On Monday the Presbytery of Newburyport, to which this church belongs, met in Manchester and, acting on Mr. Reeve's resignation, declared that from November 30th on the pulpit would be vacant. COMMUNITY INSURANCE

Have you ever had that sinking sensation in the stomach when the fire alarm is rung and the mill whistles blow?

We had one the other day when alarm 75 was given and the firemen assembled at the station. We have always marveled at the way our volunteer firemen drop their occupational duties to adopt the community role of life and property savers. In bringing this alarm, both the Telephone Company and the Woolen Mill cooperated in this organized community effort. Meanwhile, the rest of us who are not honored by membership in the fire companies, continue our day-to-day work, knowing that what can be done will be done by the Fire Department.

With a strong wind blowing the fire was confined to the Grimes home, though the fire proved to be a personal loss to the Grimes family who lost everything. Fortunately the victims are being aided by the businessmen, neighbors and their co-workers at the Woolen Mill.

Though our community works as a unit 100 per cent effective in fighting fires, we nevertheless lack follow through.

We propose that a fund be established to be administered by the Selectmen for cases of emergency such as fire.

To this fund each taxpayer would contribute one dollar each year. Should there be no fires or emergencies and the fund considered ample, no taxes would be raised until the fund was depleted.

Since all would contribute to the fund, all should benefit, whether rich or poor, whether the individual had insurance or not.

Such a fund would be an insurance system against fire hardships with all the proceeds used locally, with no high salaries to absentee directors. It would be a community project as contrasted to some of the national drives conducted here each year, supposedly leaving part of the money raised in the community.

We have yet to see a public report in print as to what these funds are, how they have been expended, etc.

The public should know.

ON THE STREET

By Paul S. Scruton

Who will forget the diner that once was owned by Louis Prince in the same location that the new diner will be placed during the next few days on Henniker street? It was not too large as we recall but it did have red glass windows with designs that were attractive. It would seat but 20 people but it was open from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m. the next morning and we have often wondered when Mr. Prince slept. The lunch cart as it was then known stood in the same location for about six years. Hot dogs were a nickel, hamburgers a dime. pie was 5 cents and a beef stew was 15 cents. You could obtain all you could eat for 30 cents and meal tickets sold for $2.50 and were supposed to last a full week. Remember however that the average pay of the worker in those days was less than $9.00 a week and milk was 5 cents a quart.

Benjamin Keith for whom a string of theaters was named, was the greatest showman of his day not to forget Barnum, but Keith was born in Hillsboro and hardly anybody knows it. He was born on the Hillsboro Flat opposite where the Jackman Power Station now stands. When you consider that along this same road continuing through to the Upper Village such men as President Franklin Pierce, Benjamin Cheney and Keith once lived the three mile stretch has special and significant meaning to any historian.

We think that about the only time appreciation is shown our fire department is during a fire, and the boys certainly deserve anything we can give them anytime. No town in New England for its size has a better manned outfit in our opinion and the obsolete equipment considered from every angle.

When you consider that the department is on call 24 hours of each day throughout the entire year and have to run, ride or hop to the fire station when the alarm sounds and drop everything they have been doing to get there quickly, its fast work from our point of observation.

Ladies and Guest Night was observed by Waverly Lodge I.O.O.F. of Antrim on Saturday evening with an oyster stew supper complete with all the fixin's and was enjoyed by nearly 100 members, their wives and other invited guests in the dining hall.

Howard Humphrey, master of ceremonies, introduced the boy magician, Donald Dutton of Antrim and the 13 year old youth certainly went to town in a delightful hour of mystery and magic, which included plenty of entertainment for young and old. The boy magician has been thoroughly schooled in black magic and has a line of chatter hard to beat by magicians twice his age and experience. We predict a bright future for the young man who appears just as much at home before an audience as in his own surroundings. Pouring a pitcher of milk into a paper made funnel is something for the boys in the back room to talk about after the paper funnel is unfolded, and the dollar bills he passed out to his assistants certainly would start a run on the U. S. treasury in this period of deflation and inflation.

