. history, American troops were put ashore on one of the most important of the islets making up the group. From here, the doughboys trained their guns on the biggest air base and the best submarine and seaplane station in the whole island cluster.

With the memory of strong Jap fortifications of Tarawa in the Gilberts still in mind, the U. S. spared none of the firepower of its navy or air force to smash at enemy installations in the Marshalls before troops clambered ashore. But despite the terrific battering, Jap units took up the fight when doughboys landed, again making it no picnic.

TAXES:

Lawmakers Agree

Falling far short of the administration's request for 10 1/2 billion dollars in new taxes, a conference committee of senators and congressmen agreed on raising 2 billion 300 million to bring 1944 revenue to about 44 billion dollars.

More than a billion dollars of the new taxes would be collected on higher levies for goods and services, new rates amounting to 1 cent for every 5 cents admission charge, $9 per gallon of 100 proof liquor, $8 per barrel of beer, 20 per cent on furs, jewelry and luggage, 15 per cent on transportation, and increased rates on club dues, bowling alleys and pool tables. The tax on cosmetics would be raised to 20 per cent.

Air mail rates would be raised to 8 cents; 3 cent stamps would be required on local mail deliveries, and charges would be increased on C.O.D., registered and insured mail, and on money orders.

By abolishing the earned income credit and deductions for payment of federal excise taxes, the lawmakers figured on raising 600 million in additional income taxes. Another 500 million would be raised by increasing the excess profits tax from 90 to 95 per cent.

RUSSIA:

Near Baltic

Churning deeply into Nazi lines, Red troops pressed onto the borders of the Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia, while in the Ukraine 400 miles to the south, heavy fighting continued in fluctuating counterattacks.

Russians surged toward the narrow belts of land making up Estonia and Latvia on the Baltic sea coasts after rolling the Nazis back from around Leningrad and seizing control of the large network of railroads in the area, including the double track running to Moscow.

Employing upwards of 250,000 men, the Reds hammered big dents in the German lines, forcing enemy retreats with the threat of encirclement from the rear.

Having given ground before German counterattacks 80 miles from the Rumanian border, the Reds struck back both to the east and west of this region, chewing into enemy lines behind intense artillery and tank fire.

EUROPE:

Nutcracker Closing

The big Allied nutcracker in southern Italy slowly closed on embattled Nazi troops below Rome, while U. S. and British bombers hammered away at the enemy's defense installations and supply centers in northwestern Europe.

Despite bitter German resistance, U. S. and French forces chewed deeper into the Nazis' network of pillboxes and barbed wire around the mountain stronghold of Cassino, about 40 miles south of the Allies' invasion beaches near Rome. With supplies pouring onto the sandy beachheads, U. S. and British troops organized their strength for sharp thrusts at the enemy's communication lines feeding their forces at Cassino, but encountered bitter opposition.

Although Berlin again came in for a major share of Allied bombing in northwestern Europe, the whole invasion coast was peppered with explosives designed to cripple the long string of concrete and steel defense posts. Reports indicated that the Germans were pulling seasoned troops out of Russia to reinforce Jutland, the closest land approach to Berlin.

FOOD SUPPLY:
World Prospects

With food production here at its peak and overseas demands increasing, the U. S. may have to go along on smaller supplies in 1944. Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard declared.

Of our Allies, Great Britain should maintain her present nutritional standards because of increased home production and an improvement in the shipping situation, Wickard said, but he was less optimistic of Russia, reporting that with the Germans occupying its rich agricultural regions earlier in 1943 the country now faced actual starvation.

Although Germany is better off than it was during World War I, conditions have further deteriorated throughout the rest of Europe, Wickard said. Japan's control over East Asia gives her a rich source of foodstuffs, but their availability to the homeland is restricted by the enemy's shipping facilities, Wickard pointed out.

Less Fats, Oils

Civilian allotments of fats and oils in 1944 will average less than last year, the War Food Administration under Marvin Jones announced.

Approximately 21 per cent of the nation's supply will be shipped to U. S. allies, it was reported, with Russia and Great Britain receiving 16.3 per cent of the total.

Under the allotments, each U. S. civilian will get about 43.9 pounds of butter, lard, shortenings and other oils and margarine, compared with 46.5 pounds last year, and 48.8 pounds in 1942.

Allotments for cooking oils and vegetable oil shortenings will average 14.3 pounds per person as compared with 16.4 pounds in 1943, and 13.9 pounds of lard as against 14.3 pounds.

Claude Wickard

LIFE INSURANCE:
Claims Mount

Deaths of men in military service and the effects of stress and strain on the civilian population have contributed to a 16 per cent rise in life insurance benefits since 1939.

During the same period, however, there has been an increase of 22 per cent of insurance in force to a record of 139 billion dollars, with women recently employed accounting for many of the new policies.

Because of this increase in the total amount of life insurance outstanding, the mortality rate has been about the same as in 1939, and lower than in any year prior to 1938. In 1943, 1 billion 100 million dollars was paid out in claims.

War Casualties

U. S. war casualties so far total 146,186, with 33,153 dead, 33,167 missing, 49,518 wounded and 29,898 prisoners.

Army casualties number 109,434, divided among 17,480 killed, 24,806 missing, 41,533 wounded and 25,615 prisoners.

The navy reported 36,752 casualties, of whom 15,673 were killed, 8,811 missing, 7,985 wounded and 4,283 prisoners.

Of the 2,000 prisoners who died in enemy camps, most were under Japanese control, it was reported.

Baby Smaller

When 6 pound 5 ounce Paulette Matthes was born a year ago in Chicago, doctors held little hope for her life. But Paulette recently celebrated her first birthday, although weighing 3 ounces less than at birth in a case that has baffled physicians.

Twenty-two inches long, little Paulette can only digest a little of formula and water, and she has required so much care that her mother has scarcely slept since her birth. The Matthes also have a thriving young son, Ronald, 4.

PRESSURE COOKERS:
400,000 Authorized

Because more and more homemakers have taken to canning to avert shortages of fruits and vegetables in off seasons, the War Production board has authorized manufacture of 400,000 aluminum pressure cookers during the first six months of 1944.

Although 339,000 pressure canners were made from carbon steel last year, use of aluminum was banned in January of 1942. Because of a shortage of capacity for fabricating aluminum, none will be available for manufacture of other kitchen utensils.

Under WPB plans, the new aluminum pressure cookers will not be rationed and will be offered for sale without restriction. Three-fifths of U. S. families canned last year, it has been estimated, with an average per family of 165 jars or cans.

Monkey Shines

When Private Floyd Steward of San Pedro, Calif., plunged into a watery shell hole in North Africa during a bombing raid and came up with a baby monkey, it was one of the best moves he ever made.

Private Steward's constant companion after that, the monkey found grapes and berries for him when he was lost in the wild country for days; chattered noisily when he and 14 other soldiers were about to drink from a poisoned waterhole, and by loud yelping, directed rescuers to the spot where he had been buried under debris by an exploding shell.

DEBTS:

Consumers Cut Total

At the end of 1943, Americans could look beyond to postwar markets to more possible spending, following reduction of consumer indebtedness by 1 billion, 200 million dollars during the last year because of continued goods shortages.

