RELIEF CORPS MEETING

Mrs. Doris Claffin entertained at her home March 18 the members of the Woman's Relief Corps. The assistant hostess was Mrs. Mae Chamberlain, and St. Patrick's Day decorations were used effectively. Two applications for membership were received, and a discussion was held pertaining to the W. R. C. Convention to be held in Concord. Reports were made by the Captains of the Merchandise Club, and membership drive for the project is already underway. The April 15th meeting of the W. R. Corps will be at the home of Mrs. Lillian Edwards.

BROWNIES

The Monday meeting at Fireman's Hall of the Brownies, was spent in making plans for a sale of Easter Lilies Saturday morning. The girls meet at 10:15 a. m. to begin their annual drive to help the N. H. Crippled Children, by raising money selling their lilies.

STATE MILITIA IN 1889

Two days in the month of May, 1889, were very important to a special group of young Hillsboro men who were the regular members and substitutes of the State Militia, 2nd Regiment, Company A. Frank Nichols, Bert Crane and Henry Adams seem to be the only regular living members. The substitutes I have heard about were all from the Centre, Frank Gay and Clarence Proctor are the only ones living, others were Theodore Barnes, Charlie Perry and Lyman Butterfield. The occasion was the two-day celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of George Washington.

The boys trained at regular meetings in Odd Fellows Hall and attended Muster in Concord. On this New York City trip, they went to New London, Conn., leaving by boat at night. In the morning they were sent to a certain street where they entered the parade. They marched from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. Every state was represented by its State Militia. The Hillsboro boys were used to walking on country roads, but the city pavement made them very sorry for their feet. Frank was delighted to hear so many bands and was ready to learn all kinds of things about a parade. They were assigned sleeping quarters in the city and given 24 hours liberty to see N. Y. City. 1300 men slept on the floor of Clarendon Hall. They went to Central Park, rode over Brooklyn Bridge, and walked back, then the next day watched the first and biggest parade Frank ever saw. In order to show the progress of 100 years, the entries were many and varied. Frank said they did most everything but boil soup. He has been daffy about parades and bands ever since.

They went to New London, Conn., by boat at night and home the next day. Frank stopped over a few hours with Arthur Shattuck in Nashua.

SUMMER CAMPS

The month of March brings forth many signs of the coming spring and summer. The illustrated folder announcing the opening of Wind-sor Mt. Camp for Boys with all its many attractions, came some time ago. There are pictures of groups of boys and their various activities. They all look so happy. Their director, Tommy Hines, has as his assistant director, Harold Hines; a resident medical director; and resident nurse, Hillsboro's Ann Smith. What could be better for growing boys than an out door life under such careful supervision? Hillsboro Camp for Girls, directed by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nissen, is also one of Hillsboro's (Continued on Page 7)

Will Russia Rule America?

By Oswald Garrison Villard

Oswald Garrison Villard is the dean of American liberal journalists and one of the nation's most respected analysts of foreign and domestic affairs. The former editor and owner of the New York Post and The Nation has written a number of books, including Our Military Chaos, Prophets True and False and Fighting Years, an autobiography.

Yes, Russia does rule the United States Government at this moment. You may not believe it, but just look at the record and see for yourself. All our foreign policies are now dominated by fear of that country. Every single move is dictated by the Russian angle. Why is it that the Government today is actually asking the leaders of both parties to assent to our taking over England's dominating role in Greece and Turkey? Why, simply and solely because of its dread that if the collapsing British Empire gives up its interference in the affairs of those two countries, Russia will move in.

What a prospect that opens up for us! It is bad enough that we are now definitely mixed up with the exploitation of oil in Iran and Saudi Arabia, that the Government is playing oil politics in that distant section of the globe. Now we are actually being asked to take the leading place in what was for generations the most dangerous tinder-box in the Near East.

I have just been going over a map of Europe with a distinguished soldier who has pointed out to me that in a war with Russia, which he thinks inevitable within eight or nine years, Turkey will be of enormous importance to us—in fact will be the key state for us, since American armies working up from Turkey could strike into the weakest portion of Russia. "In addition," he said, "Turkey has a splendid army of one million of the best kind of fighters."

True, it is reported that our reply to England says that we will not send troops to Greece and Turkey, but who can tell what will happen once we have been projected into a situation like that? Apparently we are to assume the guardianship and the financial responsibility for these two countries, and if we don't send troops, I'll wager my best hat that in no time at all the U. S. Army will be insisting that Greek and Turkish armaments be standardized according to our own so that there may be full interchange of weapons and ammunition, as has now just been arranged with Canada.

This is only one evidence of Russian control of our affairs. Are we fighting for air bases in Iceland and talking of buying Greenland? Well, lay both of these policies to our fear of the Russians.

Why are we keeping 100,000 troops in war-wrecked and disarmed Japan, and 90,000 more in the Philippines? Is anybody so innocent as to think that the War Department expects an uprising in Japan or the Philippines? Of course not. They are there to impress Russia with the fact that we still have great military strength.

We don't dare take our troops out of Southern Korea lest the Russian Army march down out of the North, which it is now treating as a conquered country. Never before in peacetime have we had a larger Army than 15,000 men in the Philippines. The natives would like our Army to go home. We have presumably given them their independence and now they want to enjoy it, but those 90,000 troops are as fixed in their posts as are the 200,000 troops we have in Germany.