Following the magic hour, Arthur Amiot showed several reels of motion pictures including Hillsboro's big street parade of last August and even after he finished his part of the program the audience called for more, to which he happily responded.

The old cider mill owned by the Kemp family for generations has been working again during the past few weeks with John Kemp being assisted by others in his family. Old timers will never forget the glass tumbler that hung on a nail for visitors to sample the golden liquid in by-gone better days in the hand press era. 25 cents a gallon was the standard price for years and most every home had its cask to be filled for winter and spring use. Every hay field had its jug of cider and a cider jag was better than a whiskey punch.

MY HALLOWE'EN

On Thursday evening, we had a private picture show while others indulged in Halloween Parties. I'm sure all the youngsters had a good time. So did I. Mr. Stevens showed us his latest pictures of the White Mts. taken on two perfect days when skies were a deep blue, the few clouds white and fleecy, and mountain views magnificent. The Great Stone Face was as inscrutable as ever. Who can ever forget Hawthorne's story of it? We used to read it in the sixth grade.

Pictures taken from Carter and Kimball Hills were beautiful, just smaller and more flattened than the real mountains. One, taken from the top of the hill looking down on the Munroe place, now the George Edwards home, brought back memories of the many weeks I spent in the old brick house with my sister, Nellie and family. It might well be called the House of Many Children, for within my lifetime the seven children of Charles and Nellie Morgan were born there.

Eight children of Noah Murdough lived in the house and the family of George Edwards now numbers eight. I wonder if there are as many wasps there now. How they stung me and kept me in a state of panic most of the time.

Mr. Stevens also showed us some pictures of Ernest Russell's beautiful rose bushes and other flowers. This prosperous farm home with its lively surroundings means years of hard work.

Mr. and Mrs. George Van Dommele were in Brimfield, Mass., on Nov. 2, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Albert R. Brown. Lillie Van Dommele was a native of Hillsboro and lived here until her marriage, but has resided in Brimfield for over sixty years. Mrs. Brown leaves two brothers, Andrew J. Van Dommele of Providence, and George Van Dommele of Contoocook. Burial was in the family lot at Brimfield, Mass., under the direction of Mr. Williams of Southbridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Saltmarsh of Suncook visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of School street, recently.

Mrs. Mary Willard came home Saturday after a two week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Nettie Treadwell, in Bridgeport, Conn.

Mrs. S. E. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kimball, Miss Mildred Kimball, Miss Ardis Philbrick of Millerton, N. Y., and Mrs. Robert LaSalle of Worcester, Mass., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kyle were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodhead in Fitchburg, Mass.

Linda, the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy (Barbara Severance) of Watertown, Mass., who has been critically ill with polio since last Thursday at the Children's hospital, Boston, passed the crisis on Sunday and already shows some improvement.

CARD OF THANKS

Lower Village

Miss Mary K. Pierce
Correspondent

This is, the time of Indian Summer. About the land there is a haze that Indians used to believe was smoke from peace pipes setting waith-like over the earth.

Once the Redman lived in our village. On some farms the plough still unearths arrowheads and bits of flint, reminders of the days when arrows winged through the frosty air of hunting time.

In olden days the great Chief Passaconaway stalked through our forests in all the majesty of kingship. Passaconaway was the Grand sachem of the Pennacook tribe to which belonged the Indians of our village. Their glory has departed, but the memory of these very early people of New England is ever fresh and verdant. Tales of bravery, cruelty, and gratitude still linger in places rich in Indian lore.

And so with this great chief who was brave and just, mystical and possessed the gift of prophecy. His was a spirit brave and calm through all the storms that buffeted against him. He embraced Christianity through the teachings of his Apostle, Elliot, and looked kindly upon the coming of the white man. During his life there was friendliness between his people and the strange "pale faces", who had invaded his vast country.

Legends have weaved themselves about this grand old man. One in simple prose sets forth the manner of his passing. When came the appointed time for Passaconaway to join departed spirits, he was wafted into the air like Elijah of old, seated in a chariot drawn by wolves.