Installment loans also showed a 25 per cent slump for the year, and charge accounts were cut, but only by 15 million dollars.

At the end of 1943, automobile credit outstanding was one-third of the total of 1942.

Warns Farmers

A 15 per cent increase in land prices since 1942 reflects a threatening speculative spree, Governor A. G. Black of the Farm Credit administration warned.

Declaring that farm land in the Central West and parts of the South was selling 20 to 30 per cent above federal land bank appraisals, Governor Black said some buyers were courting disaster if they could not reduce mortgages to an amount that could be carried by normal earnings.

Spurring demands, Governor Black said, are a large number of city people with large incomes, who have been putting their money into farm land.

VETS' AID

It is estimated that 300,000 beds will be needed by 1949 to care for veterans of this and previous wars. As hospitalization is now open to all men and women of the armed forces, whether their disability is service-connected or not, Brig. Gen. Frank Hines, veterans' administrator, expects to have training camp facilities turned over to him for conversion into hospital accommodations.

Few of the injuries and ailments for which servicemen receive government care are battle casualties.

'WORKING PEOPLE' DOMINATE
ACTIVITIES OF ELDON, IOWA

Organized Labor Usually Bests Business Group in Elections; Citizens Are Proud of School System.

By BARROW LYONS

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of articles written for this paper by Barrow Lyons, staff correspondent of Western Newspaper Union. He has just completed an extended trip through the nation and in these reports gives his first-hand impressions of what rural America is thinking as we enter the third year of war and the first weeks of a presidential election year. Any opinions expressed are the writer's and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

ELDON, IOWA.—Two worlds meet in this Iowa town—the world of organized labor and the business world. But labor runs this town of 1,700 people on the banks of the Des Moines river where the Sac and Fox Indians once lived.

Eldon is a railroad town—a division point on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway where the main line intersects the Des Moines and Keokuk branch. The railway came there to get coal. A majority of Eldon people work for the Rock Island. They are somewhat clannish, very independent and understand the importance of organization.

As a result they dominate the elections. The mayor is a railroader. So are four of the five members of the city council, three of the five members of the school board, and several of the city officials.

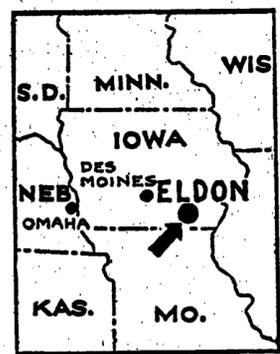

And although Eldon people are traditionally Republicans, the railroaders are now almost 100 per cent New Dealers.

Merchants and other business men of Eldon form the political opposition. They are known locally as the County Fair group. The fair has been discontinued for the duration, but in peace times it is the third largest fair in the state, being surpassed only by the Iowa state fair and the Clay county fair at Spencer, said to be the largest county fair in the world. This great fair seems to be a compensation for the business man's political eclipse in Eldon.

An examination of this New Deal town in which the working people dominate reveals advantages and disadvantages. There is no hotel, but a number of the railroad men take lodgers, where one can get a room. The fastidious traveler would not like the accommodations, but the beds are clean and one can get a warm bath in the hall bathroom. And the railroader's wife who runs the establishment makes up in friendliness what her hostelry lacks in modern decorations and conveniences.

There are no modern fitted out restaurants. But there are eating places where one can buy well-prepared food, and plenty of it at moderate prices.

Many of the people who live in Eldon own their homes—and assessments are low. There is no real estate tax, except the school tax, for most of the expenses of government are met from the profit the city derives from distributing electric current. From these charges all

I wanted. Now that's something. Eldon is a fine place to bring up my two little boys where there is such a good school. I'm paying $18 a month rent for a modern five-room house. In Kansas City the same house would cost me $35 to $40 a month.

Neighbors Are Ready To Help Distressed

"Anyone in distress usually is looked after by the neighbors—we don't need charity. For those who have grief, there is always sympathy. I've seldom seen drunkenness around here. This is a good town for working men. You hear that wherever you go."

William H. Sapp, member of the Switchmen's Union of North America, was asked why Eldon remained New Deal.

"Well, we remember that the New Deal helped us get out of the depression and get work," he explained. "This wage deal that's coming up now is not against the government. The men are working twice as hard as they did before the war and getting the same money, and the companies are making twice as much."

"I'm registered as a Republican, but I'm for the New Deal. I don't think there's a railroad man who likes John L. Lewis as a man, but they admire his stand because they know that if the miners are licked, we're all sunk. There are quite a few miners living around here, and they're about the poorest paid workers there are—and they work hard, too. You take a mining town and it has the poorest teachers there are."

It is easy to understand why most of the business men of Eldon are not very vocal in opposition to the New Deal. Frank Davis, director of the First National bank, however, was willing to voice criticism.

"One thing that we're blessed with, brother," he exclaimed, "is that we're living in a land where there's free speech. There is a great deal of unrest among the people. They wonder what's going on. This enormous spending—enormous taxation. There's a great deal of talk on how much labor is going to control the powers that be."

"When I try to look forward, I kind of look at a high wall. I read a great deal and try to keep posted, but I can't see where we're headed. "All power to Mr. Roosevelt for the good things he's done. But there's seen them in this town. But there's such a thing as a man becoming drunk with power."

Eldon remembers the curse of unemployment more bitterly than most small towns. Many of its young men were gathered into the local National Youth administration project, and it was the grief of the Eldon people that these boys were contented to make the NYA their way of life—to hope for nothing better. But it is their pride to have seen these boys make splendid fighters in the armed forces. Several already have given their lives.

As Eldon, Iowa, Views It . . .

There are quite a few coal miners who work in the strip coal mines around Eldon, but not nearly as many as used to live there before the mines at Laddsdale across the river caught fire, and caused such great loss about 30 years ago.

Those were the days, however, when Eldon flourished commercially. Right off the bat I was accepted as a member of the community and extended all the credit ments. Across the tracks there was a settlement which no longer exists—a wide open town with its saloons and dives, and two hotels. As this block deteriorated, and the buildings were vacated, they were demolished, and this rowdy block is now only a memory. "There's very little moral turpitude in Eldon now," one old railroader remarked, and he meant it.

CIVILIAN DRAFT BILL
GOES TOO FAR

WASHINGTON.—A week after Mr. Roosevelt's demand for a civilian draft bill, his floor leader Barkley had not emitted a word of approval. His leaders on the house side went further and assured newsmen, off the record, the bill would not be passed.

Indeed, the prevailing congressional suspicion seems to be that the President possibly had entered upon promotion of the bill (in his message, at least) to remove the curse from his record on the strike situation. In any event, the bill will not be even seriously considered unless some manpower or strike emergency arises, which the leaders obviously do not expect.

The printed reaction out in the country was somewhat amazing. Endorsements came from conservative commentators largely—but also from the Bridges Communist-controlled longshoremen's union on the Pacific coast. When you get Communists and conservatives together, you may be sure someone is being fooled.

The reaction of the man in the street, as I get it conversationally, was likewise surprisingly approving. People generally hate strikes and sympathize with the unequal positions of the soldier with the war worker. They are irrefutably right in these positions.