The latter are costing us a huge sum of money, are more and more disliked by the Germans, are certainly not needed to preserve order because the American Military Government is developing constabulary as rapidly as possible, and with Germany totally ruined and starving the idea that there could be a serious revolt against us is of the stuff which nightmares are made.

Twelve victorious U. S. generals who returned in 1945 from Germany certified over their joint signatures that Germany was so destroyed (Continued on Page 2)

New England College Now Locally Owned

from the Morning Union of March 21:

"New England College was off to a new life here today. Founded only last fall, the state's newest educational institution tonight had a new set of officers and a new board of trustees. Its founder, Dr. Boone D. Tillett has resigned and turned over all assets of the college to the trustees.

Although it was not generally known, even here in town, the college has been near financial disaster for some weeks. Now, however, the new officers confidently look forward to a new life with expanded activity.

The college will continue to function and it is expected that both the curriculum and faculty will be augmented, a college announcement said.

Officers of the institution were reluctant today to talk 'On the record' but it was learned that (Continued on Page 4)

Father, Two Sons Die In Bennington Fire Saturday

BENNINGTON — William Cashion and his two small sons were victims of a disastrous fire here last Saturday night, March 22.

Mr. Cashion, 31, a local paper mill worker and his son, Ronald, 5, were suffocated by the thick smoke that filled the house and William F. Cashion, Jr., another son, died from burns the following morning at the Monadnock Hospital.

Mrs. Katherine Cashion, 28, wife and mother of the victims, and a daughter, Cynthia, aged 8, escaped the flames by making their way to a porch roof.

Apparently awakened by the smoke, Cynthia gave the alarm and then climbed out onto the porch roof, jumped some 10 feet into a snowdrift and ran across the street to the home of Fred Hugron, who summoned the Bennington Fire Department.

STATE FUNDS EARMARKED FOR AID TO TOWN, RURAL SCHOOLS IN HOUSE BILL 12

Controversy On Which Basis Aid Will Be Given, Other School Aid Bills Up For Consideration

That the present General Court will grant some $1,600,000 in addition state aid (about $400,000 is granted at present) to the schools of New Hampshire became a virtual certainty last week at the public hearing on five Senate Bills relating to education. The bases on which the aid will be granted and when it may be expected by the towns remains in doubt.

As was the case at the February 12 hearing on House Bill 12, the proposal drawn up by Commissioner of Education Edgar Fuller and the State Board of Education, no voice was raised last week in opposition to granting substantial new aid. In addition, Governor Dale's budget specifically includes $1,600,000 for state aid.

However, there are substantial differences of opinion as to how the aid should be granted, differences which the House Committees on Education and Appropriations and the Senate Committees on Education and Finance, who held both hearings in joint session, are working out a solution. There is also the possibility that whatever measure is reported out of committee will receive thorough going over on the floors of both houses.

SENATE BILL 23

Senate Bill 23, on which testimony was heard for over two hours, embodies the recommendations of the $10,000 Interim Commission on the State Educational System. It would award all state aid monies on the basis of equalized valuations as against school children in each district, as the fairest method of determining each community's ability to support education. The formula used would result in a total of about $3,000,000 in state aid, but the bill provides for the granting of only 65 percent of the total this year, with a gradual increase to the maximum in fiscal 1950-51. It excepts schools of 15 to 75 pupils from the general formula and gives them additional aid. It would pay state aid to districts based on the number of pupils attending their schools, irrespective of where these children come from. These are its major provisions.

HOUSE BILL 12

House Bill 12 contemplates granting only a little more than half the total appropriation of $2,000,000 on the basis of the equalized valuations of a given district as against the number of its school children. A completed formula for computing the exact aid for each district is not set up as in the case of Senate Bill 23, but Dr. Fuller's pamphlet issued last fall lists amounts which would be received were $1,600,000 in new money granted this year. Most of the remainder of the $2,000,000 would go out in "general" aid, $37.50 for each elementary student and $50 for each secondary student. No more than $10,000 in equalization aid could go to any one community in any one year. Provision is made for setting aside some funds for emergency use. These are House Bill 12's major provisions.

Henry Phillips of Exeter, chairman of the Interim Commission, Alfred D. Simpson, of the Harvard Graduate School of Education, head of the Commission's staff, and other staff members presented the case for Senate Bill 23 at last week's hearing. Dr. Fuller opposed it. Many others spoke including repre- (Continued on Page 7)

ON THE STREET

By Paul S. Scruton

A sea of mud now greets the motorist who by choice or through necessity travels the back roads in any section of New Hampshire at the present time, but last Sunday, "Blondy" Gay and myself went to East Washington and spent five hours with Walter Chamberlin in his modern sap-house.

Mr. Chamberlin took the padlock from the door of his syrup making establishment and before we were through the door he started to wash the floor. Then he donned a pair of gloves and proceeded to polish the big evaporator. Next, he built a roaring fire under the evaporator and in less than five minutes the sap was beginning to boil.

We clocked the run of a giant maple near the sap-house and found that sap was running at the rapid rate of 90 full drops per minute and even "Blondy", the veteran syrup maker, admitted that it was doing well.

Walter Gay, better known as "Blondy", has years of experience in the maple syrup products business and although he has partaken of plenty of sap, and other liquid refreshments, he has never touched a drop of coffee, which may be the reason why he has never suffered from "coffee nerves". He told us many interesting stories of the long, long ago and someday we hope to taste of that "million dollar pudding", he makes so skillfully.

