COMING EVENTS

The Benevolent Society will hold its first meeting of the new season in the Vestry on Wednesday, October 1. The new president, Mrs. Lucy Buttrick, will preside. Programs will be given out and annual dues received. Every member will wish to be present at this meeting when she hears who is coming. Mrs. Leola Annis Warren of Nashua and Hillsboro will give the entire program. She will sing and also speak on "Forward Together."

This is the season for fairs. Fairs are nothing new, but there are many more every year seemingly. Time was when a fair in Hillsboro was a yearly event. I have a certificate belonging to my grandfather, Benjamin Gay, awarding him first prize for his exhibit of potatoes. Frank and Walter remember going to the last fair in 1875, held on the Fair Grounds now Grimes Field. My father exhibited some cattle which the boys led down and also many other farm products, especially the Gay grapes, which had been propagated on the farm. He sold small vines or what ever starts a grapevine. Frank was only 10, but he well remembers that fair. The next year or soon after, he went to Newbury-Bradford Fair and saw 210 yoke of oxen. For a long time Bradford Fair was a great attraction and about the only one to go to nearby. Of course we drove. The first part of the ride, jogging along by ourselves, was very pleasant, but as we neared the fair ground, and fell into the long line of other horse-drawn vehicles, it was terrible! Dust was inches deep. All horses had four feet and all moved at once. The roadside bushes were covered with dust, our clothes were thickly covered with dust, we inhaled dust and it got into our eyes and ears. The only exhibits that amazed me enough to remember now were the big squashes with names written on them.

I was much more interested in Locust Grove Fair held on the farm of Mark McClintock, now under the water of Pierce Lake. It was a Grange Fair and my father of course exhibited many farm products, especially fruit. We carried picnic lunches like all the rest and visited with friends, for all the Grangers' families were there besides many more. Frank was a bright and shining light in running races and taking part in other game and stunts. The next fair I went to was the World's Fair in 1893 in Chicago. Nothing in the fair line has ever amazed me since, but it evidently was no cure for him. Probably few living persons except fair employes or managers have ever attended as many fairs as he has. This year there have been fewer than usual. Only Caanan, Hopkinton (2 days), Keene, Plymouth, Tunbridge, Vt., and Deerfield.

He always finds people he knows wherever he goes. Once in a while he tells us a bit of news. He saw Will McCrillis, druggist at Plymouth. He and his wife have sold their house in Bristol and moved to Plymouth.

SEPTEMBER

Do you like September? I used to think it a wonderful month, but I'm not so sure now. We used to begin the new school year then as now right after Labor Day. I was bubbling over with ambition and enthusiasm and happy to be back among my friends. The thunder shower and cyclone season was on the wane and the fall days were just right for long tramps out in the country where there was always so much of interest to me.

But the weather bothers me nowadays. The first two weeks were too hot, the next was a series of beautiful days, but hurricane worries almost spoiled some of them. We never used to have to worry about hurricanes in New England. Next came frosts which are to be expected about this time and of course will grow worse. But September leads right into October, a

The New "Americanism"

Threat to Liberty Is Seen in Trend Toward Enforced Conformity

United States citizens are in danger of losing their freedom in the name of "Americanism." This isn't a new danger; it has arisen, from time to time, since the Alien and Sedition acts passed when John Adams was President. But the threat is greater now than in any period since the "red" scare of 25 years ago.

Henry Steele Commager, professor of history at Columbia University, examines the threat in detail in the September issue of Harper's Magazine. His article, "Who Is Loyal to America?" should be required reading for every self-appointed patriot.

Dr. Commager cites examples to show how, to some Congressmen, talking about Russia is considered an attack on America; how support for New Deal principals is viewed as communistic. However, it is not the Congressmen who worry the professor most. He's more concerned about the way educators, who should know better, have hastened to join the clamor for "Americanism."

IS BRITAIN "UN-ENGLISH"

Today's "crusade" may be worse than earlier ones, Dr. Commager fears. It's not content to be against "radicals"; it seeks to set up a "positive definition of Americanism, and a positive concept of loyalty."