But, in their righteous wrath, they are apt to be misled into espousing a remedy far more unjust than the injustices they want to cure. Few of them have studied the bill and understand what it would do to them and the country. Congress knows.

To me, it seems as unjustified as using an axe to eliminate a flyspeck on glass, and in this case, the glass is the final container of individual human rights, individual liberty—all that we are fighting for and including our "way of life"—in favor of male and female enslavement to the state for war reasons that are not apparent to all—including congress.

NATIONAL MARTIAL LAW?

Theoretically, it would practically declare national martial law on all the people to make a few work—and this in a nation whose production (work) is already so good that Mr. Roosevelt justly brags it is the best in the world.

You can see this clearly by a detailed study of the bill—empowering the President by proclamation to move anyone anywhere away from his home into any other job at any rate of pay (that is, any except federal, state, county, and local officials, including bureaucrats who are exempt along with pregnant mothers and those with minor children, and the other established military exemptions, although I do not see clergymen exempt).

The urge for this thing is the injustice of drafting the soldier, not even there do the proponents propose justice in lieu thereof. A drafted soldier has his whole life provided by the federal government.

Nothing comparable is promised the civilian draftee. He can be uprooted from his home, sent across the country to work in a field at half the salary or less—and all the government would give him is transportation and a polite invitation to the draft boards to consider housing conditions in the area to which he is sent. It would only equalize present injustices by creating more.

In short, its theory is to absorb the human being completely into state totalitarianism. Mr. Roosevelt's pen slipped badly when he wrote congress:

"National service is the most democratic way to win war."

It proposes final abandonment of civilian democratic independence. Its theory is that of both Fascism and Communism, but bears no slight resemblance to that of democracy which espouses voluntary contributions of effort and individual freedom of patriotic conscience.

It would leave the deepest scar of this war on democracy.

PORK BARREL
ROLLS OUT AGAIN

Speaker Sam Rayburn told the Chicago Mayors' conference the administration would provide a public works program—not for some far future period when depression might set in—but to take up the lag right away at the end of the war.

He added a new wrinkle to the announced plan of Vice President Wallace to build a stack of blueprints for future construction of sewers, dams, reforestation, etc., if needed.

Such projects are the meat upon which politics feeds—the luscious, fat, juicy pork. If the war is over before next November, Mr. Rayburn intends that unspecified millions or billions will be available in time to do the best possible good for the Democratic cause.

Meanwhile, he is appointing a special house postwar fact finding committee (nonpartisan, he said) to mull over the feisty building projects they are always pushing in their local districts. So the political effect will not be lost even if the war fails to come to an obliging conclusion.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

PENICILLIN: When it becomes plentiful enough, penicillin may replace sulfa drugs in dental practice.

LONG WAIT: Twenty-six years afterward, a Bloomington, Ill., veteran has been notified that he has been awarded the Purple Heart. He was wounded by shell fragments at St. Mihiel, France, September 15, 1918. Since then he has undergone 33 operations.

ALUMINUM: Stimulated by war needs, production of aluminum has reached enormous proportions compared with prewar standards. Production capacity is so great that the light metal may be used as a substitute for steel. Aluminum parts could be used in automobiles, farm machinery, refrigerators, washing machines, window sash, and similar articles.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THOUGH Rise (pronounced Ree-suh) Stevens has sung five seasons with the Metropolitan Opera company, radio can claim her in a way; she made her first public appearance as a singer on the "Sunday Morning Children's Hour," produced by Milton Cross. In 1935 she was a semi-finalist in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air, was offered a contract—and refused; felt that she wasn't ready for it. Paramount signed her for "The Count of Luxembourg"; when it was delayed, she was asked to appear opposite

RISE STEVENS

Bing Crosby in "Going My Way?" in which she sings several operatic arias. Describing her, people say: "Really, she's not a bit like an opera star!"

When Johnny Longden, the jockey who rode Count Fleet to victory in the Kentucky Derby, visited the set of "United Artists' 'The Hairy Ape,'" he brought along a good luck token. To William Bendix, the male star, and Alfred Santell, director, he gave the shoes the great horse wore in the race, as a lucky piece on the opening stretch of their shooting.

J. Carroll Naish saved a marine's life the other day on the screen. Naish is in "Gung Ho!," Universal's film based on the book written by Capt. W. S. LeFrancis, USMC. The script writers had the captain die in their version of the story, instead of being wounded and decorated, as happened in real life. But Naish played the captain so brilliantly that the script was revised.

Gary Cooper, who rose to film fame as a strong, silent man, sings on the screen for the first time in "The Story of Dr. Wassell." The song, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," was spotted by C. B. DeMille for the picture on publication.

The new Sinatra picture has no title so far, but it's under way; George Murphy, Adolphe Menjou and Gloria De Haven have been signed for it by RKO; Wally Brown and Alan Carney, comedy team, will appear as stooges to Murphy.

Eleanor Powell's dancing partner for the grand finale of "Sensations of 1944" recently arrived in Hollywood; she's "Starless Night," is five years old, and is rated by her owner, Capt. William Heyer, as the finest dancing horse he's ever trained.

Virginia O'Brien, noted for her "dead-pan" portrayals, will change her screen personality in her new picture, "Dear Barbara," which MGM is producing with Susan Peters in the lead. In the picture Frank Morgan will play a character similar to that of his telegrapher in "The Human Comedy," which won him praise from the critics. Jimmy Durante and Margaret O'Brien also have important roles.

Dennis Day, singing star of Jack Benny's radio show, has been signed by RKO to a contract calling for his appearance in two films yearly. While still unknown, Day followed Kenny Baker as the singer on the Benny program, and almost overnight became a top attraction. Acting roles on the air show helped him along, and first thing he knew he was in pictures.

The latest "March of Time," exclusive film material which reached America on the last plane out of Sweden before air travel there was suspended, shows how the Swedish people, living in precarious peace, are meeting the pressure of Nazi threats with growing defiance.

ODDS AND ENDS—There's a rumor that Greta Garbo's next picture will team her with Charles Boyer for Universal. . . . Ginny Simms has mailed Valentine cards to servicemen who have appeared on her program. . . . The role of Stanley, the cigar store proprietor on the Burns and Allen show, is played by Bill Wright, who co-starred with Al Pearce for years in the "Eb and Zeb" comedy series. . . . Don Ameche, too busy in pictures to follow the "What's New" show in New York, acted as master of ceremonies at a feast at a Hollywood restaurant for his three young sons, Ronny, Tommy and Lonny. . . . Loretta Young eats six meals daily to gain weight.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Tire life on rough gravel roads is about 40 per cent less than on smooth concrete pavements. This was proved by tests conducted by the Iowa State College.
Soap, it develops, is to be a growing factor in maintaining motor transportation. It has been estimated that 100 million pounds of soap will be required for one year's production of synthetic rubber.
Camelback, which gets its name because it originally had a hump in the center, is a growingly important product of the rubber industry. Over 20 million pounds of camelback are now being made monthly to recap tires.