There is another less fantastic. Death whispered his urgent summons in Passaconaway's ear. The old chief smiled and pushed his canoe onto the surface of Lake Massebesic. He stepped into the little boat and turned it slowly toward the West. It was the close of day.

Treas.—Weldon E. Sterling

Standing erect with arms folded on his breast, for unseen hands were paddling the canoe, the grave and valiant chief of the Pennacook Indians was lost in the fading sunset.

But it was said that from this dimming sunset burst flames of dazzling color, such as was never seen before by Indian or early settler. "Passaconaway's sunset", it was called, and the Indians liked to believe this blaze of glory marked the passage of the wise man's spirit into celestial bliss. For many generations, whenever an exceptionally gorgeous sketch of color flooded the western sky, the followers of Passaconaway would say, "Our great chief smiles upon us."

Last Thursday the teachers attended a District Institute in Henniker. The school children enjoyed a holiday.

Miss Mary Pierce went to Worcester, Massachusetts on Monday, to speak at the Library Institute held in that city.

Mrs. Foster Stearns and Mrs. Frank H. Burt of Hancock, were guests of Mrs. Edna Perk during last week.

Mrs. Ann Smith is caring for Mrs. Josephine Fuller during the night. Mrs. Fuller is still quite ill.

Our village extends sympathy to Mr. Harold Grimes and family in the loss of their home which was burned on October 31.

On Sunday, Mrs. Irving Jones motored from Boston to have luncheon with Mrs. Carrie Gibson. Mrs. Jones' daughter, Mrs. King Dubay, with her husband and two children, Charles and Frederick, accompanied her. This family group, with Mrs. Edna Perk, drove to South Newbury, where they were the guests for the afternoon of Mrs. Perk's elder son, Mr. Merrill Dubay. Mr. Dubay and his family live in a pretty home on the Shultis estate.

There are stone walls in our village. Covered with moss and lichens, they tell the story of the hard working pioneer who used the rocks of his fields and pastures to mark boundary lines between his own and neighbor's property. He fashioned, too, an enduring monument to thrift and honesty. There is beauty in an old stone wall. On rainy days the mosses are greener and more expansive, and the colorful fruiting cups of certain lichens spread over the stones as a crimson carpet. Sunshine causes myriads of quartz particles to scintillate as brilliantly as diamonds. And yet, aside from the attraction of color and of sparkle, there is something substantial about a well built wall.

Even the hard surface of stones exposed to the severity of the elements, upon which grows little vegetation, possesses a certain charm. Here are laid the eggs of nighthawks and of whippoorwills. These birds of darkness are dear to the man of country town or hamlet.

The zooming sounds of one as he swoops to earth and the sleep disturbing whipping of the other forces many a city dweller to dream of long vanished days of childhood.

It was believed in olden times that a stone wall reflected the prosperity of him to whom it belonged. If it went sagging with gaps where stones were missing, it proclaimed a shiftless farmer. A level, firmly laid sketch of wall was evidence of thriftiness and prudence.

A true New Englander was in vester year and is today, proud of his stone walls as of his elms and maples.

One who is tuned with nature knows happy moments walking down a pasture road, lined on both sides, with stone walls gray and aged. The wild pink rose or eglantine sways lovingly against this bulwark of protection.

In early fall the thistle blooms and turns to whitest down. Light as a feather, each eddy gust of wind spirals it into the air, where for a brief second it gyrates as a dancing sprite then falls in sweet abandonment upon the surface of the wall. Between the stones where grows the hardy ferns, the grass snake and the little field mice seek shelter from early frosts and chilling rains. Here too, a hunted rabbit finds a sanctuary.

Winter snows fill crevices and niches. Pendants of icicles take on vain bow colors that in turn are reflected in the snow. Spring and fall, summer and winter, each in its own way, help to make the old stone wall something to marvel at and admire.

Close to the pasture road of our village lives Mr. Everett Seaver with his daughter, Ruth and son, Donald. Their home is quaint and old. A pretty house that sets amidst much pastoral beauty. Nearby a little brook flows to the river and in the spring the bob-o-links and meadow larks sing in sheer joy of living.