"What is the new loyalty?" the historian continues. "It is, above all, conformity. It is the uncritical and unquestioning acceptance of America as it is—the political institutions, the social relationships, the economic practices. . . . It . . . regards America as a finished product, perfect and complete."

Stassen Speaks Before Weekly Publishers

HAMPTON BEACH, Sept. 19 — Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and Republican candidate for the presidency, was the main speaker at the New Hampshire Weekly Publishers-Massachusetts Press Association joint meeting at Hampton Beach over the week-end. Other speakers included former Congressman Sherman Adams of Lincoln; William Saltonstall, headmaster of Exeter Academy; John Cowles, president of the Minneapolis Star-Journal; J. Mitchell Chapple; John Colby, president of the N.H.W.P.A., and Edward Larsen, president of the Massachusetts Press-Association.

Mr. Stassen's address, in part, follows:

One of the scenes most vividly inscribed in my memory, which I observed many times on my recent journey in Russia, is the sight of large numbers of poorly clad Russians standing in front of a bulletin board reading a single newspaper mounted for that purpose. It is a scene heavy with meaning. It reflects the results of a system in which the press is not free, no incentive exists for a newspaper to increase its circulation, and consumer goods and materials are very scarce.

It is my view that no small part of the superb accomplishments of the American economic, social and political system is due to the existence of a free press, free not only to print the news and to comment, but free also to compete and to profit, with incentives for success.

But I did not accept your kind invitation merely to congratulate you. This critical period in world affairs is not a time for smug satisfaction over past accomplishments. Our country now occupies a position of unusual leadership in the war-torn uneasy post-war world. It is engaged in a fundamental clash and competition with an opposing way of life characterized by a lack of freedom.

In my judgement, major factors in the success of America in meeting this worldwide challenge will be the accuracy with which the press informs its readers on the issues of the day and the vigor with which it upholds individual freedom for the American people.

I trust that in the years immediately ahead, the American Press, with renewed alertness and vigor, will fight for freedom, not only of the press, but of the individual citizen under every circumstance.

There are two current questions in which I urge the press to spotlight the importance of freedom. Both arise in connection with the new labor law.

As you know, I supported the final passage of the Taft-Hartley law. Taken as a whole it is a good law. It will improve labor relations in the nation. It will not injure the workers, but in fact will benefit them through less strikes, less loss of wages, more democracy in unions, and no weakening of the fundamental rights of labor.

But in two respects serious infringements of individual liberty have developed.

The first arises from the ruling of Robert Denham, general counsel of the Labor Board that all officers of the general executive board of the AFL and CIO must sign affidavits that they are not Communists before any local union affiliated with these organizations can qualify for the assistance of the Labor Board or for its rights under the law.

John L. Lewis has specifically refused to sign such an affidavit. Consequently, thousands of local unions and millions of workers are deprived of their rights under the law.

These millions of workers in other AFL unions have no control over John L. Lewis. John L. Lewis has no control over members of the union not included in the United Mine Workers. It is un-American and contrary to our basic principles of individual liberty that men should lose their rights in such a manner.

The interpretation of the law given by Mr. Denham gives to John Lewis a veto as drastic as the veto used by Mr. Molotov in the United Nations Security Council. It is not consistent with the American approach of individual rights and is unconstitutional.

This interpretation should be promptly overruled by the National Labor Relations Board, or by the courts, or the law should be amended.

The second invasion of freedom arises from the interpretation given to the clause prohibiting direct or indirect political contributions by unions.

Newspapers published by unions should have inviolate the complete right of freedom of press to print anything they wish on any subject including politics, limited only by the regular laws of libel. To hold otherwise would constitute an opening wedge in an attack on a free press. Many of the newspapers of our country are owned by individuals who also have other interests in business or in government. If we permit a classification of newspapers and restrictions on the rights of a free press, we fundamentally violate one of the most important liberties of the American people.

I urge that even though you disapprove of every word published in every labor union paper in America, you emphatically insist upon their right to publish it.

I present these specific examples because I feel so strongly that the manner in which we safeguard the liberties of each other will measure the true resilience and strength of our precious American system.