That Fellow Private Bath Certainly Gets Around
A little old-fashioned lady, who was unaccustomed to traveling, was making a trip across the country to see her son who was in an army camp. She was registering at a hotel.
"The hotel is so full we haven't much choice to offer," said the room clerk courteously. "But we can give you a room with private bath."
"Oh, dear me—no!" exclaimed the old lady in dismay. "But I can't understand it. That soldier seems to be in every hotel I stay at!"
Perfume to Stench
Most stench bombs are filled with a fluid made from the dried roots of the valerian plant because the odor is believed to be the most offensive in existence. Yet people in the 16th century considered the scent of this root so fragrant that they used it to perfume their clothes.

NOSEGAYS of roses, embroidered down the front of this pert princess frock, will make that youngster proud to wear it. The transfer pattern for the embroidery comes with the smart little dress pattern.

Eggs Hatched by 'Human Incubators' in China
Eggs of a special breed of duck in China are hatched by "human incubators," men who carry the eggs in nets around their waists. The first period of incubation is taken care of by the mother fowl, but for the last three days before the ducklings poke their beaks through the shells men carry the eggs.

This is supposed to improve the quality of the bird, which makes a famous dish known as "Peking duck."

Boulders as Tombstones
Because it is forbidden to cut a gravestone or write a name or epitaph along the Yugoslav-Albanian border, relatives of deceased search for boulders which they imagine resemble the shape of their departed loved ones. These they place over the graves.

Household Hints
Honey should be kept in a warm place in the kitchen. If it does granulate, place the container in a pan of hot water until it liquidizes.

A sharp knife, rinsed in hot water, will do a good job of cutting cake and keeping neat cake and frosting edges.

Rayon fabrics must be handled carefully when wet. When dry, rayon regains its strength.

Watch your electric cords for wear. Have them repaired at once to prevent accidents.

If it is difficult to make wallpaper stick to chimney, ceilings or walls, apply a coat of aluminum paint before papering. Then the wallpaper will not crack or come loose.

If a small leak makes it impossible to use the hot water bottle in the regular way, try filling it with hot salt. You'll find it holds the heat even longer than water and will last a long time.

Continual opening of the oven door changes the temperature and is a common cause of baking failures.

Looks like an early spring. Why? Well this is my dope. Usually pigeons of the fancy variety do not nest in January or February. I have a pair of fantails that have been setting on eggs now for two weeks. How come?

Don't burn up that old tree that did such good service last Dec. 25. Just take it to your favorite pond and out on the ice to sink when the ice melts. This will provide a shelter for the baby fish from the old ones who would make a meal of them if they get a chance. This will improve the fishing later on in that pond.

Are Faced With This Fourth War Loan Challenge

A $275,000 QUOTA

WE BOUGHT EXTRA WAR BONDS

This is a challenge to the patriotism of every individual in Hillsboro. During the Fourth War Loan Drive . . . Hillsboro's quota is $275,000.00. Men and women have volunteered their services to the Committee responsible for raising that money.

Whether you think of your Bond purchase in terms of bonds or bullets; of military equipment or medical supplies for our men; of armor plate or ailerons for ships or planes . . . they will pay at least a part of this terrible price for victory.

You can help bring victory nearer by going to your bank at your first opportunity and investing to the very limit of your ability.

Applique Is Keynote Of Remodeled Room

COLOR is important in making harmonious rooms from odds and ends, and nature is the best source for color inspiration. The soft golden color of wheat, the orange-red of poppies and the blue of cornflowers were worked into the charming applique design you see here over the desk.

Stretched over a piece of cardboard to fit an unused picture frame this piece of applique work became the keynote for the interesting furniture group you see here. The top of the old desk was cut away and it was boxed in between book shelves. The padded stool was made of a box. The sketch shows how the applique colors were repeated in paint and fabric. The desk accessories also repeat these colors.

NOTE—Now is the time to start a really interesting piece of hand work that will fit into that room that you expect to remodel next spring. A stamping pattern, color guide and directions for all the stitches in the graceful applique design shown here may be obtained for 15 cents. Address:

Kathleen Norris Says:

The Same Old Lottery

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"Judd is home for lunch every day and I have no help."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
WHOEVER said "marriage is a lottery" said it a long time ago, for I can't remember the time when I wasn't familiar with the phrase. Naturally it doesn't mean anything to children, nor even to youth, for young lovers feel perfectly confident of each other—no lottery about it, they know.

But later on, after a few years of matrimony, wise women recognize the truth of the old saying. For every wife gets good and gets bad out of her bargain, but the good isn't the good she expected, and the faults she presently discovers even in the most perfect husband, aren't in the least the faults about which she so lovingly and jokingly teased him when they were only engaged.

A woman named Tania Quinn writes me about it. Like a million other American girls Tania married a serviceman last year; she had known him only seven weeks when she became his wife, and at that time didn't think that he had any faults at all. He's a flier, and while all servicemen possess a romantic attraction for women, fliers have a special glamour. Tania admits that she has been unusually popular, that a great many of the boys wanted to marry her, and she says she made special stipulations before she would consent to say "yes" to Judd.

She must have her own separate room. He was never to be home for lunch. They weren't to have a baby for five years. At the end of the first year they were to have a frank talk, each telling the other the 10 qualities or habits he or she most disliked in his mate, and if they were not able to come to a fair agreement then they were to separate.

Flier Agreed to Terms.
Judd, rather weakly it seems to me, but perhaps he was too madly infatuated to be reasonable, agreed to these absurd terms; he and Tania were married, and he flew away.

Now he is home again, to stay. Because of a foot injury he can't fly any more, but has been placed as an instructor at an important post.

"Of course I was perfectly delighted to have him safe at home," says Tania's letter. "But everything came out differently from what I expected, and I want to know if I haven't the right to claim the old promises from Judd. Space is terribly short here; we have one room and a bath and tiny kitchen. Promise one. Judd is home for lunch every day and I have no help. Promise two. I am expecting a baby, which makes me simply furious although I have no doubt I will love it when it comes. Promise three. And when in June I proposed that we have that long talk and see how we really felt about things Judd only laughed. He hasn't the slightest notion that he is failing me so terribly and has broken every promise that he ever made me. I think that if he was sympathetic I would not care so much, but I am away from home, lonely, not a very good housekeeper and feeling miserably sick all the time, and I just go about resenting things and crying. Not my idea of marriage at all!"

Well, this letter, with its unconscious revelation of prolonged adolescence, would be funny if it were not so pathetic. Life has taken hold of Tania and made her a woman in spite of herself, and she doesn't like so abrupt a treatment. But one can't quite blame Judd, after his scalding experiences in the war, his

HUMANS CONSTANTLY CHANGE

Human beings are constantly changing either for better or worse. Rules of behavior cannot be laid down by one human for another to follow. That is the mistake made by the young wife in the situation discussed today by Kathleen Norris. This young lady laid down certain regulations that her suitor was to follow when they were married. He hasn't followed them and she is discouraged. Marriage is not a cold blooded proposition to be planned and worked out according to a formula. This young lady is finding this out. No husband or wife can be expected to remain the same year in and out. They change. Hidden qualities are developed, some good and some bad.

months of hourly danger, his heroism and his injury, for not taking too seriously Tania's high-school-girl conception of what true mating between a man and a woman is.