Mr. Chamberlin had two assistants who were in the woods gathering sap and emptying the big buckets from the 900 trees into the big metal tubs that were piped and allowed the sap to flow by gravity to the metal container just outside the sap-house. It was all part of a wonderful system as the aroma filled the room and the process of boiling down continued automatically.

Mr. Chamberlin tested the clear amber colored liquid frequently and finally opened a valve and the finished syrup flowed into a metal container. The hot syrup was then strained through felt and finally poured into gallon containers for the market.

The cleanliness of the sap-house is something to write home about and even the price of $5.00 a gallon seems worthwhile when you consider the cost of metal pails, containers, pipe lines, evaporators, felt strainers and fuel. From the minute Mr. Chamberlin opened the sap-house door he was busy every minute of the five hours "Blondy" and I remained and the men in the woods were doing double time rushing from tree to tree emptying the full buckets and then starting all over again over a mile of territory.

The run on Saturday and Sunday was exceptionally good, said Walt, but the weather may change in an hour and if the wind is not just right the flow of sap stops suddenly and his 20 gallons a day output ceases.

"Blondy" enjoyed the trip in spite of his 80 years and the visit did him more good than any spring tonic, in fact he would still be in the sap-house telling yarns if we had not insisted that time was fleeting and we might even get stuck in the rich oozy mud on the back road.

We left Walter Chamberlin with a smile and a gallon of syrup in each hand realizing that the war vet had the sweetest business in the whole world from first-hand information.

Coming back through Washington Village, Blondy pointed out every house and told stories of the long ago when he scouted this section from hill to dale. It's a safe bet that old Lovell mountain in the distance has very pleasant memories for this fine old gentleman, who now in the winter of life has the glory of springtime in his heart.

that it could not become militarily dangerous for a hundred years, and that it had been confirmed again and again by other civilian and military observers. But both our military and naval men are thanking God for Russia. It not only gives the man excuse for being, but enables them to demand the militarization of the United States on a scale never before dreamed of.

Look at South America. Why is it that we are pushing for military alliances with every one of the Central and South American republics? Why, they are to fight with us when we are attacked and prevent "any enemy" from establishing airfields, or rather bases, and operating against us from there. "Any enemy" means Russia—of course, for there is not another Power on earth that could possibly threaten us.

In this year of peace the Army asks that it be given 14 times as much money as in 1939. It has in service no less than 565 generals and it is safe to say that they and all the General Staff officers are devoting their days and nights to planning the war with Russia when they are not spending their time endeavoring to put over universal military training.

The Byrd expedition to the Antarctic, the military maneuvers in Canada and above the Arctic Circle, are all aimed at Russia. If Russia dominates the State Department it certainly cracks the whip over the War Department.

So with the Navy. There is not another fleet on the ocean to threaten us. The English fleet is far inferior, but if it were equal to ours, it could be no threat in view of the break-up of the British Empire before our very eyes, and because no human being, even if England were rich and prosperous, could conceive that a war between the United States and England were possible.

Our fleet is larger than all the other fighting navies put together, and my Army friend undoubtedly spoke for his service when he said that it must be kept up because in the war to come we shall have to attack Russia by way of Sicily, Norway, Denmark, the Adriatic, the Black Sea, wherever there is a water approach to Russian soil. Can anyone doubt that if Russia were to blow up tomorrow because of an internal combustion, because of a rising by those downtrodden and abused and victimized subjects of Stalin, there would be no excuse for maintaining a large Navy? The finest Navy telescope couldn't discover another "menace" anywhere.

Take our situation in Asia. Why did we hang on in China as long as we did? Because we were warned that if we did not keep troops there Russia would filter in and try to make permanent the occupation of Manchuria which Mr. Roosevelt so stupidly and shortsightedly granted to Stalin.

Even our attitude toward developments in Indo-China and Malaya and the Dutch East Indies appears to be colored by the Russian peril. Indeed, Hitler was never considered such a menace as is now the Russian colossus.

The worst of all this is that we have abandoned the historic policy of the United States in carrying on its foreign relations on a basis of ethics, morality, and justice, without any show of force, in favor of the military belief that the only thing the Russians will listen to is force, force, and force, and that the same is true of the smaller nations like the Balkan states and all others.

On this theory we must show our fleet everywhere; otherwise we shall have no influence upon what is going on. I assure my readers that this is no exaggeration whatever. That is what Congress is being told. Secretary Marshall himself has been quoted as saying to committees of Congress on military affairs that if the Army and Navy appropriations are cut one dollar he will be hurt in his efforts to put through a peace with Germany at Moscow. That is also the reason given for the Army's continuing propaganda for universal service to which I have already referred. We need it not only for self defense, but, we are told, to impress other nations with our military strength. Well, I have been writing on foreign affairs for so many years that I carry straight back to the time when we had no fleet whatever and our Army totalled only 25,000 men. We had five modern cruisers and no coast defenses to amount to anything when President Cleveland challenged the might of the British Empire and protested against its policy against Venezuela in 1895 on the ground that it was undertaking to breach the Monroe Doctrine.