Polio Victim Returns From Concord Hospital

HILLSBORO, Sept. 24 — Hillsboro's first known case of polio has apparently come and gone and today its victim, Charles Marshall, 17, is home after a week's illness and expects to go back to school next week.

Stricken a week ago last Saturday, Charles was taken to the Concord Isolation Hospital and returned Wednesday.

Dr. Thor Olson, Town Health Officer, said there was no epidemic in town, that to date there was only one case and there is no reason for alarm.

Immediately after the case was diagnosed, an examination was made of the High School pupils by Mrs. Clara Ellsworth, acting District Nurse, with no other cases apparent.

The danger of inception from the known case has elapsed, it is believed, the required number of days having passed.

At the hospital he was given a spinal tap and reported feeling better immediately.

month more beautiful than any other; more peaceful and enjoyable. But the months roll around regardless of my preferences so I suppose I might as well like them all. Sunday night's wind howled around the house like winter. And still come reports of new hurricanes which we hope will soon blow themselves out.

Three of the Bird and Garden Club's most interested and energetic members, Mrs. Whittle, Misses Mary Hearty and Pearl Ray, enjoyed a combination ride and hike last Wednesday. They drove well up into the wilderness above Farrars'; explored the house rock as much as possible which is not much for it is so overgrown with trees. Parking the car they walked up the road, turning due west known as the "Old Road" which comes out just east of Billy Devoy's house. It's an abandoned road now; but it used to be in a well populated part of town long ago. The ladies passed a few cellar holes and Pearl knew who once lived in the houses over them. They saw or heard about the David and Parker Kimballs, Dunbars, Stowes, Griffins and others.

Another time the hikers want to start in the other end of this road. It's a good place for mountain goats probably, for even years ago "Old Nancy" had to pick her way very carefully around the rocks in the road. It had some good pasture land then, but I guess it's real wilderness now.

Electric Scoreboard Dedicated at Henniker High School

HENNIKER, Sept. 25—The basketball scoreboard for the high school purchased through the efforts of Arthur Kendrick, Sr., Stanley Bracy, Clarence Edmunds, and Clayton Meade was dedicated at assembly on Wednesday afternoon.

This group of local business men, assisted by others, ran a series of dances two years ago to purchase a much needed scoreboard for the school. Due to the war it did not arrive until this summer. It is the latest type made, is all electric. The score is shown in lights, and a horn blows automatically at the end of each period. The manual training boys under the direction of the teacher, Emlen Pitfield, installed it these past two weeks. It has been placed in a kitty corner position at the left of the stage and is visible from any place in the hall.

Mr. Kendrick and Mr. Bracy were present for the dedication and Mr. Kendrick told of their pleasure in being able to purchase the scoreboard and that they hoped to do more for the school in the future.

CENTER SCHOOL

We all miss Rosalie Smith, who has been sick for more than two weeks. Rosalie is in the third grade. Judy and Sylvia Cornwell were unable to come to school last Thursday and Friday.

The whole school is studying milk as a Health unit. A visit to Rosewald Farm has been planned for Tuesday, September 23. Each pupil will have a particular thing to notice at the farm. The following day we will talk over what we saw.

The lower grades are making "The Gingerbread Man" into a play. Beverly Smith is the gingerbread man; Judy Cornwell, the little old woman; Billy Smith, the little old man; Jean Edwards, the gentle brown cow; Wayne Edwards, the big white rabbit; Charles Kulbacki, the little bear cub; Grace Daniels, the workingman; Alice Murdough, the wiley red fox.

The Book Club held its second meeting Friday, September 19. Elsie Edwards was elected president; Joyce Daniels was elected secretary.

Elsie Edwards is the school janitor this year.

Mrs. Philip Woodbury Named in State Committee

HILLSBORO, Sept. 22—At the meeting of the State Board of League of Women Voters, held at Concord, recently, Mrs. Philip Woodbury of Hillsboro was re-appointed 2nd Vice-President in charge of finance. Mrs. Woodbury led the discussion on the finance campaign to be conducted throughout the state in the near future at the afternoon session.