There is a handsome face wall across the front of Pine Hill cemetery. When it was laid, many years ago, hand-forged iron rings were secured between the stones. Rings of simple, design to which were tethered restive steeds, while their riders made a visit to a loved one's grave. A rambling line of stones divides the old God's Acre from the new. These two walls, now in good condition, will as time rolls on, need care as well as the ancient cemetery.

Friendship—Three Thousand Miles Apart

Ever play chess? It's a great game! One of the strongest friendships I know of started with a game of chess—between Dad Hoskins, in our town, and a man named Dalton Barnes, in England.

They've never seen each other, never met. But for the past eight years they've been playing chess by mail together—Dad puzzling over Dalton's latest letter, while he sends a chart of his next move to England.

Dad always thinks best with a mellow glass of beer beside his chessboard. And the Englishman writes him that he does the same. "You know, it's almost as if we shared a glass of beer together, too!" says Dad contentedly.

From where I sit, you can talk about diplomacy and foreign policy, but it's often those little things—like a game of chess or a glass of beer—that can make for tolerance and understanding... between people of all nations... between neighbors here at home!

The U. S. Government is asking all duck hunters to go easy on their ducks this year. Just because the law says you can take so many, use a little judgement and be content with half the usual bag limit. There is a great decrease in water-fowl owing to the poor breeding season in the north.
 A hunter phoned me the other day that he had shot a snowy owl that went 44 inches wing spread. This may mean a good cold winter as these do not hit us till along in December. The north must be closing up now. These birds only come here when the food supply is cut off by wintry conditions. Some one has put out salt to attract deer to a certain place. The salts are known and had better keep away from the spot. These men do not know deer habits. Salting is only done in the summer time. Deer have no interest in the salt now.

 Be on the lookout for a small, 16-inch Beagle hound, lost in Rindge, N. H. Reward for same. Owner lives in Malden, Mass.
 A large female Collie, very valuable, lost. Report in at once if found.
 Never have we known of a time when so many dogs have been reported as lost. Some of them have been missing a month. We hate to think that someone is picking up valuable dogs.
 November 1st winds up the pout season. It has been a big year for pouters. Have seen a good many limit catches this past summer.
 Play the game safe. Don't have a loaded gun in your car. This law we are going to be hard-boiled on. You lose the gun and plenty of cash. Tin foil for the crippled this week: Miss Katherine Stanton, Miss Patricia Connors, Wilton; A. E. Chickering, Tilton; Violette Philibert, Henniker; May Speckman, West Rindge.
 State Trooper Bill Smith of East Jaffrey did a good job last week in tracing down a man that killed a deer out of season.
 Yes, we had some swell turtle soup the other day from a 25-pound turtle that Mr. Frye captured and Mrs. Cheever cooked. Also one day we had our first squirrel pie and it was just like chicken.
 Ran into two different raccoon hunting parties the other night. One party had two nice ones. With bird hunters all day and coon hunters all night what's the answer?
 This summer-like fall is just what the doctor ordered.

THE OLD STONE WALL
by Bliss Carmen
Time out of mind I have stood
Fronting the frost and the sun
That the dream of the world might endure,
And the goodby will be done.
Did the hand of the builder guess.
As he laid me stone by stone,
A heart in the granite lurked,
Patient and fond as his own?
Lovers have leaned on me
Under the summer moon,
And mowers laughed in my shade
In the harvest heat at noon.
Children roving the fields
With early flowers in spring,
Old men turning to look,
When they heard a blue bird sing.
And travelers along the road
From rising to setting sun
Have seen, yet imagined not
The kindness they gazed upon.
Oh, when will ye understand,
Mortals, nor deem it odd —
Who rests on the old stone wall
Lays a hand on the shoulder of God.

This week closes the year's farewell to warmth.
Another Indian summer has passed our way. Geese are winging in wedge-shaped pattern to the South. Trees are stripped and bare.
An occasional purple aster, buffeted by the wind seeks protection on the earth. The world has lost its golden beauty. Even the sky has cast aside its brightness for the smoke clouds of wind and rain.
The stars seem far away. Our village enters the late autumn season of the year.