England could have sent its fleet into any American harbor with complete impunity. According to Gen. Marshall, Mr. Truman, and the advocates of the blood and iron policies which distinguished Bismarck in his building of the German Empire, we should have been utterly humiliated because Mr. Cleveland couldn't parade a single battleship or heavy cruiser, much less a submarine or torpedo-boat destroyer, as they were then called. Instead, a Conservative British Government, that of Lord Salisbury, yielded to the weight of Mr. Cleveland's arguments, the Venezuela dispute was referred to arbitration, and its final settlement rocked neither country.

Take the case of Cleveland's attack on the Russian Government for the Kishinev massacres of the Jews. We still had no armaments and not an American citizen was hurt or suffered the loss of a dollar of property in those killings. But the Czar's Government backed down and the pogroms ceased. There you have a second example of the moral influence and vast strength of the unarmed American people. There are numerous others.

Never, I venture to assert, was the prestige of America higher than at that time. The very fact that no one could accuse us of being militaristic or imperialistic, and that we reached out into no other spheres than our own hemisphere, strengthened us enormously in the eyes of the conventional imperialistic and militaristic Powers. They knew we were unselfish, that we were jeopardizing nobody, interfering in nobody else's concerns, being absolutely aboveboard and that we powerfully influenced world opinion. It was not until William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt came into the White House that we had to have secret diplomacy and embark upon overseas adventures and bloodshed.

Now we have not only got to keep our German and Japanese enemies alive, we still owe many millions of Lend-Lease dollars to our possible enemy, Russia, who has every reason, in regarding our military preparations, to be terrified by our threats. Now we are going to take over the job of managing Greece and Turkey.

Some of my readers in and out of uniform may like this kind of America that we now have, and may enjoy being embarked upon foreign policies that are leading us heaven only knows where, but I frankly don't. I am ashamed and humiliated by it, by the sacrifice of those magnificent ideals we held when we were utterly opposed to militarism and war and refused even for a time to annex Hawaii.

It was a great American age; it was an age of peace and relative happiness—when no one thought or planned for a world to be dominated by either Russia or the United States, when we planned our own policies and they were not formulated as today by a corrosive fear of one rival state. America's moral influence can yet do the job of helping to build a free, democratic world—a job for which the military is totally unequipped—if we abandon our reliance in force and place our faith in the ideals which made us great. Red imperialism can be checked by democracy—not more imperialism.

A VAGABOND'S WISH

Give me March winds and a dog at my heel,
The grey fields of winter with patches of snow,
The fragrance of cedars, the murmuring pines,
And youth in my blood and the dreams that I know.
Give me deep ruts of a road that is old,
That winds over hills and away to the sea,
The music of surf that beats loud on the shore
And wuthering winds that are calling to me.
Give me March days and a dog at my heel,
A road that is friendly, a sky that is blue,
And all I would ask when the night shadows fall
Is rest by the fire with a friend that is true.

A LOWER VILLAGE STORY

Albert Baker was a lawyer in our village and had the Fates been kind he might have won distinction in the legal world, but as it was, he died at the age of thirty-one just as he stepped upon the threshold of success. He must have been a very charming man for tradition speaks so kindly of his short, abundant life.

At the time of his graduation from Dartmouth he was considered one of the most brilliant scholars to pass through that well established hall of learning. He was the son of Mark Baker of Bow, N. H., and had a sister, Mary, equally gifted in mental qualities, and no doubt had Albert lived, he would have shared the renown his sister was to gain. After a period of legal training he opened a law office in the Lower Village in 1837.
 Three times he was elected to the Legislature and after a short illness died in 1841. But during the time he was well and happy, life for him flowed along in steady, even rhythm and countless were the pleasant hours he enjoyed in our village.

His vivacious sister, Mary, oftentimes rode from Bow to engage in conversation with her brother, for each possessed superior attainments but in a different way.
 Mary climbed the ladder of distinction, for as Mary Baker Eddy, she founded the Christian Science church that found its way into far corners of the world.

In the years when life was filled with promise, brother and sister read their books together, discussed the pros and cons of politics and galloped down the village street on horses, fleet and eager to answer their exultant moods, for they were young and carefree. And when the cup of joy was overflowing, Albert laid aside forever his earthly hopes and dreams, but Mary lived for many years and to her name brought long enduring fame.

New England College Now Henniker Owned

the new board of trustees takes over with the college in debt by several thousand dollars. It is understood that the Veterans' administration owes more than $20,000 to the college, but that bills due amount to more than $30,000.

At a meeting of the major creditors at a Concord bank last week, agreement was reached whereby the creditors would back the new college organization, it is understood. A meeting with Dr. Tillett followed on the week-end. His decision to leave the college, turning over all its assets to the trustees was announced today.

A student body of about 150, the majority veterans, is now attending classes here. Most are New Englanders.

The announcement of the college read: "Dr. Boone D. Tillett, who founded New England College in Henniker in the fall of 1946, on March 19, transferred the college to a board of trustees, composed of Fred T. Connor, Harry L. Holmes, George M. Chase, Charles M. Weber and Mary S. Jameson, all of Henniker."

"Dr. Tillett's severing his association with New England college has been anticipated for some time because of the increasing demand on his time in other educational fields."

FATHER, TWO SONS DIE IN BENNINGTON FIRE

to the ground and taken to the home of John Lavendar.

The fire alarm was sounded at 11:20 last evening and within 10 minutes bodies of the father and two sons had been removed from the blaze and efforts to revive them were underway.