On the same day Mrs. Lothrop Herrick, 1st Vice-President of the Hillsboro league, attended a president's meeting in place of Mrs. Lundberg, who was unable to be there. At this session Mrs. Charlotte Ford of Hanover, State Vice-President, led the discussion interpreting recognition standards for local leagues.

Miss Ford said in part:—"It is time to re-examine ourselves. A local league's growth in effectiveness should not be judged by growth in numbers alone, but by increased member participation in activities, membership cross-section, work in the community and community participation in league activity. All of which contributes to promotion of political responsibility through active participation of citizens in government, which is the purpose of the League of Women Voters of the United States."

Much Interest Manifest at Hillsboro Art Class

HILLSBORO, Sept. 18 — Last Wednesday, September 17, the Hillsboro Art Club was busy at the Valley Hotel. Cyrus Phelps, chairman, came early, hung lights down the length of the low corridor in the cellar studio and soon members arrived to set up drawing boards and began their work.
Stuart Bruce instructed a young woman member, who had never painted before. She used oils and took as her subject a yellow vase of gladioli. As Mr. Bruce stood before the easel, club members gathered around and whether they had been working in water colors, pencil or charcoal, all were interested in watching how it should be done in oils. So it was as Mr. Bruce made his way around the studio. There was often an audience other than the one being helped.
Time passed much too quickly. When brushes had to be cleaned and paints reluctantly put aside, a general feeling of accomplishment was felt and members of the Hillsboro Art Club were already looking forward to next Wednesday night and to sketching a person in action—doing her marketing—taking the baby for a stroll—etc.
Come and see for yourself the art class at work at 8:00 at the cellar studio.

NEW 'AMERICANISM'

In particular, he points out, "private enterprise" is sanctified. By this token the British Tories should attack their nation's present regime as un-English."
Surely this is "un-Americanism" at its worst. It is the height of Americanism to disagree, to seek improvement, to cast aside outworn traditions. If Washington, Jefferson and the other founding fathers had followed a "loyalty" code, they could hardly have started a revolution.
Our nation is not perfect. Millions of Americans suffer racial discrimination and denial of civil liberties. Millions are forced to live in slums, and are denied proper schooling. Our press is less than free; our rights of freedom of speech and assembly are often denied.

COURT SAW TRUTH

Are such things "American" because they exist in America? Is it "un-American" to seek to change them?
Dr. Commager quotes the Supreme Court:
"If there is any fixed star in our Constitution constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein."
Americanism is not a matter of birth or even residence. It is a state of mind—or, as Dr. Commager puts it, "allegiance to the traditions that have guided our greatest statesmen and inspired our most, eloquent poets—the tradition of higher law, of experimentation, cooperation and pluralism."
This is not a matter of economic systems; communism is repugnant to Americans, not because it destroys "free enterprise," but because as now practiced it wipes out civil liberties, crushes objectors and demands conformity of life itself.
This, too is "un-American." but "thought control" under any other label—even the label of "Americanism" is just as bad.—from Textile Labor.

PAUL S. SCRUTON

The author of the following beautiful story is unknown, but to many of us the message is purposeful and inspiring.

"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I stand there and watch her until at length she hangs like a speck of white cloud just where the sea and sky come down to mingle with each other. There someone by my side says, 'There! She's gone.'"

"Gone where? Gone from my sight — that is all. She is just as large in mast and sail, hull and spar as she was when she left my side, and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the place of destination. Her diminished size is in me, not in her; and just at the moment when someone at my side says, 'There! She's gone' — there are other eyes watching her coming and other voices ready to take up the glad shout, 'There she comes.'"

Civic pride seems to be forgotten as we wander down from the main part of the business section of town to Henniker street and see the streets cluttered with waste paper, tonic bottles, scraps of this and that, paper bags and bags of other description. Even the Methodist Church lawn seems a favorite dumping ground for everything and with a paper shortage still on it's wonderful to imagine where all the stuff comes from. It is no fault of the hard working street department, but it is my fault and yours if you toss away the paper carelessly on the streets. Last Saturday morning Henniker street resembled a blind alley with its cluttered messes and filth scattered to the winds. Let's get together and do something about the matter, even if we have to create a new set of laws.