Men Changed by Marriage.
Take it as a law, you girls who are jumping so gaily and confidently into marriage: his faults and his virtues, his tastes and his dislikes, will all be a complete surprise to you, whether you've known him a month or ten years. The frequenter of night clubs and dance halls wants to settle down with the newspaper and the radio. The waster of money, who bought orchids and candy and champagne for you before you were married, turns out to be a miser at heart. The flatterer turns silent and unresponsive; the big burly outdoors hero is afraid of getting his feet wet.

But on the other hand, unexpected generousities, helpfulness, wisdom, knowledge, patience have a way of appearing, too. The man who seemed blunt and unappreciative during courtship days, amazes you with roses on an anniversary. The man who slighted your family develops, when he has joined it, a feeling of real affection for it. The man who didn't want or like children becomes the most infatuated father of them all. Good comes as surprisingly as bad.

And, anyway, it's living—it's life. So when fate offers it to you, take your lottery ticket like the rest of us.

Kerosene Will Remove Grime From Work Clothes

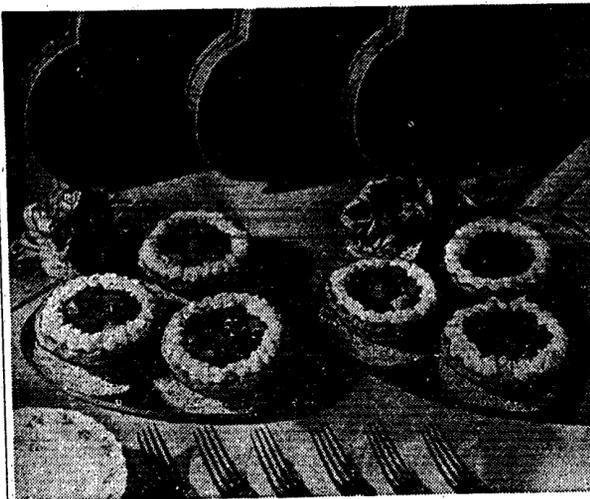

Grime can best be removed from dirty work clothes by soaking them in a solution of kerosene and water. (Don't use this system for your general laundry though—it's not necessary for most things.) The general proportion to follow is 2 cups of kerosene to 10 gallons of lukewarm water. Again, don't use hot water because it will set the stains and dirt rather than dislodge them.

Soak clothes in the kerosene water for about half an hour, or until you can see that dirt and grime are pretty well loosened up. When you're ready to do the actual washing, squeeze out as much of the kerosene water as possible and go on to the next step.

Rinse clothes well—two or three rinses at least—to remove every bit of kerosene and soap.

A starched appearance is desirable in most work clothes. For heavy ones, such as overalls, add two cups of cooked starch to last rinse water. For lighter-weight work clothes a thinner starch will add a smooth finish that keeps clothes clean longer.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let Hearts Be Gay on Valentine's Day! (See Recipes Below)

Cupid's Share

Hold on to your heart! Here comes Cupid ready to do tricks to your heart on Valentine's Day! It's time for a party with cute Dan Cupid reigning on a mighty throne.

February's a short month but with plenty of opportunity for party-giving. You can have a Lincoln's or Washington's Birthday party, or you can be extra gay and colorful with a Valentine's party. These should be extra popular this year with the pepped-up pace of romance. If anyone in your crowd is about ready for a shower or wedding you might take the cue from Valentine's day and make Cupid's decorations your theme.

Pink-and-white or red-and-white are the gay color schemes and you can carry these out in both food and decorations. A simple but dramatic table picture is seen in the picture in today's column. Three large, red valentine boxes are set on their side in a row to form the main interest for the table. If you want to enlarge on this, get other pink-and-white or red-and-white decorations such as nosegays of roses and tie with a swirl of ribbon.

If you would rather carry this out in flowers, get a nice centerpiece of red-and-white flowers. But have a heart, somewhere along the way. If you have a valentine mold make a valentine cake or jelly mold and work out an arrow with a pastry tube or, if the cake is iced you might even put on an arrow made out of red paper.

Here is a luscious salad that takes it easy on rationed foods:

*Molded Raw Cranberry Salad. (Serves 6 to 8)

2 cups raw cranberries, ground
1 envelope orange gelatine
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups water

Juice of 1 lemon
Pour 1/2 cup water in a bowl. Add gelatine to water. Add 1 1/2 cups water and sugar and stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice. Set aside to cool.

Grind raw cranberries, chop nuts and celery fine. Add these ingredients to gelatine. Place salad in

Lynn Says

Play Games, Too! Nothing's nicer than having fortunes told at a Valentine party. If you can't afford a professional, have someone dressed as a gypsy, arm her with a heavy glass crystal and booth, and let her go to town.

Letter games are fine for starting off a party. Give each guest a letter to tie around his neck as he enters, and as others appear, let each one dash around to others to make up words. When words are formed, guests appear in front of a person who takes down their names. Prize goes to person appearing in most words.

Novel idea for a scavenger hunt which needn't take you outdoors. Select about 10 guests and make them have something unusual. For example, have a man with two unmatched colored hair bows, someone who wears his watch on the left arm, a girl with two different colored earrings, etc. Everyone is provided with a list of above so he knows what to look for. As he finds the person, he writes down the name. The one finished first gets the prize.

one large or several individual molds and let jelly until firm. Serve with lettuce or greens.

These clever ham roll-ups add a colorful and festive note to your menu. They're simple to make if you just follow directions:

Ham Roll-Ups.
(Makes 4 Roll-ups)
2 tablespoons fat
2 1/2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 cup milk

1/4 cup grated American cheese
4 slices leftover boiled or baked ham, sliced thin
8 asparagus tips

Blend fat, flour and seasonings. Gradually add the milk. Stir until thick and smooth. Add cheese and stir until it has melted. Cut ham in thin slices 4 x 6 inches. Roll two asparagus tips in each slice. Secure with toothpick, place in a shallow pan and surround with cheese sauce. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 minutes. Insert sprigs of parsley at end of each ham roll. Serve at once.

Get out your heart-shaped cutter if you want to make sandwiches. For a simple children's supper party or for valentine refreshments for grown-ups, serve heart shaped sandwiches filled with chicken salad and garnish the platter with buttered beets cut in heart shapes. Strawberry and vanilla ice cream with little sugar cookies—a tiny motto candy heart placed in the center of each cookie—is effective.

This chicken sandwich spread may be prepared the day before it is used to fit in the day's schedule:

*Chicken Sandwich Spread.
4 cups finely minced chicken
1 can pimientos, finely minced
1/2 cup pickle relish
1/2 cup grated onion, if desired
Salt and pepper to taste
Mayonnaise to moisten

Thoroughly mix all ingredients and store in refrigerator until ready to use.

Cherries can make food decorative for any Valentine party whether they are used in cake or pie: Champion Cherry Pie.

Crust:
1 1/2 cups bread flour
10 tablespoons lard
1 teaspoon salt
5 to 6 tablespoons ice water
Sift flour and salt together, add lard and blend. Add ice water gradually and cool.

Filling:
2 1/2 cups pitted sour cherries, drained
1/4 cup cherry juice
2 1/2 tablespoons fine tapioca
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon butter

Soak tapioca, sugar and salt in cherry juice and let stand while pastry is being made. Then mix well with cherries, add butter and put in pie tin. Bake pie for 10 minutes at 450 degrees then reduce temperature to moderate or 350 degrees and bake for 20 minutes. Turn off oven and let stand at oven temperature for 20 minutes before removing from oven.