As fellow firemen were hooking up hoses, Ivon Clough and Patrick Cashion, brother of William, Sr., braved the blaze to bring out the bodies of the three victims. Clough made two trips into the flames, returning with the bodies of William, Sr., and Ronald, while Patrick Cashion rescued the still-living, William, Jr.

The father and son, Ronald, were pronounced dead of suffocation later after attempts to revive them had been futile.

State Police Sgt. John Conti of Milford, Troopers Roger Hilton of Antrim and William Smith of East Jaffrey and Police Chief Edward French gave artificial respiration to the victims. Oxygen was brought from Antrim, Peterboro, Hillsboro and Jaffrey.

Also aiding in efforts to restore life to the three unconscious forms were Dr. William Collins of Bennington and Dr. Alfred Chandler of Antrim.

Fire Chief John Armstrong led firemen in their efforts to check spread of the fire to nearby houses as the flames, confined by a slate roof, burst from windows and shot out from under the eaves to menace other dwellings in the area.

Investigators said they believed the fire started from a flooded oil burner in the kitchen stove. Damage was set at more than $6,000 as all the family's possessions were lost in the blaze.

Mr. Cashion had for several years been employed as a "back tender" in the Monadnock Paper mill. He is survived by his wife and daughter; his mother, Mrs. Kate Cashion; three brothers, Patrick, James and Paul Cashion of Bennington; three sisters, Mrs. Louis Gibson of Bennington, Mrs. Mary McAdams of Hillsboro and Mrs. Katherine Flanders of Manchester.

Mr. Cashion was a member of Bennington Fire Department. He was St. Patrick's church and the Ben-the son of Patrick E. and Kate N. (McGrael) Cashion.

WHAT EASTER CARDS MEAN

An Easter card can be more than a greeting. Many familiar designs have a special meaning handed down from ancient times.

GOOD FORTUNE
Wearing new clothes at Easter is said to bring good fortune... a new Easter bonnet brings happiness in love during the year. So, girls, take heed.

A BLESSING
In Italy and the Orient, Easter candles are blessed with special prayers. The candles are then taken home to light household fires, as a blessing on those within.

AFFECTION
The custom of dyeing Easter eggs originated in Persia, where they were exchanged among friends as a token of affection.
So look at the Easter cards you receive this year—there may be a 'hidden meaning' implied in the design.

Under Martial Law

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE—(Soundphoto)—This scene in the area under martial law in Jerusalem shows a long view of a road with inhabitants behind barbed wire enclosures. The latest outbreak of violence resulted in injuries to at least two more British soldiers and the arrest of 21 more persons suspected of leading the underground attack. An officer and an enlisted man were the latest victims when their staff car was demolished by an exploding land mine between Haifa and Tel-Aviv.

Iwo Jima's Still Tough

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—(Soundphoto)—Two of those rescued when the S.S. Lake Sapor hit a reef near Iwo Jima were Mrs. Hallveig Kolsoe, wife of Lake Sapor's Captain, and son, Reider Kolsoe. They are shown on rescue ship S.S. Colgate Victory as she arrived in L.A. Harbor. All 39 on board the Lake Sapor were rescued.

Hank brought some pussy willows to school. We drew pictures of them.

Edward was nine years old Monday.

We're seeing who can make the longest chain of colored papers. Everytime anyone gets one hundred in arithmetic he can add a link to his chain. Marie's and Maxine's chains are the longest at this time.

Walter's sister visited us Thursday. Kathleen brought a picture of Alexander Graham Bell to school. We have studied about him.

GRADE IV

We have become members of the Ivory Inspection Patrol. It teaches us how to be clean and tidy.

We thank grade two for giving us the wall chart and the individual record sheets.

Mrs. Olson and Mrs. Sterling visited our room recently.

This week we elect new officers in our Civic club.

GRADE V

Sue and Mary Lee brought us a nice bunch of pussy willows, Monday.

We are reading about Dr. Wilfred Grenfell this week in connection with our lessons on Labrador and Newfoundland.

Today for Art Work we are making animals from boxes.

Mary Grund is back again after an illness of a month. Welcome back, Mary.

Joanne Duggin, Gayle Bennett and Robert Thomas, Jr., brought us some Hawaiian records to play on the victrola.

GRADE VI

This has been a poor week for attendance with 6th grade. There has been much sickness. Memory work for this week is the last five stanzas of Longfellow's "A Psalm of Life." The first verses were learned last week. The leading speller for this term is Edward Dodge.

LIQUOR IN RESTAURANTS

Interest will be focussed on the House Liquor Laws Committee next Tuesday afternoon and the house debate on House Bill 248 sponsored by Merrick Crosby, Hillsboro Representative at the Legislature.

The measure would give the State Liquor Commission power to issue to Class A Restaurants to sell liquor by the glass and wines by the bottle. Restaurants would be permitted to sell drinks only in a special room provided for that purpose outside the regular dining room. One "joker" in the bill which is likely to ruin the "wets" of the Legislature is a provision that Class A Restaurants would be allowed to operate even in "dry" towns, and merely would be prohibited from selling drinks to residents of the towns in which they operate.