We like to go back in baseball history to the game that Don Gove pitched back about 1920, against the Hancock team and which reminds us that Don pitched with the "Old Timers" a couple of weeks ago and will probably be seen in action again this Sunday, the 28th. Don pitched that 16th inning game (Continued on Page 7)

Greenfield has a new kind of animal. J. A. Belmore, the well known poultryman who lives out of Greenfield on the Francetown road saw the animal. It had most of the size and shape of the black panther, but this one was not black, but gray. They sent for Joe Lorette of Lyndebo and he came with his well known cat dogs, but the trail was too old. It crossed the road a short distance from the Belmore farm.

The Townsend Rod and Gun club are to hold a big field day on their grounds, off route 119, Sunday, Sep. 21. Something doing all day long. Better go down.

Fall duck hunters—here is the boat you have been looking for—12 feet long, brand new, flat bottom with oars and a place for an outboard motor. Oh yes, there is a trailer to carry it on. If interested I can tell you where it can be seen. It's in Milford.

Now is the time of the year when you will find a lot of homing pigeons that are tired from a long flight and have to come down to but do not confine them. If they rest. Give them water and feed are OK and want to go away, just take them for a few miles' ride on a nice morning and let them go. They will get their bearings and go home. I can tell you who owns them if you give me the A*U or the I*F number and year.

All brook trout fishing in my district is off for 1947. You can fish trout with a fly, but only in ponds and lakes and I have no such ponds or lakes. See the Game laws for a list of ponds where you can fish trout.

Have a letter from a man in Cranberry, N. J., who wants to know how to get rid of muskrats and snapping turtles in his private pond.

Very short letter from someone in Toronto. He says he was in my town for a time. Did not sign his name so I can't answer. Said he tried to get a few quillpigs with salt, but not much success.

Have you a permit to train your pup this fall? Be sure you leave that gun at home. We gave a tip that some of you hunters are abusing that permit.

Under the terms of the Pittman-Robertson Act, the states will benefit by $9,031,273. 51. Of this sum N. H., will draw $53,922.15. This comes from the tax on firearms, fishing tackle and ammunition.

Do you know your snakes? If you don't, and you want to brush up just run over to the Marshall Pet farm on the Daniel Webster route, just outside Nashua. Marshall and his wife have twenty-two different kinds of snakes and a lot more coming. That's not all they have — puppies, racoons, skunks and what have you. Here is a chance for you to see the snakes — both harmless and otherwise.

I guess a lot of people heard my SOS as to not leaving their pets behind when closing up their summer homes. Sure, I don't know how the other Conservation Officers fared, but I know I got my share and more too. If you want a good ratter or a kitten, just drop around and we can supply you.

Stray dogs—that's the poor mut that someone dropped. If we can find a good home we like to do it, but if not we keep them the required time that the law prescribes and then we put them into the gas box. Most always have a mut or two to give a good home.

Here is a lady going back to the city and she wants to find a home for a very large female dog. Nice with children. 13 months old. She must go on a farm.

At this time of the year the ruffed grouse seem to have crazy spells and usually land in someone's dining room. Last week one did this to the front window of the Keirnan home in Milford. One in a nearby town last week went through one window, across the sitting room and out another window and is still going as far as we know. The impact of the glass usually breaks their neck. The one in Milford had its crop full of berries.

Put a .22 cal. rifle into the hands of a youth and if no one is around he starts shooting any and everything in sight. Telephone glasses and electric light bulbs are a favorite target. Chief Williamson of Milford brought two of these teen age fellows into court and it cost them plenty. Judge Prescott said the practice was "Fine!" but not to do it again.

The Granite Fish and Game club with Eugene Sylvester as president, are to offer a reward of $25 for the arrest of the parties who cut up the turtle traps on Osgood pond a few weeks ago. Hope they get 'em!