Hot Sword on Tongue

Is African Lie Detector

Modern science has nothing on African tribesmen in the use of a lie-detector.

When witnesses at a trial conducted by Embu tribesmen of Kenya Colony are at odds in their testimony, they are tested by "tasting" a hot sword. A witch doctor puts a sword in a fire and daubs the heated end with paste. A witness licks it off, the sword is reheated, more paste applied, and the "tasting" procedure followed by each witness. Each man then goes around the circle formed by the tribal council, showing his tongue. Those whose tongues are blistered the most are considered to be lying, and they lose their case.

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an assignment for her father's paper. Also on the island are Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, now a U. S. Army intelligence officer; Miguel Valera, a Puerto Rican educated in the United States whose orders to report to an army camp were abruptly cancelled; Richard Taussig, an engineer whose identity as a German agent is suspected but not yet proved; and Russell Porter, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue. Aware that she must get the story she was sent for Anne follows Mr. Taussig to a secret rendezvous. Hiding in the shadows is Miguel Valera.

CHAPTER XI

Anne bent her head down and drew farther back into the darkness. Miguel's hand dropped hers, moved back to his hip pocket and rested there. Her heart beat faster. There must be four or five of them, she thought, trying to count the shuffling feet above her.

Anne closed her eyes and took a long breath. She felt Miguel's taut body relax . . . and then go rigid again so instantly that she opened her eyes in sudden fright. A fifth man had joined the group. It was Diego Gongaro.

Miguel's body was like a steel wire quivering under the impact of a sudden blow. His breath was coming so sharply that Anne thought the men outside must hear it. What had happened she didn't know. Then suddenly it came to her. He hadn't known his uncle was there. He hadn't even known he might be there.

"Let's get out of here, quick," Miguel said quietly.

They slipped through the tunnel and out into the street. He took her arm. As they started down the street, away from the direction she'd come in, Anne glanced back. There was no one in sight. They turned the corner.

She got into the car, tired, desperately tired, all of a sudden. "Miguel," she said.

"Wait a while, Anne."

She sank back against the seat. It was probably just hunger, she thought, but it was funny how this see-sawing of emotions took it out of you. She felt like an old sponge.

He maneuvered the car through the dark streets. They came out suddenly in front of the great Indian laurel tree in the Post Office Plaza. Anne sat up abruptly. She hadn't an idea how they'd got there so quickly.

"Where were we, Miguel?" she asked.

He looked at her sharply.

"If you don't know where you were it's better for you not to know," he said evenly, after a moment. "I wish you could forget the whole thing."

They were both silent for an instant. Then he said, "You've got to promise me very seriously you'll never say a word about it to anyone."

"What were you doing there? And in Mr. Taussig's room the other night?"

"Then you did know," Miguel said without turning his head. His eyes were fixed on the ocean in front of them. "I'm sorry. I hope I didn't hurt you . . . or frighten you too much. I think you'd better tell me all about it. I couldn't ask you before."

"It wasn't you that told Taussig I was there?"

Miguel turned abruptly. "Does he know?"

"He knows about me," Anne said. "I don't know about you."

"Listen, Anne," he said earnestly.

"You've got to tell me everything you know. It's more important than you think. Have you told Wilcox?"

Anne shook her head. "He thinks you're a spy, or something. I did too. But you're not, are you? I didn't want to believe it. Tell me you're not."

"I'll tell you something no one here knows," he said slowly. "I'm trusting you, Anne. In a way I have to—so you'll see you have to keep absolutely quiet . . . to everybody, Wilcox and everybody else."

"Does your father know?"

He shook his head.

"The Commanding General knows there's somebody here—he doesn't know it's me."

He looked around and lowered his voice so that she could hardly hear him.

"The War Department sent me down on a special mission. I can't tell you what it is, exactly. I wasn't sure—until tonight—that Taussig was mixed up in it. I don't know how much he is. And how far I succeed depends on no one knowing I'm doing it. You see that, don't you?"

"I thought we didn't use agents provocateurs in democracies," Anne said.

"Right now we're using whatever we have to."

"Wouldn't it be better if G 2 knew about you, so they wouldn't follow you around?"

He shook his head. "It's better for them to know. As long as certain people know G 2 is on my trail they won't be suspicious. And they'll know sooner or later."

"But isn't it dangerous—working alone?"

"It's important," Miguel said.

"Now begin at the beginning."

Anne hesitated.

"If a member of my family seems to be involved," he said quietly, "don't hide it. I wouldn't."

"It's just your uncle," Anne said quickly, as if his uncle didn't matter. "You don't think your father . . ."

His voice was a little unsteady. "I hope not. My father means very much to me. Go on."

There were only a few cars in front of the Escambron when Miguel pulled in to the curb. As they got to the door a car coming along the road stopped so suddenly that it sounded as if the brakes had been torn from their linings with an anguished shriek.

"The way you people here punish cars," Anne said without turning.

Miguel looked back. The man at the wheel was not a Puerto Rican. He was Captain Peter Wilcox of the United States Army. He was sitting there staring at them. Miguel hesitated for an instant, turned and followed Anne inside. After all, it was a Saxon who said whatever it was about love and war. Furthermore he had the sharp impression that Captain Wilcox was drunk.

Mr. Richard Taussig had never taken the doctrine of the Master Race particularly seriously, nor did he regard himself, per se, as an example of it. He was a realist and a business man, and his business was Empire, or rather the undermining of existing empires leading to their destruction in the interests of what he referred to as World Order but thought of merely as New Empire for Old.

He had spent too many years in too many ends and corners and crossroads of the world to think that any one nation was in itself superior to all others and especially ordained by God for world domination. He was, however, aware that the desire for world domination, exclusively and without regard for existing concepts of law and ethics, and the acceptance of any and every means to attain it, were the most powerful weapons the human mind could forge. A realist by nature, he had become a cynic by necessity, and an eminently successful opportunist by scientific application of whatever means came to hand. He did not object to men or governments who respected the virtues of honesty, tolerance and sincerity. On the contrary, he preferred dealing with them, because they were always the slowest to recognize the Indian sign of the Double Cross, and by the time they did recognize it it was too late.

On the other hand, and Mr. Taussig was thinking of it as he crossed the Granada lobby toward the newsstand, they were unknown and frequently unpredictable aspects, impalpable, he called them, that had to be recognized and dealt with. Sometimes it took the form of the honesty and unselfishness of a particular individual. More often, in his experience, it was what he'd tried to warn Diego Gongaro about that morning. He had in fact wondered many times whether the emotional equation, coming in with its attendant jealousy, wasn't actually more trouble than it was help. Graciel's rage against the American girl had been a help, certainly, but Miguel Valera's apparent entanglement with her was anything but. Young Wilcox's too. Wilcox fortunately wasn't particularly important. If he had a roving commission and was in his own country, it would be a horse of another color. As it was, his hands were tied, first by Army regulations and second by his unfamiliarity with either the people or the terrain.

Miguel Valera was different. He was, as far as Mr. Taussig could see, potentially much more useful than his uncle, slightly tarred by his connection with the war in Spain.