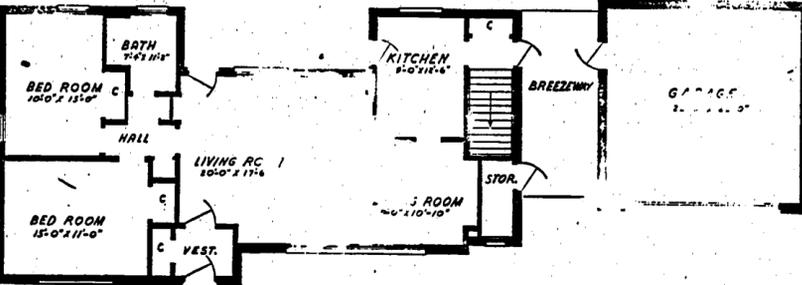

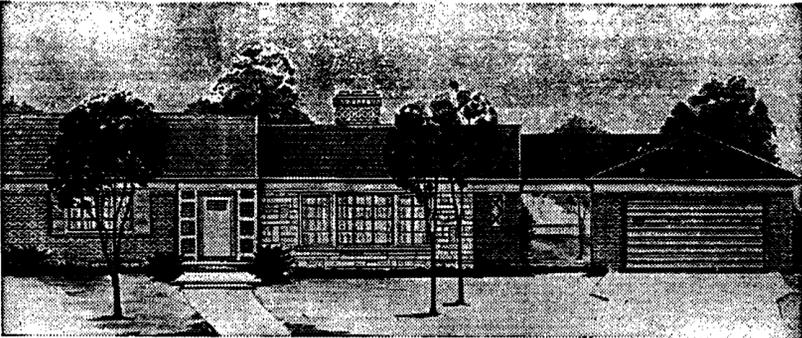

Representative Crosby, an official of the N. H. Restaurant Owners Group, is actively supporting this bill which is an actual challenge to the system of State stores now in vogue and a poor substitute.

We believe that the restaurant owners will only harm their own business if such a law is passed, some of whom have, by their present actions and practices, failed to handle their present beer selling in a proper manner.

Liquor and wines in restaurants will only further the debouching of our youth by providing unnecessary outlets for liquor.

Restaurant owners will discover that wine, beer and whiskey do not mix.

Ideal Home for Eye-Appeal and Low Cost

Particularly appealing to the housewife who "wants everything on one floor," is this five room home. Exterior eye-appeal and economy in construction and upkeep are assured by the combination brick and stone front, and a contrasting, colorful roof of long-lasting asphalt shingles.

Calling for a wide lot, the house was designed by Charles Horner & Son, architects, and was selected by the Detroit Home Builders as an "ideal home." It is a model of complete utilization of space and the proper location of units. The left wing comprises two bedrooms and bath, connected by a small hall. The right wing is made up of the kitchen, dining room, and storage space. The dining room is located so that, along with its ready access to the kitchen for easy serving of meals, it also is an extension of the 20 by 17 foot living room.

The living room has wide windows front and rear, for expansive views and cross ventilation, and is protected from direct access from the street by means of a small vestibule which contains an adequate coat closet.

There are exits from the kitchen and the living room onto a sizeable terrace in the rear; also a doorway from the kitchen to the breezeway and thence to the garage or the storage room.

IT PAYS TO SPLIT HAIRS—

Working with microscopes, research scientists in the textile industry use tiny slicing devices to cut cotton fibers crosswise or lengthwise to study behavior characteristics invisible to the naked eye.

Miss Anne Miller, laboratory assistant at the Institute of Textile Technology in Charlottesville, Va., (top photo) uses a "Hardy thin-sectioning device" or "microtome" to cut cross-sections of single cotton fibers .014 of an inch in diameter.

Center photo shows a complete single fiber of upland cotton, a typical domestic variety, 30 times actual size. Its length is 1 1/4 inches is nearly 200 times its width. Note tendency to spiral. T. L. W. Bailey, Jr., of the Institute staff, states that the fiber's natural urge to coil helps explain the great tensile strength of cotton.

Glimpsing inside yarns (bottom photo), the camera reveals how fibers lie parallel in yarns of a strand of broadcloth shirting. The three round "bundles" facing the camera are cross-sections of warp yarns (those which run lengthwise in cloth) while the curved structure is a filling (or crosswise) yarn split longitudinally. Photo, by Institute of Textile Technology, is magnified about 300 times.

"Hair splitting" studies help scientists learn more about physical properties of textile fibers, also to discover "what goes on" inside yarns when fabrics are treated with various proofing chemicals, dyes and similar finishes.

Our Great America ☆ by Mack

AMERICA'S FORESTS ARE GROWING MORE WOOD THAN EVER BEFORE IN HISTORY. THIS IS BECAUSE YOUNG, FAST-GROWING TREES (WHICH SPRING UP WHEN OLD FORESTS ARE CUT) ARE REPLACING THE SLOW-GROWTH OLD FORESTS.

YOUNG TREES ARE OUR GREATEST PRODUCERS OF NEW WOOD.

VANISHING AMERICAN? THE NAVAJO INDIANS (LARGEST TRIBE IN AMERICA) NUMBERED ONLY 10,000 75 YEARS AGO. TODAY THERE ARE MORE THAN 45,000.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES HAVE BEEN MADE ALMOST ENTIRELY OF FOREST PRODUCTS! SYNTHETIC RUBBER, PRODUCED FROM ALCOHOL, A PRODUCT OF FERMENTED WOOD SUGARS—AND THE CORDAGE IS MADE FROM RAYON, A PRODUCT OF WOOD PULP!—THIS MAY BE THE TIRE OF THE FUTURE!