Speaking of guns. Here is a man who wants to sell an L. C. Smith, D.B. 12-g. shotgun and another who wants to buy a 16-gauge D.B. hammerless and will buy a pump gun same size.

Mrs. Doris Hart of Amherst picked up a 38 pound snapping turtle on the Horace Greeley road. A big at Hancock and we finally won 4 to 3, when it was getting so dark that you could hardly distinguish the players, to say nothing of seeing the old ball. Don pitched the whole game which will go down in history as being unusual and exciting. We even forgot all the players but there was "Ding" Sleeper and we played first base.

The only real old timers who go back to the gay nineties are George Van and Jack Mossia, and most of the others have answered the final decision of the Umpire of the universe, with only fond memories remaining.

While on the subject, the Cud-dihys of Antrim, will always be very near and very dear to us. Those gentlemen of the old school played baseball for one reason,—they loved the game. They could hit, field, run and scrap if necessary and were a tough gang to beat at home or abroad. The old score books tell the story in simple effective language. In Hillsboro, Jack Fraser was our idea of a baseball player together with the late Fatty Crowell, who was the king of swat.

Old timers can remember when Hillsboro had a football team that really went to town with Van Horn, Sleeper, Foster, Burbank, Pike and others. Lots of pep and ginger in those fall days of long ago.

The "River Works" Branch of the General Electric Co., at 820 Western Ave., West Lynn, will hold its open house from 1 to 5 P. M., on October 8, 1947. Perhaps some of my home town folks would like to tour the plant or possibly some of the boys in H.H.S. would like to visit the "Apprentice Training Course."

Also enclosed is a clipping taken from the Lynn Item on Sept. 22.

Also of interest to some of the townspeople would be—Bert Yeaton, Jr., has entered the 1st grade at Clark School in Swampscott. This, by the way, is the school in which Mrs. Hamilton Rumrill attended.

Antique Autos Meet Equal in "Bill's" 1910 Maxwell

"Uncle Cy" Says—

HILLSBORO, Sept. 19—William "Bill" Roach, proprietor of Bill's Auto Service, almost stopped the parade of ancient autos in the Glidden Tour of Veteran Motor Car Club of America, as it passed through Hillsboro.

Placing his 1910 model Maxwell directly in front of the garage, it gained the immediate attention of those on tour. Several valuable offers were made for the car, but "Bill" refused to part with his old Maxwell. He did offer, however, to trade the old Maxwell for an even older Ford.

The first of the old autos went through town about 2 o'clock Thursday and some 30 odd cars passed by that afternoon.

The cars began their trip that morning in Hartford, Conn., and by nightfall were scheduled to be in Concord.

All of the cars on the routes followed have been furnished maps and route logs by the American Automobile Association and the New Hampshire Division of the AAA has marked the route in New Hampshire with directional arrows. Service will be available throughout the tour arranged by the AAA as it did for the original tour.

Originally the Glidden Tour was

With the old time autos going through the town last week, reminds me of the time when there were only seven gas and steam buggies in Hillsboro.

George Lincoln, had a Queen. No top or windshield. There was a door on the back of the contraption, and a step to get in and seats on the side facing each other. The driver's seat was roomy enough for two persons.

A. L. Mansfield, had what was called the silent Northern. That had a top and windshield, and was driven by two double opposed large gas engines.

Bill Roach's car was a Prescott steamer, only a few were made in that time and were soon obsolete, but the trouble they gave were long remembered.

Gene Gage, Andrew Van Dommele and Stillman Baker, all had Stanley Steamers. It took so much time to clean the flues, pack the an endurance run to prove to the public that the cars manufactured after the turn of the century could be counted upon for good performance. Auto Clubs and the manufacturers sponsored the tour as "reliability runs."

water pumps, and keep the reserve water tank cleaned, that there wasn't much time left to ride. When you did, you had a worried feeling for you were sitting over a boiler with 500 pounds pressure of steam, and expected any minute to be up amongst the clouds.

"Doc" Grimes, had an Oldsmobile—also a horse that he could depend on. It was about 50-50 horse and auto.