Perhaps he should have taken a chance and let Gongaro bring him to their meeting that night. Gongaro was positive his nephew was in complete agreement with them. His devotion to his father would make him ready to put Don Alvaro's passive ideas into action if he could be shown the way.

But Mr. Taussig wasn't so sure. It was the emotional equation coming in again. He'd seen him with Anne Heywood on the ship and seen them together in San Juan. He'd seen the look in Miguel's face. He'd seen it in other men's faces and knew what it meant.

Mr. Taussig bought a newspaper and made his way across the lobby to the desk to get his key.

It was extraordinary, he was thinking, how Anne Heywood got in the way. Not only tangibly with Miguel and little Mrs. Porter, but intangibly too. The fact that she was at all serious about him was in effect a potential surveillance that he couldn't afford to risk.

He stopped in front of the counter. The clerk put his hand up in the pigeon-hole numbered 110, and turned back. "No, she hasn't come in."

The girl standing there hesitated, apparently reluctant to go. Mr. Taussig glanced her over with an appraising eye, wondering what she wanted with Miss Heywood. She was Puerto Rican, dark and full-blown at that brief attractive stage before avoirdupois and middle age set in at thirty. She was expensively dressed, almost too much so, and obviously nervous and ill at ease. She was also obviously determined.

The clerk handed Mr. Taussig his key and two call slips, said "Good evening, sir," in English and turned back to the girl. His attitude was interesting, Mr. Taussig thought. It was as if he had to be polite to her but nevertheless wanted to get her out as quickly as possible.

"You can leave a message for her," he said. "She's usually very late."

The girl moved away without answering, wandered over to the arcade and sat down, looking around with a kind of moody defiance in her set face. She apparently had made up her mind to see the American girl and was not going to be stopped.

"Who is that young lady?" Mr. Taussig inquired, with a slight frown as if he knew her very well but couldn't quite place her at the moment.

The clerk looked at him politely but blankly. "I don't know her name," he said, with exactly the effect of saying "It's none of your business, sir."

Mr. Taussig looked at the slips in his hand. Mrs. Russell Porter had called him at six-thirty. Mrs. R. Porter had called at eight-thirty and left her telephone number. There were two more slips for calls in his room that had been left earlier. It was working out very nicely, on the whole. Mr. Taussig glanced back at the girl by the door. She was sitting tight. He looked at his watch. It was not quite ten, and this might be interesting. The girl obviously had something on her mind she intended getting off before she went away. On the other hand, time seemed to be important. She kept looking nervously at the clock and comparing it with the gold watch pinned on her dress.

Then she got up abruptly and went to the writing desk. Mr. Taussig watched her chewing the end of the pen, writing, crumpling up what she wrote and stuffing the paper into her bag. Suddenly, in something like despair, she threw the pen down and hurried out without having written anything.

Mr. Taussig went slowly over to the arcade. She was going quickly down the drive. He saw, indistinctly because of his short-range vision, that a car stopped for her to get in and went off toward Santurce, not San Juan.

He went over to the elevator. There was something about the incident that disturbed him without his being able to say exactly what it was. It was another of the intangibles that seemed to make action imperative, before they became tangible to disrupt his plans. He walked slowly down the hall to his room. A letter that he had been writing in his head from time to time since he talked to Gongaro in the morning was going through his mind again. It was very clear to him. Tomorrow night he would put it on paper for the morning Clipper.

"My dear friend," the letter would say. "Thank you for the Guide Book to this beautiful and historic island. It has been interesting and invaluable."

"Have you heard of the tragic thing that happened here today? A beautiful American girl, Miss Anne Heywood, met her death by a frightful accident at the Central Valera. My efforts to save her very nearly resulted in the loss of my own life, which I should gladly have given to save hers."

"She and I were the guests of Senor Alvaro Valera on his sugar plantation outside of San Juan. Senor Valera was not with us, only the foreman of the mill and Senor Diego Gongaro. Senorita Gongaro was also along, but she did not go through the plant with us. Thank God she was spared that."

They slipped through the tunnel and out into the street.

IF TACTICS AT HOME WERE COPIED AT THE FRONT

Somewhere on the Italian Front.—American troops believed today that they were poised for a smashing attack but were not certain. "Our orders come from a high authority and are off the record," stated a puzzled major. "We may be attacking and we may not be."

(Later)—The army is said to be confident it is about to go into battle but can't be certain. The trouble is said to be due to the fact that nobody having the operation in charge wants to permit his name to be used.

Makin.—It is stated on a high authority that American troops are in firm possession here after heroic fighting. Survivors sent up trial balloons today to find out for certain.

"I wouldn't care to say a word," said a battered doughboy. "I think I know what happened but I ain't anonymous enough to have any standing in print."

Algiers.—Failure to take definite objectives north of Rome were attributed today by a person of considerable prominence in the army to the fact that the units involved were given their orders through an unidentified radio commentator. The units would not accept the orders until they got the newspapers and saw what the war correspondents thought.

All the war correspondents could say was that they had been told by a "Mr. X" that a member of the high command in good repute had favored an attack, but not in his official capacity.

An Allied Bomber Base.—According to sources hitherto regarded as reliable, 300 planes left for an attack over the continent tonight. Another 200 planes were to have gone along, but wanted the mission confirmed in writing.

"Am I in an air attack or not?" demanded an American gunner. "I think I am."

"Washington is thinking along the same line. That's the best I can give you," replied a superior.

Menace to Peace Found! Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, German minister for Occupied territories in the East, blames it all on American skyscrapers. He calls New York the concentrated giant of chaos, with 50 or 80 story skyscrapers the symbol of the destruction of the individual. "An old German farm," he says, "contains more spirit of freedom and creative force than all the skyscrapers of America put together."

Now it's all clear. The Chrysler Tower and the Empire State building started the war. Ah, those farms, so gentle, sweet and humane, with the people envying nobody, scorning violence and seeking no trouble whatever with anyone. Just contrast them with those skyscraper people, armed to the teeth, goose-stepping in and out of elevators!

Candidates for the Delousing Squad The American who noisily buys war bonds, gives a patriotic talk at a soldiers' canteen, whoops it up for the all-out war . . . and then takes a suite of rooms at a Florida hotel away from a serviceman and his family by offering ten times the normal rate.

William K. Vanderbilt's death brought back stories of the Vanderbilt Cup races, which he sponsored as a youth, and it was flabbergasting to see in the papers that the speed of the auto that won the first race was 52 miles an hour. Or about the pace at which most cars now turn a corner in traffic.

Cream From the Drugstore. It seems there is a new racket. Doctors are permitted to issue prescriptions for cream. You'd be surprised how many patients are getting it for everything from a common cold to fallen arches.

And we heard of one man who was asked, as he tried to get a prescription for a few pints of rich cream, "What seems to be wrong with you?"

"I seem to tire easily in my attempts to beat the ration ryles," was the reply.

Jet Plane All records out to crack . . . Whoosh! . . . Zip! . . . Whee and Presto! . . . The gold-dinged thing is back!

Can You Remember—Away back when the football season ended in midwinter?

And when generals never announced where they would attack next or how soon they would achieve victory?

When the bartender was joking when he said "Name your poison?"