LACY CHAIR SET

PINEAPPLE pattern is a favorite among crocheters who like to crochet for their homes. It has a lacy quality, yet protects the surfaces it covers. Here the design is used in a chair back set that covers a large section of the chair. A picot edge trims the scalloped sides of each piece and accentuates the pointed bottom edge. A direction leaflet for crocheting this PINEAPPLE CHAIR SET may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, asking for Leaflet No. 4603.

Just a timely tip to all you dog and cat owners. Check on your pets and see if there is any signs of mange. Plenty of dogs and cats have got this in a mild form but they should be taken to a "Vet" at once. One day this week I caught a large skunk under a business place and this animal was badly infected with it. It's highly contagious and humans can take it from animals. Look behind the ears and at root of tail.

Here is what you dog fellows have been looking for. The Billerica, Mass., Rod and Gun club are to hold a big Fox and Coon dog trials, also a bench show for all sporting dogs, at Oak street, North Billerica, Mass., March 30th. Better send for the list. Owen A. Flynn, Lowell Sun, Lowell, Mass.

The Peterboro Fly Casting club have come back to life and from now on there will be things doing at the Pond in North Peterboro. Chuck Cummings is the new president. The club are to buy a lot of nice big trout and there will be plenty of excitement when those trout are in the pool. I went up the other night to the second meeting since the war. Bill Holden, the well known fly caster, is the pen pusher.

Peterboro now has a real up to the minute Fish and Game club. I went up the other night and sat in. They have over 200 members and going strong. More about this club later.

Never have I seen the fog as bad as it was last Friday night when I went to Peterboro. But when I come home it was all gone.

Yep, the crows are back from the south and Sunday we saw hundreds of the black fellows. Guess spring must be about here.

It won't be long now to trout planting time. My rivers and most of my larger brooks are just right for stocking. Told a man one day that I had just planted so many trout and he said, "What do you mean planted? Did they die and you had to bury them?"

Are you going to take in the big Dog Show at Manchester March 29th? This is their first show since the war and is bound to be good.

At last I have found a place where you can board your dog and cat while you make that trip to Europe. Prices are right. Let us know if you are interested. In the country.

Fred R. Ramsey of Greenville heard my SOS for a male raccoon and he furnished me with a real one. Mr. Ramsey is a raccoon hunter and also has a fine pen for raising them.

Believe it or not but in the past week or so I have caught ten grey squirrels that were bothering a party and put them where they will bother some one else but not for awhile. They were trying to get into this party's house. I got them all in a Have-a-Hart wire trap. Don't hurt them at all, only their feelings.

The other day a young fellow from Fitchburg, Mass., took a pickerel out of the High Bridge pond part of the Souhegan river, that went 22 inches long and weighed well over three pounds.

Walter Somero of New Ipswich, brings in a male and female bobcat for the bounty. They weighed 18 and 21 lbs. This is the third one he has brought in within a week. The other male went 27 lbs. Sorry to have missed the meeting of the Profile Kennel club at Derry one night last week.

Went down to Nashua the other day with President Chuck Cummings of the Fly Casting club to give the Federal Hatchery the once over. Supt. Mitchell has a wonderful lay out now and millions of trout of all kinds growing. Better drop in some day and look over this hatchery.

Guess it's going to be a big year for the syrup people. Ideal weather to date. Lyndeboro people have hundreds of buckets out for the big run.

Rumor has it that a small black bear has been seen on Abbott Hill the past week. Who saw him?

Here is a new one on me. Joseph Duval of East Jaffrey tells me that while gathering sap on a nearby farm he came upon two buckets that were empty and as there was plenty of snow on the ground he knows who drank the sap. The tracks in the snow showed that several deer must have a sweet tooth. That's the first time I ever knew that deer liked sap. They drank the contents of two large pails.

Have we two wild dogs in this section? A well known caretaker of a large estate just outside of Wilton village was burning brush one day when suddenly two large dogs appeared. They circled the brush pile growling and showing their teeth. The man, a former Seabee, had a pitch fork and the dogs knew enough to stay their distance. This man backed away from the fire and went to the house and the dogs followed at a safe distance. When the man appeared with a gun the dogs beat it and have not been seen since. He said the dogs were very large, of the German Shepherd type. He had never seen the dogs before or since.

This thaw is just what we have been looking for. Now the deer will have an even chance with the killer dogs. As soon as the rivers open and ponds and lakes we will have no more dog deer troubles. When the deer hit the water they shake the dogs. We will never know the number of deer killed by dogs in southern N. H., but we bet the number right now is over 80 and that's a lot of wasted meat.

representatives of states teachers' organizations, the State Board of Education, the Federation of Taxpayers' Associations, Farm Organizations, the State Tax Commission, the Lay-Professional Committees, and the Governor.

THE ARGUMENTS.
The primary arguments advanced in favor of Senate Bill 23, as opposed to House Bill 12, which necessarily came into the discussion, were:

1. Equalized valuations, inaccurate as they may be in determining need, are the only available index at hand. Granting general aid favors wealthy communities which need no aid, at the expense of those which do.
2. SB 23 leaves nothing to chance or the discretion of the Commissioner of Education since it sets up a rigid formula. School districts would not be in doubt.
3. Granting money based on place of attendance is the simplest way of handling the matter.
4. There should be no limit to the amount any school gets since need is the primary criterion.
5. Special provision should be made for small districts.
6. The eventual total of $3,000,000 would make the state's total contribution to education 37 percent, about average for the country, $2,000,000 amounts to only 20 percent.