George Wadleigh, was the only man that Hillsboro had at that time that could figure the cause of trouble and set things right. (and it took some figuring to do it).

I had a Pierce Motorette, for a short while (which was plenty long enough). It was a powerful sounding car. One cylinder, 3 and one half horse power. You would think when it got going there were a thousand horses all kicking at once.

The following verses were written at that time by Yours truly,

Auto Notes

by L. W. Dennison

We are blessed with winter weather, No more we need to dread Of seeing Lincoln buzzing 'round, With goggles on his head.

Mansfield and his Northern, For the North Pole he has struck: To bring Old Santa Claus to us: We hope he won't get stuck.

Bill Roach, has drawn the water From his Prescott too they say (No pressure on his (Expression) tank

He's said all he could say. Gage, has housed his Stanley, In his little shed of white; We'll miss the "honk honk" of his horn

And the blazing glare of light. Andrew Van's a little late, He's purchased Pagles car; When on the first few trial trips Don't get from home too far.

Doc's horse is doing duty, Don't know how long 'twill last; They say his calls are regular now: He doesn't ride as fast. Charlie will be missed, As will his stately Knox; We'll miss the look of dread on a fear

When perched upon the box. Baker's, is in cold storage; Hope 'twon't come to harm; If he motors just another year He'll be an inmate at the farm.

Wadleigh, has no auto, He hasn't bought as yet; He's covered now from head to foot With auto grease and sweat.

But as for myself, There's little to be told; The only thing that I can say— Thank Goodness, it is sold.

Feedlots Are Food Factories

Now, with the approach of fall, the endless streams of cattle and lambs flow down out of the high summer pastures. Last spring's pigs soon will be on the way to market. The sorting lots and corrals will soon be busy.

In the valleys and plains the feedlots begin to fill. They dam back some of this fall flood of animals... You who feed livestock know well how important this is. You realize that it helps avoid periods of glut and scarcity, by stretching out, over months, the time of marketing. You know, too, how such year 'round marketing serves to lessen big "feast-or-famine" price fluctuations. And who should understand better than you how the feedlots of America add millions of pounds to the nation's meat supply?

Feedlots save for the land much of the fertility which the selling of grain crops and hay would take out of the land. For example, you sell a steer that has gained 500 pounds in your feedlot. You are selling off your land only about 12 1/2 pounds of nitrogen, 3 pounds of phosphorus, 1 pound of potash, which his body has absorbed out of your feeds. But suppose you were to sell as cash crops the grain and hay which you put into that steer. Then you would deplete your soil of about seven times as much nitrogen, four times as much phosphorus, and twenty times as much potash.

Keeping the soil fertile through use of manure from livestock is only one factor in judging whether "feeding" is likely to be a profitable venture. There are many others which are being constantly studied by individuals, colleges, and experiment stations. In every feeding area they are trying out new rations, watching costs, plugging "leaks," developing more efficient feeding techniques. So if you are feeding livestock, or are considering it, it may be worth your while to consult your county agent, vocational agriculture teacher, or state agricultural college. Ask them what they have that's new in up-to-the-minute feeding information... maybe you'll find some new wrinkle that will lower your costs, increase your profit possibilities.

OUR CITY COUSIN

Asks little cousin, city-born, "Do Indians use wigwags of corn?"

How many Meat Packers?

Here's an interesting thing to note. There is, on an average, more than 1,000 miles between the point where livestock is raised and the point where the meat products are eaten. Largely because of this 1,000-mile gap, national meat packers came into being. The small meat packers buy livestock locally, slaughter and sell meat in the territory surrounding their plants. In addition to this service, nationwide organizations are equipped to do another big job—and do it economically. They perform the service of moving dressed meat the long distances from areas of production to large consuming areas where relatively little livestock is produced. These areas of great meat consumption and small meat production depend upon nationwide meat packers. Like Swift & Company, for a large part of their meat products. Livestock-producing areas also depend on the large meat packers, as an outlet for the livestock their immediate market cannot consume.