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

REFRACTORY CEMENT

Question: The heat of the past winter's fires has burned out the mortar between the bricks. I was told that I should use fire-clay and that the fire back should have been laid up with fire clay instead of lime and plaster. I am told that lime and cement mortar are used in fire-places. None of the lumber yards here know anything about fire clay. What can I use to repair the back wall of the fireplace?

Answer: Mason material dealers and plumbing and heating supply houses handle refractory cement and fire clay. Refractory cement is generally used and preferred as a mortar between fire brick. If you cannot get the material, try the following: Rake out the old cement to a depth of a half-inch or more; then brush out the loose particles. Soak the spaces with plenty of clear water and pack the joints with a fairly stiff mixture of one part portland cement, one part hydrated lime and five parts of clean, coarse sand. Keep the new mortar damp for several days and do not use the fireplace for at least one week.

CHIPPED SINK

Question: How can I improve the appearance of my kitchen sink? Parts of the porcelain have been rubbed off, showing the black iron surface.

Answer: If the damaged places are not below the water line, get a white enamel made especially for patching chipped porcelain surfaces. After cleaning the spots brighten the exposed metal by rubbing with steel wool, then wipe with turpentine and apply a coat of special undercoat and follow with porcelain enamel.

Blackened Sills

Question: I have had plants on my varnished window sills, and the water from these plants has gone on the sills and turned them black. Is there anything I can do to get them clean again?—The black seems to be in the wood.

Answer: Take off the finish down to the wood with paint remover. The stains can be bleached out with a saturated solution of oxalic acid and denatured alcohol. Apply this liberally and allow to remain for several hours. Rinse well with clear water and allow the wood to dry thoroughly. Finish with a top quality spar varnish. If the woodwork has had a stain, try to match the color with the other woodwork before applying the varnish.

Javelle Water

Question: Will you please tell me how Javelle water is mixed?

Answer: Dissolve one-half pound of washing soda in a quart of cold water, adding one-quarter pound of chloride of lime with the lumps crushed. This mixture is allowed to stand until the sediment has settled; then the clear liquid is drawn off, strained through a thickness of cloth and bottled. In use, one part of the solution should be diluted with three parts or more of water. If used for laundering, remember to rinse out very thoroughly; for, otherwise, the fabrics will be weakened—if not ruined.

Cleaning Aluminum

Question: How can I remove a black line from the inside of one of my aluminum saucepans? This line was caused by a liquid standing too long.

Answer: Boil a half-and-half mixture of vinegar and water in the pan for 20 minutes or so; further rubbing with a special aluminum cleanser (to be had from your grocer) or fine steel wool and soap may be needed.

Galvanized Pipe

Question: I would like to take down my galvanized furnace pipe. What can I do to prevent water forming on the pipe? Would the attic be a good place to store it?

Answer: After giving the pipe a good cleaning to free it from dust, coat both sides with light oil and store in the attic. If there are any rust spots, rub them off with steel wool or fine sandpaper before applying the oil.

Rusted Caster Holders

Question: I am using a metal bed that had been stored and the casters are attached on sections that fit in the legs of the bed. The holders are quite rusty. What should I do to make them usable now?

Answer: Take out the caster holders and soak them in kerosene. After a half-hour or so, the rust can be removed by rubbing with steel wool or sandpaper. When the metal is clean, give it a coat of light oil or varnish. This will retard further rusting.

Pvt. and Mrs. Paul S. Scruton, Jr., of California announce the birth of a daughter, Victoria Diane, born Jan. 29. "Bud" Scruton went to San Diego, Calif., in 1941 to make bombers for the U. S. Army and entered Military Service in July 1943.

Mrs. Louis Andrews, Jr., is now comfortably located in Brownwood, Texas, with her soldier husband, Sgt. Louis Andrews, Jr., U. S. Army. Soldier "Lou" is allowed his own quarters away from the camp reservation and they are occupying a bungalow in a home of their own.

Timbers for the proposed new lookout tower at the Center have been procured and it is expected that the work of restoring the old landmark will be made early in the summer. The demolition of the fine old structure which was found as solid as the rock of Gibraltar should never have been allowed and old timers eagerly look forward to a new and better structure on the same location.

Grade 6—Jean Demag has just completed a scrapbook of music news. It will be in the library for a week.

Grade 5—Our reports on February birthdays have proved very interesting. Alvin Taylor brought to school some things from Hawaii, as we are now studying those islands.

Grade 4—Ervin Day has been absent this week because of illness. We had three interesting pictures about Alaska. We won again the Civic cup with more than 100 hours on our credit. We are making dolls to represent those of foreign countries. We have begun to multiply by a two figure number.

Grade 3—All but two in our grade had perfect attendance last week. David Wood had 100 all week in spelling. We are reading about Abraham Lincoln in our history books. Denver Poland got another book about Abraham Lincoln at the library for us to read also.

Grade 2—Edwin's mother came visiting last week. We had perfect attendance last week.

SPEAKING OF FOOD

By Priscilla Clark

At the beginning of the school year we began the Foods and Nutrition course by canning vegetables. This helped many of the girls as I know it helped me. Many of the canned foods were on exhibition last Education Week. Later we made menus for a week, consisting of 21 meals. In our menus we included the "Basic Seven" every day, and learned how to balance meals to get the calories and vitamins needed. Our next step was making a shopping list, and through the kindness of Boynton's market we were allowed to go marketing. This wasn't an ordinary shopping tour, we didn't buy anything, but were taken around the store examining things of interest to us. We asked questions about different foods, and how to buy economically.

With the above accomplished we started preparing breakfasts. We have prepared and served five breakfasts in all, four to ourselves and one to the faculty. In serving the meals we appoint two girls to wait on table, the rest prepare the meal and get it ready to serve. The breakfast for the faculty was served Oct. 21. The guests said that it was very good (which pleased us).

The waitresses were a little nervous at first but were soon at ease.

About this time we started on our home projects. We have a list of projects we can choose from, such as putting up lunches, getting supper for mother, preparing desserts and others. We have four home projects to complete. Most of us are well on our way in the second project. It is figured that one will spend about 120 hours on all four. Each of us makes a full report with pictures on whatever project we choose.

We have studied about the basic elements, calories and vitamins that foods contain; which foods are the best for us, and which ones to eat to prevent certain diseases. We have learned how to prepare a nutritious meal quickly and how to prepare the foods so that we get the most good out of them.

Besides cooking new dishes and preparing meals, we have many theory lessons, where we learn valuable information which has great value now, and some day will be even more valuable. We also had cooking lessons on quick breads, desserts, cakes, beverages, main dishes and soups.

So, we find by the end of the school year we will have learned a lot about foods and nutrition and I can say we all feel we are accomplishing something important. After all, a person's health is the most precious thing in life, and you can't have good health unless you eat good nourishing meals.

The Foods and Nutrition class have recently served two luncheons to outside guests. One was served February 3 and the other February 7.

more so, on Friday evening, February 4, in the girls' game at East Jaffrey. The game was plenty exciting all the way through. The guards were really up to par and the only baskets made by Conant were on foul shots. Again Tex came through with 6 points to her credit, making her high scorer. We hope that the return game with Conant will be as successful.