The major arguments against Senate Bill 23 and for House Bill 12 were:

1. Equalized valuations vary so much in relation to real valuations throughout the state that using this as the sole index penalizes the towns which assess according to law and encourage those which underassess in order to get more state aid. More standard assessing practice in the state is not in sight.
2. It is administratively impractical to pay districts of attendance, instead of origin. In some cases wealthy districts could pass the whole load of educating their young to the state and neighboring districts by sending their children out of the district to be educated. Unplanned consolidations might result.

3. The Department of Education should be allowed some leeway and some emergency funds, to provide for changing state appropriations and community conditions and for emergencies such as fires, temporary schools near portable saw mills, etc.

4. Objective formulas will be used under HB 12 and towns will be informed well ahead of time.

5. Figures show that wealthy towns get little more under HB 12 than they do under SB 23.
A SB 23 assumes that the load on property taxpayers throughout the state varies with local assessing practices. Actually the burden is generally equal. Where assessments are low, taxes are high and vice versa. HB 12 recognizes this general equality of burden and gives "general" aid to offset it. Both bills agree that one of the purposes of state aid is to relieve the property taxpayer.

Excepting members of the Interim Commission House, who wrote Senate Bill 23, all who testified at the hearing either asked amendment or opposed it and favored House Bill 12. Most were in the latter category.

OTHER BILLS
Senate Bills 24, 25, 26 and 27, also drawn by the Interim Commission, found more supporters. Senate Bill 24 would set up a State Council on Teacher Cooperation and Senate Bill 26 revises some of the provisions for teacher certification in the state and also sets up a council, a Certification group. Both are to be appointed by the Education Department. These bills were acceptable, though not warmly endorsed, by representatives of the State Department of Education, providing they were advisory in function only. Proponents said machinery to facilitate cooperation in these fields should be set up. Opponents stated that such councils, advisory or otherwise, were useless. If cooperation and efficiency exists in the Department, they are not needed, it was said, and if competence does not exist, the councils could not guarantee it. They would probably be unused.

Senate Bill 25, providing for $200,000 in state aid specifically earmarked for school transportation, was endorsed by Senate Department spokesmen and by various teacher organizations on the basis of great need throughout the state. Opponents pointed out that there were no figures to prove the need; cited evidence to the contrary; questioned the advisability of subsidizing this admittedly inefficient school operation before a study was made towards its improvement; stated that such ear-marked aid violated local prerogatives; and finally asked where the added money was coming from. The Governor's representative pointed out that it must either come out of the $1,600,000 for aid to education, or be supported by a bill for raising new revenue.

Senate Bill 27 provides for a $1,500 state minimum for teachers' salaries, plus eight annual increments of $75, and forbids discrimination based on sex or grade level. The State Education Department approved if the minimum were set at $1,800 instead of $1,500. The favoring arguments are apparent. Opponents called the bill unwarranted interference in local affairs; pointed to the demand for like salary minimums for all municipal employees which would probably follow; objected to the rigidity of the figure; asserted that state approval of given figures would have the effect of setting maximum as well as a minimum salaries throughout the state; and argued that community conviction not state law was the only valid foundation on which to base teachers raises.

House Joint resolution 5 providing for a new Interim Commission to cost $2,000, to study the governmental structure of the New Hampshire educational system was not argued for lack of time. It is understood that the Department of Education will oppose this as an unnecessary expense, since what studies have not already been completed in this regard can effectively be handled by the Department itself.

Contoocook River Pool Advertisement For Hillsboro

HILLSBORO — Melting snow along the banks of the Contoocook river now reveal where many people heave their swill, tin cans and other rubbish and some of the back yards also show traces of orange peel and other refuse as winter gives way to spring.

The town dump is nearly a mile away from the village and many townspeople have no way to transport their garbage buckets even if the road were passable during the winter months and early spring.

Many folks simply dig through the snow and dispose of their weekly accumulations from their tables and bury the mess, providing they have a little land in which to dig, but the problem is fast becoming a serious health menace, according to the man on the street.

Back a few years ago collections were made semi-weekly but today owners of hogs and pigs have ceased going from house to house to empty swill pails. One owner of several fine hogs said that he got tired of sorting over broken glass, banana skins and shingle nails from his swill and he preferred to have his hogs butchered rather than die an untimely death.

The swill situation with the coming of warm weather promises to be a problem for home owners and tenants and with the river banks cluttered with refuse of all kinds Hillsboro promises to be no enchanted valley for summer visitors.

Two World War vets have offered to take care of the swill removal for $2 a month per home, but answers to their inquiries indicate that the price range of $24 a year is too steep for the average home owner, and the river banks are much too handy.

on or about May 1st.

William Sharby is now employed at the Capitol Restaurant.

American Legion Auxiliary held their meeting Tuesday evening, March 25, with a large attendance. They planned several activities for the future. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Harrington and Mrs. Merrill.

Mrs. Joseph Eaton of Eaton's was a business visitor in Boston Tuesday. Mrs. Ruth Woods was in charge of the store during her absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Lydon W. Annis of Main street, have returned from a week's vacation spent in Springfield and N. Y., where they visited the N. Y. Flower Show, with their son and his wife.