Most livestock producers market their livestock at only one market. So they come in contact with only a few livestock buyers. Dealing with such a small number of firms leads farmers and ranchers, naturally enough, to the thought that there is only a small number of meat packers in the United States. Actually, according to the latest figures available, there are approximately 4,000 meat packers and about 22,500 other commercial slaughterers of livestock. Some slaughter millions of head per year. Others kill thousands of head annually, and still others only hundreds.

New "Slant" Saves Pigs

Farrowing pens with sloping floors are the answer to clumsy sows that step or lie on baby pigs. The slant of the floor takes advantage of the natural tendency of sows to lie with their backs uphill, while the tiny baby pigs tumble downhill safely out of her way. Used extensively in Kentucky, sloping floors have cut baby pig losses to only one out of thirty, according to W. P. Garrigus of the University of Kentucky. He writes:

"Crushing or crippling by brood sows is the chief cause of pig losses. Normally, one out of every five new-born pigs is doomed to be mashed or severely crippled by clumsy, awkward brood sows the first day or so after farrowing. This loss to the swine industry adds up to a staggering total. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, each pig killed at farrowing represents a loss of 140 pounds of the feed consumed by the sow during the gestation and suckling periods. Figuring two pigs killed to the litter, this loss in one year alone, 1944, cost hog men 75 million dollars.

"Very little of this tremendous loss needs to be tolerated. Three years of experimentation and observation of herd tests in Kentucky show that sows farrowing on sloping floors raised from one to four pigs more than when they farrowed on level floors. On 49 Kentucky farms where records have been kept, with 385 litters, an average of only one pig out of 30 farrowed has been crushed on sloping floors."

The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., has detailed information on sloping floors for farrowing pens, instructions for building, etc.

Soda Bill Sez: ... it doesn't take much of a horse to pull a load downhill.

Track Down the Facts

If you ever see tracks like this in the snow, dust, or mud, you'll know there's been a white-tailed deer around. An experienced hunter can tell from the tracks how long since they were made, the approximate size of the deer, and whether it was in full flight or quietly going about its business.

Deer tracking is considerably out of our line here at Swift & Company. But we do have a staff of trained fact hunters. Their job is to track down the facts which control our business operations. They study the U. S. Department of Agriculture figures on livestock supplies. They "track down" too, the demand for meat... what weights and grades housewives everywhere are asking for... what cuts they prefer.

Our "fact trackers" know full well that the price of livestock is governed by what the meat packer can get for the meat and by-products.

Richard Carmichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Carmichael, is ill with pneumonia.

We had our first touch of cold weather on Saturday morning. The mercury dropped to about 30 in the village. We saw faint signs of frost in various places along the roadside. A heavier frost was predicted for Sunday morning, but cloudy weather prevented one.

Pomponoosuc 4-H Club met Thursday afternoon at the home of its new leader, Mrs. George Neilson and elected officers for the new year. President, Sally Hazen; first vice president, Joyce DeViney; second vice president, Rita Gagnon; secretary and treasurer, Barbara Carnes. Plans were made for Achievement Night which will be October 3.

Did you see the antique automobiles last Thursday? They began going through here about 2 P. M., and continued to do so until about 8 o'clock. They were all polished and painted to look very modern in that respect. In fact some of the cars looked and sounded better than some we see today. We heard a few things that might be of interest. One car had trouble getting up Cemetery Hill, so Mike Hazen went out to offer his services. The owner told Mike that he had a spare part for every part in the engine. He also said that when in trouble people were much more ready to help him than they did with his modern car which proved to be a Cadillac. A car which stopped at a gas station was made in 1906. There were Fords, Pierce Arrows, Chandlers, Franklin, (not ours), Stanley Steamers, etc. The funniest one we think was a truck, similar to a pickup. The seat was so much higher than the truck part, that it looked as if the driver was standing up as he came through the Square. And there was apparently no seat beside him as the passenger sat on blankets in the body of the truck. There were some very fancy limousines. One had lights between the front and back doors as the old buggies used to have. Many of the cars had the right hand drive. But to appreciate the cars you had to see them standing still. Most of them whizzed through so fast they were gone before we could get a good look at them.
